Poker Clubs' 'War' Rages at Gardena

Dime Dinners Draw Crowds; Cafe Men's Squawk Stirs Mayor

By JIM PHELAN

GARDENA— Anonymous death threats over the telephone . . . steak dinners for a dime . . . private detectives investigating cab drivers at 3 a. m. . charges of pandering and illegal liquor sales.

Put them all together and you get Gardena, California's "Little Las Vegas," home of the legalized poker palace.

Gardena burst into the news last week with a price war that sent the tab for a full dinner down to a dime at one of its six plush poker palaces.

Hungry Californians, many of whom would not know a bobtailed flush from a full house, flocked here by the hundreds to queue up for the most sensational food bargain since the soup kitchens of the late Great Depression.

Behind this comic-opera war is an ugly situation that has been brewing for months. Some sober Gardenans are fearful that it is going to get out of hand.

Gardena's troubles started last fall when bitter competition for business broke up an agreement between the poker houses to run only six days a week. Under this agreement, each club closed on a different day and all ran on Saturday, when card players are plentiful.

Rival operators blame the collapse of this agreement on Ernie Primm, present boss of the Rainbow Club and a reputed partner in the Monterey. Primm has the reputation of being an aggressive, hard-driving operator, with close connections to the present city administration.

Primm sold the Monterey some time back, and then opened the new Rainbow nearby. Primm said the Rainbow was not bound by the closing-day agreement, and he ran it seven days a week. Last December, the Monterey ran into business trouble and changed management, with Primm said to be an influential figure in the new setup.

With the Rainbow running full time, the other clubs scrapped the agreement six weeks ago and all went on a seven-day schedule.

Some months ago, the "Gardena War" spread to the taxicab business.

Transportation is a big factor in a poker club's business. Many players don't have autos, and getting to and from the clubs is a vital problem. Each club has its regular players, and the poker barons guard them as jealously as a farmer guards his prize

POP CAN WATCH HIS OLD FIGHTS

9-Year-Old L.B. Boy Builds His Own Television Set

Byron Clinton Perkins, a 9-year-year-old third-grader with a faceful of freckles, isn't one to let anything stand in the way of his favorite television programs.

Some time ago, when he found himself left out in the cold when it came to choosing the family's TV entertainment, he hit on a simple and logical solution.

He built his own set.

Of course, he had a little help —his dad, W. B. Perkins, of 1138 E. Plymouth St., happens to be an electronics technician — but the help was strictly in the form of advice and instruction.

Byron did all the work himself, figuring out where various parts went after talking over the diagram with his father, and then installing and wiring them.

Many of the parts in the 22-tube, 17-inch set were donated by "ham" friends, or "cannibalized" from old sets. Others were bought as needed. The picture tube was his Christmas present.

The whole project took just over a year, and Byron is still having a little trouble with Channel 2—his favorite.

But he expects to get this ironed out soon, and meanwhile he can take his pick of the programs in the privacy of his room while Pop watches the fights in peace.

Byron's no stranger in the world of amps and ohms. He's already built two radio sets, and is now working towards his novice radio operator's license.

And though building a TV set is a pretty notable accomplishment for a nine-year-old, he's still not satisfied.

He's already started to work on a gadget to convert his set to color.

Copter Saves Downey Girl in Mountains

A 15-year-old Downey girl was rescued by a helicopter Saturday after falling 25 feet to a rocky ledge while hiking up Mt. San Jacinto, near Palm Springs.

Barbara Glover, 9033 E. Buckles St., was treated at Desert Hospital for minor head injuries.

Police said the girl, accompanied by a boy companion, Jean Boutalt, 8211 Alameda St., Downey, were hiking at about the 3,000 foot level when she lost her footing and fell.

Police and a mounted patrol unit, led to the scene by Boutalt, carried the girl to an open area and placed her on a stretcher. An Army Engineer helicopter then transported her to the valley floor where an ambulance took her to the hospital.

AT LAST, TAX ON VERY AIR YOU BREATHE!

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)— Taxpayers have been predicting for years it would happen, but when it did, city officials were stumped.

A businessman set up some oxygen-vending machines—two minutes of oxygen for 25 cents—and asked the officials what taxes he should pay.

He found out no one ever had thought to figure how to tax on "the air you breathe."

City officials asked the attorney general to decide if oxygen (air) is merchandise. There's a tax on merchandise.

GOOD MAN GONE

Jimmy Given Last Sendoff in Skid Row

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Some 500 down-and-outers raised their quavering voices in dimly remembered hymns Saturday at the first funeral anyone can remember on Skid Row.

The service was conducted for "Brother Jimmy" at Sister Sylvia's rescue misson on E. 5th St. On the county's death register he was described as "James Pierce, about 40, transient from Richmond, Va. Died Feb. 18, 1955 in General Hospital from the effect of acute alcoholism."

After no one else came forward to claim the body, which lay in the county morgue for three weeks, Sister Sylvia decided to provide a funeral in her mission.

Pierce came to the mission six months ago, was converted and went to work as a cook at the mission's City of Refuge in the desert near Twentynine Palms. But his previous life on Skid Rows had broken his health and he died.

When the regular habitues of the mission and soup kitchen shuffled in Saturday they were surprised to see a silver-handled coffin at the front. Sister Sylvia, a tall, auburn-haired woman dressed in a black ministerial robe, called on the men to sing "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Rock of Ages."

On the platform behind Sister Sylvia some of her converts, ex-alcoholics, gave brief eulogies. "He was a good man,

I hate to see him go," said one. "No one ever kept the soup counter cleaner," said another. Sister Sylvia said Brother Jimmy had been saved and "had given up demon rum to do the Lord's work."

Ike Appoints Board to Aid in VA Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower Saturday appointed a seven-member commission, headed by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, to see whether payments to veterans can be reduced.

He asked the commission to submit a report by November on which he can base recommendations to Congress for "modernizing" laws under which the government spends $2,800,000,000 a year for pensions, disability compensation and related nonmedical benefits for veterans and their dependents.

Noting that the nation now has 21,000,000 veterans, "and the number is increasing rapidly," the President said the cost is likely to double over the next few decades.

The politically explosive question he handed the commission is whether future generations, including veterans themselves and their survivors, can afford the snowballing financial burden of such payments.

Any move to reduce them will bring the wrath of the big veterans' organizations. These groups already are fighting mad because of a recent Hoover Commission report recommending the Veterans Administration close 20 of its hospitals and otherwise curtail free medical service to ex-GIs.

Gen. Bradley, now retired, was Veterans Administrator after World War II and later Army Chief of Staff.

U.S. Revises Its Rules for 'Risk' Firing

Measures Taken to Avoid Mixups as in Ladejinsky Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration revised the controversial system of security firings Saturday. It said its aim is to assure "fair and impartial treatment" of suspected federal workers.

The new rules, which did not go as far as many critics demanded, were drafted by Atty. Gen. Brownell and aides. President Eisenhower directed that they be put into effect.

Aimed at uniform procedure throughout the executive branch, the rules provided among other things:

Charges should be "specific enough to be meaningful to employes." (There have been complaints that in some cases charges were so general that the accused could not draft a defense.)

Subordinate officials should not be given the final say-so on whether an employee is to be suspended.

Various agencies should take steps to "avoid conflicting evaluations." This was aimed at the case of Wolf Ladejinsky, tabbed a security risk by one agency and cleared by two others.

The new regulations provide that hereafter when an agency head decides to take adverse action against an employe previously cleared in another agency, he should first consult with the head of the other agency.

It is also "suggested" that a personal interview with the employe "prior to suspension is helpful in most instances." Ladejinsky said he tried in vain to get a personal interview with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson.

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC), who plans a critical study of the security setup, said that "they (the Eisenhower administration) acknowledge their security methods have been wrong, because otherwise they wouldn't have had to change them."

PRINCESS MUST CHOOSE

Report Meg Weighs Romance or Palace

LONDON (AP)—The Sunday Pictorial said Saturday night that Princess Margaret was packed off on her Caribbean tour to decide whether she wants to stay on as a palace princess or marry RAF Group Capt. Peter Townsend. He is the much-decorated Royal Air Force hero whose eligibility is handicapped by a divorce and his age—40.

The mass circulation tabloid splashed across its front page in bold black type: "Now the tour is over—she has to choose."

It said, "preparations have been made for informing Parliament and the public" if she chooses Townsend, the former royal equerry who now is in Belgium in a minor foreign service post.

In an unusually forthright three-page feature, the Sunday Pictorial said the pretty 24-year-old princess must choose soon between "the palace or the man."

The Pictorial printed two pictures of the couple together showing Townsend grave and unsmiling at the side of the vivacious princess. These pictures were taken in 1947 when the princess was 16. A third picture showed Townsend at a race meeting during his "exile" in Brussels—alone beneath a tree while around him race parties chatted together.

It described Townsend, as "lonely Peter . . . the exile who waits in silence."

The report seemed certain to revive a No. 1 talking point throughout the nation. It said:

"Princess Margaret was given the royal tour by herself in the Caribbean sunshine as a last gesture to help her decide her personal problem which affects the whole nation.

"It was thought that its appeal might make her resolve never to relinquish the rights and responsibilities of a palace princess.

"It was feared that the strong-willed sister of the queen would still choose love.

"That is why preparations have been made for informing Parliament and the public.

"People all over the world will wait with sympathy and understanding for the decision of the lovely Princess Margaret."

Talk of a royal romance with Townsend, first mentioned publicly 21 months ago, died down with his assignment to Brussels as air attache at the British embassy.

The fact that Townsend divorced his wife in 1952 raised difficulties so great that only a romance as strong as that of Margaret's uncle, the Duke of Windsor, with American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson could survive them.

Earthquakes Stir Fear of More Blasts

All Nonresidents of Pahoa Ordered Out, Others Set to Run

PAHOA, Hawaii (AP) — All nonresidents of Pahoa were ordered out Saturday and officials prepared to evacuate the entire town on "a moment's notice" as earth tremors gave warning of possible new eruptions in the volcano-torn district of east Hawaii.

Trucks were dispatched to evacuate about 200 persons still living east and south of the town. Nearly 400 refugees were in Pahoa from that part of Puna still bubbling under tremendous lava eruptions.

An observation plane sighted smoke and flame which might indicate eruption along the fault line extending upward from the devastated Puna Peninsula to Kilauea crater, several thousand feet higher.

The sighting was made at 4:30 p.m., Hawaii time (6:30 p.m., PST.). Pouring rain fell as residents of the peninsula began streaming through Pahoa with their belongings piled on cars, trucks and pickups.

Dr. Gordon A. McDonald, Hawaii volcanologist, made the recommendations for evacuating people after hearing of the continuing earth tremors which hit at 1 p.m. Hawaii time and were increasing.

MacDonald at first said he was recommending evacuation of Pa-

Tots Go Back Into Blaze, Five Perish

PORTSMOUTH, Iowa (UP) — Four small children and a courageous 11-year-old baby sitter died Saturday, huddled in a back room of a flaming basement house.

Sitter Jean Kleffman had led three small boys to safety, but instead of remaining outside, they tagged behind her into the burning basement when she went to rescue the fourth child, a baby.

The flames crackled up through the single entryway, blocking escape and all five were trapped and suffocated.

The dead, besides quiet, auburn-haired Jean, were the children of Mr. and Mrs. John Raymond, John Jr., 5, Russell, 4, Jerry, 3, and Anna Marie, 9 months.

Mrs. Raymond had left the children with Jean, as she frequently did, while she drove 45 miles west to Council Bluffs to get Mr. Raymond, who works there as a truck dispatcher.

Danny Raymond, 7, was playing outside when he saw the flames.

"I screamed, 'Fire!'" he said, then ran half a block to the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Louie Raymond.

"Come quick, our house is afire!" he called.

But by the time help arrived, flames blocked entry.

Fire Chief J. J. Herkenrath said the fire may have started from wiring. The basement house had three rooms and a bath.

Sunny Forecast Here; Good Ski Day on Peaks

A sunny afternoon following morning clouds was predicted for today by the Weather Bureau.

Up in the local mountains, ski enthusiasts should be able to look forward to a good day on the slopes with warm temperatures, but plenty of snow—albeit a little wet.

Good skiing was reported at the Lake Arrowhead-Big Bear areas and the higher slopes at Mt. Baldy.

L.A.C. SAYS:

It Happens Often

The series of articles these newspapers have carried concerning the Eldred case should save many persons their security. Because this case happened in nearby Santa Ana, it is brought close to home. It is another case of an attractive, vibrant personality gaining the confidence of people and then bilking them. It is tragic that so many old people lose their life savings. It is also tragic that a man with so much ability should use it in such a sordid manner.

This case is the old one where people entrust their money to some local go-getter. In this case it was to buy trust deeds and keep them in their possession. They gave them to Eldred to keep in his safe. He collected the interest and principal payments and sent them to the investors. But apparently he started using money for other purposes and started cheating, hoping to make a killing before he was caught.

Again it was the old story. He took people's money to buy trust deeds—but he used the money for other purposes. He took one person's money to pay interest and monthly principal payments on trust deeds to others. But it finally caught up with him and the last money going into his possession was completely lost.

This kind of fraud has been going on throughout history in some form or another. Older people will remember the wild schemes of Ponzi. He was supposed to have a sure fire plan to make everyone rich. He paid five per cent or some such amount a month. Money flowed into him in fabulous amounts. But he was simply paying out the first obligations with the last money to come in. Those on the tail end of the speculation lost everything they put in.

One big reason so many people lose their money in these schemes is because they are avaricious. When interest rates on sound trust deeds and mortgages are 4½ or 6 per cent they want 6 per cent. In such a frame of mind they are sitting ducks for promoters offering higher interest. Many trust deeds bearing higher interests are sound investments. But investors should be sure the legal papers go through escrow and are given into their possession before placing any money in the investment.

Unless investors consider themselves experts in such financial affairs they would be wise to consult their bank. For their legal standing of ownership and possession they should consult their attorney. It is tragic that people who have spent years, carefully saving, should so carelessly entrust their money to an individual without checking. An honest and sound dealer in trust deeds and mortgages would welcome such an investigation on the part of a prospective investor.

An elderly person with a very large amount of money may be justified in speculating with a portion of his money. But when it represents old age security, it is terribly foolish to try to make one or two per cent more interest when safety can be had with reasonable interest on the money.

This writer would not attempt to set down rules. But the Better Business Bureau slogan "investigate before you invest" is certainly a sound policy. It is apparent those who have lost in the Eldred and so many similar cases did not follow that policy. Because they did not they have seen a tragic end to their life savings.—L.A.C.

Card Clubs Battle for Players' Favor

dairy herd—and for much the same reason.

Gardena has only one licensed cab company, the Gardena Yellow Cab Co., headed by August Chopp. Chopp and his drivers complained that the poker clubs "financed and condoned" unlicensed limousines to carry card players, thus cutting in on the cab business. The Yellow drivers finally threw a picket line around the Rainbow Club.

Primm promptly sued Chopp for damages and asked for an injunction against the picketing. The pickets were withdrawn, but Chopp fired back with a countersuit, asking damages and repayment for "loss of revenue" to the wild-cutting limousines.

Chopp filed two affidavits charging that his drivers have been beaten, that a cab was sabotaged, and that two threats were made against his life. Chopp says that he received anonymous phone calls on Jan. 17 and Jan. 19, warning him to drop his lawsuits.

"The last time," says Chopp, "the caller told me 'Call off that suit or you'll never live to find out how it comes out.'"

Two months ago, someone hired a Los Angeles private detective firm to carry on an intensive investigation of Chopp's drivers. Detectives, posing as "Good-Time Charlies," rode the cabs in the early morning hours and filed reports charging that the drivers made illegal liquor sales, overcharged on trips, and offered to steer their fares to prostitutes.

These charges were presented to the Gardena city council with a request that the cab firm's license be revoked. At about the same time, an application to license a new firm, the Ace Cab Co., was filed.

Head of the Ace Cab Co. is Heber W. O'Neil, a friend of Primm. Primm denies persistent reports that he is financing the new cab company.

The Ace application will be heard by the city council Monday morning. The hearing is expected to be well-attended by Gardena's gambling fraternity.

"If one poker clique gets control of the cab business here," says Ray Morris, manager of the Embassy Club, "the rest of us are going to be over the barrel."

The long and bitter war flared on the food front last Wednesday. This battle, too, started with the dynamic Mr. Primm.

The Rainbow Club circulated tickets advertising a "50-Cent Player-s Special" meal. Business flocked to the Rainbow-Club.

Harry Klassman, boss of the Embassy Club, fired back by cutting the price of a full meal to 10 cents. He didn't restrict it to players, but offered it to all comers. By Saturday, the Embassy said it had served 3,000 meals for a dime each and Klassman's club had patrons queued up in lines.

Primm's club later withdrew its 50-cent meals and went back to standard prices.

Embassy Manager Morris, however, vows that "We're going to keep up the 10-cent meals until we get some respect for orderly operation around here."

The food bargain has regular restaurant operators howling in anguish. They complain that all their regular customers are now eating at the Embassy. Saturday, the club offered swiss steak with mushrooms, potatoes, vegetable and bread and butter for 10 cents, as well as roast pork, scrambled eggs and ham, and creamed chipped beef at the same price.

Mayor Adams Bolton said that Klassman defied him when he complained about the Embassy food bargain.

"You should have heard the language he used," said the mayor. "He claimed that he wasn't breaking any law and that he'd sell his food for any price he wanted."

At this point, there is no armistice in sight in the war of the poker palaces. One alderman says that he is going to offer a resolution Monday to suspend the licenses of both Primm and Klassman for a month, in an effort to cool down tempers and get a peace conference going.

A sizable group of Gardenans are talking about a recall movement. They claim that the present administration has brought on Gardena's trouble by playing too cozy with one poker faction.

In all the fighting for business, so far, none of the six clubs has unleashed the final, ultimate, H-bomb weapon.

"What I'm waiting for," said Poker Player Harry Karpe, "is the day they start wooing up with free chips."

92 in Texas, but Zero in North Dakota

By Associated Press.

March's fickle weather spread icy winter across the northern tier of states Saturday while parts of the south perspired in summerlike temperatures.

The maximum reading at Grand Forks, N. D., was zero.

But at Presidio, Tex., the mercury hit 92 degrees. Birmingham, Ala., with 83 degrees, and Charlotte, N. C., with 84, reported their highest temperatures ever for so early in the year.

A cold wave chased a brief taste of spring from the Midwest and moved southward and eastward, while a blaze of ice made driving hazardous in much of New York, New Jersey and New England.

At least two persons were killed in accidents blamed on the ice. Some fresh, freezing drizzle was reported in western New York Saturday.

Rain pelted wide areas of the East where recent storms have swollen streams and rivers.

Flood fears abated in Pittsburgh, however, after the U. S. Weather Bureau there forecast that the Ohio River would crest from one foot above the 25-foot flood stage.

This level would result in only minor damage.

Part of the River Downs Race Track in Cincinnati was under water from the Ohio River flood.

Temperatures plunged 30 degrees as late winter's Arctic blasts hit the northern plains and surged south and eastward.

hoa, a town of 600, now swelled to more than 1000 by the week of volcanic action. Later he modified his recommendation so that it might be delayed temporarily to "avoid panic."

There were two ominous threats:

1. The fountains in the erupting lava fields have dropped from 800 to 300 feet indicating pressure is building up under ground.

2. Quakes preceded the last two major eruptions earlier this week.

Charles Kauhane, speaker of the Territorial House, ordered "all the trucks and mobile transportation available in surrounding areas rushed immediately to Pahoa to stand by."

Radio calls went out for volunteer drivers.

He also ordered air coverage of the 20-mile slope from Pahoa to Kilauea to report any signs of smoke or fumes from the fault extending from the crater in a direct line to the flaming fissures below here.

MacDonald told an emergency meeting of Civil Defense and territorial officials:

"Let's not get rattled. We don't have to run yet. Let's look before we jump."

The order to evacuate more areas on the Puna Peninsula includes the small towns of Kalapana and Opihikao.

MacDonald, in a later study of the seismograph readings, placed the center of the quakes in the vicinity of Makaopuhi crater, the last of the chain of craters toward Kilauea.

"If an eruption follows the quakes," Macdonald said, "the flow can go two ways. If it comes east, we would have to evacuate Pahoa and the whole Puna district. If it went south, Pahoa would be safe for now but the south coast would be threatened."

"This son-of-a-gun (Kilauea) fault has been quiet too many years."

There has been no eruption west of Pahoa as yet.

Macdonald also said:

"There is a definite possibility of danger to Pahoa and even Olaa, a larger town 11 miles north of Pahoa. That is why I am recommending every preparation for evacuation of Pahoa on a moment's notice."

Son Drowns as Mother Attends Brother's Funeral

LANCASTER, Ky. (AP)—A 10-year-old boy fell from a bridge and drowned in flood-swollen creek waters Saturday while his mother attended the funeral of her brother.

The body of Mrs. Woodrow Marshbanks' son, Tony, was recovered about 300 yards downstream from the bridge, where Tony, a brother and cousin were playing.

Mrs. Marshbanks was in Berea, Ky., for the funeral of her brother, Sam Ward. Ward committed suicide at Dayton, Ohio, while he and Mrs. Marshbanks were attending the funeral of her brother-in-law.

The brother-in-law was killed in an automobile accident.

Neil C. Ritchison, 24, of 12162 Firebrand Ave., Garden Grove, was afraid his four-year-old son, Rodney, would fall out of the car some day, so he installed special safety catches on the doors.

Saturday night, as Ritchison rounded a corner in his car at Junipero Ave. and 17th St., Rodney opened a rear door and fell out.

The safety catch had failed to function.

Rodney was treated at Community Hospital for abrasions and released after X-rays showed he suffered no fractures.

Dulles' Plane Lands at Travis on Way Home

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles, en route to Washington to make a Far East report to President Eisenhower and the nation, landed at 9:25 p.m. Saturday night on a flight from Honolulu.

An Air Force spokesman said Dulles remained aboard during the half hour refueling stop.

Dulles worked in Honolulu Friday on reports on his Far East tour in which he attended the Bangkok conference of Manila pact nations and visited Burma, Indochina, and Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa headquarters.

The secretary will report immediately to President Eisenhower, then make a nationwide broadcast on Tuesday night. Eisenhower has said that by the time Dulles returns he "certainly will have at least some new ideas or variations of ideas to put into our calculations."

Political and psychological maneuvering by the Communists led to speculation that comparative quiet might prevail in the Formosan area for the next month or six weeks.

There were predictions here that Communist-controlled countries would send large, strong delegations to an Afro-Asian conference scheduled for late next month in Bandoeng. Their aim, it is believed, would be to dominate the conference and fit it to the Red pattern.

If this is the plan, it is reasoned, the Communists might steer clear of serious attempts at military capture of the more important Nationalist islands while the diplomatic stage was being set for a Bandoeng maneuver.

This could mean that any outright showdown for capture of big islands, like Formosa itself, or Quemoy, might not develop until May.

Father Jailed for Beating Twin Girls, 2

A 22-year-old Long Beach father was jailed Saturday after he assertedly whipped his twin daughters, 2, with a belt for not eating their dinner.

William F. Gragg, 762 Via Carmelitas, was arrested after a baby-sitter told her parents, who called sheriff's deputies, that the children, Terry Ann and Debra Lee, were "covered with bruises."

Gragg's wife, Anna, 20, is in Seaside Hospital for treatment of a skin ailment. The couple has two other children, Leslie Owana, 3½, and Candise Linn, five months.

Joint Defense Command for Formosa Seen

TAIPEI (Sunday) (UP)—Adm. Robert B. Carney, U. S. chief of naval operations, disclosed today that a joint Chinese-American command probably may be set up here to organize the defense of Formosa against possible Communist attack.

Carney said planning for the joint command is not complete, but added that the recent Chinese-American defense pact made it extremely likely one will be formed.

"A joint command is always necessary when forces of two nations get together," he said.

Carney expressed his views at a press conference shortly before boarding a plane for Honolulu and eventually to the United States.

Heavy weather Saturday brought fighting along the embattled China coast to a standstill. Nationalist Chinese military quarters said not a shot was fired along the 150-mile "front."

The Communists made no attempt to follow up their attack on the northern outpost island of Kaoteng, which was beaten off by Chinese artillery Friday night.

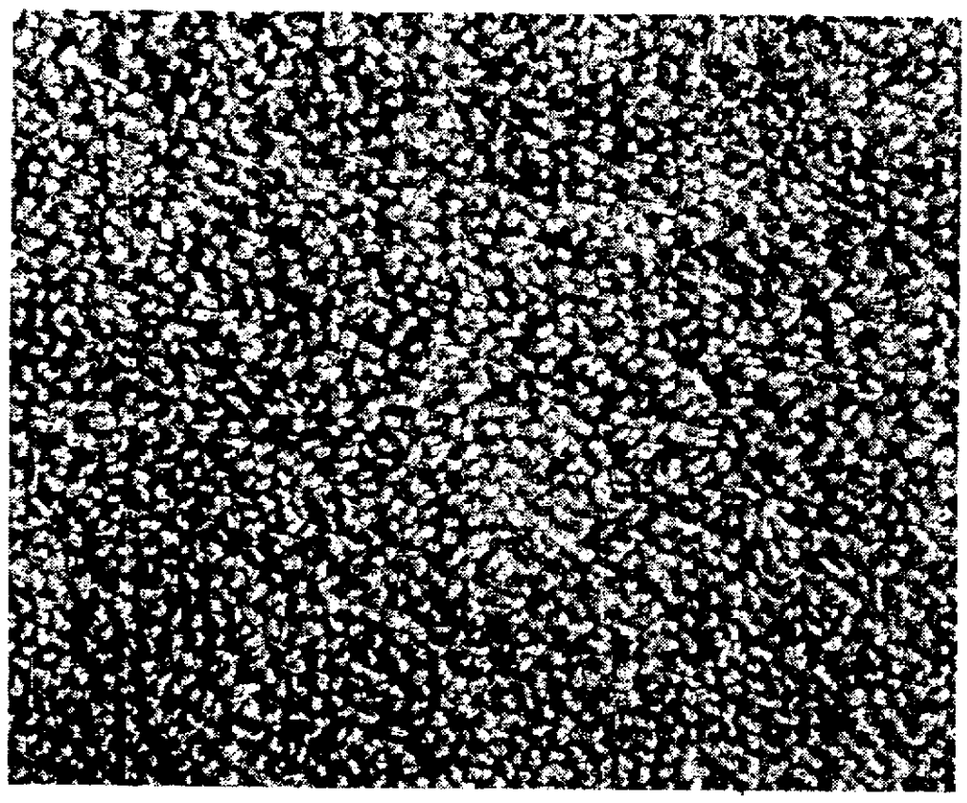

The official military information service issued no communique on the day's operations because "there is nothing to report."

Minorities to Be Quizzed on Housing

Do Long Beach non-whites want better housing? And can they pay for better housing?

These questions will be asked and answered in a non-white housing survey which begins this week, part of a community survey under the auspices of the Civic League of Long Beach, 601 Pacific Ave. Harry R. Christensen is president and Clyde G. Roseberry, executive director of the Civic League.

Under direction of John Hepler, 70 Argonne Ave., who last summer aided in a smillar survey in Portland under the auspices of the Urban League, 20 college students and 20 citizen voluteers, Monday will begin contacting organizations with minority group members.

Members of the minority groups will be asked to answer a three-page housing-market questionnaire. Beginning in early April, the interviewers will conduct a house-to-house canvass in areas inhabited by non-whites, presenting the questionnaire.

Included in the questionnaire.

Are you interested in buying a house? How old a house? In what price bracket? How much of a down payment can you make?

Are you interested in renting a desirable house or apartment? How much rent can you pay? How many bedrooms do you need?

In what area would you like to live?

Would you object to being the only non-white living in an all-white block?

Other information includes income, education, and the size of the family.

Hepler, who received a bachelor's degree from Kansas State College and a master's degree in political science from the University of Chicago, says that, as the results of the Portland survey are tabulated, they establish that property values do not drop when non-whites move into a neighborhood.

The widely-quoted Laurenti survey in San Francisco, he says, established that property values go up and not down with the advent of non-whites. The Beldon Morgan survey in Los Angeles, according to Hepler, showed a drop in the values of high-priced housing, but not low or medium-priced housing with the advent of non-whites.

First results of the community survey will be told at a Civic League banquet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Lafayette Hotel.

Sssss-S-S-S-S!—and Termites Flee Wooden Leg

TO PUT IT MILDLY, Charles Monkiewicz, 38, of 6727 N. Long Beach Blvd., had a unique problem—termites in his wooden leg. So, logically, he went to a termite extermination company for emergency aid. Pictures show him removing artificial limb (left), which is placed on a chair, enclosed in a plastic envelope and then fumigated with deadly methyl-bromide gas. At right, Monkiewicz grins happily as Chet Rice, of the Southern California Termite Control Company, helps him replace the limb, minus all forms of insect life.—(Staff Photos by Chuck Sundquist.)

Dead-Leather Office Here Is Booming

By GEORGE ERES

Postmaster George McMillin has so many pairs of babies' shoes he doesn't know what to do.

Well, not exactly. He knows eventually that the unclaimed ones will have to go to the "dead leather office" but meanwhile there are about 250 pairs of babies' shoes piled in cartons in his office.

They've been at the post office for more than three months.

Apparently what has happened is that somebody has gone about the country taking orders for bronzing baby shoes and asking that the shoes be sent here.

"There have been some inquiries to the post office box number concerning the shoes," said Postmaster McMillin, "and as a result we have been able to return about 60 pairs of shoes to owners."

When the Post Office gets a lead as to who may have ordered the shoes bronzed, it sends off a form letter which reads in part:

". . . This mail was addressed to a post office box . . . and the addressee has failed to call for his mail and his present whereabouts is unknown.

"We have several hundred pair of baby shoes and packages in the mails, all of which bear a number, perhaps indicating an order number. We feel that these shoes are of sentimental value and we would be very glad to return them if you could send us any order number which might identify yolr shoes . . ."

Postmaster McMillin said the indications are that people have been paying the "shoe-bronzing" salesman from $10 to $12, or a part of the amount.

The salesman has been covering a lot of territory. Shoes have come from Maryland, Nevada and Northern California.

Postmaster McMillin would like it fine if the man would take the shoes off his hands, bronze them and send them back to the mantlepieces around the country where they belong.

Snow Urges U.S. Beat Reds With Aid to Backward Lands

With both nations realizing that total war would constitute international suicide, the United States and Russia are now in a state of competitive co-existence, based on an atomic stalemate.

That's the opinion of Edgar Snow, one of the country's best-known foreign correspondent, who spoke Saturday night at the Unitarian Church in the Long Beach Liberal Arts Forum series.

Snow, termed "the greatest reporter to come out of Asia" by Fortune Magazine, stated that realization has come to both opposing powers that neither communism nor democracy can be smashed by force.

Statements of Molotov and other Russian leaders have indicated, Snow said, that they fully realize that total warfare would mean destruction for both sides. He believes the Reds are content to compete with the United States on a peaceful basis, confident of their ability to "sell" communism to the rest of the world.

EDGAR SNOW
Star Reporter

"If the United States wants to win—or even hold its own—in this competition," Snow warned, "we must find better democratic ideas and implement them before the impoverished peoples of the world embrace communism."

The United States should concentrate its energies in helping such nations solve their economic problems by constructively planning with them and contributing finances to that end, the speaker said.

"Force of arms hasn't stamped out communism yet, and it never will," he declared.

World peace cannot be stabilized when a fourth of mankind—China—is not in the United Nations, Snow said.

"We should open negotiations with Red China to see if some agreement can't be reached on the Formosa question," Snow said. "Then, steps should be taken to admit them to the U. N."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Meadowlark Club Signs Drilling Pact

A lease for oil drilling under the 103-acre Meadowlark Golf Club course, near Sunset Beach, has been signed by club owners with Ted Sterling of Brentwood.

Ten wells probably will be drilled, with drillsites near the pumphouse in the center of the course near the No. 3 fairway, Gomer J. Sims, club co-owner, said. Drilling will start within six months and will not interfere with golf play.

Meadowlark Golf Club was established in 1923 and was acquired in 1944 by Sims and Cecil B. Hollingsworth.

About 20 organizations have sought drilling rights on the golf club property, which is in the new Sunset Heights field.

Flying Meet

A Long Beach unit of the Civil Air Patrol, Group 7, Saturday marked sites of old plane wrecks in the Monrovia area.

The local unit's purpose was to paint conspicuous yellow crosses at the locations of wreckage in remote places.

Today, five CAP squadrons, including local men, will go to Fletcher Airport in Rosemead for the AAU-CAP Flying meet.

Bandits, 14, Caught

Two 14-year-old boys were captured by juvenile officers Friday after they had robbed a grocery-store clerk at 1103 Eubank Ave., Wilmington, and escaped as the store owner fired three shots at them.

The junior high school students, arrested at their homes, obtained about $70 in holding up Mrs. Beulah Haughsted, the clerk, with a .38-caliber revolver.

One youth, who had been recognized by a customer in the store, said he had committed other robberies but refused to answer other questions "under Commandment Five."

Fall Hurts Baby

A 3-month-old boy, Chris E. Upchurch, was listed as "slightly improved" but still in serious condition at Community Hospital Saturday night as the result of injuries sustained Friday, when he fell off a bureau at his home, 2309 Iroquois Ave.

His mother, Mrs. Marcia Upchurch, told police she left the baby lying on top of the bureau while she left the room. In her absence, he fell to the floor.

ANCIENT SPORT GOES MODERN

Fencing Matches Now Scored Like Pinball

By BERT RESNIK

Long Beach fencers—the dueling kind—are wired for more than sound.

They're hooked up for touch, or touche, if you prefer to be technical.

The Cavaliers Fencing Club at the Downtown YMCA is the first West Coast group to participate in the shocking revolution.

The object is to eliminate any argument about who hit who first. Before a bout, three strands of wire are run through the sleeves of each participant, Club Coach John McKee explains.

The plug emerging from the sleeve is connected to the foil. The hilt connection point also serves as a hookup for two wires in the gutter of the foil. The same two wires, at the other end, are attached to a switch in the point of the foil.

When Fencer No. 1 hits Fencer No. 2, the foil point depresses and the switch is electrically activated.

All of which could make Fencer No. 1 a human ground wire for a short circuit. This would hardly be inducement for a man to try and score first.

But wait, before you toss the foil in the junk heap. Science has all the answers.

Remember those three wires that went up the fencer's sleeve? That's where the short circuit gets foiled.

For these strands exit at the rear of the waistline and are fastened to a reel. There's 80 feet of wire on the reel. It works like an automatic fishing reel.

When the fencer goes forward to the attack, the line plays out. When he retreats, the slack is taken up.

So fine, but it still sounds like the fencer is bait for an electrical jolt, reel or no reel.

Science says it's not so.

The reel is hooked up with an electronic box and here is where the circuit is completed. A buzzer sounds and a light lights (what else would it be doing?) when Fencer No. 1 makes contact with Fencer No. 2.

In brief, the foil point strikes, the switch switches, the juice flows through the sword, over the wired fencer into the reel, then the box and then BINGO—or touche, if you prefer to be technical.

Trudi Wodgenske, Pacific Coast Inter-Foil Champion, Women's Division, concedes the advantages, but still isn't too happy with the change.

"I suppose I eventually will get used to the wire down my back," she said. "And I can see where it makes it a lot easier for the judges."

She looked back at the wire trailing from her to the reel.

"But it's just unfeminine to be dragging around a wire tail."

Unfeminine or not, Coach McKee is looking for more women and men fencers to join the Cavaliers. He works full time for Douglas Aircraft Co's. Long Beach division and coaches on Saturday afternoons.

McKee believes the electrical foils will create more interest in the sport.

In addition, they're short-circuit proof, he says. There's no chance for an electric shock, he says. It's perfectly safe, he says.

Purse Finder Does Sleuth Job to Track Down Owner

An honest woman, Monica Casey, 3523 E. 3rd St., went to a lot of trouble to return a lost purse to its owner, Saturday.

Miss Casey found the bag belonging to Mrs. Mercedes Lofton, 305 Wisconsin Ave., on a bus bench at 4th St. and Wisconsin Ave., Friday afternoon, minutes after Mrs. Lofton walked off and left it.

Waiting vainly for Mrs. Lofton, a City College student to return to the bench, Miss Casey finally gave up and went home.

Then she tried contacting the missing purse's owner by telephone—but Mrs. Lofton had been married and had changed her address recently and all her identification carried her maiden name.

Finally, after tracing her through old addresses, Miss Casey contacted Mrs. Lofton and the purse was returned, contents intact.

TREASURE HUNT PLANNED

Torrance Police to Search for Bandit's Buried Loot

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO

TORRANCE—Local police are due to go on a treasure-hunting expedition Monday when they dig for between $3,000 and $4,000 supposedly buried by a young robbery suspect at various locations between here and Long Beach.

Det. Sgt. Percy Bennett said that Raymond E. Parker, 22, of 20320 Valerie St., has promised to lead them to caches of cash he obtained in almost a score of robberies in various parts of the Southland during recent months.

Parker told of burying the loot in glass jars in fields east of here.

He was jailed Thursday night, within a half hour after he assertedly robbed a liquor store at 18178 Hawthorne Ave. Parker's car was stopped near his home by officers Bob Wright and Jack Hahn because it answered the description given by the clerk, Paul Welch of Redondo Beach.

Investigators said that Parker admitted the robbery in addition to the other holdups.

The suspect reportedly told officers that he was hazy regarding some of the crimes because he was "high" on marijuana when they were committed. Police said he appeared to be under the influence of the drug when he was arrested.

Loot from the liquor store robbery and the .38-caliber automatic pistol he used in the holdup were left at his trailer home just before he was nabbed, Sgt. Bennett said. Parker was quoted as saying he was planning to rob a theater in Redondo Beach later that night.

Several of the robberies assertedly confessed by Parker were in Long Beach.

Man Hurt When Car Overturns

Edward W. Longbrake, 33, of Whittier, suffered minor injuries Saturday afternoon when his car was struck and overturned by another auto in a collision at Orr and Day Rd. and Telegraph Rd. in Norwalk.

Longbrake was treated by a private physician. Sheriff's deputies said the other car was driven by Louis A. Meza, 34, of Los Angeles, who was not hurt.

Trend to Suburban Centers 'Will Turn'

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—A professor of business administration predicts that the present trend to suburban shopping centers will turn because women like the "adventure" of downtown shopping.

Prof. Harold B. Wess said women still want the excitement, glamor and drama of downtown window shopping, eating out, going to the theater and meeting friends.

Girl Cyclist, 5, Hit by Auto

A 5-year-old girl was knocked from her bicycle Saturday by a car that struck her as she rode from an alley onto 15th St., near Atlantic Ave. She escaped serious injury.

Florence I. Torbery, of 1549 Atlantic Ave., was treated at St. Mary's Hospital for abrasions and contusions on the right elbow and left knee and released.

Driver Robert E. Bice, 22, of 14301 Cedarwood St., Westminster, told police that the child darted out of the alley and struck his car before he could stop. He was not cited.

SAMPLE PUZZLE

Have you ever worked a crossword puzzle all the way through and then thought to yourself, "Gee, I wish they would give a prize for solving these things"?

If you have, your chance of winning a prize is on its way.

BONANZAGRAM, a new word puzzle that is as intriguing as any crossword you ever saw, starts in the Independent, Press-Telegram on this page today and there will be $100 or more in cash awarded each week.

The new puzzle, constructed by a group of the nation's leading crossword-puzzle constructors, offers prizes for anyone who can solve the clues given in a story or anecdote and fill in the correct letters in a message and complete the unfinished words.

If you are good at solving crosswords, if you can solve mysteries before the end of the story, or, if you are just handy with words, BONANZAGRAM is for you.

Or even if you aren't so good at these things, but just like to learn words and work puzzles you can still have a fine chance at the $100 weekly prize offered by the Sunday Independent-Press-Telegram.

The contest is open to any reader of the newspaper except its employes or a member of the family of an employe of this newspaper.

Easy punctuation and the correct letters in the blank spaces will do the trick.

Try the sample BONANZAGRAM puzzle before you refer to the official answer.

Detective Webster deciphered the cryptic message written by the dying man in this way:

Here is how he figured it out:

The man was in FLUE and not in BLUE—there are many later clues to that FLUE (obviously he was a thin man!) including the writer's signature. On my TRAIL is more logical than on my TRAIN—there are no railroad clues. MY WIFE was miserable—the clue to this (instead of LIFE) is the plural pronoun US that comes later. GOOD clothes and FUN is indicated, rather than FOOD, clothes and FUN, by the fact that the blackmailer left them enough for meals—and RENT too. ROOKED us is more logical than HOOKED us. LAST FALL indicates that months have passed, as the introduction stated. I was SHAVING is made logical by what he did with that razor in his hand—I CUT him DEAD—and rules out I was SHAPING my plans. And now that he is dying, the man makes a philosophical statement:

MAN IN FLUE WAS A BLACK-
MAILER. HE WAS ON MY TRAIL
FOR YEARS. MY WIFE WAS MIS-
ERABLE, WITH NOT ENOUGH
GOOD CLOTHES OR FUN. HE LEFT ENOUGH FOR RENT AND MEALS, ROOKED US OF EVERY-THING ELSE. LAST FALL I WAS SHAVING, MY PLANS FOR ESCAPE ALMOST SET. HE CAME.
I CUT HIM DEAD AND HID
HIM. THE WORLD IS BETTER
SANS HIS BREED. REMOVE SOOT AND THE DIRTY
BRICKS WILL REVEAL ALL.
ANDY IRONS

SOLUTION

The world is BETTER SANS his BREED. He means, of course, the whole category of blackmailers, and not just one man's GREED. Remove SOOT (not BOOT or FOOT or ROOT) ties in with that FLUE—just as the dirty BRICKS is much better than dirty TRICKS in the matter of REVEALING all. And of course the signature gives a chimney clue too.

The first puzzle without answer appears on this page and other puzzles will appear each Sunday for the duration of the contest.

Bonanzagram Solutions Locked Up in L.B. Bank

The only person—outside of Independent, Press-Telegram employes and their families—ineligible to compete in the Bonanzagram Puzzle Contest starting today is Gus Walker, president of the Farmers and Merchants bank of Long Beach.

Reason? Banker Walker will hold the answer to each week's puzzle locked in the bank vault.

The syndicate handling the puzzle contest will send by registered mail each week to Walker's desk the sealed answer to the puzzle that will appear in the I. P-T the following Sunday. He will put the sealed envelope in the vault until after the deadline for solving the puzzle. Then he will hand it to the judges.

The judges will select those entries which contain the one correct answer and winners will be announced on the following Sunday along with publication of the next puzzle.

This safeguarding of puzzle solutions will guarantee all contestants an even chance.

SCIENCE GIVES UP ON 'IDEAL' COOKING PAN

PARIS (U.P.) — Science, which has unlocked the mystery of the atom, today confessed that it is baffled by the simple problem of making for the housewife a satisfactory saucepan.

A competition organized by the Household Arts Exhibition for creating the perfect saucepan, abandoned the attempt.

The specifications were for a saucepan that is easy to clean, hard to upset and whose handle could be easily grippled without turning or burning the fingers. Not one of the 356 models submitted by manufacturers and industrial designers fulfilled those basic requirements.

How to Play "Bonanzagram"

Solve the "Bonanzagram" by filling in all the missing letters, as indicated by the underscores, in the message. Insert only one letter above each underscore. Many clues to the missing letters are hidden in the story, or anecdote, accompanying the message. Clues may also be found in the message itself, and, in a few cases, the contestant's general knowledge should provide the correct letter. The contestant will note that the message is unpunctuated. Proper punctuation is one of the important keys to a correct solution.

When properly filled in, the "Bonanzagram" will spell out a clear message that will conform in every way with the clues. In many cases it will seem that more than one word would be the correct one. That's part of the fun! You should weigh the clues and select the BEST possible word in each case.

How To Submit Entries

1. After solution is completed, "Bonanzagram" should be clipped and pasted to a two-cent postcard with your name and address.

2. Entries will be received at the Independent, Press-Telegram office at 6th St. and Pine Ave., until 5 p. m. on the Tuesday following publication of each new "Bonanzagram." Mail entries must be postmarked before midnight Tuesday. Address "Bonanzagram," P.O. Box 230, Long Beach.

3. Entries may be mailed in envelope but contestant's full name must be printed in upper left corner of address-side of envelope.

4. Copies of the Sunday Independent, Press-Telegram need not be purchased to enter. Facsimiles made by hand and corresponding as closely as possible to the original "Bonanzagram" printed in the newspaper will be accepted but are limited one to a family. Mimeograph, duplicator or other unofficial mechanical reproduction is forbidden.

How To Collect The Prizes

The entrant must work out and keep duplicate solution as a claim check. When the solution is published in the Independent, Press-Telegram each Sunday, he should compare his "claim check" with the published solution, and, if his claim check is identical, he should call in person with it at the newspaper office, 6th St. and Pine Ave., between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. on the Monday following publication of the solution.

If a winner cannot call at the Independent, Press-Telegram office in person Monday, he should mail his solution to "Bonanzagram," Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th St. and Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. The letter must be postmarked not later than 5 p. m. Monday. Important: this address is only for claim checks, not entries.

Nixon Ends Journey; Advocates Broader Latin Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nixon returned from a four-week goodwill tour of the Caribbean area Saturday with a plea for continued good trade and business relations with Latin America.

Nixon, who said he would make a series of recommendations to President Eisenhower and the National Security Council on his findings, said:

"I am convinced that area is entering a new era of economic stability, and to achieve it they must have trade relations with the United States and other countries.

"We must seek every possible way of reducing trade barriers and do everything we can to stimulate increased investments in that area."

The vice president, who was accompanied by Mrs. Nixon on the 7,500-mile aerial tour, said he believed "one of the more constructive results" of the trip was the promise he obtained from the presidents of Nicaragua and Costa Rica to seek an easing of tension between those countries. The heads of the two Central American states have been feuding for some time.

In a statement given to reporters during the homeward flight from Port au Prince, Haiti, Nixon said U. S. trade with Latin America "deserves primary consideration" because he said it exceeds this country's trade with Europe and is greater than "our combined trade with Asia and Oceania."

This country should continue buying Latin America's products for its own good as well as that of the 20 hemispheric republics, he said, adding:

"Latin American countries simply cannot develop and preserve strong economies unless their products have access to United States markets."

Emphasizing it is good business for the United States to make such purchases, he said U. S. sales to Latin America are important in maintaining U. S. industrial production.

His statement on trade policy followed the line of President Eisenhower's recommendations. He mentioned specifically that many Latin-American products compete with those of the United States, saying:

"This is true of oil, sugar, wool, tung oil, lead, zinc and certain other metals."

"The American people must face squarely the question of whether we will continue to import from our sister American republics even though at times this means undeniable competition with American producers in a limited number of industries," he said.

"As the people and Congress must, the President has squarely faced this issue."

Nixon said Eisenhower's answer was spelled out in his 1954 and 1955 economic messages and "is that if we would have prosperity, security and stability in the United States we must work for prosperity, security and stability in all of the Americas."

Nixon said the list of products that Latin America needs to sell in the United States also includes coffee, bananas and a few other mining and agricultural products. But he said all such products represent "only a few of hundreds of items imported annually into our country in great quantities."

He said "a policy insuring that the volume of Latin America's crucial products coming into United States markets will not be reduced will affect only a limited number of our own domestic industries."

While "the number of products affected may be small," he said the effect of such a policy throughout the hemisphere "would be enormous."

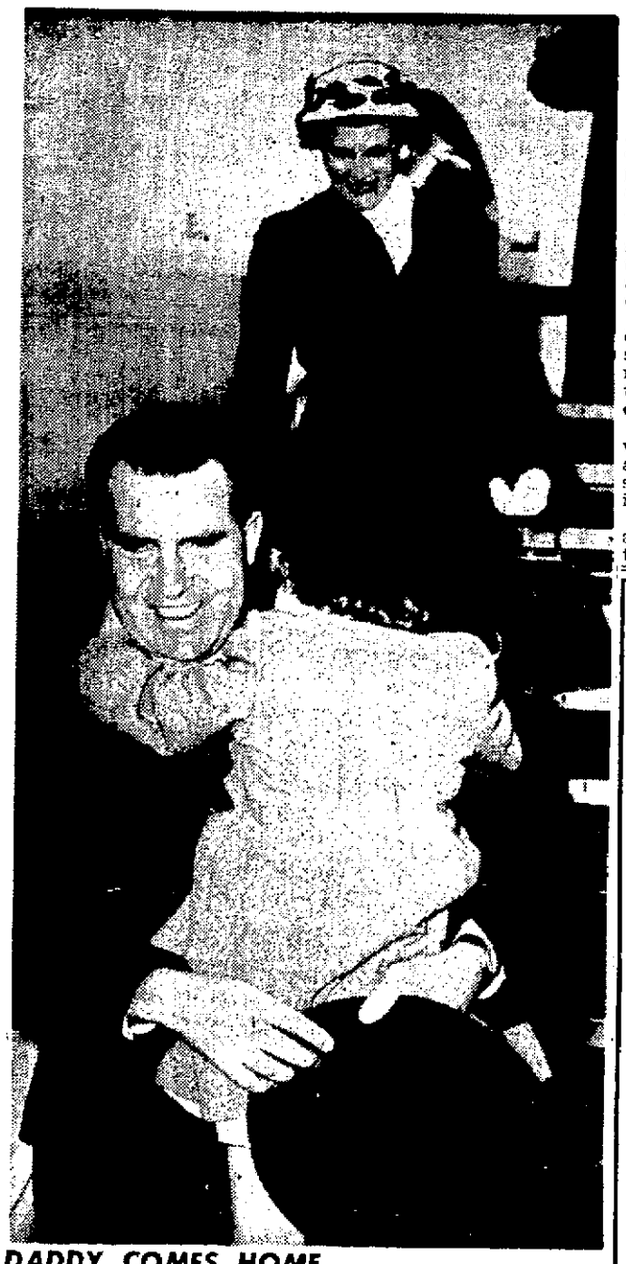

Nixon said his trip, which took him to Mexico, Cuba, Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic and Haiti, gave him "physical proof of the importance" of Eisenhower's policy to "these members of the American family."

At the airport, the Nixons were greeted by their daughters, Julie and Patricia, who had remained in Washington to attend school. Diplomatic representatives of the countries Nixon visited also were on hand, with Undersecretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr.

Atom Rays Don't Hurt Him, but---

LAS VEGAS (AP)—A security guard who is undergoing medical examinations because of accidental radiation exposure during the March 1 atomic test said Saturday he fears the reaction of his wife more than the radiation.

The Atomic Energy Commission announced that guard Eugene D. Haynes, 36, received the highest radiation exposure ever suffered by a worker at the atomic test site near here. The AEC said Haynes is not expected to suffer permanent or serious injury from the accidental exposure.

Haynes, who formerly operated a gasoline service station at Cotati, Calif., was interviewed today by a reporter for the Las Vegas Review-Journal. Haynes told the reporter that his wife had not yet heard about his case and "She'll probably blow her top."

Haynes told the newsman, "I feel fine and I don't see what all the hullabaloo is about."

Haynes, a veteran of South Pacific combat with the Marines in World War II, drove his car into a banned area during the test. "It was dusty and I didn't see the lines," he said. "I went in a ways, then turned around and came back."

The AEC said a later check of Haynes' film badge showed that he had sustained a radiation exposure of 39 roentgens. This is 10 times the amount that any one worker is allowed to receive for a 13-week period. However, the AEC said that it takes an exposure of about 450 roentgens to be deadly, and that even then only about half the persons exposed would be killed.

Polio Shots Readied for Nine Million

NEW YORK (AP)—Nationwide distribution of enough Salk anti-polio vaccine to vaccinate 9,000,000 children is well under way, it was disclosed Saturday.

The distribution by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is in anticipation of a favorable report from the scientific evaluation center established to measure the results of the test vaccination of 440,000 children last spring.

In addition to the 9,000,000 vaccinations purchased with $9,000,000 in March-of-Dimes funds, pharmaceutical manufacturers are piling up a considerable stock for the use of private physicians—also in the belief that the scientific evaluation report will be favorable.

The evaluation center at the University of Michigan, directed by Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., is expected to make its report soon after April 1.

No one aside from Dr. Francis and his associates has any indication of what these answers will be, and Dr. Francis has taken elaborate precautions against "leaks." But scientists who have been close to the development of the vaccine from the beginning, were positive that the report could not be entirely unfavorable.

An entirely unfavorable report would be that the vaccine had no protective value against polio whatever.

The elaborate and large-scale tests of Dr. Jonas E. Salk, who developed the vaccine at the University of Pittsburgh, first in animals and then in human beings, all but ruled out such a sad end to man's greatest hope so far for licking polio.

The report has to show that the vaccine is effective to some extent, these scientists believe, and the big question it will answer is how effective.

Jelke Goes to Trial Again Monday as Procurer

Margarine Heir Seeks Acquittal on Two Charges

By ARTHUR EVERETT

NEW YORK (AP)—At 1 a.m. of a hot summer's night nearly three years ago the doorbell sounded in a plush $147.50-a-month apartment at 155 E. 47th St. on New York's fashionable east side.

Minot E. (Mickey) Jelke padded sleepily to the door early that morning in 1952. Waiting outside to arrest him were police vice raiders.

Thus began the sexiest New York crime story since Charles (Lucky) Luciano was sent to prison in the 1930s for white slavery.

For on the background of the case were illicit $100-a-night rendezvous, the alluring charms of glamorous love-for-sale girls, the smoky, edgy excitement of cafe society and its smart supper clubs, the soft mink and hard diamond aura of Park Avenue and the Social Register.

Now three years older and 25 pounds lighter, Mickey Jelke is scheduled to go to trial again Monday on procuring charges.

He is accused of living beyond his immediate income on the proceeds of prostitution.

Both sides foresee no delay when the case is called. They expect the trial to last three weeks to a month.

Mickey's first trial began Feb. 2, 1953, and ended 25 days later, with his conviction on two of nine original counts. These two accused him of procuring Pat Ward for prostitution, and conspiring to do the same with Marguerite Cordova. He will be retried only on the two counts. Together they carry a maximum 40 years in prison.

Originally, Mickey was sentenced to serve three to six years in prison. But because General Sessions Judge Francis L. Valente barred press and public from the state's presentation of evidence, the whole thing was upset on an appeal.

Valente, now in his 11th year on the bench, barred his courtroom to outsiders "in the interest of public decency and morals."

Fifteen months later, the appellate division of the State Supreme Court held Valente's action "unorthodox . . . unwarranted." The 3-2 majority said the all-male jury justly convicted Jelke but that Valente, in effect, bungled the trial. The finding later was upheld by the state's highest court.

Jelke, now 25, served seven months in the workhouse in 1953 for two guns found illegally in his possession at the time of the vice raid.

He lost his rating as the town's most eligible bachelor, and his listing in society's bluebook, the Social Register. But he gained a wife—shapely, blonde Sylvia Eder, 27. They were married last year.

Recently Mickey inherited a $125,000 share in the estate of his brother, John F. Jelke, III, who vanished on an Air National Guard training flight early in 1954. He is also due to come into an inheritance of three million dollars later this year. It is part of the fortune built up in the family's multimillion-dollar oleomargarine business. His father, John F. Jelke of Chicago, sold out to Lever Brothers Co. in 1948.

Mickey has spent much time recently in Florida, working on fishing boats.

Valente's ban in the first trial had the effect of keeping secret many of the names of men who bought the love of the so-called Jelke girls. This time, the defense says, the names will go on the record.

Actually, some names leaked out of the first trial from the testimony of Pat Ward. But to a man they protested they had met her only casually. And there was no tangible suggestion from any quarters that any of them were romantically involved with her.

Hottest item in the case is the little black books which listed the names of the so-called Johns, past or potential customers of the call girls.

Cafe society is fearful lest these names be spelled out this time with chapter and verse.

Pretty much the same cast of characters is due to reassemble in Valente's General Sessions Court.

Besides Jelke and Valente, there will be Asst. Dist. Atty. Anthony J. Liebler for the state. Jelke has a new lawyer, George Washington Herz, one of the town's better known trial lawyers.

Also on hand will be the state's galaxy of Pat Ward, Barbara Harmon, Pat Thompson, Marquerite Cordova, Virginia Dee and Erica Steel, hard, provocative, and blonde, brunet or red-haired as the fancy strikes.

Chief state witness again will be the girl who finally told the cops about Mickey. She is Pat Ward, of the pixie face, lithe figure, and Peter Pan collar.

Now 21, Pat is ready to repeat her sordid tale of conversion at Mickey's hands into a $100-a-night teen-aged call girl. She claims she did it for love of him, with eventual marriage as her goal.

Pat allegedly turned over to Mickey $10,000 to $15,000 of her love-for-sale earnings from September 1951 to February 1952.

Product of a broken home, Pat is a lower East Side girl who changed her name from Sandra Wisotsky in a pathetic quest for the glamor of a cafe society "career."

Besides Pat Ward, Jelke's fate rests also with Marguerite Cordova, a 25-year-old former hatcheck girl. Mickey allegedly conspired to make her a hustling, bustling high-priced call girl.

After the first trial, the defense agreed the most damaging evidence against Mickey was a handwritten list of Johns he allegedly turned over the Marguerite.

Liebler, while not irrevocably committing the state, said he anticipated no new surprise witnesses.

Mickey didn't take the witness stand last time in his own defense. Herz isn't saying yet whether he will this time.

Now, Mickey says:

"Believe me, I have learned the hard way."

Motor Officer Hurt

Motorcycle Officer Robert T. Aughton, 31, went to St. Mary's Hospital Saturday night with a possible fracture of his left knee, suffered when his motorcycle collided with an auto at 16th St. and American Ave. Kenneth W. Carr, 22, of the USS Watts, was cited for making an illegal turn.

Liquor Store Robbed

Two young, nervous and swarthy bandits Saturday night held up a liquor store at 6069 Cherry Ave. They menaced the clerk, Albert E. Minnis, 42, with revolvers and departed with $150 from the cash drawer, eight packs of cigarettes and half a dozen assorted pint bottles of whiskey.

Court Plea Century or More Too Late

JERSEY, Channel Islands (AP)—An invocation out of the 9th Century sounded in court here Saturday. "Haro, Haro . . ."

The startled court president, Sir Alexander Coutanche, bent an ear toward the kneeling middle-aged woman who voiced it, roved in his mind over the pages of history, and then smiled in recognition.

Haro is a corruptio of "Ah, Rollo," the form of address for Rollo, who ruled Jersey as the Duke of Normandy when it was part of France instead of Britain.

By hailing him, the islanders could ask the Duke to intercede for them in their grievances. Mrs. M. Douglas Woodward, the invoker Saturday, used the full cry:

"Haro, Haro, a l'aide mon prince on me fait tor" (Ah, Rollo, Rollo, to my aid, my prince, I am wronged).

Then, in a language switch spanning more than a thousand years, she added:

"In the name of Her Majesty the Queen, Duchess of Normandy, I ask her to restrain heavy traffic from damaging my house." It's the vibration that does it, she said.

Ushers hustled her back to her seat, and Sir Alexander ruled she was crying Haro in the wrong place.

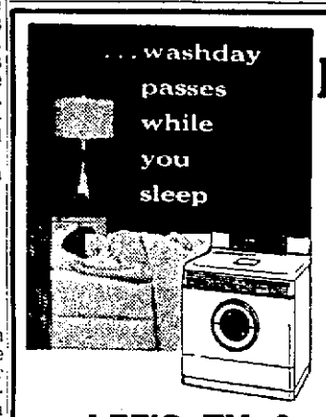

"It must be raised on the spot where your grievance lies," he said.

The petition also was a century or so late with her beseeching to Queen Elizabeth II. Not since the 1800's have British monarchs claimed Normandy as one of their dukedoms.

William DeMille, Playwright and Producer, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (U.P.) — William B. DeMille, playwright and stage and screen producer and brother of Cecil B. DeMille, died Saturday at his home in nearby Playa Del Rey.

SEXY BABE 2,400 YEARS OLD

Lysistrata Puts P.O. in a Fret

By BEN ZINSER

Ever hear of a gal named Lysistrata?

You probably will soon, if you already haven't.

This sexy Greek babe of 2,400 years ago and her story have the Post Office Department in a fret.

"Lysistrata" is the name of a play written by the ancient Greek dramatist, Aristophanes. Lysistrata also is the name of the play's heroine.

What has happened is that a Beverly Hills book dealer has asked Federal District Court in Washington, D. C., to restrain Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield from destroying a rare volume of the play.

Larry A. Levinson, the book dealer, sought a preliminary injunction last week to force Summerfield to return to him a volume of "Lysistrata."

The Los Angeles Post Office seized the volume last August, after it had been addressed to Levinson from the Hammersmith Bookshop in England.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL says the book is "plainly obscene . . . lewd . . . lascivious . . . calculated to deprave the morals of persons . . . and certain to arouse libidinous thoughts in the minds of the average normal reader."

In a word: SEXY.

The suit is described as the first direct court test of the Comstock Act of 1873 which gives the postmaster general authority to censor literature and art sent through the mails.

The suit asks that the law be declared unconstitutional as an abridgment of freedom of speech and of the press.

"Lysistrata," despite its age—it first was produced in Athens in 411 B. C.—still is performed occasionally on the American stage.

It was done in the early 1930s by a cast headed by Violet Kimball Cooper, Miriam Hopkins and the late Sidney Greenstreet.

City Librarian Edwin Castagna says he can recall looking out of his hotel room window in New York City in 1930 and seeing a sign advertising the play.

"I was not aware of any increase in sex crimes in New York at the time of the play," he remarks acidly.

The book, incidentally, is on the shelves of thousands of private libraries in American homes.

"The Men, Naturally, Were Fit to Be Tied."

It is in virtually every public library in the country.

There are more than 30 copies of it in Long Beach public libraries.

It is on the first-year reading list of the Great Books discussion program, listed between Plato and Aristotle.

AS FOR THE STORY behind "Lysistrata," the author, Aristophanes, lived and wrote during the 29 years of the Peloponnesian Wars between Athens and Sparta—and he soon wearied of war and its price. So he wrote "Lysistrata"—literally "dismisser of armies."

The story was a vain effort to end the bloodshed.

The play is a farce-comedy that tells how the women of Athens and Sparta band together in a plot to withhold their delights from their men until a peace treaty is signed.

Lysistrata tells the women: "We must refrain from the male altogether."

Hearing this, the men, naturally, were fit to be tied. And when the women trotted out their most fetching transparent gowns, cosmetics and perfumes, the boys were unstrung.

The play is one of only 14 comedies that have survived the thousands written when ancient Greek culture reached its peak. Eleven of these are by Aristophanes.

LIBRARIAN CASTAGNA'S attitude toward the current case is this:

"It is somewhat uncivilized to try at this late date to restrict the use of books that have stood the test of centuries and are regarded as classics.

"The names of those who wanted to do censorship have been lost, but the authors for the most part have been remembered. Some of their names are immortal.

"If we want to understand the past, we must read what people said then. If we water it down, we've lost the past."

Atty. Edward D. Grazia of Washington, D. C., who filed the suit for Levinson, said in a 24,000-word supporting brief—much longer than the play itself—that "what is obscene to the postmaster general is the laughter of genius to 24 centuries of western civilization."

Summerfield retorts that "the effect of the book is intensified and heightened by the indecent and lascivious character of the illustrations."

The book in question is a translation illustrated by Norman Lindsay, one of Australia's most renowned artists. Although this particular book is not in the Long Beach libary, some of Lindsay's "Lysistrata" illustrations may be found in the library here in a book dealing with art.

Lindsay's work has been exhibited at the Leicester Galleries in London and in numerous Australian art centers.

ATTORNEY DE GRAZIA argues that "the postal obscenity statute, inasmuch as it (applies) to the circulation of literature, stands today as a pernicious impediment to freedom of literary and artistic expression in the United States. It has no social justification."

He urges the court to "find void and unconstitutional the provision which makes the postmaster general a censor of literature and of art."

Long Beach's librarian, meanwhile, says that one can find a dozen books in any library that would be more objectionable to a censor than "Lysistrata."

Aristophanes himself would more than likely be pleased with the publicity his play is receiving at this time. Monday marks the beginning of California Library Week.

No Actual Work Yet on Federal Hospitals Plan

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Not a brick has been laid under the $21,000,000 program which Congress authorized last July to help build hospitals, nursing homes and treatment centers for the chronically ill and disabled, the U. S. Public Health Service disclosed Saturday.

Dr. John W. Cronin, head of the service's hospital division, said government regulations for building such projects were not completed until January. States are now making surveys of where the facilities are most needed as a preliminary to submitting applications for federal funds.

Cronin said he is sure states and local communities will come up with more than enough eligible projects to use up every dollar of the $21,000,000 voted by Congress.

Demo 'Big Army' Man Challenged on Tax Cut

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) Saturday challenged Democrats resisting a proposed military manpower cut to join Republicans in their fight to kill a $20-a-person income-tax reduction.

But Sen. George (D-Ga), who announced he will oppose the tax cut voted by the House, indicated clearly he will be open to compromise suggestions if the House refuses to go along with the Senate's expected rejection of the measure.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which stripped the $20 provision out of an administration tax bill, said he would "fight to the utmost" against any revenue loss now.

Knowland, the GOP floor leader, said the income-tax cut the House passed would cost the treasury $2,200,000,000 revenue at "an inappropriate time." It would be effective next Jan. 1.

"Democrats who have been advocating that the military forces be expanded can hardly support a tax cut now," Knowland said. "Pay increase to civil service workers is going to require additional funds.

"To have a loss of revenue under such circumstances wouldn't be constructive or responsible handling of the fiscal affairs of the government."

President Eisenhower asked for a year's extension of corporation and excise taxes expiring April 1 which yield about three billion dollars, and House Democrats added the $20 income-tax cut to this bill.

The Senate Finance Committee knocked out this section and George, a key member, said he is worried that if it comes to a Senate-House showdown the whole bill might be jeopardized.

George said he believed every legitimate effort ought to be made to compromise differences after the Senate passes its version of the bill. But, he said, he can't envision at this time any tax reduction he would be willing to support.

Superships' Foe Gives Up Opposition

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Chairman Clarence Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee Saturday withdrew his opposition to President Eisenhower's request for a fifth $180,000,000 aircraft supercarrier.

The Missouri Democrat said in an interview, "We've got to support the President. We've got to support his budget. We've got to support every weapon, regardless of costs."

"We must show a united front," Cannon added.

He said previously that he would oppose any more supercarriers which he claimed are "obsolete" and would be sunk "within 10 hours" if war broke out.

Cannon's opposition had threatened a possible new row over air versus naval power which marked the stormy B36 bomber hearings a few years ago.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee, meanwhile scheduled hearings Monday to air the Navy's need for the 60,000-ton, Forrestal-type supercarrier. The move was aimed at combatting Cannon's expected opposition.

"I feel confident we will pass the President's recommendations," Vinson said in a separate interview. "We are fully committed to supercarriers."

Investigate Testimony of Matusow

EL PASO, Tex. (U.P.)—A federal court and grand jury this week will see if they can unsnarl the mixed-up testimony of ex-Communist Harvey Matusow.

The youthful former Red, who for years has pointed out people he said were Communists, recently reversed his testimony. Various agencies are seeking to winnow the truth of his conflicting statements.

Matusow is scheduled to testify here in person.

In El Paso, his testimony specifically was about Clinton E. Jencks, official of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter workers, an independent labor group.

Jencks was assessed a federal sentence of five years in prison after conviction of falsely swearing to a non-Communist affidavit.

Icebreaker Due In From Antarctic Trip

BUENOS AIRES (U.P.) — The U. S. Navy icebreaker Atka is scheduled to dock here Monday, 11 days ahead of schedule on its return voyage from the Antarctic, it was announced Saturday.

The Atka spent two months surveying the ice barriers of the South Polar continent in preparation for new explorations of the area by the United States and 37 other nations in 1957-58.

Army Restoring Full-Strength Armored Group

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — The Army, putting new emphasis on the tank as an atomic age weapon, announced Saturday it is bringing another armored division back into service.

The World War II-famed 3rd Armored Division, based at Ft. Knox, Ky., is being converted from a skeleton training unit into a full-strength combat organization. At full strength, an armored division has about 14,500 men and almost 350 tanks.

When accomplished, this will bring the total of U. S. armored divisions to four—the 1st and 4th, based at Ft. Hood, Tex.; the 2nd in Germany; the 3rd at Ft. Knox.

Family May Survive With Small Shelter

(Editor's Note: Last Sunday's Independent, Press-Telegram presented a full page of information on Civil Defense against the H-bomb. Today additional information from the Federal Civil Defense Administration is published, with emphasis on the home shelter.)

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — Someday when the sirens wail in an American city it may not be drill. It may be the real thing.

If it is, people may remember February, 1955, when the Atomic Energy Commission gave the warning: the radioactive cloud from one hydrogen bomb could spread death over an area the size of New Jersey.

Now, since the AEC announcement of fall-out effects, Federal Civil Defense Administration officials hope the public will awaken to the possibility of danger, but at the same time will see that survival is possible.

For Civil Defense is here to stay. There are, says Administrator Val Peterson, only two things that could end it in our time: absolute assurance that the world could live in peace, or a positive statement by military leaders that no one could lay a finger on the United States.

At the headquarters of the FCDA here, he and members of his staff tell you there are other facts of life in the atomic age besides those in the AEC announcement.

"You don't have to die," says Peterson.

This, in essence, is the FCDA message: An H-bomb attack would be horrible. But the Civil Defense program is ready to face it. If you were caught in the direct target of a bomb you'd probably never know what hit you. But outside that two-mile range you and your family would stand a good chance of survival —if you take the trouble now to learn what to do.

Peterson cites these five simple steps:

1. Prepare a shelter area in your home whether you live in a city or in the country. A basement shelter is good, but an outdoor shelter with three feet of earth cover and an air filter intake naturally is better.

(Such an air filter system would consist of two separated shafts with porous substance on top of the intake shaft. A filter similar to that used in an auto carburetor would be perfect, for example. You would need an intake fan powered by batteries with a 72-hour capacity.

(You also would need an exhaust system hooked up with the intake, with fans for both operating at about the same speed. The tops of both shafts should be covered and elevated above the surface of the ground.

(By using such an air filter system you could burn candles in your shelter.)

2. Stock your shelter with a three-day supply of emergency food and water.

3. Get a radio, preferably battery-operated, and keep it in a safe place.

4. Don't get panicky and flee aimlessly. Radioactivity disintegrates rapidly and you would be safe in reasonable shelter until Civil Defense officials informed you the danger had passed.

5. If you should be exposed to fall-out, remove outer clothing and wash exposed parts of the body thoroughly—with soap in the water you have stockpiled.

Unless you've been exposed to serious contamination it would not be necessary to destroy or discard clothing, since in most cases it could be rendered safe by laundering or by simply waiting for natural decay of the radioactivity.

SHELTER FOR SURVIVAL

Artist's drawing shows what an H-bomb shelter advocated by some Civil Defense experts would look like. Val Peterson, federal CD administrator advises such a shelter area for every home. He says people in sound shelters three feet underground would have a good chance of surviving an H-bomb attack outside a two-mile range of a direct hit.—(AP Sketch).

Tool Engineers to Hear Expert

Don L. Davis, an authority on gadgets and inventions, will address Long Beach Chapter, American Society of Tool Engineers, at its annual banquet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Supper Room of the Lafayette Hotel, says J. H. Medford, program chairman.

Honor guests will include Mayor George Vermillion; Wayne Ewing, national secretary of the ASTE, and Malcolm Epley, Independent, Press-Telegram columnist.

'Bum Check' Bill

ST. PAUL, Minn. (U.P.)—A bill to make it a misdemeanor to issue a check without sufficient funds in the bank has been introduced in the Minnesota legislature. The bill, says State Sen. Daniel Feidt, is aimed only at those "who knowingly write bum checks" not those who just make a mistake.

CAPITAL CAPERS

By WALTER T. RIDDER, WESLEY PEYTON and ROBERT E. LEE

WASHINGTON — Rep. Rooney (D-NY), is known around here as the scourge of the bureaucrats. Officials of the executive branch appearing before Rooney's appropriations sub-committee are generally subjected to a searching and brutal examination of their budget requests, well larded with Rooney's sharp and caustic observations.

To everyone's surprise, Rooney finally had a nice word to say about an administration official. Recipient of this unheard of approbation was Warren E. Burger of St. Paul, assistant attorney-general.

Burger testified that his civil division of the Department of Justice had recovered thirty million dollars in the past year—or twice the normal amount.

At conclusion of Burger's testimony, Rooney peered at the witness and declared he rarely gives compliments to anyone—never to a Republican —but he wanted to congratulate him for an outstanding job.

Another Democrat said Burger's performance would be worth $200,000 per year in private practice. Rooney agreed and added Burger's position should be lifted to cabinet rank.

Burger thanked Rooney and suggested the congressman and President Eisenhower get together on both the matter of $200,000 per year and cabinet rank.

Automobile pedigrees are given much attention down here. A recent classified ad for a used car went something like this: "Plymouth 1952 4-door sedan, a beautifully kept car formerly owned by a congressman's secretary . . . $895." Presumably had the car been previously owned by a cabinet member's secretary the price would have been considerably higher.

In most congressmen's offices, the interior decor runs largely to blown-up aerial views of cities, university campi, timber, oil wells, or other outstanding landmarks of the individual's district.

Rep. John J. Allen (R-Calif) finds his aerial views of Oakland helpful in the field of applied constituent psychology.

"Every time a constituent come to Washington," Allen explains, "he's homesick. He comes to my office. I'm busy. The secretary asks him to sit down and wait a few minutes, please. He goes over to the picture; it makes him feel better just to see Oakland. Pretty soon, he takes out a pencil and pinpoints a house. 'That's where I live,' he tells no one in particular. He looks at it a while longer, then tells the secretary I'm probably pretty busy and he won't take up any of my time. He goes away happy—and I keep on working."

Rep. Reuss (D-Wis) decorates his office with a huge, three-dimensional map of Western Europe, showing clearly the topographical ups and downs of that continent. One Wisconsin constituent of Swiss birth was delighted to be able to pin-point the exact valley in which he had been born, and offered Reuss congratulations on his excellent map. "A pleased constituent," said the congressman as the man departed happily from his office, "is a joy forever."

'DEAR JOSEPHINE---'

Schoolgirl's Worry About World War III Draws FCDA Letter

By WES PEYTON
(Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON — The Federal Civil Defense Administration went out of its way Saturday to assure a little girl in San Jose it is doing everything it can to avert World War III.

Josephine Lopez, an eighth grade student in Thomas P. Ryan school, has been reading the papers lately and getting a little worried about what she reads.

So she wrote President Eisenhower:

"I am a student in the eighth grade in Thomas P. Ryan school in San Jose. And I am asking a question of interest to me. My question is:

"I read in the newspaper a topic that interested me about a World War Three. I was thinking, why couldn't we have a man from the state go to the schools and talk to our parents about civil defense.

"Please answer. Yours truly, Josephine Lopez."

THE PRESIDENT forwarded Josephine's letter to Val Peterson, Federal Civil Defense administrator, who replied:

"Dear Josephine — President Eisenhower has forwarded your letter to me, as I am the man whose job it is to see that America has the best civil defense that all of us, working together, can develop.

"You said that you were interested to read in the newspaper about the possibility of a third world war.

"A lot of us are interested in this possibility, Josephine. And a lot of us are working as hard as we can to see that it just never happens; if there is anything we can do to prevent it.

"One of the things that will help prevent another war is the kind of serious, patriotic interest in civil defense that you have. We need a lot more of it.

"If an enemy knows that our people are organized, that they won't get panicky and quit if we are attacked, that they will pull together and work together to get back on our feet and get the guns and planes rolling again off the production lines—then, Josephine, there is a good chance there just won't be a World War III.

"YOU WONDERED why someone couldn't go to the schools and talk to the children and their parents about civil defense.

"It is being done, and has been done in places where the people know and think about what we're really facing in the world today. But there's always so much more that can be done. That's our job, Josephine, yours and mine and everybody's — to see that there's more thinking and talking and planning to be prepared if someone tries to attack us.

"We're busy people in this civil defense business. But not too busy to take time out to tell you, and people like you, what you want and need to know.

"I'm sure that if your school would ask him, the civil defense director there in San Jose, or someone in his office, would come and talk to you, and the other students, and your parents and teachers about things we have to do to be strong and prepared and organized on the home front so that no enemy will ever defeat us.

"I hope that this answers your question. And don't worry. We have little need to be afraid as long as America has young people like you. Yours affectionately, Val Peterson."

Intended to help in a program of fisheries development, it dwarfs the small vessels used by Pakistanis in the past.

Facing Death in Chair, He Strikes Oil

JOLIET, Ill. (AP)—A convicted murderer sentenced to die in the electric chair has just been informed that oil was discovered on his land in Oklahoma.

Harry Spegal, 28, a Champaign, Ill., taxi driver, is in the death house at Stateville Prison awaiting an appeal of his conviction. A jury found him guilty Oct. 14, 1953, of strangling 6-year-old David Wayne Anderson, son of a fellow roomer in a boarding house.

Spegal was granted pauper's status in the Illinois courts although he was one of five heirs to a 40-acre tract in Oklahoma, considered worthless except for a nominal rental paid by the Sinclair Refining Co. for oil and mineral rights.

C. E. Tate of Champaign, Spegal's court-appointed attorney, Saturday said Spegal received a letter from his agent, Franklin A. Jolly of Berkeley, Calif., informing him that the company has brought in a well on the tract.

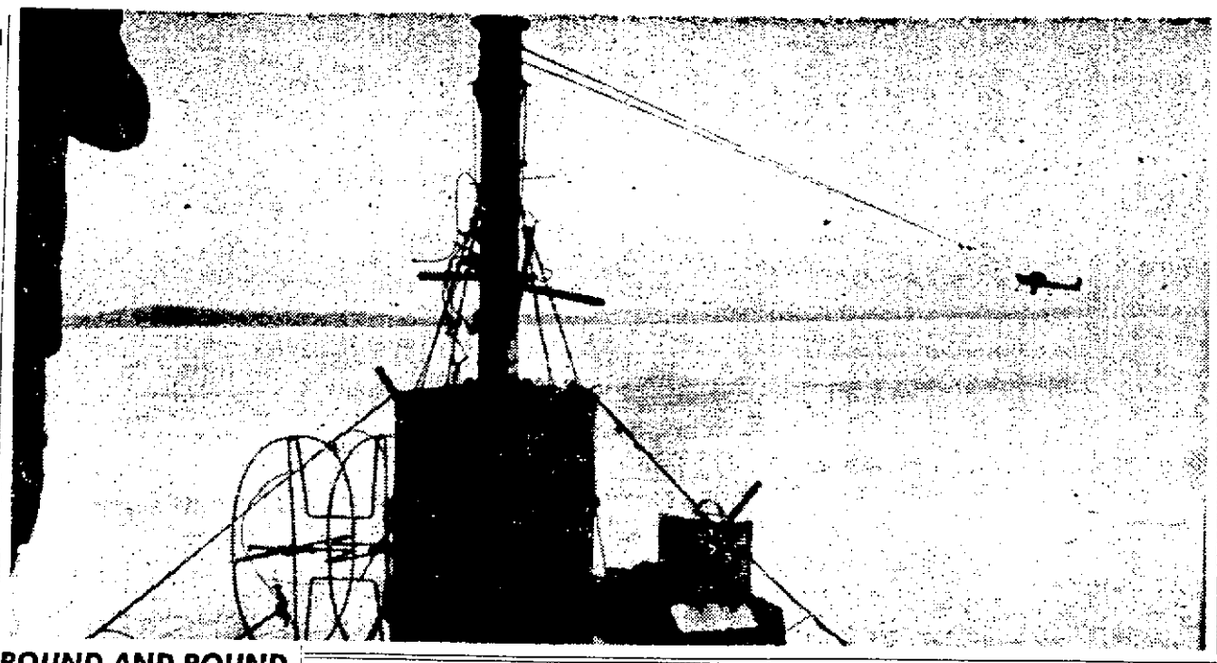

Jolly, an accountant who has Spegal's power of attorney in connection with the Oklahoma property interest, wrote that Sinclair plans to sink three more wells there.

Tate said the agent also wrote Spegal that quarterly royalty checks would start rolling in soon, and asked how these should be handled.

Tate said he did not know what the property interest would ultimately be worth.

Warden Joseph Ragen said Spegal took the news "very calmly."

Spegal was granted a stay of execution on his death sentence, originally scheduled for last May 5. Tate said that he believes Spegal will win a new trial.

ROUND AND ROUND

Plane piloted by Prof. J. G. Winans rises at end of 400-foot nylon rope in demonstration Saturday of his merry-go-round take-off technique. Test was made on frozen lake at Madison, Wis.—(AP)

Oldest Grad, 104, Dies

BERKELEY (AP) — The Rev. Hervey W. Chapman, 104 years old, died Saturday. He was born at Bethel, Me., Oct. 15, 1850. He was the oldest living college graduate in this country, according to a survey by Bowdoin College.

Army Fights Meningitis at Ft. Dix, N.J.

FT. DIX, N. J. (AP)—A blood infection similar to one that killed a trainee here Feb. 22 Saturday struck a third GI and triggered mass distribution of sulfa drugs to this Army base's 40,000 personnel.

Capt. Tom Hamrick, public information officer, said distribution of four sulfadiazine tablets to each man and woman was ordered by the post surgeon as "a precautionary measure" and there was "no cause for alarm."

Unmarried personnel were restricted to the post for 12 hours, but married personnel were permitted to go home after receiving tablets.

The latest trainee to contract the infection was Pvt. Michael T. Danza, 19, of the Bronx, N.Y. He was reported in critical condition the the post hospital.

Friday night Pvt. Richard A. Robinson, 21, of Norwell, Mass., was flown to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, D. C., in serious condition with a similar ailment contracted Wednesday.

Pvt. Irwin Weinrib, 18, of Far Rockaway, N. Y., died in the post hospital Feb. 22 of what was described as "fulminating meningitis—a quick killer."

Implications that Weinrib was denied proper medical treatment and additional allegations of mistreatment by his buddy, Pvt. Leslie Feldma, 19, of Far Rockaway, N. Y., are the basis of an investigation now in progress.

Whirligig Take-off Test by Physics Prof Succeeds

MADISON, Wis. (CP)—A physics professor lost his calm Saturday and yelled, "It works! It works!" after he lifted his plane into the air by centrifugal force while whirling at the end of a rope around a barrel embedded in lake ice.

Shortly afterward, however, the barrel tipped over, letting the light plane slither across the icy surface of Lake Kegonsa, 12 miles south of here.

Undaunted, John G. Winans, University of Wisconsin physicist, and his son, Ted, 13, set to work to fix the barrel up again for a new attempt at the unconventional take-off method.

Actually, Winans never was in "free flight." But he did lift the plane off the lake without dropping the 400-foot nylon rope anchored to the barrel.

In fact, he had the plane in the air several times before the barrel tipped over. The first time, he landed and shouted to about 30 onlookers: "It works! It works!"

Winans is intent on proving that long runways are unnecessary for take-offs. He devised the barrel-and-rope system of flying in a circle until enough airspeed is gained to drop the rope.

Izvestia Jeers at U.S. Food Offer

MOSCOW (Sunday) (AP)—An indication that the Soviet Union would reject an offer by the United States of a gift of surplus food was seen today in a scornful article in Izvestia which denounced the "hypocrisy" of such an offer to Albania.

The article in the government newspaper said "American imperialists" long had had designs upon Albania, and the food offer was another way of trying to penetrate the country.

Gas Buyers Given Pledge of Protection

WASHINGTON (CP) — The White House today assured 30,000,000 natural gas consumers their pocketbooks will be protected if independent gas producers are exempted from federal price controls.

President Eisenhower's cabinet fuels resources committee recommended last week that some 4,000 independent producers be removed from price controls until their gas goes into interstate commerce.

"These recommendations do not, however, represent recommendations of the President," Gerald D. Morgan, special counsel to the President, explained.

"They are merely recommendations of the advisory group to the President," he added.

Morgan's assurance that President Eisenhower will consider the consumer before taking any stand on such legislation was given in a letter to Rep. Glenn R. Davis (R.-Wis.).

Top Brass to Watch Air Show

Sky Angels Will Stunt in Review

Freshly scrubbed and polished, Los Alamitos Naval Air Station prepares to put its best foot forward this week for its annual military inspection and review.

Active duty personnel will be inspected Friday morning. More than 4,000 men of its "Week-end Warrior" squadrons will be reviewed Sunday afternoon, March 13, by high ranking officers in naval aviation. The public is invited to the Sunday review, which will be followed by an air show featuring the Blue Angels, the Navy's No. 1 jet stunt team.

On hand for almost a week of activities will be the chief of naval air training, Vice Adm. Austin K. Doyle, USN; the chief of naval air reserve training, Rear Adm. Daniel V. Gallery, USN, and the commander of Marine Air Reserve training, Brig. Gen. Frank H. Lamson-Scribner, USMC. It is not known whether Adm. Doyle's schedule will permit his presence at the military review and air show.

Capt. J. B. Paschal, USN, commanding officer of NAS Los Alamitos, announces that two of his squadrons will be awarded the prized Noel Davis trophies at the Sunday review. These trophies are presented to the Naval Air Reserve units throughout the country maintaining the best records of efficiency during the year. Rear Adm. Gallery will present Noel Davis trophies to Capt. Willard I. Staples, USNR, the former commanding officer of Air Wing Staff 77 and to Commander John A. Harper, USNR, commanding officer of Air Attack Squadron VA-772. The trophy is named for a Naval Reserve aviator killed in an attempted transatlantic flight in 1927.

A high light of next Sunday's review will be the first public appearance of Lt. Col. James F. (Skeets) Coleman, USMCR. The executive officer of Marine Fighter Squadron VMF-123, his regular job is the test flying of the Navy's Convair XFY-1 "Pogo" Turboprop fighter.

He will tell how it feels to fly the world's first vertical takeoff plane.

Gates of the air station will open to the public at 1 p. m. March 13. Ample parking for automobiles is available at no charge.

Adm. Doyle became a naval aviator in 1922. In World War II he commanded various aircraft carriers, including the USS Nassau and USS Hornet.

Adm. Gallery was a member of the U. S. Olympic wrestling team in 1920. He was commanding officer of the U. S. Navy Fleet Air Base in Iceland when World War II began.

While commanding the escort aircraft carrier Guadalcanal, he staged the first boarding and capture at sea of an enemy vessel since 1815 — the capture of the German submarine U-505 off Cape Blanco, French West Africa, in June, 1944.

Gen. Lamson-Scribner, a Marine flier for more than 27 years, has served in the Marine Corps since 1923, when he was graduated from the Naval Academy. Among his decorations are the Legion of Merit, which he won in the Ellice, Gilbert and Marshall Islands in World War II, and the Distinguished Flying Cross, which was awarded for his services in Nicaragua.

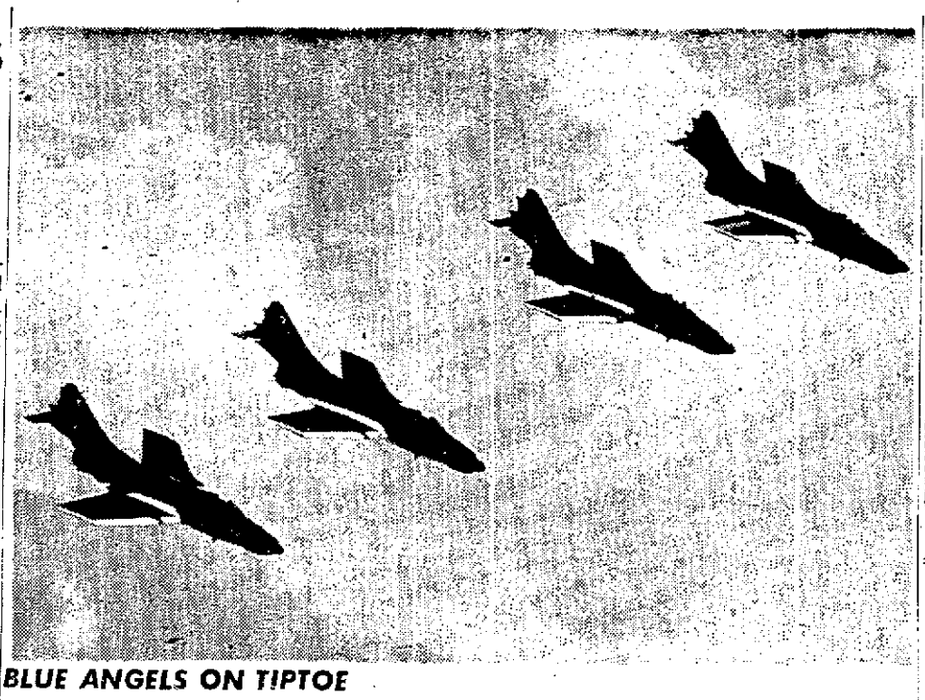

He joined the 1st Marine Aircraft Wing in Korea in September, 1951, where he served as assistant commander until August, 1952, when he took his present assignment.

Jurist Urges Clinics to Give Addicts Drugs

NEW YORK (AP) — General Session Judge Jonah J. Goldstein believes crime could be reduced if clinics were set up to supply addicts with narcotics.

"Crimes are committed not under the influence of narcotics but to get money to buy narcotics," he said in his court this week.

"I wish we could put common sense into the law by providing narcotics for addicts who are poor, so that they would not have to commit crimes to obtain money to buy drugs. At the same time we would do what we could to treat them, try to cure them, and if we cannot cure them, then give them the narcotics they need under proper medical supervision."

Ex-Bible Salesman Success in Crime

CHICAGO (UP) — A handsome onetime Bible salesman turned drug addict has admitted to police that he gained $10,000 from passing bogus checks to help satisfy his craving.

John Francis Lawlor, 26, told police in suburban Oak Park Friday that the ease with which banks cashed the checks he got from Bible sales led him into the phony check racket.

Lawlor told Police Sgt. Lewis Case that he was "a top salesman" of the Bible for three years.

"Yes," replied Case, "but you never read it."

Pickford Prefers Marilyn Monroe to Play Pickford

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Mary Pickford said today she wanted Marilyn Monroe to portray her in a movie of Miss Pickford's life.

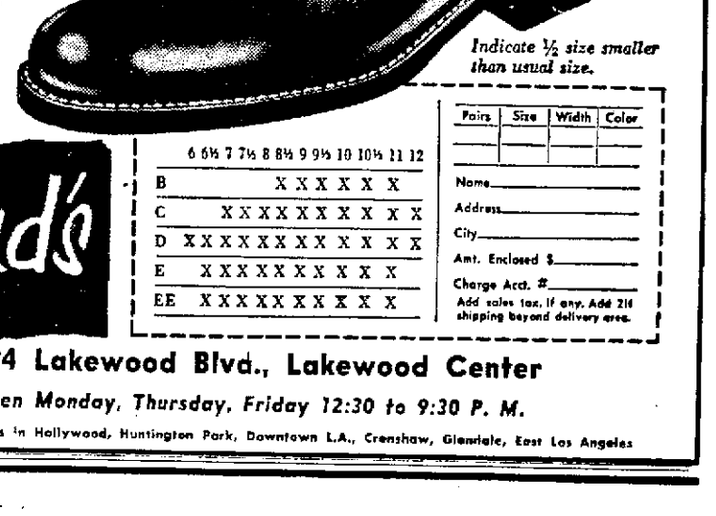

Miss Pickford, known as America's Sweetheart during her film career, said she believed America's pinup queen could play the role "better than most actresses in Hollywood."

The retired actress said she planned the film, which she might direct herself, if she is successful in buying a studio property which she and Samuel Goldwyn are battling over in court. The property goes on the auction block April 2.

Jazz Works Its Way Through College

By DAVE EMERY

In a sound-proof room at City College, a tape recorder tingles at what it hears.

Spiraling notes and a catchy beat . . . a sudden clarinet solo scrambling toward outer space . . . a saxophone groaning strangely, raspy, like a fishmonger's voice.

A cluster of eavesdropping students and an English teacher "who just dropped in" tap their toes to the bouncing, snagging rhythm of modern-sound jazz.

The thick-walled studio in which they stand is the workshop of faculty-man Duane Gurnee and his Recording Dance Band.

Gurnee himself is 39, a blond, blue-eyed fellow who looks about 10 years younger than his age. He became a school teacher in 1953 after he got his master's degree in music from San Francisco State College while he was playing saxophone in Golden Gate night spots.

Gurnee's 21 hand-picked Dance Band musicians are mostly students who want professional experience to get them in shape to tackle the fiercely competitive music world beyond the campus.

They dissect modern-sound jazz like biology scholars dissect frogs.

Through Gurnee, who has kept intact his friendship and contacts with a handful of big-league musicians, the Dance Band members get sheet music pre-releases of arrangements for such bandmen as Stan Kenton and Dave Brubeck.

In addition, they play professional-sounding stuff created by the 10 members of a class Gurnee teaches in music arranging.

Student engineers from Dr. Gerald Strang's Sound Recording Techniques class put the music on records or tape.

Blueprinted after a similar, highly successful class at Los Angeles City College, the Long Beach college Dance Band sounded its first notes just last month.

The Dance Band class is to the music department what higher calculus is to mathematics.

"Not just anybody can cut this stuff," Gurnee declares. "Some of these students are of professional caliber right now."

There are plenty of good reasons for forming the class: It covers an area of music formerly ignored by colleges, for instance. And it is claimed that modern jazz is the only music truly representative of our culture.

But the biggest fact, Gurnee explains, is this:

"Not many musicians can go out any more and get jobs playing Sousa marches. It's tough enough for the ones who can carve their way through modern music."

It's so tough, in fact, that the college doesn't encourage student musicians to try to make a career of dance band playing.

But neither does the school turn its back on the few persistent musicians with the ability to make the grade.

After the Dance Band students end a selection with a dazzling burst of music, they sit back and listen to their performance played back by one of the sound-recording engineers.

By tearing their own music apart and putting it back together again, the players hope eventually to equal the work of the Los Angeles college group, which now records its jazz numbers for Columbia records.

The important thing to Duane Gurnee's dedicated students right now is that "their kind of music" has taken a solid foothold on the campus.

The longhairs are making room for the crew cuts.

DAVID VAN KREIDT, jazz arranger-composer for Stan Kenton and Dave Brubeck, lectures to a City College music-arranging class. Writing music of near-professional quality, this class provides arrangements for the school's new Dance Band to put on record. Student technicians from another class do the recording.

NEW-SOUND JAZZ flares into life when this combo of Recording Dance Band students put their talents together and make big music during an impromptu session. The players are Pat Meyers, 18, on sax; Richard Roberts, 19, on bass; Ronnie Hoopes, 19, on trombone; Phil Rivaldo, 18, on drums, and Jim Ogden, 20, on trumpet.

Amid controls in a City College sound booth, Engineer Leon Duhamel, 18, gets a big earful of music bound for the tape recorder beside him.

Students use "big time" methods in arranging and analyzing modern jazz techniques, which are far advanced from their original, simple rhythms.

Democratic Timber for '56 Scarce

By WALTER RIDDER
(of The Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON — With President Eisenhower having told a press conference recently that he probably wouldn't make public his plans about 1956 until about a year from now, the Democrats are turning rather restless eyes upon their own presidential situation.

Naturally, Adlai E. Stevenson, 1952 standard-bearer, looms largest in their thoughts. His name is familiar to the voting public, he has managed to impress his personality upon the electorate, and the party machinery is largely for him.

But Stevenson himself has not yet given a public clue as to what he plans for the coming presidential contest. It is whispered here that he will make up his mind sometime in the fall.

While a logical choice, there are still certain factors which may make Stevenson decide to sit the next one out. His plans, it is suggested, may depend in large measure upon the plans of Dwight D. Eisenhower. If it looks as if the President will run again, Stevenson may very well bow gracefully out of the picture. American political tradition, which Stevenson knows very well, is against losing candidates eventually winning, and the Illinoisan may not be keen to engage Eisenhower once again.

The above is, of course, predicted upon the international and domestic situation remaining stabilized at about present levels.

Should Stevenson not run, the Democrats would be hard put to find themselves a candidate. The most logical person would probably be Gov. W. Averell Harriman of New York. The natural tendency of the American politician these days is to seek presidential candidates among men with administrative, rather than legislative, experience.

"We're supposed to be the party of talent," lamented one highly-placed Democrat, "but when talking about potential presidential candidates, after you've mentioned Stevenson and Harriman, who have we got?"

Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee can't be entirely disregarded, although the feeling here is that the magic of his crime investigation has pretty well worn off, and that he would be hard put to generate the kind of public support which he gained in 1952.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan already has stated his willingness to receive the convention's accolade.

OASIS IN OIL JUNGLE

Harbor Exodus Soon May Hush Shouts at Seaside Playground

Gallant little Seaside Playground, an oasis of recreation amidst a jungle of oil wells and pumping equipment, rapidly is nearing the point of no return.

A general exodus of the harbor area is under way as engineers push their plans to clear out all structures and raise the ground level, a necessary step in subsidence "remedial" work.

"Seaside Playground has been placed on a month-to-month schedule," says Dr. Frank B. Harnett, assistant director of municipal recreation. Seaside is located at Ocean Blvd. and Ventura Ave.

"We will keep the playground in operation as long as there are children residing near by who will use it."

Since 1946 Seaside Playground has operated under the steady hand of Mrs. Mary Ann Martin, a slender, dark-eyed woman who raised a family of her own and then "adopted" the kids of the harbor area.

An unsung heroine, Mrs. Martin has devoted virtually her entire being to the playground task.

Seaside Playground has competed in all city-wide playground events and exhibited stellar qualities of sportsmanship.

On the home grounds, the Recreation Department's classes in handcraft, dramatics, rhythms and music have been filled to capacity. Scores of small fry listened with rapt attention during story-telling hours.

Somehow or other service clubs and civic-minded groups around Long Beach learned about Seaside Playground. Like magic, a fine television set appeared in the recreation room. Fishing poles and reels were placed in the hands of adventuresome lads.

Mrs. Martin had eager crews of sun-bronzed boys and girls launched on a garden project. Soon the parched soil of a section of the playground bloomed with flowers.

A little red hen hatched out a brood of baby chicks and excitement among the smaller playground-goers ranged high.

Mrs. Martin's philosophy about children is simple and direct.

"I believe in American boys and girls," she says.

"While the children attending my playground possibly lack the abundance of material advantages enjoyed by some others, one thing is for sure.

"They don't lack determination."

As for the present—and last—crop of Seaside playground youngsters, you will be able to see them in action next Saturday at 1 p.m.

They will be sailing their kites in the all-city kite tournament on the beach at 1st Pl.

Home Burns, Mother, Son, Patient Die

EDMESTON, N. Y. (AP)—A widowed mother, her son, and an aged man she tried to rescue perished Saturday in a fire that demolished a nursing home.

Another son and the six other residents of the home were carried to safety by firemen.

The victims were Mrs. Adelaide Strait, about 50, the operator of the home; Adelbert Strait, 7; and Shora Dennison, 74, a patient.

Mrs. Strait telephoned the alarm at about 3:20 a.m. Then she returned upstairs to try to rescue Adelbert and Dennison, who, with Mrs. Strait were the sole occupants of the second floor.

Fire chief Thomas Lockerbie said he believed the fire had started in a defective chimney. He described the building as "an old shack which never should have been used as a nursing home."

U.S. Commanders in Orient Parley With Thai Chiefs

BANGKOK, Thailand (UP) — Commanders of U.S. Army and Navy forces in the Far East will arrive here this weekend for 12 days of military conferences with Thai government leaders and the U.S. Military Advisory Group located here.

A brief announcement from U.S. Command headquarters in Tokyo said the high-level military group will "familiarize themselves with the military situation in the Thailand area."

Thailand is considered by some U.S. military and diplomatic leaders as the next likely area for a Communist expansion drive in southeast Asia.

EX-NARCOTICS COP HELD ON DOPE CHARGE

Thomas H. Rankin, retired Los Angeles narcotics officer, with Ebba Irwin, San Pedro police department phone operator, following their arrest Saturday at San Pedro. Rankin was charged with possession of $10,000 worth of opium.—(AP Wirephoto.)

Ex-Cop Says Illness Put Him on Opium

A retired police lieutenant arrested in San Pedro early Saturday with $10,000 worth of opium, blamed the pains of arthritis for his narcotics addiction.

Harry Rankin, 56, of 2001 W. 164th St., Gardena, a veteran of seven years on the Los Angeles Police Department narcotics squad, was picked up at the home of Ebba J. Irwin, 43, 745 W. 40th St., San Pedro.

Sheriff's narcotics officers, acting on an anonymous tip, walked into the house and found 140 ounces of opium.

Rankin was lying fully clothed on a bed, an opium smoking kit beside him. Miss Irwin, for 20 years night switchboard operator in the San Pedro police station, answered the door.

Sheriff's narcotics detail head Capt. K. E. Irving said Rankin admitted being addicted to the powerful drug. He claimed the huge cache of opium was his and that Miss Irwin had nothing to do with it.

Later Saturday in County Jail, where both suspects were booked for investigation of narcotics possession, Rankin told officers he suffers from arthritis.

He said he started using narcotics to relieve the pain of the ailment shortly after his retirement as a policeman in 1948.

Rankin told them, Irving said, that he high-jacked the opium on the American side of the border at Tijuana after he watched a dope-ring runner hide it.

The drug, "enough to last Rankin a hundred years," according to Irving, was neatly stored in 20 7-ounce cans, sealed with tape.

Found beside the retired officer was a rare Chinese opium scale, a charcoal heating cup, and a handmade opium pipe.

Rankin and Miss Irwin were released on $2500 bail each late Saturday afternoon. Their writs of habeas corpus are returnable March 10.

Shortly after she left jail, Miss Irwin resigned her job with the police department.

U.S. Health Work Boosted in Egypt

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Foreign Operations Administration Saturday announced expansion of its health programs in Egypt. Agreements recently signed with Egypt, the FOA said, provide for two new health projects and expansion of existing programs under the Egyptian-American joint committee for public health.

One of the projects calls "for improving the Egyptian system of vital and health statistics so the nation's basic health problems may be identified, planned and the results more accurately evaluated."

HAS HORSESHOE

Youth Beats Death Thrice in One Fall

BRADFORD, England (AP)—Billy Harrison, 18-year-old steeplejack, cheated death three times Saturday.

He was working on a 75-foot factory chimney. Falling stonework smashed his scaffold and sent him hurtling down from the top.

He landed in a water tank 40 feet below and was stunned.

But he didn't drown. The same stonework had plunged through the bottom of the tank, and the water drained away.

The stone hurtled on and fractured a six-inch gas main. The gas swirled up into the tank.

Firemen pulled Harrison to safety just in time. One said: "The tank reeked of gas. A few minutes more and it would have been too late."

He is in a hospital with shock—and three small cuts.

To My Friends:

I am glad to announce my return to work and serve you as in the past 32 years. Sincere thanks for the loyal and steadfast support.

CARS TIED UP FOR MILES AND MILES

Traffic was jammed for miles Saturday when four cars rammed into a truck-trailer which jacknifed on Hollywood Freeway. Truck driver braked sharply to avoid hitting an auto and 24 tons of newsprint rolls spilled in all directions. — (AP)

King-Sized Jams Snarl 2 Freeways

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Police reported several hundred cars were stalled on the Hollywood and Santa Ana freeways in the downtown area Saturday in one of the city's worst traffic jams.

The Hollywood freeway jam was caused by a minor traffic accident in which a large truck-trailer jacknifed and was struck by five cars at the connection with the Harbor and Arroyo Seco freeways.

Police reported no serious injuries, but said one man was believed to have suffered a rib injury and a woman a back injury.

The Santa Ana freeway jam occurred on the freeway's westbound lanes, east of the Civic Center, when overflow traffic snarled at the connection with the Pasadena freeway.

West Germany Keeps Up Fight for Saar

BONN (UP) — West Germany declared Saturday that the Saar basin is German territory, and insisted its inhabitants would retain the right to demand reunion with Germany even after the controversial Saar pact takes effect.

Ambassador Wilhelm Hausenstein delivered a note to the French foreign office angrily protesting its announcement Friday night that France will continue to insist that the Saar be divorced from Germany in any final German peace treaty.

Czechs Claim Yank 'Turncoat'

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—A Czechoslovak newspaper reaching Vienna Saturday claimed an American army officer has asked for political asylum in Czechoslovakia.

The newspaper Jihoceska Pravda of Ceska Budejovice identified the officer as Marton Nadler. It did not say when he asked asylum but said Nadler recently addressed an agricultural conference in Kaplice and criticized the conditions of American farmers.

The Army in Washington and headquarters of the U. S. Army in Europe at Heidelberg, Germany, said they had no Marton Nadler on its rolls.

Fuller Firm in Denial He Shot Lawyer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Albert Fuller climaxed his murder defense Saturday with a firm denial that he killed A. L. Patterson, but he got crossed up three times on major points in his testimony.

The defense rested its case after the former chief deputy at Phenix City ended a stay of 4½ hours on the stand, but announced it would call the state's star witness for further cross-examination Monday.

Chief Prosecutor Cecil Deason then began presentation of rebuttal testimony aimed at counteracting the stories of Fuller and six other witnesses who said the defendant was in the county jail at the time the anti-vice-crusading Patterson was slain last June 18.

Fuller's testimony included these seeming contradictions: That he worked for Patterson in the vice foe's successful campaign for attorney general of Alabama last spring but didn't vote for him.

That he suffered from a severe leg injury and couldn't run from the murder scene as prosecution witnesses said he did, but that he ran out of the jail when he heard about the shooting and ran across the street when he arrived at the murder scene.

That he didn't remember being sentenced to seven years in prison for bribery several weeks ago but he did remember parts of the trial, especially that he didn't have a lawyer until just after he was called into court.

Slain Killer's Identity a Mystery

GREEN RIVER, Wyo. (AP) — "I'm dead, dammit—come and get me."

A young killer yelled the words at armed officers who trapped him Friday night in a house in this southwestern Wyoming railroad town.

Then he staggered into another room and collapsed, lifeless, on a bed with a shotgun charge in his chest.

The blast from Railroad Agent W. G. Sherman's gun, fired through a window, ended the 16-hour shooting spree of the man who had killed two men, wounded two others, held a 17-year-old boy hostage for eight hours and terrorized a woman and her two children in the house where his crime trail ended.

The gunman's identity was undetermined. Officers at first thought he was Melvin H. Gray, 27, a former Wyoming prison convict. He wore a wristwatch and belt buckle identified as Gray's and a car abandoned by the gunman was listed in Gray's name.

But Sheriff George Nimmo said the killer's fingerprints do not match those on file at the prison. The prints were sent to the FBI at Washington in an effort to clear up the identity.

Nimmo said officers now are looking for Gray, fearful he might also have fallen victim to the killer.

The gunman killed Albert Maffei, 35, a garage owner at Kemmerer, northwest of here, as Maffei ran for his life down a snowy road early Friday.

Friday night, as officers closed in on him, he shot Deputy Sheriff Ed Phillips in the chest and the officer died Saturday in a Rock Springs hospital.

In the shooting scrape at Frontier, Wyo., near the Idaho-Wyoming border, Frank Kulinsky, town marshal, was seriously wounded in the stomach and Don Wagner, 35, was wounded in the cheek by the gunman.

The killer had been surprised in a burglary at Kemmerer and chased to Frontier, three miles away.

Officers said 17-year-old Bob Durrant was lucky he escaped unharmed from his eight-hour stretch as the gunman's unwilling companion in a wild drive over Wyoming and Utah roads. But Durrant said he "was a real nice guy. I can't imagine him shooting anybody."

White House Reporters Honor Ike at Banquet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House Correspondents' Association held its 30th annual dinner Saturday night with President Eisenhower as honored guest and the subject of a mild ribbing.

Among the guests were members of the President's cabinet, Supreme Court justices, diplomats, Senators and Representatives, and Dr. Milton Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State University and Mr. Eisenhower's brother.

A skit satirizing the recent announcement that President Eisenhower will limit his travels for the next several weeks to two hours flying time from Washington opened the show.

It showed three White House correspondents trying to keep up with the President on a trip to the "Burning Crater" golf course on Mars.

The three reporters in the skit were Frank Holeman of the New York Daily News; William H. Lawrence of the New York Times, and Edward T. Folliard of the Washington Post and Times-Herald.

A record number of more than 900 members of the White House Correspondents' Association and their guests attended the dinner in the Statler Hotel.

Conference Seen for Ike and Churchill

LONDON (UP)—Highly placed British sources said Saturday night that Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Dwight D. Eisenhower probably will have to meet again shortly to patch up the rift in the Atlantic Alliance revealed in Churchill's H-bomb speech of last Tuesday.

These sources suggested that the 80-year-old Prime Minister may even now be contemplating "another pilgrimage to Washington" in an attempt to bring American and British policy back into line.

Churchill, on Tuesday, said bluntly that Britain must build its own H-bombs because American H-bombers might not give adequate priority to the targets Britain would want bombed in event of a war.

British sources accepted this shock-speech as a clear indication that the Anglo-American alliance is in a "bad state."

They blamed the allegedly dangerous rift in relations between the Atlantic partners on the current state of disjointed planning.

Churchill told the House of Commons that he doubted Britain could exercise adequate influence on American thinking and actions until Britain had some nuclear power of its own to reinforce its position.

The high-ranking British authority for the report that Churchill and Mr. Eisenhower may meet soon to try to iron out such irritations is an eminent Briton who long has been a Churchill confidant.

He said the Prime Minister's speech should have made it "abundantly clear on both sides of the Atlantic" that the alliance, so closely-bound in war, has reached "a sad state" in peace.

This British authority said it "appears inevitable" that Churchill and President Eisenhower will have to meet again to restore the Anglo-American alliance.

"It may be that the old man will make another pilgrimage to Washington," he said.

"The dangers of America and Britain drifting apart cannot be over-publicized."

In addition to the 1946 parting of the ways on the sharing of nuclear secrets, he said Anglo-American policy now is in need of synchronizing all the way from Europe to the Far East. He said some particularly close planning is indicated in the strife-torn Middle East.

"It is no use for NATO (the North Atlantic Treaty Organization) to build a broad band of defense right across Europe and the Balkans to Turkey when there is a wide-open crack in the Levant," he said.

"It is like building another Maginot Line with Turkey on the flank. Russia could strike down through the Levant and turn this line just as the Germans turned the Maginot Line at Sedan."

The source said Churchill was making it plain to Commons that there have been Anglo-American differences when he said:

"I cannot feel that we would have much influence over their (the Americans') policy or actions, wise or unwise, when we are largely dependent, as we are today, on their protection. We too must possess a substantial deterrent power of our own . . ."

Fire Drives 60 Airmen Out, 25 Bitten by Frost

RAPID CITY, S. D. (AP)—Fire swept through the flight line maintenance and engineering building at Ellsworth Air Force Base here Saturday night before being halted by 60 airmen, 25 of whom were later treated for frostbite.

Damage to radar, radio and electronic equipment, aircraft supply parts and engineering records was estimated at $125,000. Firefighters battled in zero weather and driving snow for four hours, preventing the flames from spreading to adjacent buildings.

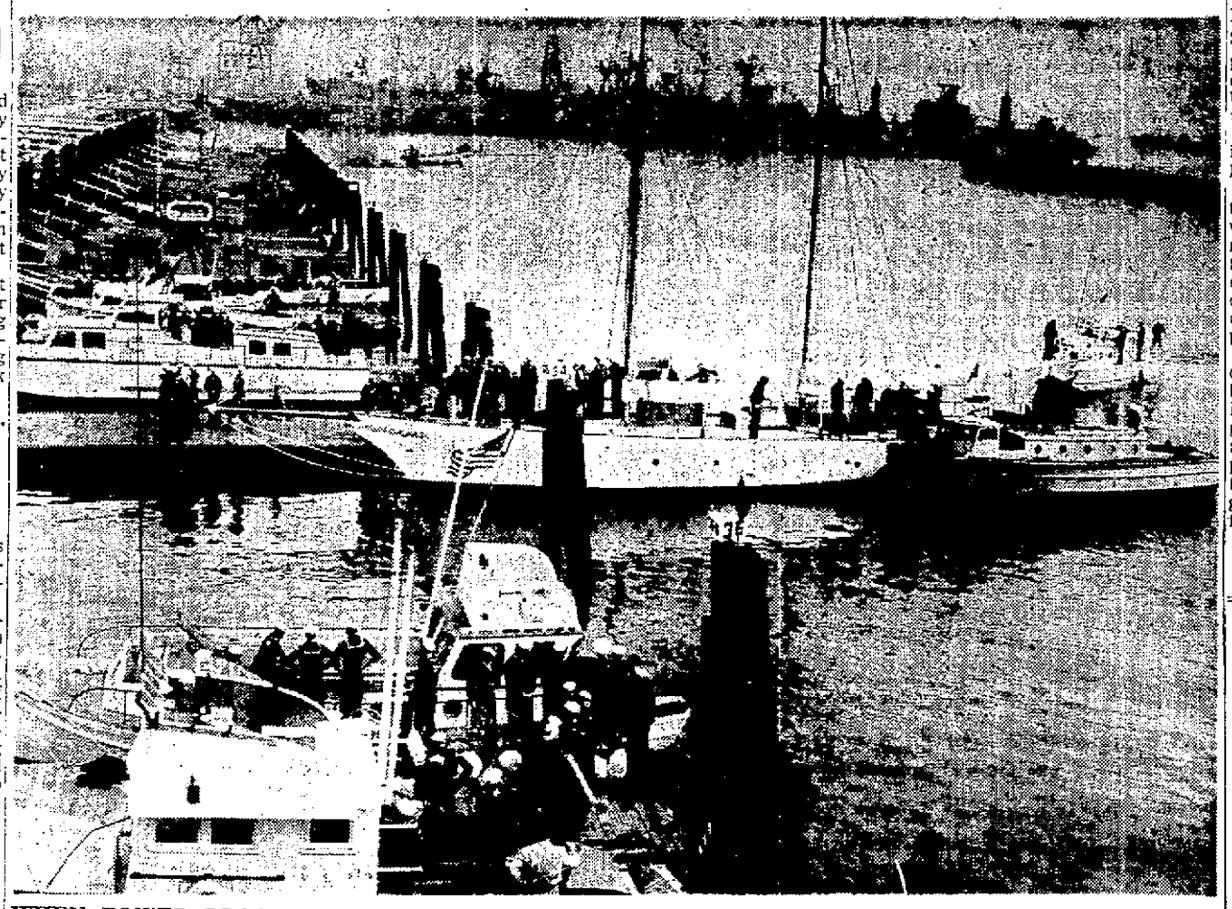

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

Top Officials Favor Wider A-Data Trade With Britain

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top U. S. officials believe a greater exchange of atomic information with Britain would be profitable to both countries. But they are a long way from swapping secrets about how to manufacture hydrogen bombs or other weapons.

Informants said Saturday that, if trading of hydrogen-bomb information is what the British are aiming for now, they are heading for disappointment.

The fact is that the United States, Britain and Canada slowly have been rebuilding a solid but limited cooperation on atomic matters since the low point of several years ago, when one of Britain's top atomic scientists, Klaus Fuchs, proved to be a spy for Russia and another, Dr. Bruno Pontecorvo, disappeared behind the Iron Curtain.

In keeping with this cooperation, a British military team has been invited here to witness test explosions of atomic weapons at the Nevada proving grounds. A Canadian team of army, navy and air force atomic experts also will attend the firings, which are known as military evaluation tests.

JAPAN'S GIRLS BIGGER THAN PREWAR TYPE

TOKYO (Sunday) (AP)—Japanese girls are taller, plumper and quite a bit more bosomy than were girls prior to World War II, says a white paper just put out by the Education Ministry.

The report said educators believe this has something to do with "postwar emancipation of women." But they weren't quite sure just how.

Sen. Jackson Urges 'Peaceful Atom' Rush as AEC Offers Fission Power for Sale

NEW YORK (UP)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash) called Saturday night for a "crash" program to develop peaceful use of atomic power. He said the United States is able to outdistance Russia in this field.

He discussed atoms-for-peace in a speech at a dinner honoring Rep. Abraham J. Multer (D-NY).

"While there is little doubt that our military atomic race with the Russians is a neck-and-neck affair," Jackson said, "I firmly believe we have the present capability of instituting an overwhelming lead in the development and exploitation of the peaceful atom."

"If we give this effort the all-out crash priority we gave the hydrogen bomb, we will give the lie to the charge that we have given lip-service to the peaceful atom. Not only would such a program prove our peaceful intentions, it would provide a great economic shot-in-the-arm for the peoples of the world."

Jackson's plea came as the Atomic Energy Commission announced that the nation's first commercial supply of electricity from an atomic reactor will be ready for sale late this summer.

AEC officials confirmed that they are looking for a buyer for the power, to be produced at West Milton, N. Y. The generators which produce it will be powered by a land-based experimental copy of an atomic engine designed for the submarine Sea Wolf.

The quantity will be comparatively small, perhaps enough to supply a city of 20,000.

The AEC announced also that scientists and engineers from 19 foreign nations will start, this month, a seven-month study of peaceful uses of atomic energy.

The AEC is conducting the school at its Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago, in cooperation with the State Department and the Foreign Operations Administration. The course will involve highly technical but nonsecret study of atomic reactors for research and for power generation.

250-Ton House Gets Big Boost

By BEN MARTIN

WHITTIER — A 16-room mansion which weighs in at about 250 tons has taken its first "step" in a 200-foot walk up the side of a hill.

The house, which measures 52x83 feet and has two stories and a penthouse, is being raised 22 feet in two separate steps and being moved back to a new location leveled out of the side of a hill at Alta Ave., north of Beverly Blvd.

Object? — Better view and more parking for house guests.

A 15-man crew has been working on the move since Feb. 2, and the house won't be brought to rest on its new foundation for another 30 days.

Owner of the house is J. B. Riley, prominent oil-field-equipment manufacturer, who, 25 years ago, bought the old Los Nietos school as a plant site, then used many of the heavy construction timbers to build his house.

Because of the heavy timbers—2x16-inch floor joists and 2x12 wall studs—and the three-inch coating of concrete stucco, several contractors have estimated the weight at between 200 and 250 tons.

First step — which required a month — was to jack the house 10 feet into the air so it could be rolled back 60 feet on three huge "tracks" to a levelled spot behind the house.

Next step will raise the house another 12 feet.

Then it will be rolled back another 140 feet, with 12 steel "shoes" utilizing nearly 100 rollers, rolling along the huge timber tracks.

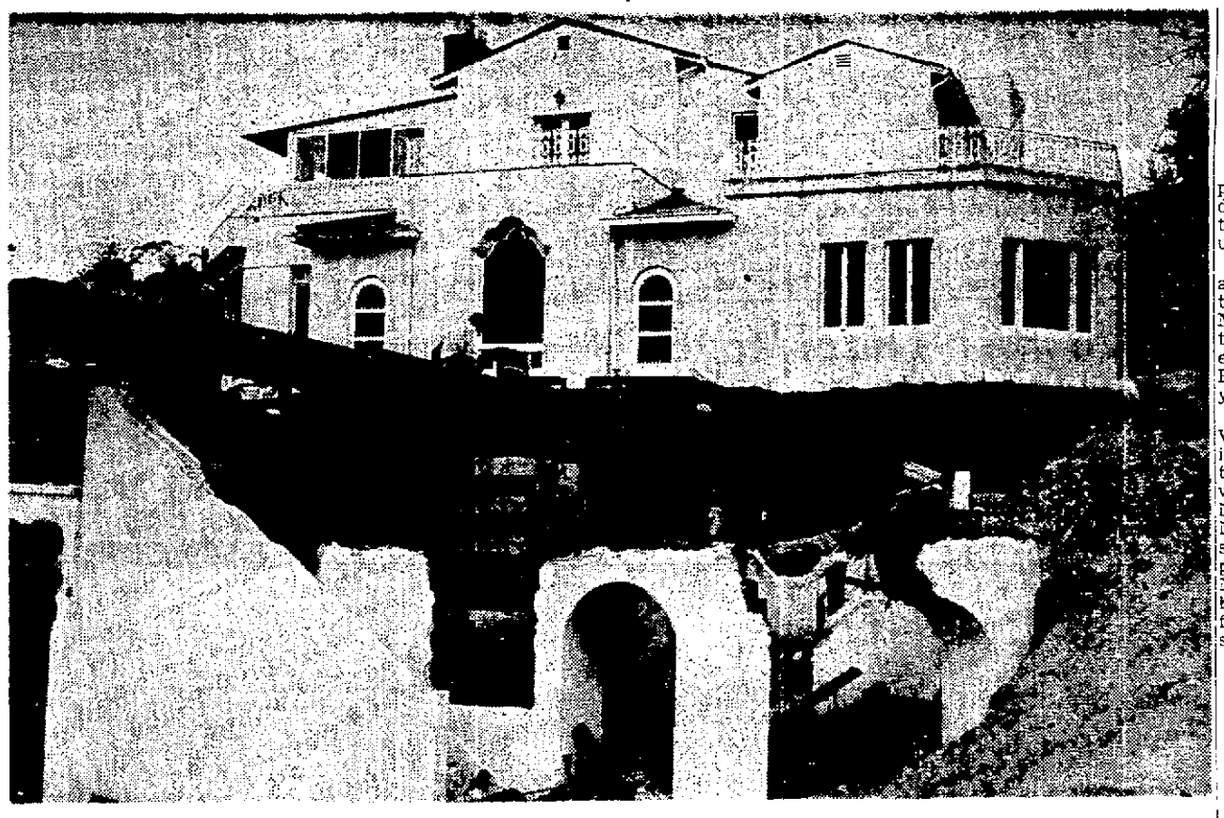

O. P. Boutcher and C. M. Palmer, partners in the Triangle House Moving Co., of Whittier, said their crews employed fourteen 25-ton hydraulic jacks and 20 screw-type jacks to raise the house.

Both are oldtimers in the business and are agreed that this is the largest project of its kind ever undertaken in the Whittier area.

After the movers have completed their project, bulldozers will be called in to demolish the foundation and basement, which formerly provided space for servants quarters, a laundry and a five-car garage.

The space then will be levelled and paved for parking.

New and separate quarters are being built for domestic help.

MANSION CLIMBS HILL

A 16-room mansion weighing 250 tons is "walking" 200 feet up the side of a hill in Whittier. Photo shows house after it had been moved 60 feet on a track supported by piers 4 feet square and 18 feet high. Move to hilltop will require 30 more days. —(Staff Photo.)

Why New Atom Boss for Russ?

By TOM WHITNEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The Kremlin picked a new man this week to drive Soviet atom plants. He turns out to be a top expert on use of slave labor in Siberia.

It could be the Soviet leaders are unhappy about the output of their nuclear weapon factories. Maybe that's why, last week, they named a onetime deputy of executed Police Chief Lavrenty Beria, Avrami Pavlovich Zavenyagin, to boss them.

Intelligence analysts in all Western capitals — particularly in Washington—are breaking their beads over the puzzle of why Communist Party Boss Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin found it necessary to make this highly important change at a time when Moscow broadcasts almost daily boast that the U.S.S.R. is out in front in the H-bomb sweepstakes.

It could be only one more complicated maneuver in Kremlin factional politics—intended by Khrushchev and Bulganin to end any influence Ex-Premier Georgi Malenkov had in the atomic field. It also could mean the former atom boss: Vyacheslav Malyshev, failed to get into high gear on A-bomb production.

The official announcement from Moscow March 1, merely said Zavenyagin was named a deputy premier of the U.S.S.R. and "minister of the medium machinery industry," replacing Malyshev.

But the American students of Soviet affairs identify the Soviet "ministry of medium machinery industry" as a cover designation for the Russian equivalent of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. This ministry was formed the night Lavrenty Beria was arrested. It apparently took over functions of the highly secret "First Administration of the Council of Ministers" which, under Beria, had charge of secret weapons output and controlled uranium production in east Germany.

Zavenyagin has a combination of experience which gave him unique qualifications for the atomic task. He is well versed in science and engineering. He spent seven years at the Moscow Academy of Mining in the late 20s.

He also has had extensive experience as an industrial executive. He was a member of a commission in the early 30s to draft instructions for industrial and electrical construction under the first five-year plan. In May, 1931, he was named deputy chief of the main administration of the Soviet metallurgical industry. This was a responsible post for one so young (he was born in 1901). Its equivalent nowadays in Russia would carry the title of deputy minister for the steel industry.

Where There Is Smoke--- There's Vapor

Loading of the British freighter Lord Gladstone was resumed at Berth 28, Long Beach Harbor, Saturday afternoon following a two-hour interruption while the origin of smoke arising from Hold No. 3 was investigated.

The ship is loading 9600 tons of metal sweepings for delivery to Rotterdam. Capt. T. J. Williamson, skipper, summoned firemen and insurance underwriters.

After insurance experts were satisfied that no fire existed and that the "smoke" was oil vapor arising from the 1150 tons of metal sweepings in Hold No. 3, longshoremen resumed bulk-loading operations.

Russ Warn U.S. on List of A-Targets

LONDON (U.P.)—Soviet Russia said Saturday the United States is on the list of targets that it could and would strike with atom bombs if the need arises for "military retaliation."

Friday Moscow warned Britain that the British isles are particularly exposed.

A Moscow radio broadcast, monitored here, said:

"Under modern conditions the United States ruling circles have no ground for hope that, should they commit aggression, U. S. territory would remain outside military retaliation.

"And as regards the production of hydrogen weapons, the Soviet Union is well ahead of the U.S.A." The broadcast said.

HE GETS IT, ANYWAY!

If Joey Ensign, 12, of 1622 Cherry Ave., had been at Robert E. Lee school Friday night he would have received his blue and gold cord as den chief of Den 4, Cub Pack 4. But he is in Community Hospital, recovering from internal injuries received Sunday in a traffic accident returning from Big Bear. Therefore, a smiling if white-faced Joey received the cord from Cubmaster R. M. Harvey Saturday in the hospital. —(Staff Photo.)

Israeli-Egyptian Tension Increases

GAZA, Egyptian-Israeli Frontier (U.P.)—Arab-Israeli tension which has threatened the peace of the Middle East, erupted Saturday in new violence on the Israeli-Jordanian frontier.

Israel charged Syria with a less serious frontier violation near the Hagovrim settlement where, it said, shots were fired from Syrian positions wounding one of two workmen on a waterworks project in upper Galilee. Israeli reinforcements returned and silenced the Syrian fire, the Israeli complaint said.

Jordan charged before the mixed armistice commission in Jerusalem, that five Jordanian Bedouins were murdered by Israeli troops Friday night.

The commission already is considering Egypt's charges that an Israeli army unit on last Monday night staged a sneak attack on an Egyptian military post in this Egyptian frontier area, killing 42 Egyptians and wounding 29.

The situation here was so danger-packed that families of the United Nations truce team—including one American woman—were evacuated from the Gaza area.

Egypt charged that Israeli artillery opened fire during the night on a second Egyptian military outpost, but inflicted no casualties.

The evacuation of U. N. families was ordered as a precaution against their becoming involved and possibly being wounded or killed in such clashes.

U. N. officials identified the American who was evacuated as Mrs. Pierre Duhet, formerly of Geneva, Ill. She is the wife of a Belgian civilian radio operator.

Blood Donors Asked, Offers Tie Up Phones

NEW YORK (U.P.) — Comedian Jackie Gleason made an appeal for blood donors on his television show Saturday night and thousands replied, tieing up a hospital's switchboard.

"We've had so many calls we can't transact any hospital business," Charles Niess, night superintendent of Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital said. "We had to bring in extra switchboard operators, and had trouble getting emergency calls through."

More thousands telephoned the Columbia Broadcasting System offices here, swamping its switchboard.

Niess said he had asked CBS to stop the flow of calls and a spokesman said all persons who telephoned the network were told not to call the hospital now. The CBS spokesman said the network and Gleason certainly had no intention to jam the hospital's lines.

Gleason made the appeal at the end of his program on behalf of Garry Moore, another TV performer, who had sent Gleason a message that a close friend of his was in need of O-negative blood.

The patient was reported to be an 11-year-old girl.

O-negative blood is rare, but Niess said the hospital had enough on hand to last until today. He said the hospital took the names of volunteer donors who telephoned.

Cat Points Out Drowning Child, Aid Revives Him

HOUSTON, Texas (AP)—Tiny, a tomcat, today was credited with saving a 21-month-old Ohio tot from drowning in a fish pond.

The boy, Karam Habib, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Habib of Zanesville, Ohio, fell into a fish pond at the home of Fred H. Noomie Friday night. The Habibs were visiting there.

When Mrs. Habib missed her son, she started searching. Noticing the cat peering into the fish pond, she curiously investigated and saw her son's body.

The child was revived by artificial respiration.

Plane Door Blows Off, but 16 Land Safely

ATLANTA (U.P.) — A twin-engined Delta-C&S Convair crash-landed at the Atlanta Municipal Airport late Saturday when a door blew off and wrapped around the tail assembly, but none of the 13 passengers and three crewmen was injured.

A Delta-C&S spokesman said the pilot, Capt. Ray Crocker, 36, of Atlanta, elected to bring the plane in on its belly rather than let the wheels down and take a chance of it nosing over with the tail assembly partially disabled.

YOU'RE STUCK, ORLANDO!

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP) —Orlando Froio, 42, offered to give his 1947 car away to anyone who can make it go 40 miles an hour.

District Court Judge Charles Alberti, however, was not impressed with Froio's argument and fined him $25 on a charge of speeding at 55 miles an hour.

119th Anniversary of the Alamo

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—Freedom found a new symbol 119 years ago today when Davy Crockett, Jim Bowie and a gallant handful of men chose certain death to defend an old adobe mission chapel, the Alamo.

"Remember the Alamo" became a rallying cry for the cause of freedom in Texas' struggle for independence and the cry passed into legend as a heritage for all men who fight for freedom.

It was on March 6, 1836, that Mexican Gen. Santa Anna mounted a final siege against the Alamo, held by the Texans since Dec. 9, 1835. His 3,000 troops battered it into submission and took no prisoners from the 187 men who were its defenders.

The woodsmen, clerks and farmers at the Alamo knew what to expect.

Col. William B. Travis, their commander, had drawn a line in the dirt and asked that every man who wanted to fight to the death to cross it.

All did, and the famed frontiersman, Jim Bowie, who earlier added to the world's arsenal by developing the Bowie knife, is supposed to have said:

"I can't walk, boys, but please somebody carry me over." He had been ill of typhoid-pneumonia.

Somebody did.

Today, the Alamo is mostly restored, a shrine of Texas and a symbol of freedom for everyone who yearns for it."

Sen. Johnson Out of Mayo's

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Senate Democratic leader, returned Saturday from treatments at the Mayo Brothers Clinic at Rochester, Minn.

He is under orders to "take it easy for a while" but reportedly is recovering rapidly from an illness.

Johnson had been treated at the clinic for a kidney stone and an infection.

Members of his staff said he planned no heavy duties about his office for the time being "but will keep in touch with his staff."

Orange Market Strong; Lemon Prices Steady

LOS ANGELES (U.P.) — The California navel orange market was boosted by active demand and light arrivals 70 cents to $4.50 a box F. O. B. during the past week, Sunkist Growers reported.

Compared with 775 of the week before, approximately 725 car loads were sold, the cooperative said, leaving 1,600 cars for shipment in fresh channels from Central California.

This week's prorate was set at 750 cars from Southern California and 400 cars from Central California.

The California lemon market held steady with 200 cars traded at $5.50 a box F. O. B. This week's prorate was set at 275 cars.

And Out Of This World

Seven daringly designed Dream Cars—and the equally amazing Dream Truck. All exciting expressions of the automotive designer's art—revealing features which, as in previous Motorama "dream cars," may well someday find their way into production cars and trucks.

Wonders Of The Scientific World

Exhibits of General Motors Research and Engineering—designed to explain how GM scientists work to improve the performance, safety, driving ease and riding comfort of a General Motors car. Many of these are made so the viewer can operate them himself. Together they form one of the outstanding educational displays of modern industrial science available for public inspection.

And The Culinary World

Frigidaire's designers have transformed the Kitchen of Tomorrow—popular feature of the '54 Motorama—into what might be called the Kitchen of Day-After-Tomorrow—so filled is it with experimental devices to make a housewife's life a bed of electronic roses. A "must see" for everyone interested in scientific domesticity.

And The Fashion World

The Motorama again presents a group of the most glamorous Park Avenue Fashion Models in creations especially designed for the Motorama—this year by Sophie of Saks Fifth Avenue. This "fashion show" is a part of the Motorama stage show.

And The World of Entertainment!

MORE exciting motorcars—the beautiful 1955 Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Oldsmobiles, Buicks and Cadillacs—in all their glory of contour and color. Dream Cars—setting the pace of automotive progress. Fascinating demonstrations of research and engineering. And—for frosting on the cake—entertainment featuring names known to fame on Broadway—in Hollywood—and on the stages of Europe. Yes—it's greater—more thrilling than ever. And you're cordially invited to be our guest—at the biggest and best show on wheels—the General Motors Motorama of 1955.

Drive Starts to Forestall Annual Wage

WASHINGTON (AP)—Businessmen are being asked to contribute to a "hard-hitting" public relations campaign sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers against the guaranteed annual wage and other labor union aims.

Letters soliciting funds for the campaign say business conditions look good for 1955, "but we will have to fight to make it so." The guaranteed annual wage is described as a "disturbing threat to 1955 prospects."

"Your past support," business leaders are told, "has been of great help in creating the improved economic climate in which we now operate. We must not let it disappear."

An account of the fund-raising letter appears in the current issue of the railroad union newspaper, Labor. The NAM, queried about it, made a copy available to a reporter. Labor said the letter revealed formation of "a gigantic propaganda fund" to defeat union labor's chief 1955 goals.

CAN'T MATCH FUNDS

The letter, signed by Ira Mosher, a Massachusetts manufacturer who is former president of the NAM and chairman of the United Business Committee, allied with the NAM, says:

"Presently the most disturbing threat to 1955 prospects are CIO President Walter Reuther's announced intentions to (1) press for repeal of the Taft-Hartley waiver which specifically leaves to the states the authority to outlaw compulsory unionism; and (2) win a guaranteed annual wage for his members."

Mosher said Reuther is raising a 25-million-dollar strike fund in the CIO United Auto Workers to back up the wage demand. He said his business group can't match the budget which "the opposition plans for the fight, but we will make every dollar we do have count."

"Our committee will cooperate to the hilt with the NAM in a hard-hitting campaign to get the facts to the people," Mosher wrote.

WIDE APPEAL

Contribution cards enclosed with the letters say "the size of your gift is optional." They suggest that "many firms are subscribing at the rate of 50 cents per $1,000 of gross annual payroll, or $1.50 per employe, including executives."

The paper Labor said that with manufacturing payrolls running about 64 billion dollars a year, if all manufacturers contributed the suggested amount the total would be as high as 32 million. It said the fund appeal is not limited solely to manufacturers but is directed to all "business leadership."

A NAM spokesman said the United Business Committee has been part of the NAM for years and has been raising money all along, not only from NAM members, but from other businessmen "who like to support our objectives."

ARMY WAITS

He 'Misses Boat' to Ride Big Race

LONDON (AP) — The colonel's wife, children and all his 499 men sailed for Hong Kong today, but the colonel stayed behind to ride a long-shot race horse.

Col. William Holman, 42, was to have accompanied his 15th Medium Regiment of Royal Artillery which sailed from Southampton aboard the troop ship Empire Fowey.

The war office, however, gave him a "reprive" so he could ride Wild Wisdom, a 100-to-1 longshot in the Grand National March 26.

Holman, an amateur jockey, said that "a lot of horses will have to fall if I win."

BEACH COMBING

With MALCOLM EPLEY

(Ed. Note—Columnist Epley has been at Sacramento the past week observing the Legislature in action.)

SACRAMENTO — Two names you see over newspaper dispatches from Sacramento almost every day are Morrie Landsberg and James C. Anderson.

They are, respectively, the bureau chiefs of the Associated Press and the United Press in this hectic center of our state government. Their duty is to keep the flow of news running to the readers of newspapers in all parts of the state who supposedly are vitally interested in what their state government is doing.

As bureau chiefs, Landsberg and Anderson are technically executives. But don't let that mislead you into thinking they simply direct the activities of gangs of newsgathering lackeys. Not by a danged sight. These two crew-cutted veterans of the journalistic wars do a lot of the leg work themselves, and the stories that appear under their by-lines are actually written by them.

Each has several staffers working under him. California's state government is a sprawling layout, and quick coverage of news here for the use of whole strings of newspapers requires the work of crews of hardworking people.

There are several lone wolf journalists here, but ordinarilly they represent just one paper and can specialize. Landsberg and Anderson must see to it that the field is covered.

MORRIE LANDSBERG is a 41-year-old native of San Francisco who grew up in the Bay City, graduated from the University of California in 1935 and has been with the Associated Press for nearly 16 years.

He spent 20 months as an overseas correspondent for the Associated Press. Otherwise, most of his work has been in the bay area and at Sacramento. He knows the ins and outs of state government about as well as anybody, he has a taut news sense and can hammer out a good story, fast.

Landsberg has his dark hair cut in flat top crew cut style. He peers through horn-rimmed glasses from behind the AP room desk that is farthest from the door, and he smokes a pipe most of the time.

Pipes have kept Landsberg completely off cigarettes, which he forewent reluctantly some time back. He keeps four pipes in operation. The three that aren't in his mouth rest stem downward in holes which Morrie has bored in a broad shelf or sill just behind his desk.

Married and the father of three sons, Landsberg doesn't have many recreation hobbies. He's rated as a dedicated newsman, whose work is pretty much his fun.

JIM ANDERSON is a one-time sports editor who now specializes in political science as the top United Press man here. He did his sports editing for a year or so at a Santa Barbara paper before he went off to spend three and one-half years in Uncle Sam's infantry.

Anderson was born in North Dakota, moved to Arizona, attended Arizona State and went to work for the UP at Phoenix. Then came the sports stint at Santa Barbara, the war, a return to UP and assignment to Sacramento in 1951.

Jim is lean, rather thin-faced, has an aquiline nose which is sharply sensitive to news. He is married, has two children, and is crazy about golf.

THERE'S a big corps of newsmen here, ranging through the capital and other government buildings in quest of information. As watchdogs for the people, they have the run of offices and the floors of the Senate and Assembly, and occupy paper-strewn offices on the third floor near the two chambers.

Loudspeakers carry the procedure of Assembly or Senate into some of the news rooms. Except when there's something big in the air, few newsmen are in the chambers when the houses are in session.

Newsmen are regular participants in the bull sessions that go on steadily in the lobby of the Senator Hotel, across the street from the capitol, and to a lesser extent in the nearby Sacramento Hotel. A lot of legislative business, and a lot of news, are generated there.

Miss Welcome Contest Entries Start Monday

The time approaches to select Miss Welcome to Long Beach for 1955.

She will be official city hostess for the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant July 14-24, and will reign for a year welcoming visitors and conventions to Long Beach.

Entries may be made, beginning Monday, at the Junior Chamber of Commerce office in the Wilton Hotel arcade or the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant office in Municipal Auditorium, according to Bill Muntz, contest chairman for the Junior Chamber of Commerce which sponsors the event.

In order to qualify, a girl must be a resident of Long Beach and must be between the ages of 18 and 28. She may be either married or single.

The contest is held in connection with the "Do It Yourself" show in the Municipal Auditorium. Preliminaries will be May 10, 11 and 12, and the finals May 13. Ten girls also will be chosen to participate in the stage productions of the Miss Universe pageant.

Previous Miss Welcome titleholders are now respectively, a happy housewife; an entertainer; a purchasing agent.

Jeri Miller, the brownette beauty who was the first Miss Welcome, greeting other lovelies in the first Miss Universe pageant in 1952, and her husband, Lt. Ronald Paul Hight, Army Air Force, are in West Palm Beach, Fla., for two months while Ronald takes special training. Normally they are at McGuire Air Force Base, part of Fort Dix, N. J. Climaxing a romance which began in Poly High School, they were married in Long Beach last September.

Joan Kelly, Miss Welcome of 1953, redhead whose tresses now are the popular silver gray, for seven months has danced at the Moulin Rouge, Sunset and Vine, Hollywood.

Before that, for 10 months she was a specialty dancer at the Sands Hotel, Las Vegas. Joan also sings, and she hopes to get in a Broadway show. She announces that she will be married next month to Sid Bulkin, road manager for Vic Damone, singer.

Now for Marlene Becker, Miss Welcome for 1954, who as a matter of fact continues as Miss Welcome until the 1955 girl is chosen.

Brown-haired, brown-eyed Marlene, who used to be information secretary at the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, now is a "special buy girl" at the North American plant, Downey. That means she is a purchasing agent for the photo laboratory.

She has been there six months, and likes it. She is not engaged, she reports.

Two Leaders Meet Quotas in RC Drive

Two Lakewood colonels in the home gifts division of the 1955 Red Cross campaign were the first to meet their quotas, Mrs. Malcolm Epley, vice chairman of the home gifts division announced at a recent report luncheon.

She presented 100 per cent pins to Mrs. J. A. Woods and Mrs. W. L. Rasmussen. For Mrs. Woods, this was not a new experience. This is the fourth straight year that her team has made its quota in the opening phase of the drive. Mrs. Eugene Hamilton, vice chairman of the home gifts division, said $20,808.46 had been raised in the first week of the door-to-door solicitation for Red Cross members and funds. The division, with Mrs. A. A. Carrey, chairman, expects to raise $85,000 in March.

George McMillin, postmaster, said that he has reached 97.3 per cent of his quota for the federal employes division, which includes the VA Hospital, Naval Shipyards, postoffice, FBI and Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Paul E. Lehr, chairman of the petroleum service and supply division, announced appointment of the following team captains for his division, which has a quota of $5,700: C. A. Wonnell, John Schrader, H. H. Horsch, R. R. House, Bob Collier, Clifford Beyers, Bill Hart, Bill Albers, R. L. Jackson and Ralph G. Hand Jr.

CITY COLLEGE FORUM

Psychology, Law Series Slated for Adult School

Opening this week of two new lecture series in psychology and law was announced Saturday by the Forums Office of the City College School for Adults.

Dr. Arthur L. Bietz, clinical psychologist and author-lecturer, will speak on "What Is Escape From Reality?" Monday at 7:30 p. m. in Poly High auditorium, in the first of four weekly lectures.

Elizabeth Cochran, Long Beach attorney, will open a series of talks on "Legal Aspects of Family Living" Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in Room 502 of the City College art building, Faculty Ave. and Harvey Way.

Dr. Bietz, professor and psychologist at the White Memorial Hospital and School of Medicine, is a member of several national professional societies and the author of such books as "Conquering Personal Problems," "In Quest of Life" and "The Knowhow of Living."

Other lectures in Dr. Bietz' Monday evening series will include "Making Tomorrow More Valuable Than Today," "Appreciate Your Mature Years" and "How to Face the Real Issues of Life."

First lecture in Mrs. Cochran's Tuesday evening series will be on "'Love' and the Law," a discussion of marriage, divorce and related problems. Other lectures in the series will cover "The Law and Installment Buying," "Property Law" and "After You've Gone."

Purpose of the Law Forum series, Mrs. Cochran says, is "legal hygiene," or the prevention of legal disaster. "We hope to help families to know what situation requires a lawyer and to suggest to them how to handle everyday situations in which the services of a lawyer are not required."

CITY FATHERS WANT HELP

Got Name for New Aud Annex?

Got any ideas for a bright new name for the Municipal Auditorium Annex?

City officials are beginning to knit their brows on the subject—and have decided to seek help from the public.

Suggestions should be directed to the City Planning Commission, which has been asked by City Mgr. Sam E. Vickers to come up with a name for recommendation to the City Council. Civic groups along with individuals are invited to send in their choices.

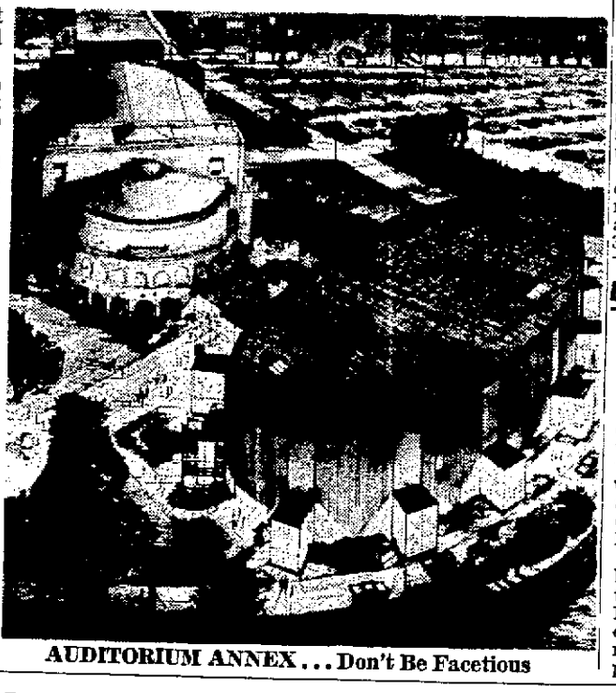

A couple of sample suggestions are already on hand at city hall. Asst. City Mgr. J. R. McHenry proposed "Palarena," a combination of Palladium and Arena. And Howard Jones, manager of the Convention and Visitors Bureau, offered "Aud-Arena."

Both acknowledged they were not too impressed with their own ideas."

Planners suggested that names be kept short—and no facetious suggestions, please. ("Sea Cow Palace" won't do!)

Final plans for the $3,700,000 building, prepared by Architect Kenneth Wing, are being reviewed in City Engineer Jess D. Gilkerson's office. They will be submitted to the Council early in April.

But the name doesn't have to be chosen that early. Construction of the ocean-front meeting place is expected to require 13 months.

Canada Populace Up

OTTAWA (AP)—Canada's population totaled 15,439,000 Jan. 1, the Bureau of Statistics estimates. This is a rise of 2.7 per cent from 15,035,000 on the corresponding date last year.

20 L.B. Ships Join Month-Long Exercise

Twenty Long Beach-based ships and an explosive demolition team are taking part in a month-long, joint Army-Navy training exercise which gets under way today.

A total of 50 Navy ships and 18,000 men are taking part in the exercise. It will be climaxed by an amphibious landing March 21 at Hunter-Liggett military reservation near King City.

Today ships of the Amphibious Force, Pacific Fleet, are loading 6,000 troops of the 38th Regimental Combat Team from Fort Lewis, Wash.

They are scheduled to arrive at Coronado March 18. On the following day naval units will stage a firing exercise off San Clemente Island.

Long Beach-based ships participating in the overall exercise are the heavy cruiser St. Paul, the LSMR 527 of Amphibious Squadron 7 and 18 Mine Force ships. These are the Shea, Dextrous, Red Start, Surfbird, Waxwing, Sybol, Murrelet, Impeccable, Cormorant, LST 799 and the MSBs 16, 30, 31, 32, 45, 52, 53 and 54.

The explosives team is from Explosive Ordnance Demolition Unit No. 1, a unit assigned to the Mine Force.

In addition, the Navy participation includes the aircraft carriers Philippine Sea and Badoeng Strait, eight San Diego-based destroyers, four submarines and 26 other Amphibious Force ships.

Vice Adm. W. K. Phillips, commander of the First Fleet, and Lt. Gen. W. G. Wyman, commanding general of the Sixth Army, are joint maneuver directors.

After the March 19 firing exercise the Navy ships will take the Army men, all from the 2nd Infantry Division, to San Simeon Bay. Rear Adm. A. E. Jarrell, commander of the Amphibious Training Comand, is amphibious task force commander.

Brig. Gen. W. E. Dunkelberg, assistant commander of the Sixth Infantry Division, Fort Ord, will lead the invasion force onto Hunter-Liggett military reservation.

Navy exercises during this phase will include advance intertype anti-submarine warfare training and air defense and mine warfare exercises.

The 30th Regimental Combat Team will be re-embarked March 30, returning to Fort Lewis by April 5.

Library Week Exhibit Opens

Observing California Library Week, beginning today, an exhibition of contemporary German handmade bookbindings has been installed in the art department lobby of the main library, where it will remain through March 27.

Sixty-six volumes are included in the show. Besides artistically created bindings in parchment, morocco and other customary leathers, there are distinctive paper-bound and plastic-bound books.

The exhibition has been on view in universities and public libraries in the United States. It will be sent from Long Beach to the University of Washington at Seattle, and then will be returned to Germany.

Crowd Flocks to Motorama

LOS ANGELES (UP)—General Motors opened the doors on its 1955 motorama at Pan-Pacific auditorium Saturday, and thousands of spectators took advantage of the free admission.

The 10-day spectacle will include displays of current automobile models, cars of the future, a kitchen of tomorrow and a 35-minute stage show.

EYE-OPENER?

Save Vision Week Opens

It may not come as an eye-opener to everybody but this week, in Long Beach as through the rest of California, will be Save Your Vision Week, according to an edict proclaimed by Gov Goodwin J. Knight.

In Long Beach the week will be sponsored by the local Optometric Association headed by Dr. Paul Wilkins. The group emphasizes the necessity of regular eye examinations to protect vision.

L.B. Gaining in Legislative Tide Oil Fight

By MALCOLM EPLEY

SACRAMENTO — End of the first week of the post-recess session of the Legislature finds Long Beach forces cautiously optimistic over prospects of turning back the attempted state seizure of the city's tidelands oil money.

Contributing to their growing confidence was evidence of an uprising among friends of the Feather River project against plans of the authors of the tidelands grab bill to hook it to the water development program. Fears were expressed that this would arouse antagonisms that would further divide sentiment over the water schemes, already a topic of controversial discussion here.

Sounding the keynote of the "oil and water don't mix" philosophy was Publisher Dan Beebe of the Oroville Mercury, whose home town is at the site of the proposed giant Feather River dam. His newspaper predicted editorially that opponents of the grab bill would form a bloc that would "endanger the great project."

Another newspaper editorial circulated here described the water program tie-in as a bludgeon to force Long Beach to give up its oil revenues.

Despite these developments, Assemblyman Bruce Allen (R-San Jose), author of AB 3762, the tidelands grab measure, said he intended to press for amendment of the bill to provide for use of the Long Beach oil money to finance the Feather River project and other water development programs.

As originally written, the bill

Vote Today on Contract at Douglas

Terms of a proposed new contract covering 17,000 workers at Douglas Aircraft Company's Long Beach division will be presented to union members at a mass meeting today at 4 p.m. in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

Agreement on the contract was announced jointly Saturday by the company and UAW-CIO Local 148.

Final agreement was reached in the office of Commissioner Harry Nalcom of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, the announcement said.

Details of the new contract, which also covers employes of the Tucson facilities, will be explained by John Allard, UAW aircraft department representative, and Alec Groulx, chairman of the union bargaining committee, preceding a ratification vote.

Tucson workers also will meet today to ratify the agreement. They are represented by UAW-CIO Local 1291.

Poulson Guarded

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Mayor Norris Poulson is under police guard again following a new threat against his life. An anonymous telephone caller Friday night told the operator of a local newspaper, "Mayor Poulson will be killed tonight."

S. Lakewood Voters Face Annex Issue

Voters in a 49-acre South Lakewood area will decide Thursday whether to annex to Long Beach.

A polling place will be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. at 7119 Peabody St. for the first of this year's series of annexation elections.

Pro-annexationists predicted a big affirmative majority. They pointed out that the petition for an election was signed by 146 registered voters. At the time the request was filed, Nov. 23, there were 209 registered voters in the area. The number since increased to 217. Latest population estimate is 692.

Boundaries of the increment—identified as No. 133 by the city—are Brittain St., Karen Ave. and Harco St. on the north, San Gabriel River on the east, a line midway between Peabody and Keynote Sts. on the south and Studebaker Rd. on the west.

Three other South Lakewood elections have already been scheduled by the City Council—for March 17, May 5 and May 19. Others are in prospect later in the year.

Puller Pulls Wrong Leg

MINEOLA, N. Y. (UP) — An auto repairman was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge for pulling a woman's leg.

The difficulty, police said, was that the woman was in bed with her husband at the time her leg was pulled.

The man who pulled her leg was not her husband, police said. He was a neighbor, Charles Kuhn, 28.

Mrs. Margie Slavomec, 30, and her husband, Fred, told police they met Kuhn and his wife at a bar owned by Slavomec at about 1 a.m. Saturday, and had a few drinks together.

They parted at about 3 a.m., the Slavomecs said, and went to their respective homes to retire.

At about 5 a.m., Mrs. Slavomec said, Kuhn entered her home through a window, crawled to her bedside, slipped his hand under the covers, grabbed her right leg and said, "Come on, honey, let's go."

Mrs. Slavomec said she screamed, turned on the light and there was Charlie Kuhn. Her husband threw him out and called police.

Kuhn, the father of four children, pleaded innocent and was paroled until March 15.

Miss Universe Conquered Brazil, Beauty's Weary Chaperone States

Mrs. Jean Solomon, 30-year-old housewife of 9241 Stanford Ave., Garden Grove, is back from an expense-paid trip to South America, and an exhausting trip it was, too.

Mrs. Solomon was chaperone for Miriam Stevenson, 22, winner of the Miss Universe contest last summer.

The curvaceous Greenwood, S. C., beauty made a three-week personal appearance tour through Brazil. It happens that the tour coincided with pre-Lenten festivities and the beginning of the contests to choose a Miss Brazil for 1955.

Mrs. Solomon said on her return here this week that Miriam must have given "50,000 autographs if she gave one" and, all in all, scored a big publicity coup for the Long Beach Miss Universe Pageant.

The Garden Grove housewife also was official chaperone here last summer for Miss Brazil, Maria Martha Rocha, 21, the runner-up.

Miss Universe, Miss Brazil and Mrs. Solomon had a delightful get-together in Rio de Janeiro. In fact, Miss Brazil appeared with Miss Stevenson before many crowds in Rio.

Mrs. Solomon said she encountered no difficulties being chaperone for Miriam, partly because Miriam is so charming and also because the Latins are used to chaperones. Nobody tried to circumvent the system.

Many of the personal appearances were at dances which attracted thousands in Rio and in Sao Paulo.

Latins are enthusiastic and so there was plenty of police protection for Miss Universe, according to Mrs. Solomon.

"The people loved Miriam deeply," said Mrs. Solomon, who speaks both Spanish and Portuguese. Miriam's southern drawl went over big even though the Brazilians couldn't understand it.

One of the big social events was a reception for Miss Universe at the American embassy in Rio. About 250 persons attended, including Dr. Herbert Moses, head of the Brazilian organization which will select the Miss Brazil contestant for 1955.

Since Latins are unpredictable at times, Mrs. Solomon noted that the daily schedule was generally "unscheduled, hectic, interesting and conducted on a moment to moment basis."

"Miss Universe's appearances were sponsored by Brazilian Film Distributors and Brazilian Air Lines.

Mrs. Solomon was selected as chaperone by Miss Universe pageant officials here.

Mrs. Solomon, whose husband stayed at home tending to his restaurant business, admitted the "beach in Rio is prettier than ours."

"This is summer down there and people swim day and evening. It stays warm all night," she said.

The two travelers departed from Miami and stopped in Trinidad and Venezuela on the way to Brazil.

At every stop they were met by reporters and photographers. Miss Universe was "page one" copy everywhere.

Mrs. Solomon reported that Miss Rocha is "doing well" in Brazil and plans to visit the United States this summer.

As for Miss Universe herself, Mrs. Solomon noted, she plans to graduate from Lander College in Greenwood, S. C.

Miriam's majoring in home economics, of course.

Contractors Due Check in Stock Boom

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate investigators asked the Defense Department Saturday for a list of its 100 top defense contractors to determine whether its procurement policies have contributed to the stock market boom.

Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) said his Senate banking committee wants to find out what effect defense business has had on the stocks of companies concerned. Financial data of the contractors will be analyzed.

The committee is making a "friendly" investigation of the surging market.

The request was sent to the Pentagon after Fulbright disclosed the committee is checking about 20 instances in which "tips and rumors" produced market fluctuations. The activity could have resulted in market killings for a few insiders.

DR. CHAN SAYS: NO LONGER MUST YOU SUFFER FROM High Blood Pressure — Eczema
Diabetes — Bad Heart — Asthma

928 American Ave.
Long Beach, Calif.

For the past two generations, the offices of Dr. Chan, D.C., located at 928 American Avenue, have had outstanding results in treating chronic ailments such as ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, ARTHRITIS, NEURITIS, RHEUMATISM, HIGH OR LOW BLOOD PRESSURE, HEART TROUBLE, STOMACH OR LIVER DISORDERS, KIDNEY OR BLADDER AILMENTS OR A GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION. Men and women from all walks of life come to take these treatments because other methods of healing have failed to help them. Many have spent a fortune in seeking cure before they try this simple, effective natural method of Dr. Chan. Our patients tell us that they wish they had known of our wonderful treatments sooner so that their suffering could have been avoided.

READ THESE AMAZING TESTIMONIALS!

Dear Mr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method." Signed, Mrs. Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "Five years ago I was badly stricken with neuritis in my shoulders and extremities. My hands and knees were so badly swollen that I could hardly use them. I wasn't able to raise my arms above the shoulders. I was told by several doctors that they have done all they could for me and that I no longer will be able to work again. Finally a friend referred me to try Dr. Chan's Herbal Therapy. After the first week I felt much improved and the fourth week found me walking much easier with the pains in my shoulders disappearing; my hands returned to normal and I had use of them once more. I cannot too highly recommend Dr. Chan to anyone who is ill." Signed, E. H. Irving.

Fighting Loose Talk Big Job in Tide Tilt

A GROUNDLESS implication that Long Beach is using tidelands oil money to make itself a taxless city has been added to the loose talk emanating from advocates of a scheme to seize the Long Beach money for a state water plan.

Assemblyman Bruce Allen (R.-San Jose) has been quoted in newspapers throughout the state in a United Press story as follows:

"It's a question of whether you want a big convention center, fancy restaurant and a city operating without taxes or if you want to solve the state's water problems and irrigate a million acres of dry land."

Allen is author of AB-3762, the bill to seize Long Beach's tidelands money. He and co-Author Francis Lindsay (R.-Loomis) have been challenged already on one statement about Long Beach—their claim that they couldn't find out what had happened to several million dollars of tideland oil money. Long Beach officials told them every cent is accounted for and to have a look at the books.

The clear implication in the UP quotation from Allen is that Long Beach is using or intends to use tidelands oil money for the ordinary costs of government, thus relieving its citizens from paying taxes. Such an assertion would be certain to touch off an unfavorable reaction among taxpaying citizens of other cities.

The Allen remark will be news in Long Beach, whose citizens dug up $5,700,000 in taxes last year and pay property levies on a rate of $1.28. (Some other rates: Pasadena $1.08, San Diego $1.76, Los Angeles $1.83, Glendale $1.10, Sacramento $2.04, South Gate $1.16.)

The Long Beach City Charter precludes use of tidelands oil money to pay the ordinary expenses of government. So do the provisions of the state tidelands grant. And it has long been accepted community policy that the oil money should be spent only on enduring capital projects.

The 1911 state tidelands grant gave the land to the city for certain purposes, notably harbor development. When oil was discovered, the Supreme Court held Long Beach could drill for it, but that oil income was covered by the same restrictions as the land. Thus oil money was used on the tidelands only for purposes permitted in the original grant and in later amendments by the Legislature.

In 1951, the Legislature unanimously approved a bill which relieved 50 per cent of the tidelands money from the grant restrictions. At the time the then Gov. Earl Warren signed the bill, he was assured by Long Beach representatives that the purpose was to use the released money for capital projects, rather than for general city expenses.

Thereafter, the people of Long Beach voted a charter amendment which specifically limits spending the released half of the tidelands money to construction and operation of capital improvements. Moreover, a vote of the people is required on each specific project.

When the 1951 Legislature Act, (AB 3400) was challenged in the courts, Long Beach held up all expenditures out of the released money pending settlement of the case. It is now before the Supreme Court.

So Long Beach has never used tidelands oil money off the tidelands, either to run the general city government or to construct major improvements.

This episode illustrates the difficulties facing Long Beach's representatives and friends in Sacramento. A catchy, but irresponsible statement is made, and can be properly answered only by a long legal dissertation. Thus one of this city's major tasks in this fight is to correct distorted impressions inspired by the opposition.

Senator Soaper Says---

Great Britain will detonate an atomic bomb in Australia near Woomera which, if you put in a couple more O's, is pretty much the noise that an atomic bomb makes when it goes off.

An expert in such matters predicts passenger-carrying rockets traveling at 13,000 miles an hour. It will be expensive, but the airlines will be able to save quite a bit on coat hooks, of course, since there won't be time, even on trans-Atlantic flights, to hang up the coat and hat.

The American coed who went to see the Prince of Monaco says he told her that his chaplain, Father Tucker, had informed him Notre Dame had the best football team in America. She replied, "second only to Illinois," and "we both laughed." Father Tucker, no doubt, was falling on the floor.

While everyone is talking about the necessity for dispersal as a Civil Defense move, no thought is given to the fact that one bomb on Florida in the springtime could wipe out baseball.

Fellow at the next desk says some of these "dream cars" look like the kind of thing that chases him in his dreams.

Several congressmen have announced they personally have plenty of dough, but would like for their colleagues to have raises. Tired of always picking up the luncheon checks, eh?

Washington, which has long been stumped by the fact that Communists don't display a "spy" sign on their hats, is even further bewildered by the way some witnesses have failed to wear an armband reading "liar" while lying.

Marilyn Monroe is going to ride a pink elephant in a circus, and Cousin Fuseloyle isn't going. As he says, what will there be that's new for him to see?

Malenkov gets such a bad press in Moscow that it's doubtful if he could get a favorable word in Pravda even if he wrote it himself and signed it "mother of four."

Ike Doesn't Want to Run Again

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower really doesn't want to be renominated in 1956. There's nothing artful or deceptive about his reluctance. It is genuine.

For many months, however, his closest friends and the members of his official family and the political leaders of the Republican party have been talking to him about their hopes that he would consent to renomination. They take it for granted that he will finally accede to their wishes.

IKE

But the position of Mr. Eisenhower as outlined in his latest press conference is revealing. He was asked how he felt about the view of Republican leaders that he was indispensable to a party victory. The reply by the President was as follows:

"Did you ever think what a fate civilization would suffer if there was such a thing as an indispensable man? When he went the way of all flesh, what would happen? It would be a calamity, wouldn't it? I don't think we need fear that."

Now Mr. Eisenhower is absolutely logical about it, but he overlooked one important fact—namely, as long as there is an "indispensable man" around, he will be kept in high office. It doesn't always matter, either, whether he is in full physical vigor or beyond 65 years of age, as witness the fact that Winston Churchill at 80 is still the most popular and politically the strongest leader the Conservative party in Britain can get at the moment to keep the Labor party out of power.

The words "indispensable man" have a familiar ring to some of us who covered the three-cornered Presidential campaign of 1912. It was Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic nominee, who was using the phrase then against Theodore Roosevelt. The latter had served two terms in the Presidency — one when as Vice President he succeeded McKinley in 1901 after the assassination of McKinley, and the other after his own election in 1904. But nevertheless Mr. Roosevelt was being called a "third termer" in the 1912 campaign and was being offered as an "indispensable man" by the "progressive" faction of the Republican party as against the regular nominee, President Taft. Here is what Mr. Wilson said about it in his formal speech accepting the Democratic nomination in August, 1912:

"A Presidential campaign may easily degenerate into a mere personal contest and so lose its real dignity and significance. There is no indispensable man. The government will not collapse and go to pieces if any one of the gentlemen who are seeking to be entrusted with its guidance should be left at home. But men are instruments. We are as important as the cause we represent, and in order to be important must really represent a cause."

Mr. Eisenhower can agree with that argument and find himself accepting the nomination of his own party in 1956. For the President today does represent a great cause—the nation's mandate that he find the way to an honorable peace.

Mr. Eisenhower probably is convinced at the moment that, if his party had to turn elsewhere, it could find a good man who would make an effective campaign based on the Republican record. But this is something to which the party leaders cannot turn their minds as long as Dwight Eisenhower doesn't say the fateful words—that he would not accept if nominated.

Those are words which, on the other hand, Mr. Eisenhower is never likely to say. They run counter to his high sense of duty. As a military man, he has been accustomed to receiving assignments not geared to his personal convenience or desire. He has learned to recognize instantly a call to duty. He, to be sure, had achieved eminence as the Commander-in-Chief of Allied Forces in Europe in the biggest war in history, and he had made a great record. He needed no more honors.

Gen. Eisenhower made it clear in 1948 and in 1951 that he didn't want a political career. But he succumbed eventually to the argument that it was his duty to serve if the people so desired. And when the people of the country—not just the Republican leaders—say he is needed at the helm in perhaps one of the most dangerous periods in all history, it seems certain that Mr. Eisenhower will put aside his desire for a private life in retirement and continue to serve in the Presidency.

Has Kremlin Lost Grip on China Reds?

WASHINGTON—It has been ignored in the Congressional hoopla over pay raises and tax cuts, but the nation's rubber tycoons are quietly waiting for another type of windfall from Uncle Sam—all wrapped up and ready for delivery in exactly 21 days.

The prize is 11 synthetic rubber plants, built by the government at tremendous expense during World War II, but now about to be sold for a song.

For some time the rubber companies have cast a covetous eye on these profitable plants owned by the taxpayers. But now they won't have to wait much longer—due to a quirk of law and the anxiety of the Eisenhower administration to "get the government out of business."

In exactly three weeks—on March 27—the synthetic plants will be sold at bargain prices to a group of private companies unless Congress intervenes to stop the transaction in the next 21 days. Strangest aspect of the deal is that a great majority of Senators and Representatives, busily occupied with the tax and pay-raise battles, are completely unaware of what is going on.

PEARSON

However, here are the facts:

The Rubber Producing Facilities Disposal Commission, appointed by President Eisenhower to sell the government's synthetic rubber plants, sent a letter to Congress on Jan. 27 outlining the bill of sale to Firestone, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber Co. (subsidiary of General Motors), Goodrich, Shell Oil, Phillips Petroleum, and others.

PROFITS FOR USA

Under the law, the deal goes through 50 days later, or on March 27, unless either house of Congress adopts a disapproving resolution before the deadline. The proposed sale price for the 11 synthetic plants—about $260,000,000—is far out of line with either their original cost or their current worth.

These factories made a profit of $73,000,000 for Uncle Sam a year ago. And with the Communists now in virtual control of Indochina and inching rapidly down toward the vital rubber areas of Southern Asia, many military men feel this is no time for the government to abandon its rubber factories.

Incidentally, not one single small business concern is among the preferred purchasers selected by the rubber producing facilities disposal commission to take over these plants. Besides the big rubber companies, the list includes Sears, Roebuck, Texas Oil, Armstrong Rubber, Anaconda Copper, Endicott Johnson and the American subsidiary of Dunlop Tires, Ltd., of Great Britain.

NOTE — Congressman Sid Yates of Illinois, a member of the House Small Business Committee, is making last-minute moves to stop the sale.

BEHIND THE CURTAIN—

The Swedish government, which has an embassy in Peiping, believes Russia has lost nearly all control over Red China's policies. Dictator Mao Tse-tung, an old-line Communist revolutionary, is even reported to view the new Russian government headed by Marshal Bulganin as something of a joke.

The Swedes have come to the conclusion that a behind-the-scenes crisis over Russian-Chinese relations was a tremendous factor in the dramatic purge of Malenkov. They believe this split is now so bad that the Russians will take extraordinary measures to solve it.

Watch out, therefore, for another personal visit by Nikita Khrushchev to Peiping to talk with Mao Tse-tung. Furthermore, regardless of the tremendous shortage of goods in Russia, it's likely that Khrushchev will promise large quantities of arms and machinery to Red China.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Irvin Rankin, Baltimore, addressed a letter as follows: "Mr. 83-85 Per Cent Accurate Predictions, USA." That was all there was on the envelope, but it reached yours truly in Washington, D. C. . . . Astute Belgian Ambassador Count Robert Silvercruys is the brother of Suzanne Silvercruys Stevenson, who founded the Pro-McCarthy Minute Women. The ambasador isn't happy about his sister's activities but can't do much to stop her. After all, it's a free country. . . . Ex-Senator Benton of Connecticut told the Harvard Law School the other day that something ought to be done to give recognition to the "Congressman who knocks himself out trying to master tax measures, appropriation bills, tariff problems, water resources, etc., only to find his lazy colleague grabbing the headlines by ranting about communism."

Driver's Duty

TO THE EDITOR:

Let's put some common sense before the dollar sign! With reference to auto insurance and Mr. Marshall's letter—he seems to think he is protecting the rights and property of others by buying insurance. The best way I know for protecting others rights and property on the highway is to put responsible drivers behind the wheel instead of a dollar sign. The dollar responsibility does not take effect until after the damage is done.

Not until each and every driver develops a "willingness to accept the responsibility to avoid collision" with another, will there be any improvement in the present situation. A driver's primary duty and responsibility towards others on the road is to keep from colliding with them. I don't believe a liability and property damage policy was ever intended to be a driver's "certificate of responsible driver." At best, it can only take effect after a driver has failed in his primary duty.

Today with the heavy traffic flow, the right of way becomes quite debatable and should not precede the primary duty and responsibility of every driver, mainly, to prevent collision at all times regardless of who is right or wrong according to law.

Brotherhood

TO THE EDITOR:

The week after Brotherhood Week reminds me of the night after Christmas. The pretty phrases are tucked away for use a year later. The flowery, warm-blooded speeches extolling the brotherhood of all men are carefully wrapped and lovingly packed out of sight lest some fool start to ask what happens to brotherhood the remaining 51 weeks of the year.

A very simple demonstration of brotherhood would be the appearance of even a few signs, or ads, proclaiming that property for sale or rent will be sold, or rented, to any American citizen able to pay. Another very simple but concrete demonstration by those who lament, "But what can I do?" would be evidence that people were being hired for jobs in Long Beach on the basis of their ability alone, and not on the basis of the color of their skin.

Questions

TO THE EDITOR:

Why it is that the gentlemen in Washington want pay hikes and then want an investigation of the disabled veteran because he may be getting too much money at around $150?

Why was it such a blunder because the Democrats wanted to stop communism in Korea, but it is the right thing for the Republicans to want to stop it on Formosa?

Why did some local people think it was wrong for the U. S. to claim tideland ownership and said the states should have claim to such, but now say it is wrong when the state puts in a claim for tideland oil?

Why is it the Republicans always shout too many taxes, but call it stupid when the Democrats put up a bill to reduce the small man's tax bill, but never say stupid when the big corporation's tax bills are reduced?

Bus Woes

TO THE EDITOR:

I read an article in your paper about the woes of the bus transportation system.

The bus system is not public but a private enterprise. Any other private enterprise has to give value and keep up with its competitors. Not so the public transportation system. It is a monopoly and is growing stagnant.

The company shouldn't have any gripe about losing business when it isn't trying to keep the business it has.

I think someone should study the public transportation problem, diagnose its ills, then do something about it. It's hard to compete with the pleasure most people get out of driving a nice car. Most cars on the street have only one person in them.

A transportation company has only one thing to sell, and that is service, good service. A person would soon stop trading at a store whose woes were always brought forward. The company cannot succeed when it asks to curtail service because of losing revenue, then turns around and asks an increase fare on a service that is not there.

My proposals: a courtesy program, an extension rather than curtailment of service, publicity and promotion, better public relations.

You can't ask the public to patronize something that isn't worth patronizing.

Civil Defense Proposal Is Truly a 'Pipe Dream'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Val Peterson, Civil Defense boss, seems to be having new ideas all the time on how people can escape the radioactive fall-out of a hydrogen bomb.

MARLOW

Here are some of them:

Last July he said the government was planning a device that could sound an advance warning in each home in the target area, something that could be installed in a bedroom set off by a change in the electric current.

On Feb. 20 he expressed the thought the problem of radioactivity could be licked if every person was willing to build shelters in the back yard, like a simple cyclone shelter for $180 or a concrete one for perhaps $1,000.

Last week he offered three brand new ideas to a Senate Armed Services Subcommittee which is holding a series of hearings on civil defense problems:

Evacuees could hide in miles of concrete pipe—four feet in diameter and covered with three feet of dirt—built along the highways.

Or—machines could run along the highways digging beside them miles of trenches two feet wide and six feet deep for persons fleeing the blast area.

Or—a series of concrete buildings could be set up as shelters along the highways.

While Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass), a committee member, didn't say Peterson was having pipe dreams, he did express distaste for the thought of people lying end to end in pipes and called the trench plan "unrealistic."

One of Peterson's greatest handicaps is lack of enough public interest in civil defense. It was an interest which probably perked up in mid-February when the Atomic Energy Commission issued its now famous report.

It said the deadly radioactive fall-out from a hydrogen bomb like the one exploded in the Pacific last year could contaminate an area of roughly 7,000 square miles, or about the size of New Jersey.

But people may have relaxed again last week when Sir Winston Churchill said the Soviet Union could not match this country in H-bombs for three or four years, spoke of present American superiority, and warned the Russians not to try tricks.

Peterson apparently gives up on people who happen to be where an H-bomb hits. His advice is "not to be there." His task is to get people out of a target area before the bomb arrives, if there's enough warning, or into shelters from the radioactive fall-out.

There is no doubt the country's civil defense is not prepared for an all-out H-bomb attack now. On Jan. 28 Peterson said most cities would have one-hour warning, some might not have any and it would be at least two years before most cities would have four to six hours to brace for an attack and clear out their people.

Some Democrats in Congress have been critical of the administration's Civil Defense program. And Defense Mobilizer Arthur S. Flemming, speaking for the administration, has suggested creation of a special group like the Hoover Commission to study all aspects of civil defense.

Democrats Short on Real Issues

In looking for what Stewart Alsop calls a "gut issue," the Democrats seem to have decided—as pointed out here last Sunday—that their best bet for '56 is to label the Republicans as the party of the rich while they protect the "little guy."

This battle plan is about as original as a Dior copy but it has a familiar look, is extremely durable and the Democrats have grown fond of it.

KNIGHT

In Miami last Wednesday night, Democratic Chairman Paul Butler and Senator George A. Smathers (D.-Fla.) blistered the Republicans for failing to approve the $20 cut in income taxes.

According to Butler and Smathers, who are real nice guys but a little short on economics, the $20 cut is needed to give our economy "a shot in the arm."

I guess we haven't been reading the same financial pages. Somehow, I had the impression that people were buying millions of new autobiles; that the housing boom is still on and that 1955 may be our top year.

While there has been a gradual rise in unemployment, it is also true that more people are holding jobs than before. The population has increased by 5½ million since Eisenhower took office and 750,000 new job-seekers are coming on the market every year.

INFLATIONARY

No one doubts the desirability of increasing the individual's purchasing power. The question is whether the $20 "shot in the arm" approach sponsored by the Democrats is sound public policy at this time.

Its effect would be inflationary. Four million persons would be removed from the federal tax rolls. The government's deficit would jump sharply. Less money becomes available for defense.

The Democrats know all this. Two of their soundest leaders, Sens. Harry Byrd (D.-Va.) and Walter George (D.-Ga.) voted against the $20 tax cut in committee.

In his Miami speech, Chairman Butler assailed the Eisenhower administration as falsely "hiding behind a mask of sanctity, piety and world peace."

He also predicted a smashing Democratic victory in 1956.

Mr. Butler could be right, but barring war or depression, the Democrats will have to find a better "gut issue" than portraying the Republicans as oppressors of the poor.

The shrewdest Democrats I know privately agree that the people still like Ike.

RANDOM NOTES

President Eisenhower told his press conference that he is glad the Republican convention is to be held in San Francisco instead of Chicago. . . . Ike, it seems, prefers San Francisco climate . . . no editorial criticism to keep him hot and bothered.

Ninety-two per cent of the firms replying to Mill & Factory's survey of the practibility of a guaranteed annual wage replied they could guarantee no specific annual wage to workers. . . . Reasons given included fluctuating markets, seasonal sales and varying prices.

Wire-tapping was widely practiced during World War II. . . . The suspicion is held that some of these wartime phone taps still exist in Washington. . . . A number of government officials are reluctant to discuss anything of a confidential nature over the telephone. . . . Wiretapping is an evil practice which has no place in a free society.

would take all of the Long Beach tidelands oil money "not now state general fund. Assemblyman Francis Lindsay (R-Loomis), co-author of the bill, has been chief spokesman for the water program financing idea.

SEE PUBLIC OPINION

Allen and Lindsay reiterated at week's end their opinion that public sentiment would swing behind their plan.

They said the big advantage would be that use of the Long Beach money would make possible financing the $1,500,000,000 water program without issuing interest bearing bonds. They estimate the Long Beach tidelands oil will yield at least that much over the long period required to complete the project.

There are sharp differences of opinion here and over the state about the various water development proposals as well as over the legal and moral propriety of the scheme to seize the funds of Long Beach to pay for a statewide water program or for any other state purpose.

Assemblymen W. S. Grant and Herbert R. Klocksiem of Long Beach said they felt good progress has been made in the last week in informing legislators about the Long Beach tidelands oil situation.

"More and more people here are learning of the dangers and improprieties of this proposal," Grant said. "We must guard against overconfidence but I can say definitely we are making headway. It has been a little stormy but there are signs of clearing weather ahead."

Klocksiem agreed. He said: "We know our side is the right side. It will prevail."

TITLE TRANSFERRED

Assemblymen Allen and Lindsay contend the tidelands money at Long Beach, over and above what is spent on harbor development, belongs to the state because the land is held in trust by the city for harbor purposes. Long Beach spokesmen and their friends challenge this theory, asserting the state transferred firm title to Long Beach. They add that passage of the seizure bill would lead to new litigation and that no money would be available to the state for a long time, if ever.

Some other arguments advanced against the bill during the week:

1. It is improper because pertinent questions are involved in the Mallon-Swart case now before the Supreme Court. (The court may rule on the title question.)

2. Passage of the bill would jeopardize every grant made by the state since 1850.

3. The proposed seizure is a breach of good faith, and is particularly deplorable in view of Long Beach's leadership in the successful fight to prevent the federal government from seizing the state's tidelands.

4. Long Beach has developed a harbor and other facilities in accordance with the terms of the grant and has withheld expenditures during periods of litigation.

5. The Allen bill is unrealistic in that it completely ignores the necessities of maintaining, operating, expanding, repairing and protecting the harbor facilities at Long Beach.

The Allen bill went unmentioned at the first meeting of the committee on conservation, planning and public works, to which it has been assigned. Assemblyman Lindsay is chairman of that committee and Allen is a member. They said it will be some time before their amendment to tie the Allen bill to the water program is presented.

LEGAL OPINION ASKED

At his two press conferences during the week, Gov. Knight was asked if he would comment on the attempted grab. He declined to do so, except to say the issues were before the courts and before the Legislature.

Awaited with interest is an attorney general's opinion on the Allen bill questions. Allen said he had asked for such an opinion. The legislative counsel also is studying the bill's legal angles.

Meanwhile, various official and unofficial groups were rallying to Long Beach's support. Action opposing the seizure was taken by the Los Angeles City Council, the San Diego Harbor Board and the southern section of the League of California cities, among others.

Northrop Aircraft, of Hawthorne, was second with .75 and North American third with .79.

Big Year for Busy Little Man

John Seabern is a 14-year-old artist who SELLS his paintings.

John, who has painted since he was 5, and has sold pictures since he was 8, now has 15 commissions for paintings, which he hopes to get done this year.

The lad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Seabern, 89 Rivo Alto Canal, and grandson of Arthur Beaumont, celebrated marine painter, recently had a one-man show at the Catholic Woman's clubhouse, Los Angeles. He sold seven paintings from that show.

HE PAINTS along with adults at the class taught by Beaumont, whom he calls "Pop," every Wednesday night at the Municipal Art Center, and he goes along with the class of physicians and surgeons Beaumont takes painting every Sunday morning in the harbor.

John and Pop were painting a yacht—they were painting pictures of the yacht—one time when John was 8 years old. The young fellow who owned the yacht offered to buy John's picture.

Pop said it would be ok for him sell it.

How much did he want for it?

"Make up your mind," prompted Pop. "A dollar . . . five dollars . . . five hundred dollars. Whatever you want, speak up."

"A dollar," said John.

* * * *

THE YACHT OWNER handed him $2. "One dollar," he said, "is for the painting, the other dollar is for your signature on it."

That was John's lowest price. His prices have ranged upward to $25.

By Pop's rule, John can spend half of everything he makes on his paintings. The other half has to go into his educational fund.

Humphrey Calls for Demo Political Revival in California to Offset GOP Convention

(Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON — A top Democratic leader, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, wants his party to stage a giant political revival in California next year to counter the Republican National Convention in San Francisco.

Humphrey, just back from a round of speechmaking in San Francisco and Los Angeles, will outline his West Coast Democratic conference idea shortly in a letter to Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler of Indiana.

The tremendous economic and political importance of California, in Humphrey's opinion, makes the golden State a prize worthy of supreme effort.

MORE THAN CLIMATE

In an exclusive interview, the Minnesotan told the Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau.

"Democrats must face the fact that the Republicans did not choose to hold their nominating convention in San Francisco just because of the fine climate and the generous hospitality of those fine people. California is one of the most important states in the union both politically and economically."

At the moment Democrats hold only 11 of the state's 30 seats in the House of Representatives and neither of the two Senate posts. The state administration is Republican with one exception, Atty. Gen. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

Paradoxically, voter registration in California is predominately democratic.

"It's a major challenge," Humphrey observed, "both to the national committee and the party leadership in the state."

Humphrey would have the national committee act to strengthen party leadership in California by sponsoring a major political conference there in the early summer months just preceding the GOP national convention.

WANTS TOP MEN

"The national committee," says Humphrey, "should plan and carry out a conference which would have as its objective the bringing to California voices and personalities of national stature.

"It (the conference) should bring together all the forces in California and other western states to outline and study issues of major importance to that part of the country."

By "personalities of national stature," Humphrey said he meant men such as Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic Party's titular head, Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, whose state has many problems common to the California pattern of a mixed industrial and agricultural economy, House Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson, both of Texas.

Humphrey said he would be glad to attend "and join in the deliberations" of such a conference.

California, Humphrey believes, is an excellent example of the American trend toward suburban living—and of the problem this poses for the practicing politician.

"If you want to win," the Minnesotan asserted, "you've got to go into the suburbs and work. California is almost all suburbs, especially the area from San Francisco to San Jose." He might well have included most of metropolitan Los Angeles County, too.

One California Democrat who doesn't believe the GOP convention in San Francisco will necessarily affect Democratic political fortunes in his state is Rep. James Roosevelt of Los Angeles.

Roosevelt, a former state chairman of his party, recalled instances where both the Democrats and Republicans lost the state in which they held their conventions.

Bellwood Hospital Heads Order Addition

BELLFLOWER—Directors of Bellwood General Hospital have given signal for immediate construction of a quarter million dollar addition to the institution scheduled to open in early spring, Eugene De Koven, administrator, announced.

Bids for the 41-bed wing will be sought just as soon as plans, now with the State Department of Health, Bureau of Hospitals in San Francisco, are approved, De Koven said.

The new section will add 10,000 square feet of floor space to the 18,000 initial unit and increase bed capacity to 80.

It will include a 1,200 square foot auditorium to be used for Red Cross pre-natal and home nursing courses as well as a doctors' conference room.

Facilities included in the unit now under construction and nearing the completion stage are two major surgeries, one emergency room, clinical and pathological laboratories, radiology department, delivery room and nursery with outside viewing for visitors.

The new plans call for construction of private, semi-private rooms for 40 additional beds. Ultra-modern accommodations offered through streamlined facilities being installed in the initial units will be carried out in the new wing.

Each bed in the hospital will be equipped with pillow radio and the institution's communication system will enable each patient to communicate with a central nursing station.

St. Vincent Wins 'Blanket Finish' Thriller

LONGDEN TEAM SCORES IN SAN JUAN

Alberta Ranches' St. Vincent (outside), ridden by Johnny Longden and trained by his son Vance, beats Determine, Ray York up, to the wire to capture the $100,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap over Santa Anita's Camino Real turf course Saturday. Gigantic, with Roy Lumm in the saddle, was third.

Beats Record by 5 Seconds

SANTA ANITA PARK — The best things usually are saved for last and that certainly proved true of Santa Anita's stakes program here Saturday when the meeting was brought to a thunderous climax as St. Vincent outcharged Determine and Gigantic to the wire in a sensational "blanket finish" to capture the $100,000-added San Juan Capistrano Handicap before 58,000 wild-eyed fans.

It was one of the greatest stakes races in the history of Santa Anita and can be compared favorably in excitement with the spectacular Noor-Citation duel in the same stake in 1950.

St. Vincent, ridden by Johnny Longden, who scored his ninth stakes win of the season, smashed the track record for the Camino Real grass course by five and two-fifths seconds in covering the approximate mile and three-quarters in 2:46 4/5.

St. Vincent's winning margin was a half-length while Determine finished another half-length in front of the third-place Gigantic.

Alidon was fourth another three and one-quarter lengths to the rear. Then, strung out several lengths behind, came Great Captain, Rejected, Ole Travis, Nearque II, Salmon Peter, Impulsivo, Poona II, The Driller and Arctic Way.

POONA 11TH

Poona II, winner of last week's $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, finished a miserable 11th some 21½ lengths behind the winner.

Poona went out on the pace with Determine, but when Gigantic moved into the picture and challenged for the lead at the head of the backstretch, he and Determine ran the Big 'Cap victor right into the ground. Poona finally chucked it as they started around the final turn.

Poona beat only the cheap plater, The Driller, and Arctic Way, the Irish horse which was flown 6,000 miles from Eire earlier in the week to take a crack at the rich stakes on the turf.

Willie Shoemaker, who rode Poona, said he had "no excuses. He was just loping during the first part of the race, but when Gigantic moved up and I tried to go with him, Poona just didn't have it."

Arctic Way, incidentally, was well placed for a fleeting few seconds in the early going as they raced down the hill, but began dropping back as the field crossed the main track and headed into the infield.

He finally finished 46 lengths behind St. Vincent.

Rejected, forced to come from far back as usual, did not have his usual potent lick in the stretch when the chips were down. It was obvious with still a half-mile to go that he'd never be able to make it. He was second in last year's Capistrano.

TREMENDOUS RACE

It was a tremendous horse race from start to finish . . . the kind true racing fans dream about. It certainly was much more thrilling than last week's Big 'Cap, which Poona captured by 2½ lengths.

Determine and Poona went to the front at the start pressed by Ole Travis and Alidon.

And the manner in which they took command forewarned observers that it was going to be a great race.

They set a blistering pace that stopped the watches at 22 seconds for the quarter, a blazing 45 4/5 for the half, 1:10 for three-quarters, 1:35 2/5 for the mile, 2:00 1/5 for the mile and a quarter and Determine and Gigantic went on to hit the mile and one-half in 2:25 4/5.

Determine and Poona quickly shook off Alidon and Ole Travis as they pressed their "personal battle" for the lead as the field swept down the hill and across the main track into the infield.

They pulled two lengths out in front as they pounded past the stands for the first time with Gigantic moving into position from which to launch a challenge . . . and St. Vincent beginning to roll from his early eighth-place position back in the pack.

Gigantic, winner of the San Antonio Handicap at box-car odds but a mild disappointment in the Big 'Cap a week ago, suddenly made a bold move as the field thundered around the clubhouse turn and headed into the backstretch.

He came up on the outside to challenge Determine and Poona for the lead and the three of them roared down the backstretch in a furious scramble that was destined to leave Poona a badly-beaten colt.

Poona galloped into the backstretch holding the lead by a nose, lost it momentarily to Determine, regained it for a fleeting few seconds, then lost it again to Determine.

Suddenly Gigantic loomed up on the outside to stick his nose in front. The lead continued to see-saw back and forth with every stride and never more than a few inches separated the three of them in their all-out charge down the backside.

CLOSING IN

As they charged pell-mell down the backside at their strength-sapping pace, Longden was closing in with St. Vincent.

Coming down the inside route along the rail, he zipped by Great Captain and then Nearque II and finally pulled up alongside Alidon just behind the leaders approaching the far turn. That's where he ran into a blind switch.

He got between the stubborn Alidon and the tiring Poona and was forced to steady St. Vincent for several strides until almost halfway around the turn before being able to get by Alidon and work himself to the outside and into the clear.

Poona, of course, was through when they hit the far turn and faded out of the picture quickly . . . but Determine and Gigantic kept up their running battle almost to the end.

First Determine would pull ahead by a nose, then Gigantic would come on again.

That's the way they fought it out down to mid-stretch when Determine finally pulled ahead of Gigantic for the last time even though the latter was a factor right up to the wire.

IN HIGH GEAR

Longden had St. Vincent rolling in high gear at the top of the stretch and the English-bred flyer who loves the grass course came bearing down on the leaders with his not-to-be-denied victory charge.

First he pulled even with Gigantic, then moved on to nail Determine with less than 100 yards to go.

The two of them, with Gigantic hanging on in between them just a neck back, ran head and head for four . . . five . . . six strides before Longden, slashing away with his whip to get the last ounce of energy out of his mount, drove St. Vincent into the lead and then pulled out to his half-length margin in the final five jumps.

Longden admitted that "I was in a switch on the backside. I couldn't go anywhere—just had to sit there a while. But St. Vincent is a game little horse and he really went to running when we got loose."

Ray York, who has been constantly amazed at the tremendous efforts turned in by the tiny Determine, thought the Andy Crevolin standardbearer, the highweight in the race with 126 pounds, registered one of his finest performances . . . despite the fact it was the first time he ever has run on grass.

"I don't know how he does it," York said admiringly. "He sure is a rough little rascal to beat, though. I had a good hold on him most of the way, but when Gigantic came up and went by us I had to let him go . . . and he never stopped. I thought we were going to make it for awhile."

Roy Lumm said Gigantic ran the gamest race of any horse he's ever ridden. "He stumbled leaving the gate, was pretty

Santee-4:10.4; Richards-15-4

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Wes Santee, the cocky Kansan who runs some of his best races when his competition is weakest, wound up Madison Square Garden's indoor track season Saturday night with a 40-yard victory in the Columbia Mile before 10,000 quiet spectators.

Santee, America's fastest outdoor miler, was clocked in a lazy 4:10.4 as he won with ease.

Santee took charge with six laps to go and gradually increased his margin the rest of the way.

Joe LaPierre of Baltimore was closest to the Kansan at the finish. Lowell Zellers of Indiana was third and Lewis Olive of Army completed the small field of four. There was so little competition for Santee that the crowd never raised a cheer throughout the running of the event.

Santee had run between 4:09.6 and 4:03.7 outdoors against poor competition five times. But Saturday he never came close to the indoor mark of 4:03.6, which Denmark's Gunnar Nielsen set last month.

Santee hit the quarter-mile mark in 65.9 seconds, the half in 2:07.5 and the three-quarters in 3:08.0.

Joe Gaffney, former Villanova star, pulled the evening's biggest upset when he defeated defending champion Mal Whitfield of Los Angeles by one yard in the KC 600. Reggie Pearman was third and Charles Jenkins, the Villanova sophomore star, fourth.

Gaffney took the lead at the start and never was headed as he won in 1:12.1. Whitfield came out of the hospital three days ago following a bout with the flu.

Bob Richards, of Long Beach, Calif., world's top pole vaulter, set a new meet and Garden record by clearing 15 feet, 4½ inches.

Richards, who had to withdraw from the event last year when he pulled a tendon warming up, scored his eighth straight victory of the season. He won with ease as he cleared 15 feet for the 69th and 70th times in his career.

Jerry Welbourn of Columbus, O., finished second by clearing 14 feet, 10 inches. Don Bragg of Villanova and Don Laz of Champaign, Ill., tied for third at 14 feet, six inches.

Harrison Dillard won the 60-yard high hurdles for the seventh time, beating Joel Shankle of Duke by two yards. Time was 7.2.

Ron Delaney, the Irish champion who is a freshman at Villanova, came from behind in the final lap and defeated Tom Courtney of Fordham by one yard in the 1,000-yard run. Delaney was timed in 2:10.1.

Art Bragg of Baltimore won the 60-yard dash in 6.3 seconds.

DE VICENZO, HOLGUIN TIED IN MEXICO TEE

MEXICO CITY (U.P.)—Robert De Vicenzo of Argentina, firing a five-under-par 31 on the front nine, carded a 67 Saturday in the $5,000 Mexican Open to tie Tony Holguin of Midlothian, Ill., after 54 holes.

Holguin, who held a two-stroke lead going into Saturday's round, shot a 69. Each has a total of 207.

The Argentine star made an eagle-3 on the 503-yard fifth hole.

Four strokes behind the leaders came Ernie Vossler of Ft. Worth, Tex. Vossler shot a 69 Saturday.

Beavers Explode in Second Half

CORVALLIS, Ore. (U.P.)—Oregon State came from behind in the second half to defeat UCLA for the second consecutive time and win the Pacific Coast Conference basketball championship Saturday night, 83-64. The win sends Oregon State into the Western regional NCAA basketball playoffs here next week end.

Once again it was 7-foot 3-inch Wade (Swede) Halbrook, Oregon State center, who broke open the game. He scored 25 points before going out on fouls late in the game after Oregon State was safely ahead.

In the slow starting first half, UCLA took a 5-0 lead before Oregon State's Tony Vlastelica dropped in the first Beaver basket.

Oregon State moved up, but the Uclans went ahead seven points, 13-6, on a lay-in by forward Ron Bane. With some hot shooting, the Bruins piled up nine point leads a total of four times in the first half.

Toward the end of the frame, the Beavers put on a spurt that put them to within two points of the Bruins and giant Wade (Swede) Halbrook tied it at 33 all. Both teams fought hard for the wire and the half ended with a 36-35 edge for the Bruins.

STATERS NAB LEAD

UCLA was still hot starting the second half, but Oregon State put on a tremendous shooting show and moved ahead for the first time 49-47 when Reggie Halligan sank a 20-footer.

That was the turning point. From there on out there was no stopping the Beavers. They went into a semi-stall with about nine minutes left.

Halbrook fouled out with two minutes left and saw but 25 seconds of play in the final 10 minutes.

Tex Whiteman of Oregon State sank two free throws in the last five seconds to wind up the playoffs. Friday night the Beavers downed UCLA, 82-75.

Once again the Staters played a fast-moving game and showed a surprising offense, instead of their usual emphasis on defense. Defense wasn't lacking, though, and the Uclans were pressed on their shots. Oregon State scored 48 points in the second half.

UCLA had a poor night from the floor, hitting only 18 baskets in 65 attempts for a 27.7 percentage. Oregon State was much hotter, getting 29 baskets in 61 shots for a 47.5 percentage.

Morrie Taft, who sank nine straight free throws without a miss, was the second high Bruin scorer with 15. Center Willie Naulls was high man with 17. Johnny Moore also had 15 for UCLA.

FREE THROWS HELP

Free throws kept UCLA ahead in the first half, for the team got only nine field goals to Oregon State's 16 in that period, but the Californians made 18 out of 21 free throws while OSC made only 3 of 10.

Whiteman was Oregon State's runnerup point maker with 19.

Oregon State Coach Slats Gill credited good rebounding for the team's showing and said, "These were two of our greatest nights. It was a great UCLA team we beat."

Johnny Wooden, UCLA coach, said his team played about as well in the first half as any time this season, but not in the second half and "therein lies the tale."

Halbrook led the winners in rebounding with 20, and his team snared a total of 50, to 31 for UCLA.

Oregon State will meet the winner of the Seattle University-Idaho State game here next Friday in the NCAA Western regional playoff.

Furgol Leads Barber, Clark By 1 Stroke at Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE, La. (U.P.)—Marty Furgol, who has won only two major tournaments in eight years, pulled through under pressure Saturday despite a double bogey for a one-under-par 71 to keep a shaky lead in the $12,500 Baton Rouge Open with a 54-hole total of 205.

The hefty 38-year-old Lemont, Ill., pro, who has been up and down in his tournament play, shot a 34-37 to forge to a one-stroke lead over little Jerry Barber of Los Angeles, who was in a tie with Furgol at the start of Saturday's round, and Jimmy Clark of Laguna Beach, Calif.

Barber's precision game was off and he had to settle for a par 35-37—72 Saturday. Had he been able to sink one of two short putts he would have remained tied with Furgol for the lead.

Clark turned in the lowest score of the day, a brilliant 65, to zoom up to a second-place tie from his sixth position of Friday.

Furgol shot a two-under-par 34 going out Saturday, and it appeared that he would again burn up the rolling 6,540-yard Country Club course. But his tee shot went out of bounds on the 370-yard 11th and he was penalized two strokes.

The double bogey six wiped out his earlier birdies, and marked the first time that Furgol has gone over par on a hole during the tournament.

Furgol picked up a birdie on the 465-yard 15th with a 15-foot putt, but missed a similar shot on the 18th and had to settle for a par.

Barber birdied the eighth and ninth holes, but took bogies on the seventh and 13th after missing putts of seven and four feet.

SEIXAS, TONY WIN IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y. (U.P.)—Davis Cup stars Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas turned in straight set triumphs Saturday to advance to the second round of the Buffalo Tennis & Squash Club's mid-winter invitation tennis tournament.

Trabert turned back Davis Cup captain Billy Talbert with ease, winning, 6-3, 6-1. But Seixas had a tougher time before eliminating young Ron Holmberg, 7-5, 6-4.

In other first-round matches, Eddie Moylan downed host club player Bill Dugan, 6-2, 6-4, and Irv Dorfman conquered Canadian Davis Cupper Lorne Main in the best battle of the day, 7-5, 2-6, 7-5.

MORE COLLEGE SCANDALS?

Gamblers Try to 'Fix' Star Niagara Cager

BUFFALO, N. Y. (U.P.)—The long-slumbering college basketball scandal broke out into the open again when Erie County District Attorney John Dwyer revealed that an attempt had been made to "fix" Saturday night's Canisius-Niagara game.

The district attorney revealed that Charlie Hoxie, 22-year-old senior from New York City and a star forward for Niagara, had been contacted last Wednesday by an unknown caller. Dwyer said Hoxie reported the call immediately to Coach John J. (Taps) Gallagher, who notified authorities.

Dwyer said an investigation was begun "at once and is continuing" to learn the identity of the caller for arrest and probable prosecution.

The announcement of the "bribe" attempt was held up until the halftime of Saturday's contest, played before a record crowd of 12,363, because the district attorney hoped the unknown caller would attempt to contact Hoxie personally just before game time.

Dwyer also revealed that Hoxie has been under surveillance by police since last Wednesday in case further contacts were attempted.

The new revelation of scandal within the college basketball structure was made by the district attorney at a press conference while the crowd was gathering in Memorial Auditorium to see the two tournament-bound teams battle it out for the "Little Three" conference title.

Niagara went into the game with an 18-5 record and a bid to compete in the National Invitation Tournament at New York City. Canisius already has accepted a bid to compete in the NCAA Tournament.

Dwyer told reporters that the original contact was made last Wednesday when a telephone call for Hoxie came into the Niagara University switchboard at 3 p.m. (EST). The call, later determined to have originated in Erie, Pa., was switched to the basketball star's residence.

"You don't know who I am," Dwyer said the caller told Hoxie. "But do you want to make some money?"

Dwyer said Hoxie broke off the conversation, hung up the phone and immediately reported the call to Gallagher. The veteran coach informed the Very Rev. Francis L. Meade, C.M., president of Niagara University.

Dwyer's announcement marked the most sensational development involving gambling and college basketball since 1951 when revelations of widespread "point shaving" rocked the sport across the nation.

The scandal began on Jan. 17, 1951 when Hank Poppe and Jack Byrnes ex-Manhattan College co-captains, were arrested for offering Junius Kellogg of Manhattan a $1,000 bribe to adjust a game with DePaul. Kellogg reported the offer to authorities who arrested Poppe, Byrnes and three gamblers.

Easy Victory for Niagara

BUFFALO, N. Y. (U.P.)—Niagara University, unruffled by an apparent bribe offer to star forward Charley Hoxie, moved smoothly to a commanding first half lead Saturday night and coasted to a 80-63 victory over Canisius.

Canisius never had a chance after the first few minutes when the Griffins led, 6-2. Niagara quickly moved into a 10-8 lead at the seven-minute mark and sped beyond reach as lanky Tom Hemans and Jim McConnell led the way with 22 and 19 points. Hoxie scored nine points.

Once Over Lightly

by DAVE LEWIS

After officials of the new Air Force Academy announced the school would field a football team next fall, it was suddenly discovered they had no money with which to finance the project.

Athletic programs for the most part—with few exceptions—are financed by student body funds and gate receipts from sports events.

It is the same at Uncle Sam's military schools. The government does not appropriate the taxpayers' money for intercollegiate sports at West Point and Annapolis, nor will it divert any money to the Air Force Academy for athletic purposes.

Therefore, with no money to go ahead with announced plans, Academy officials were obliged to come up with an idea of raising some cash.

Lieutenant Colonel Robert Whitlow, the Academy's athletic director sent out letters questioning fellow Air Force officers if they would be interested in creating an association for the purpose of establishing sports at the school.

After all, Air Force personnel does give the school a "ready-made alumni."

The answers were encouraging, thus the Air Force Academy Athletic Association was established.

Air Force officers all over the world are contributing $10 apiece to join the association. Applications, according to latest word, are coming in at the rate of several hundred per day. The money will be used to finance the Academy's athletic program until it becomes self sufficient.

THERE WILL be another future use for the association, too.

No school—not even the military schools—can become an athletic power in this day and age without strong outside help from enthusiastic alumni or booster clubs.

Thus, in addition to its great contribution of establishing the sports program at the Academy, the AFAAA will be in a perfect position in the future to help "recruit" topflight athletes.

The Academy, of course, has an attractive inducement to supplement the sales talks of its recruiting staff.

A cadet will receive $81.12 a month plus $1.42 a day rations . . . and the equivalent of a $3,000 educational scholarship at a private university.

Does all this mean that athletes will be given preference over youths who are not particularly interested in competing in sports?

Definitely not. However, if an athlete—particularly a football player—measures up to the qualifications, he no doubt will stand a better chance of being accepted. But, it is emphasized, only if he qualifies.

FOOTBALL definitely will play a major role at the Academy.

In frankly stating they plan to emphasize sports, especially football and other contact sports, Air Force officers point out that it was vividly demonstrated in Korea how much contact sports mean to the military.

A little known fact is that of the more than 800 MIG's shot down over Korea, over one-third were the "kills" of exactly 32 pilots.

And of these 32 pilots, all but one had played football. However, he did participate in equally-rugged contact sports, boxing and lacrosse.

"Such statistics prove we need contact-sport athletes in our airplanes," Lt. Col. Whitlow declares.

The beloved Buck Shaw, of course, will direct the school's first football team.

He has been hired as a civilian consultant for a period of three months, but it is pretty well agreed that he will become the permanent head football coach if he wants to stick around.

It will be a tremendous building job and the first two or three years in particular will be mighty rough.

The school will not even play a true "varsity" schedule until 1958 when the first group of cadets will be seniors.

Competition for the next three years will be confined to junior colleges and small colleges.

But in 1958, the Air Force Academy will blossom into a full-fledged gridiron power with one of the nation's finest collegiate schedules.

The '58 schedule will include a team from the Pacific Coast, one from the Southwest, one from the Deep South, one from the Central area, two from the local area (Rocky Mountains-Big Seven) and, of course, Army and Navy.

THE AIR FORCE Academy will represent a "modern day miracle."

As Lt. Col. Whitlow points out, "It required the Army 153 years to develop West Point and the Navy 110 years for Annapolis.

"Our goal is to provide comparable grounds, buildings, educational training and athletic program in four years."

The first class of cadets, numbering 300, will start training in July. They'll be stationed at Lowrey Field in Colorado . . . a few miles northwest of the academy's permanent site at Colorado Springs.

Permanent buildings on the $150,000,000 campus will be ready for occupancy in 1957. When the school finally becomes a four-year institution in 1958 with the first class of seniors, the academy will accommodate 2,496 cadets.

More than 10,000 youths already have applied for entrance in the first class. Some 4,000 will receive nominations from their congressmen and out of this group the ultimate 300 cadets will be appointed.

The academy's athletic plant itself will be the most modern and complete setup in the world . . . with plans including a 60,000-seat football stadium.

These Air Force boys mean business!

Pan American Games Begin

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Pan American Games — the Olympics of the Western Hemisphere — get underway this week with pomp and ceremony, and this Mexican capital is as excited as a child looking forward to Christmas.

Over 1,000 athletes already have arrived, have been installed in University City dormitories, and have started training for the March 12-26 games.

About 2,000 contestants from 22 — maybe 23 — countries are expected and all will arrive before Saturday, when President Ruiz Cortines touches off the games with a speech at University Stadium, built on a lava bed.

Playing fields, courts, canals — sports centers all over this sprawling Aztec capital of three million population — are crowded with the hemisphere's greatest men and women athletes priming themselves for the 15-day contests.

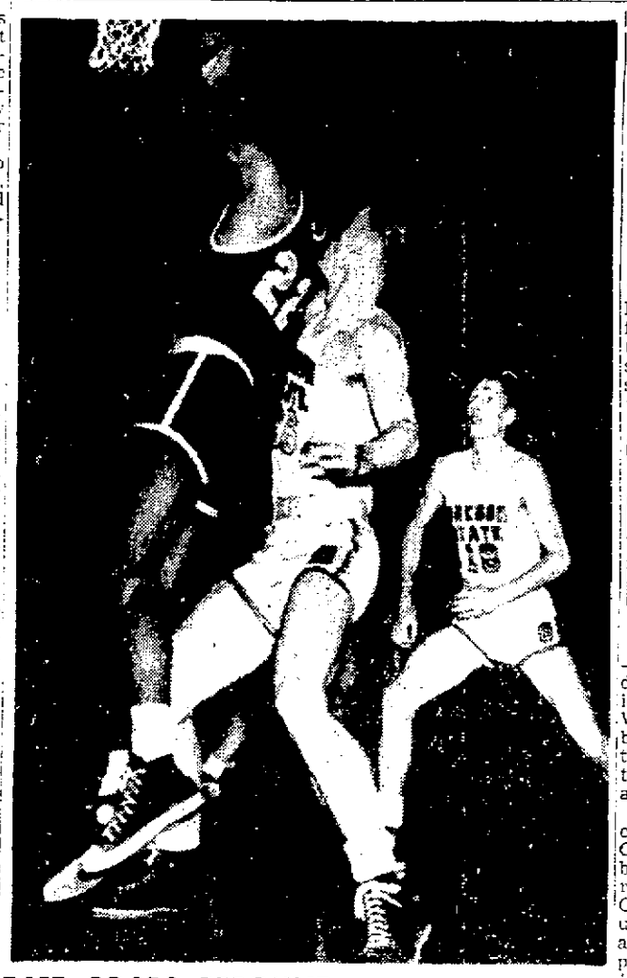

Sports experts predict several world records will topple, despite the handicap of the 7,500-foot altitude of Mexico City.

Countries definitely expected are Argentina, the Bahamas, Brazil, Colombia, Canada, Costa Rica, Cuba, Chile, Dominican Republic, Dutch Antilles, El Salvador, Guatemala, Haiti, Jamaica, Mexico, Panama, Puerto Rico, Paraguay, Trinidad, Uruguay, United States and Venezuela. Ecuador may enter.

The 18 events scheduled are track and field March 13-19, baseball 13-23, basketball 13-24, boxing 17-24, cycling 21-25, equestrian 20-24, fencing 15-25, football 13-26, gymnastics 20-23, weight lifting 13-17, wrestling 16-20, swimming 16-25, modern pentathlon 14-18, rowing 17-20, tennis 13-20, shooting 17-22, volleyball 16-25, and water polo 17-25.

Several U.S. performers will be able to compete through a revised plan where they will not fly to Mexico City until March 15.

The list includes Wes Santee, 1500 meters; Arnold Sowell, middle distances; Jesse Mashburn, 400 meters; Rafer Johnson, decathlon entrant from UCLA; Held, javelin, and Charlie Thomas and Dean Smith, sprints.

IOWA BACKS INTO TITLE

Wisconsin Stuns Minnesota Quint

(Compiled from AP and UP)

MINNEAPOLIS—Iowa's Hawkeyes, enjoying a day off from the cage wars, backed into the Big 10 basketball championship Saturday night as Wisconsin upset Minnesota, 78-72, giving the Gophers a 10-4 final record. Iowa has lost only two games and can lose its final game with Michigan Monday and still come off with the coveted crown.

Except for the last seven minutes of the first half, Minnesota trailed the hot-shooting Badgers. A basket in the last seven seconds of the first half by Chuck Mencel gave the Gophers a 32-31 lead at halftime, the last time they led.

Wisconsin, sparked by its two scoring aces, Dick Miller and Dick Cable, dashed to a 45-36 lead in the opening minutes of the second half. Miller scored 27 points, 16 of them in the last half. Cable hit 18, 10 of them coming in the final 20 minutes.

Meanwhile, at Evanston, Ill., a scrappy Illinois quint overcame Northwestern's 12-point lead in the first half Saturday night to beat the Wildcats, 81-69, before 9,765 fans and closed the season in a tie with Minnesota for second place.

Paul Judson sparked the Illini with 25 points, while Harold Grant scored 19 for Northwestern.

Illinois tied the score twice in the opening minutes of the second half, and then the lead seesawed until less than 10 minutes remained when the Illini went ahead to stay at 55-54.

Indiana's Don Schlundt set a new Big 10 free throw record and scored 47 points to tie his own conference record in leading the Hoosiers to an 83-66 win over Ohio State before the home folks at Bloomington, Indiana. Schlundt scored 25 points on free throws.

In the nationally-televised contest Saturday Michigan State tightened its defense in the second half to hold Michigan scoreless for eight minutes and defeat the Wolverines, 83-68, before 8,500 in-the-flesh fans.

Coach Fordy Anderson's Spartans finished their season with an 8-6 record and in fourth place in the final standings. Al Ferrari, Julius McCoy and Duane Peterson scored 15 points each to lead the MSC attack. Ron Kramer of Michigan topped all scorers with 20 points.

Canadians Pick for Puck Title

DUSSELDORF, Germany (AP) —Canada was picked to defeat defending champion Russia today in the decisive game of the World Ice Hockey Championship by a poll of coaches Saturday as the United States wound up its tourney play with a 1-1 tie against Sweden.

The result almost certainly cost the U. S. a chance to tie Czechoslovakia for third place behind Canada and Russia in the round-robin competition. The Czechs walloped Poland 17-2 Saturday and now have 9 points on a 4-2-1 record compared to 10 points for the U. S. on its final 4-2-2 mark. Canada and Russia are tied for the lead at 7-0.

Czechoslovakia still has a game today against Finland, which won its first game of the tournament Saturday by upsetting Switzerland 7-2. Czechoslovakia could win third place outright by defeating Finland, or gain a tie in points by playing a tie with Finland.

The Americans were lucky to get a tie Saturday, for Sweden's Tumba Johansson rifled a shot into the American goal just a fraction of a second after the final whistle sounded.

The game was scoreless until the 9th minute of the final period, when Stig Tvilling scored for Sweden. Dick Dougherty of International Falls, Minn., tied it up with 5 minutes to play.

Russia scored one "victory" Saturday when the congress of the International Ice Hockey Federation awarded the 1957 tournament to Moscow. The meet will be the second major winter sports world event to be held in the Soviet capital, coming two years after the recent World Speed Skating Championships there.

The Olympic Ice Hockey tournament will produce next year's world champion.

Big Ten Track to Michigan

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UP)—Michigan's powerful track team, paced by its brilliant distance runners, rolled up 67½ points to win the Big Ten indoor track and field championships Saturday.

Individual honors, however, went to Michigan State's versatile Ed Brabham, who won the 60-yard dash in 6-2 and broad jump at 23-8 and placed second in the 300-yard dash to pile up 14 points.

The Wolverines dethroned defending champion Illinois by winning seven events, including all of the distance contests except the mile relay, where Michigan placed second behind Indiana which won in 3:19.20.

Michigan State won four events to finish a surprising second with 46½ points.

Kevan Gosper, the Spartans' Australian speedster, set a conference record of 1:11.3 in the 600-yard run with a brilliant finishing kick to overtake Michigan's Grant Scruggs in the last 100 yards.

He clipped one-tenth of a second off the old mark set last year by Leroy Ebert of Iowa.

Gosper also captured the 440-yard run, beating Leon Robinson of Indiana by an eyelash in 48.2.

Illinois, which had dominated Big Ten track for four years, placed fourth with 24 points behind Indiana, which scored 38½ points.

Other team scores were Wisconsin 21, Ohio State 15, Iowa 11½, Northwestern 6, Minnesota one and Purdue zero.

Michigan's Pete Gray helped the Wolverine cause by winning the 1,000-yard run in 3:18.7 and the 880-yard run in 1:54.7. Teammate John Moule captured the one-mile event in 4:21.3 and finished second behind Gray in the 880.

The Wolverines' Ron Wallingsford came through to win the two-mile in 9:26.4, while Jim Love grabbed a victory in the 70-yard low hurdles, where he defeated defending champion Abe Woodson of Illinois, in 8.00.

Dave Owen gave Michigan a first in the shotput with a toss of 53 feet, ¼ inch, and teammate Mark Booth tied Calvin Boyd of Indiana for first in the high jump at 6-5¾.

Illinois' Willard Thomson won the 70-yard high hurdles in 8.5, however, making him the only returning champion to successfully defend his title.

Pole vaulter Dale Foster cleared 14 feet, 1⅝ inches to give the Illini a first place in that event.

SUGAR RAY PULLS OUT OF FIGHT

Former welterweight and middleweight king Sugar Ray Robinson rests in his Boston hotel room after withdrawing from scheduled bout with George Small Saturday night. Robinson said he was sick, but a physician said otherwise. Details in story below. — (Associated Press Wirephoto.)

Robinson Pleads Sick; Cancel Fight

BOSTON (UP) — Sugar Ray Robinson pleaded "sick" Saturday night and a scheduled 10-round bout with George Small of Brooklyn at Boston Garden was called off by matchmaker Sam Silverman, who said he would seek to have the former middleweight and welterweight champion suspended.

Joe Reardon, a member of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, said he would meet with commissioner Henry Lamar and chairman Gen. Otis Whitney to discuss Robinson's sudden illness and Silverman's suspension request.

Silverman said the entire card was called off.

According to Silverman, Robinson made no complaints of illness at the pre-fight physical Saturday afternoon.

However, the 33-year-old Robinson called Silverman from his hotel room at 5:30 p.m. to say that he was sick and unable to go on with the match.

Dr. Edward H. Hommell, commission physician, said he examined Robinson and "found no evidence of sickness or injury which would warrant me to postpone the fight tonight."

Dr. Robert F. Moore, hotel physician, said he agreed with the results of Hommell's examination.

The bout was to be Sugar Ray's third in his comeback attempt. He knocked out Joe Rindone in December after a 31-month layoff, but a month later dropped a one-sided decision to Ralph (Tiger) Jones in a televised 10-rounder.

Ernie Braca, who identified himself as Robinson's booking agent, said Robinson was in bed after "falling apart on us" because he disobeyed Moore's orders not to leave his hotel room for three days.

Braca described Robinson's illness as a cold "bordering on influenza" which he said was Moore's diagnosis.

"Moore told Ray not to go outside Saturday because the temperature change might affect him," Braca said, "but he went to the commission examination and when he came back, he didn't feel well and fell apart on us."

"I'll get up out of this bed if you want me to fight but remember, you will be responsible if anything happens to me," Braca quoted Robinson.

"I'm not accepting any responsibility. You might drop dead before you leave the room," Braca quoted Reardon as saying.

The Massachusetts State Boxing Commission decided late Saturday to wait until Monday to consider possible suspension of Robinson.

Vols Rapped by Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UP)—Kentucky combined a torrid shooting attack and a terrific job on the boards by Bob Burrow and Jerry Bird to crush Tennessee, 104-61, Saturday night and take its 16th Southeastern Conference championship and clinch a bid to the NCAA tournament.

The victory, Kentucky's 22nd in 24 games, was much easier than expected.

Sacramento Team Posts Bowling Win

The ninth annual National Japanese-American Citizens League bowling tournament reaches its climax today with the rolling of the singles event this afternoon at the Virginia Recreation lanes and a dinner-dance tonight at the Wilton Hotel.

Coffee's Strawberries team of Sacramento Saturday won the team event with a total of 2,848 pins to edge Electrical Contractor's Supply of Pocatello, Idaho, which finished with a 2,810 count.

Members of the winning team are Jim Matsui, Joe Hom, Gil Ishisaka, Tsuto Hironaka and Dubby Psugawa. Following the top two teams in order were Times Wholesale Florists of Los Angeles, 2768; Capitol Meat of Sacramento, 2756; W. Fay Co. of Los Angeles, 2753; and Gardena Sporting Goods, 2731.

Prime favorites in today's singles play are Fuzzy Shimado of San Francisco, Joe Sato of Pocatello and Hank Aragaki of Los Angeles.

Doubles events were still being rolled late Saturday night.

Irish Halt Marquette Skein at 22

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—Five fighting men of Notre Dame destroyed the nation's longest undefeated basketball string Saturday night with an 83-64 victory over Marquette, which had won 22 straight games.

The fighting Irish, led by Jack Stephens, who scored 35 points, outplayed the Warriors in every phase.

They outshot them, outdefended them, outrebounded them and outfought them. The fight alone was enough to win the game as players from each team spent a good portion of the time backdown on the floor.

Even the officials got into the rough stuff unintentionally, when referee Norm Kies collided with Bob Walczak late in the game. Walczak went out with a sore head and Kies received treatment for a badly bleeding cut near the eye.

Irish coach Johnny Jordan did not use a substitute until John Fannon fouled out with 3:45 left in the game.

Terry Rand's 13 points was the best the Warriors could muster, as they shot poorly and rebounded even worse.

BASEBALL?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pepperdine walloped Whittier in a college baseball game Saturday 33-2. The contest was halted after 4½ innings by "mutual agreement."

The first inning took an hour to play and the second took almost the same time. The teams finally called a halt to save Whittier from what might have been the worst defeat in college history.

Robinson Cracks 4th JC Mark

BERKELEY (AP) — Jack Webb, Fullerton Junior College swimmer from Long Beach, set a new national junior college record of 2:15.6 for the 200-yard backstroke Saturday.

Webb was swimming in a dual meet which the University of California won 49½-33½.

In breaking the old record of 2:16.9 set last year by Walter Reeves of Los Angeles City College, the 20-year-old Webb set his fourth jaysee record this year.

At Stanford he set a new 120-yard individual medley record Friday of 1:08.9 and a 200-yard backstroke record of 2:14.9, both in 20-yard pools. The old records were 1:14 and 2:19.3, respectively. Earlier this year Webb was timed at 1:32.2 in the 150-yard individual medley in a 25-yard pool. The old record was 1:36.7.

Six Records Shattered as Buckeyes Win Swim Title

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State won the Western Conference swimming championship for the seventh straight year Saturday night, piling up 123 points to second-place Michigan's 105½. Six new records went into the books.

Konno and Oyakawa, Ohio State's Hawaiian-born stars, each won two victories, Konno the 440-yard and 1,500-meter freestyles, and Oyakawa both backstroke events. Burwell (Bumpy) Jones was Michigan's big gun as he won the 200-yard butterfly and orthodox breaststroke races and also appeared on the Wolverines' winning 440-yard freestyle relay team.

PITY THOSE AL BATTERS!

Lemon Feels Just as Good as When He Joined Tribe

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—It will be no consolation to American League batters to hear that Bob Lemon feels just as good today as when he started pitching for the Cleveland Indians.

Since then, he's been a 20-game winner or better in six seasons.

One reason why Lemon shows no signs of wearing out at 34 may be because he's been pitching less than half his baseball career.

"I'm having no more trouble getting in shape now than in any other year," he said Saturday after a few innings on the mound in the Tribe's first intra-squad game.

The 185-pound righthander has been the biggest winner in baseball since he first won 20 games, in 1948.

As an infielder with Cleveland in 1946, Lemon made only a so-so showing in 55 games. He was given a chance on the mound.

Before the season was over he had a 4-5 record, which earned him a contract as a full-time pitcher in 1947.

"I have no idea how long I can keep it up. I hope it will be quite a while," Lemon said.

"No one can say that he is going to win 20 games in a season, or any other number.

"It's as Bob Feller says, 'it isn't how you pitch but when you pitch that counts.'

"You can throw fine ball and get beaten 1-0. Another day you don't have much stuff but your team gets a lot of runs and you win.

"To win 20 in a season, you have to get the breaks. Sure, I've won 20 games or more in six of the last seven seasons. I've been lucky.

"You also have to get the breaks physically. You can't win 20 if you are laid up any length of time because of injuries. I've never been out for long."

Lemon is not quite two years younger than Feller of the Indians, the only other active player in baseball who has won 20 games in six different seasons.

RALEIGH, N. C. Duke, however, will represent the ACC in the NCAA Eastern playoffs against Villanova in New York Tuesday as State is ineligible.

Title Crack for DeMarco

BOSTON (AP) — Welterweight champion Johnny Saxton Saturday signed to defend his title against Boston's hard-punching Tony DeMarco, unbeaten in his last 15 fights.

Sam Silverman booked the 15-round match for Boston Garden April 1 and said it will not be televised or broadcast.

Stout Sam smiled away questions about Saxton's purse. It has been reported the titlist from New York would receive $50,000. Saxton hinted he would receive in the vicinity of $40,000.

This will be Saxton's first defense of the title he won from Kid Gavilan, the Cuban Keed, Oct. 20, 1954, in Philadelphia. The decision drew much adverse criticism.

Saxton, 24, has won all but two of his 51 professional fights. DeMarco, about a year younger, has won 46 of his 50 fights as a professional and has knocked out 30 opponents.

New evidence that home court advantages in basketball make strong teams stronger and are of little assistance to weak teams has been unearthed by Don Drury, the Long Beach City College publicist who dabbles in sports statistics when he isn't in hot pursuit of new superlatives to describe the doings of his Vikings.

In an idle moment the other day Don asked himself this question:

"How good is the home court advantage?"

Since there was nobody around to give him the answer, he set to work compiling an Eiffel Tower of statistics using the Metropolitan Conference, of which LBCC is a member, as the guinea pig.

Don found, after reviewing 112 games played by the eight teams in the Metro Conference, that the "home court advantage" theory doesn't provide a convincing answer when all eight teams in the circuit are considered. His figures showed that home teams won 31 games and lost 25, operating at a .554 proficiency figure. Conversely, visiting teams won 25 and lost 31 for a .446 showing.

Not satisfied with this answer, Don decided to see how the advantage theory worked out when the first and second division clubs were reviewed. And in this effort came the revelation he was seeking out.

First division teams—Valley JC, Bakersfield, San Diego and Long Beach—won 28 home games and lost only five. That gave them an .821 batting average. On the road, they won 18 and lost 10 for a .643 b.a. Now contrast these figures with the showings of the weaker set, the second division quintets, and the advantage is established for good.

Second divisioners — Harbor, Santa Monica, East L. A. and El Camino—won eight home games and lost 20. Their percentage was only .286. On the road, they won seven and lost 21 for a .250 figure.

The conclusion off 112 games then, is simply this: Weaker teams do not seem to gain much by the home court advantage. Stronger teams profit the most.

And to cinch the argument, Drury reviewed the recent season in this fashion: Valley, the champion, had a 12-2 record. The two losses came on the road, Bakersfield, 11-3, lost two of them away from home. San Diego, 10-4, split its losses—two at home and two away. Long Beach, 8-6, lost four away, two at home.

Three upsets might have been inspired by the home court advantage. Drury suggests. Harbor, then in seventh place, surprised Valley on the Harbor court. Santa Monica exploited familiar surroundings to dump the Vikings. So did El Camino.

Don came to these conclusions. Home court advantages make strong teams stronger; do very little for the weaker ones. Therefore, the home court advantage is no myth. It's something no coach or team can ignore. And like television, it's here to stay . . . monster or not!

ANOTHER RUSSELL? There may be another Russell, kin of USF's All-American Bill, to haunt Pacific Coast basketball teams next season.

Bill's older brother, Charles, Jr., is due for release from military service in Korea next month. He intends to carve out a college basketball career for himself, too.

Charlie played two years at Santa Rosa JC before entering the service. He'll hit the books in order to become eligible. Good bet as his future alma mater—University of San Francisco.

Don Woolpert may throw two Russells at his USF opponents in 1956. Horrors! I'll bet the Pacific Coast Conference schools shy away from the Dons!

UCLA-BOUND. Norman Brinker, "Little Mo" Connolly's intended, may wind up as a student at Westwood next fall. Currently he's a sophomore in business administration at San Diego State.

However, Norm, one of America's leading horsemen, is thinking of transferring to UCLA. If he does, he'll bring his new bride, who has temporarily relinquished her royal robes of netdom in favor of the career of a housewife, with him to the Uclan campus.

"Little Mo" isn't through with tennis for good. Perish the thought.

"I'll be back into tournament play in two or three years," she said recently. "I might even turn pro if I get the right offer after we've settled down in our married life."

SMALL TALK. Proof of the Pacific Coast League's new youth movement are the announcements by Sam Chapman, Oakland outfielder, and Dick Sisler, San Diego Padres, that they have hung 'em up for good . . . From the rosters I've seen, the personnel turnover this year may be the greatest in PCL history . . . Charlie Justice, Washington Redskins flash, thinks Sammy Baugh will make Hardin-Simmons a great coach since the "old pro" is a perfectionist all the way.

Giant Yannigans Tie Regulars, 1-1

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The New York Giants regulars and the Yannigans tied 1-1 in six innings here Saturday before a crowd of 5,000 that turned out to see the first intra-squad game of the season staged by the World Champions.

Doubles by catcher Wes Westrum and first baseman Whitey Lockman got the varsity tally. Errors by Al Dark, Willie Mays and Lockman led to the second stringers' run. Each side poled six hits.

Six pitchers, Jim Hearn, Al Worthington, George Spencer, Paul Giel and rookies Pete Burnside and Pete Margoneri saw action.

Spencer gave up the scoring hits by Westrum and Lockman in the fifth inning. The Yannigans tied it up in the sixth while Giel was on the mound. Batting stars of the workout were Monte Irvin of the regulars and third baseman Joe Amalfitano of Long Beach, playing with the Yannigans. Both got two hits.

CUBS: Dee Fondy, showing no trace of trouble from the hand injury that hampered him most of last season, sparkled Saturday as manager Stan Hack drove the Windy City club through another four-hour drill.

REDLEGS: Bob Borkowski hit a grand slam homer and rookies Bob Thurman and Glen Gorbus homered with the bases empty Saturday to give Gus Bell's team a 7-1 triumph over Ted Kluszewski's crew in a Cincinnati squad game at Tampa, Fla.

PHILS: Manager Mayo Smith praised his rookie pitchers Saturday as "the finest and hardest throwing bunch of kids I ever saw on one ball club." The youngsters Smith liked most were Tom Casagrande, Jim Owens, Jack Meyer and Thornton Kipper.

DODGERS: Karl Spooner, late 1954 season pitching sensation, took the mound for the first time since his winter cartilage operation Saturday at the Bums' camp at Vero Beach, Fla. and gave a highly impressive exhibition.

BRAVES: Manager Charley Grimm named ace lefty Warren Spahn, Gene Conley and Chet Nichols to pitch for the "scrubs" in a Sunday camp game.

PIRATES: The Fitzpatricks whipped the Sukeforths in a Pirate camp game, 10-4, Saturday at Fort Myers, Fla. The winners made four errors including four by rookie second baseman Gene Freese. Jerry Lynch was the most potent batter in the workout, crashing two doubles and a single.

CARDS: Ken Boyer, the rookie third baseman who is being counted on to fill Ray Jablonski's spot as a regular, has recovered completely from a beaning he suffered playing winter ball, the club revealed Saturday.

ORIOLES' OLD-TIMERS

Only five men from last year's Baltimore Orioles team were among the infielders and outfielders that reported Saturday at the Daytona Beach drill camp. Johnny Pesky attempts to push old-timers onto field for first workout. From left, Pesky, Bob Kennedy, Vern Stephens of Long Beach, Eddie Waitkus, Bobby Young and Chuck Diering. Doby, Kiner Rap Long Homeruns

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Larry Doby and Ralph Kiner hit homeruns Saturday as the Cleveland Indians held their first intra-squad game of the season.

Doby, American League homer king last season, connected with a pitch by Bob Lemon for a 350-foot blow. He doubled an inning earlier and drove in a total of five runs off the ace righthander.

Kiner, National League homerun leader a few seasons back, got a 360-foot hit while Mike Garcia was pitching. There were two men on base at the time.

All that helped to add up a 15-3 victory for the squad made up primarily of regulars.

Al Rosen failed to hit out of the infield in three chances. Vic Wertz, the other Indians slugger, did not play because of sore feet.

SENATORS: Manager Charley Dressen of the Nats probably wished that he was back in the minors with Oakland today following Saturday's first intra-squad test for his club at Orlando, Fla. A team captained by Joe Haynes defeated a team coached by Ellis Clary, 4-3, and in the five innings stint there were eight errors.

It was an informal contest and very sloppily played. Dressen moved all over the field correcting mistakes.

RED SOX: After displaying mid-season form in pitching batting practice Saturday at the Bosox' Sarasota, Fla., camp, 6-7 Frank Sullivan was named to take a turn on the mound in the first of the two intra-squad games Monday and Tuesday.

WHITE SOX: Manager Marty Marion named seven pitchers of the rookie variety Saturday to handle the mound chores in the Chisox' first intra-squad game today. Minnie Minoso, the recently signed Sox ace, will be in action in left field for the Don Gutteridge squad. On the George Myatt squad, Bob Nieman, obtained from the Detroit Tigers, will play left. If Nieman proves he can play left and hit, Minoso may be shifted to right.

YANKEES: Casey Stengel stated at St. Petersburg, Fla., Saturday that this year's squad was "the best conditioned of my seven years as manager of the Yankees." Whitey Ford is in the best shape I've ever seen him and he'll open against the Cards Thursday," Stengel said.

ORIOLES: The development of Gus Triandos as a first baseman brought a smile to the face of manager Paul Richards Saturday during the fifth day of spring training at Miami Beach, Fla. Richards is hoping Triandos will develop into a "righthanded Ted Kluszewski."

PCL BRIEFS

Twinks Sign Lohrke, Return Babe

The Hollywood Stars, who open spring training at Anaheim Monday, Saturday announced the signing of veteran infielder Jack Lohrke, two rookie outfielders and the return of infielder Loren Babe's contract to Toronto of the International League.

Lohrke, the Stars' No. 1 utility infielder, batted .263 last year while performing at second, third and short. He also did some pitching.

Rookie outfielders coming to terms were Reginald Grenald, up from Hutchinson, Kan., and George Prescott, formerly with Denver.

Babe, who hit 20 homers and had 75 RBIs for Toronto last year, did not want to play on the Coast. The Stars purchased him during the winter.

At Palm Springs, the San Francisco Seals beat the Seattle Rainiers, 6-3, Saturday in an exhibition opener for both clubs.

San Francisco picked up 11 hits, while two Seal pitchers held Seattle to seven. Ralph Burns went the first six innings and Marshall Epperson went the rest.

Dave Melton, Seals centerfielder, hit for three.

At Glendale, Portland manager Clay Hooper was impressed with the potential of 21-year-old right-handed pitcher Leroy Han as the Beaver batterymen romped through another light drill.

Hopper reported that catcher Joe Rossi was still a holdout.

Rookies Don Stanford, shortstop turned pitcher, and first baseman Dick Ananias earned contracts with the champion San Diego Padres at Ontario.

Stanford's fast ball caught manager Bob Elliot's eye the first time he toiled and in his first test in an intra-squad game Saturday, Ananias hit 37 homers for Bakersfield last year.

Bera Grabs Ladies' Lead

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UP) Veteran Patty Berg grabbed the undisputed lead in the Jacksonville Women's Open Golf tournament Saturday by shooting a cautious one-over-par 73 round for a 36-hole total of 144.

Tall, angular Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., vaulted from eighth place to second with a two-under-par 70 for a 145 total. She used only 28 putts to score the day's best round in her bid for her first tournament since turning professional.

Two of her three birdies came on 20-foot putts.

The leaders:

Patty Berg	73—144
Mary Lena Faulk	70—145
Jackie Pung	76—145
Vonnie Colbert	73—146

Lesser Cops Amateur

ORMOND BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Blowing hot and cold with the changing weather, Pat Lesser of Seattle defeated Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore 3 and 2 Saturday for her second successive women's South Atlantic amateur golf championship.

Miss Lesser's sharp iron play and chipping finesse in the afternoon round of the 36-hole match offset a cantankerous putter.

Miss Downey, also the runner-up here in 1953, conceded the match on the 34th hole after flubbing her pitch shot and watching Miss Lesser plop one down 12 inches from the cup.

The HOT CORNER
by VERN STEPHENS

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—Well, folks, I'm hard at it again preparing for my 18th year in baseball and my 15th season in the majors. And while many people would give their eyeteeth to "winter in Florida," I wish I was back in California right now.

I would much rather train in Southern California than anywhere else.

I've spent spring training in Florida, Missouri, California and Arizona . . . and still say Southern California is the best place to get into condition.

VERN STEPHENS

It is a popular misconception that the major league teams train in Florida because of (1) the climate, and (2) the wonderful ball parks and facilities.

However, despite the fact that California does not have a ball park considered adequate for major league ball, it nevertheless has more and better parks than any other state I can think of offhand. And that includes Florida!

All of the parks in Florida and Arizona, which are accommodating all 16 major league teams between them this spring, are much too sandy to be real good for running. And they haven't good backgrounds for hitting.

By backgrounds, I mean trees or a high board fence behind the pitcher so you can see the ball better. In Florida and Arizona, you have to hit against the sky and it is very difficult to pick up the ball as it leaves the pitcher's hand.

The best park in Arizona is at Tucson where the Cleveland Indians train. The infield is the best in both Florida and Arizona and all the facilities are good.

Mesa, where the Chicago Cubs condition, has one of the worst infields I have ever played on. That is pretty much true at Phoenix, too, where the New York Giants hold forth.

Here in Florida, the new Miami park, headquarters for the Washington Senators, is now the best of the lot.

The Detroit Tigers' training site at Lakeland is about second best followed by the Sarasota park where the Boston Red Sox work out.

The rest aren't much to talk about.

West Palm Beach, where the Kansas City Athletics are training, is worse than many kid playgrounds.

And at St. Petersburg, which is called the baseball capital of Florida, the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals play in no more than a poor Class D park.

The stands hold only about 1800 fans; there is only one locker room and it is no larger than a living room in an average home, while there are only three showers for sometimes as many as 90 ballplayers.

Clearwater, where the Phils are stationed, is just like a small band box.

The White Sox and Cincinnati Reds play in a converted race track at Tampa and all of us believe that Abner Doubleday himself had a hand in laying out the ancient park at Bradenton, which houses the Milwaukee Braves.

The Daytona Beach park in which I am training with the Baltimore Orioles is built on a sort of island out in the ocean.

It's not a bad park compared to the others; except that a strong wind starts blowing every afternoon about 1:30.

The Brooklyn Dodgers finally gave up training at Daytona because Wyatt, Higby and their other pitchers usually came up with sore arms every spring due greatly to the fact the wind is very hard on hurlers.

Baltimore chose Daytona Beach as its training site just as the other clubs select their sites—for financial reasons.

Baltimore was considering three Florida sites this spring—Hollywood, Fort Pierce and Daytona Beach.

Fort Pierce actually would have been the best of the three from the standpoint of facilities and travel. However, Daytona Beach won out by guaranteeing the Orioles 24,000 attendance for eight games here, which will help cut down training expenses.

It is my opinion that Anaheim, Fullerton, Pasadena, Palm Springs, etc., in Southern California have much better spring training facilities than any offered in either Florida or Arizona.

However, the attitude of the PCL has been greatly responsible for driving the teams to Florida and Arizona.

I still maintain that our own Recreation Park field is one of the most beautiful settings for a ballpark in the country. Adequate stands and locker rooms and a grass field would give Long Beach the finest spring training camp in the country.

However, in recent years major league teams have refused to play there because of the condition of the field. It is too hard and too dangerous.

Spring training has certainly changed—for the better—since I broke into baseball.

The veterans were really rough on rookies during the spring up until the last few years. In fact, rarely did a regular even talk to a recruit.

Now the veterans introduce themselves to the rookies and try to help them in every way they can.

The rookies, however, are still targets for a certain amount of horseplay. They have to go through sort of a "hazing" similar to that received by pledges in fraternities.

The veterans love to see a gullible kid walk into camp. And you'd be surprise how many fall for such obvious routines as being told to ask the clubhouse attendant for the foul line stretcher, or the key to the pitcher's box, etc.

No matter how many times you've been to spring training, it's still a great thrill and experience to be on hand when the major league clubs lift the lid on their annual conditioning grind!

Red Lynn Hurls for Locals in Exhibition

The Long Beach Rockets, one of the Southland's top semipro nines, step up a few notches this afternoon when they face the rejuvenated Los Angeles Angels in an exhibition game at Amerige Park in Fullerton. Game time is 2 p.m.

It will be a novel experiment for the Rockets, composed mostly of local ex-high school and City College products. All of the Rocket players have had minor league experience and first baseman Jack Graham was a major league regular with the old St. Louis Browns.

At any rate, promoter Bill Feistner and field manager Walt Carson of the Rockets have promised to make an appearance. In fact, the Rockets have enough talent to give the Angels a real battle.

Feistner has signed veteran Red Lynn, former Angel and Hollywood favorite, as his starting pitcher for today. Lynn was a member of the semipro L. A. All-Stars, who temporarily disbanded last week. He will be out to make a good showing against his former Angel mates in hopes of getting another shot in the PCL.

The Rockets will have three pitchers in the bullpen to back Lynn. Larry Jones and Chuck Adams, both ex-Poly boys, have had experience in the Class C California League and Don Tisnerata, a Jordan grad, pitched for Edmonton of the Class A Western International League last year.

Al Zigleman and Tim Knorzer will divide the Rocket catching. Graham will be at first base, Chuck Winslow at second, Red Meairs at short and Dave Rush and Joe Cochran will share the third base job. The Rockets have five outfielders available, led by hard-hitting Harry Minor of Columbus in the International League. The others are George Selfridge, Bob Carter, Don Taylor and Ev Pearson.

Angel manager Bill Sweeney announced that at least three of his 1954 holdovers will see action. Scrappy Gene Mauch will open at second base, Bob Usher will be in rightfield and Tommy Brown will be in left. Rookies will fill the rest of the L. A. lineup.

Probable lineups.

Blast U.S. Hospitality

COPENHAGEN (AP) — World indoor mile champion Gunnar Nielsen of Denmark has returned home from the United States complaining of the lack of American hospitality and vowing never again to take part in an indoor track meet.

Nielsen said that he was refused permission to run in Milwaukee where he has friends, that promoters provided no entertainment of any sort and that "indoor meets are shows — not sport."

Norwegian star Audun Boysen left New York for Oslo Saturday and told newsmen that running on boards hurt his legs, there was little U. S. hospitality and indoor meets were circuses.

Speedboat Season Starts Soon

By BOB RUSKAUFF

The season begins today for the speedboaters, who look toward 1955 as their greatest race year, with the greatest racemeets at the West's most colorful course, Long Beach Marine Stadium.

Hanson Dam, five miles past Sunland, is the spot today, however, and stock outboard drivers will draw first blood.

A 16-heat program for eight stock classes of runabouts and hydroplanes is slated to start at 11 a.m., according to Race Chairman Bud Vanderbush of the United Speedboat Association.

Ed Lindberg of Long Beach, who is USA pit manager for the year, expects he'll be wrangling upward of 75 boats in and out of the water, in what is billed as the "Fur Coat Regatta."

For the third year Don Thompson has been named as chairman of the traditional Memorial Day inboard classic, which the Belmont Shore Lions Club will again sponsor May 30 at Marine Stadium.

Thompson met Saturday evening with officials of Southern California Speedboat Club to lay plans for the meet, which will lead off three national holiday regattas at Long Beach for the potent inboards.

West Long Beach Lions Club will conduct action July 4 and the SCSC on Sept. 5.

A petite sailing lass, Nancy Corkett, will hold a 5½-point lead over Saint Cicero, with Jim Linderman hugging third spot this afternoon, as trim little Lehman dinghies conclude the Phelps-Terkel series off Newport Harbor Yacht Club, on the bay.

4 Marks Fall in SC Spike Win

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Four meet records fell Saturday as the always strong University of Southern California track team defeated UCLA in their second annual relay carnival at UCLA.

The Trojans won on the basis of aggregate scoring in the field events, meaning an event was won by the team having the three best performers. No scoring was kept in the track events.

The new meet records were in the distance medley relay, won by SC in 10:12.09; in the 440 relay, won by UCLA in 41.9; in the mile relay, won by SC in 3:18.2; and in the two-mile relay, won by SC in 7.54.8.

Mike Larrabee's 48.3 anchor paced SC's four-man mile team and Phil White's 1:57.1 was speediest in the two-mile event.

Ray Martin scored his third victory over Bruin Don Vick in four starts this spring by putting the shot 54 ft. 4¾ in. Vick did 53-6¼.

In other events, SC's Floyd Jeter and Ernie Shelton tied for first in the high jump at 6 ft. 7¾ in., UCLA's Jim Ball won the 120-yard high hurdles in 15 flat; UCLA's Ron Drummond won the discus throw with a toss of 165 ft. 3 in.; and SC's Ronnie Morris won the pole vault at 13 ft. 9 in.

Lions Open Play in NAIA Monday

Coach Billy Donovan's Loyola Lions and 31 other teams will open fire beginning Monday in the week-long NAIA basketball tourney in Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium. The Lions will oppose Southwestern of Winfield, Kansas at 9 p. m. Monday night.

The tourney will open at 9 a. m. (PST) Monday when Alderson-Broaddus of Philippi, W. Va., meets Minot (N.C.) Teachers College. Seven games will follow Monday with eight games scheduled in first-round completion Tuesday.

Finals will be played Saturday, March 12, and a new champion is assured, since the defending titleholder, St. Benedict's of Atchison, Kan., failed to qualify this year.

Honors for Sooners

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Oklahoma won the 1955 Big Seven Conference swimming championships Saturday in a rivalry with Iowa State that produced new records in 10 of the 12 swimming events.

BLUE RULER 5-1

Nashua Derby Future Book Favorite; Summer Tan 2nd

TIJUANA, Mexico (UP)—Nashua was listed the favorite at 5-2 Saturday in the first issue of the Caliente Future Book on the Kentucky Derby, which is run May 10.

The Belair Stud's thoroughbred was even money to place and 1-2 to show. Summer Tan, placed above Nashua in the Experimental handicap by one pound at 128, was rated second choice at 4-1.

Blue Ruler, listed at 5-1, was put well ahead of the horses that beat him in the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby in which he was third. Jean's Joe, second in the Derby, was 8-1, while the winner of the race, Swaps, was listed 10-1.

Undefeated Boston Doge was fourth at 6-1. Royal Coinage was listed at 10-1, Saratoga 12-1, and Summer Solstice, Prince Noor, Munchausen and Flying Fury followed at 15-1.

Nashua Heads 125 Derby Nominees

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—A total of 125 nominations, the smallest in six years, was announced Saturday for the 81st and richest running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, May 7, with $100,000 guaranteed to the winner.

The guaranteed figure should be easy to meet. The value of the blue ribbon classic has been increased to $125,000 in added money and the total cost to start a horse raised from $1,050 to $1,600.

Thus with only 10 starters the Kentucky Derby for 1955 would be worth a total of $152,500 with a net purse of $108,400 going to the winner, topping the record of $102,050 earned by Andrew J. Crevolin's Determine a year ago. The second horse gets $25,000, the third $12,500 and the fourth $5,000 as these prizes also were increased.

The list set the number of potential triple crown winners at 79, for that many colts also appeared among both the record 152 Preakness nominations and the 118 Belmont Stakes eligibles.

Heading the list was Nashua, Belair Stud's champion who recently won the $100,000 added Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah Park, along with Montpelier's Saratoga, the colt who trailed him home. The West Coast had the $100,000 added Santa Anita Derby winner on the roster in Rex C. Ellsworth's Swaps, as well as Jean's Joe and Blue Ruler, the Murcain Stable colts who finished second and third behind him.

In addition, Paul Andolino's unbeaten Boston Doge, winner of the Hibiscus and Bahamas Stakes, and Hasty House Farm's Prince Noor, winner of the Everglades at Hialeah Park, graced the star-studded list.

Other stakes winners from Santa Anita's winter meeting were Battle Dance, winner of the Los Feliz for Taylor Crest Farm, and In Reserve, one of two fillies nominated, who won the Santa Ynez Stakes for the Alberta Ranches of Calgary, Ont. Claiborne Farm named the other filly in Delta, one of the best of her age and sex a year ago.

Leading the outstanding juveniles of 1954 who have yet to race this season was Mrs. John W. Galbreath's Summer Tan, winner of the $269,965 Garden State Stakes last fall. Summer Tan was rated one pound higher than Nashua at 128 pounds in the Experimental Handicap ratings.

Other promising young thoroughbreds nominated include Royal Coinage, Flying Fury, Trentonian, Bunny's Babe, Roman Patrol, Georgian, Our Prince, Simmy, Beau Busher, Chuck Thompson, Door Prize, Fleet Path, Gold Box, Munchausen, Right Down, and Traffic Judge.

By JERRY WYNN

It was a belated Homecoming for George Kerrigan at Virginia CC last week.

Kerrigan took over the teaching pro chores at the club in the absence of head pro Joe Robinson, who began a temporary leave of absence to recover from recent illness.

As a 23-year-old in 1923, Kerrigan received a big boost in his young career with appointment at Virginia, one that lasted a year. Thirty-two years wiser and an established success as a teaching pro in the East, he's returned.

Asked if he noticed any marked change in the Virginia course, Kerrigan replied:

"There have been many alterations in the layout, but it still plays about as tough as it did thirty years ago. I held the course record of 65 when I was pro and they're not shooting much better these days."

Kerrigan recalled Ed Jones, Gene Stanley and Fred Hicks as being exceptionally fine players at Virginia then and

GEORGE KERRIGAN
Teaching at Virginia CC

remarked that he was pleased to find Jones and Stanley still active in the club.

Although very active, himself, during all of the three decade interval of his absence from Virginia, it was Kerrigan's experiences in the "Roaring Twenties," golf's first boom days in this country, that are particularly captivating.

"Golf was almost exclusively a rich man's sport in the Twenties. Among my pupils were such financiers as Charles Schwab and Eugene Grace of Bethlehem Steel and E. B. McLean, the billionaire owner of the famous Hope Diamond."

Kerrigan's story of McLean's entrance into golf is a good illustration of those times — when little was thought impossible if one possessed the money and incentive.

"McLean was a good friend of President Warren Harding, who was an enthusiastic golfer. One day, Harding was telling McLean of the difficulty of breaking 80. McLean scoffed at the remark and bet the President $500 that he would break 80 in his first official round of play.

"The bet became all-consuming to McLean, who promptly built his own private course and hired his own personal pro. After almost a year of constant practice, McLean informed the President he was ready.

"He shot a 78 and won the bet!"

(Kerrigan interjected, in good-old teaching pro fashion, that the story is also a good example of what practice can mean.)

"My biggest playing victory during those days came in an exhibition match with Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood at Bar Harbor, Maine. My game wasn't going well at the time and I realized how important a good showing in such company would mean.

"Much to my amazement and to that of the gallery of some 3,000, I shot a 65 to win.

"My most disappointing experience came in the 1924 SC-PGA championships at Brentwood CC.

"I was playing Dick Linares of Recreation Park in the finals and we were even going into the 18th hole. My approach was a dandy and I was lying in two about five feet from the pin. But Linares delivered his approach a few feet closer and in a direct stymie between my ball and the cup. Attempting to chip over it, I hit his ball like a billiard shot and it went right into the cup for the title."

Kerrigan came back the following year to beat Hutt Martin in the finals.

Long Beach welcomes back George Kerrigan!

TWO MAJOR women's club tournaments begin this week.

Play starts Monday in the annual Lakewood 54-hole medal Vic Baker tournament with Dorothy Clarke defending her name on the perpetual trophy in honor of the club's veteran head pro.

The Recreation Park ladies will open the first annual Maurice Carl 54-hole medal tourney on Tuesday. Carl, long-time supporter and promoter of Park junior golf, will donate a perpetual trophy, to be won by the low net victor over the field.

Among those who will be in contention for the title are Kay Boemer, Ura Soares, Adele Labmann and Dorothy King — all who broke 100 for the first time last week.

HOLE-IN-ONE happy were Bill Elgin, Jr., Ronald Hargreaves and Harold French.

Elgin of 909 Newport Ave. aced the 128-yard eighth hole at the South Course with an 8-iron in a foursome with Tut Hall, Shelby Sampson and Lance Harper.

Hargreaves of 775 Junipero Ave., chose the 180-yard sixth at the South Course while playing with William Owen, Tony Kopp and Lenny Freidberg.

French of 4409 Stanbridge Ave. connected on Lakewood's 175-yard 17th with a 5-iron. It was French's first in 20 years and was witnessed by Claud Ward, Bob Robertson and club professional Bob Neill.

DICK LAWSON, JR., 70-8, fired a sensational 62 to win the Virginia Men's Club Saturday Sweepstakes and highlight competition that saw 20 players break 70 net.

Ralph Irwin, 72-9, was a stroke behind in second place followed by Bob Reid, 74-9—65, and Stewart Small, 74-8—66. Tied at 67 were W. W. Schooling, 78-11; Alan Hess, 79-12; and Milt Arthur, 77-10. Don Schorovsky, 75-7; Bud Hamilton, 78-10; J. V. Evans, 77-9; Del Walker, 70-2; Jess Shackelton, 81-13; Dennis Seifres, 78-10, and Dr. Cliff Easley were grouped at 68.

Blind Bogey (77) victors were Don Berry, Harry Bouchier, William Kinley, Hal Leedy, W. W. Bradley, Bert Galleher and D. S. Perkins.

STRETCH CARAWAY
One of El Toro Stars

Service Fives in L.B. Play

Five of the leading service teams in the area open fire in the LBCC gym Monday night in the first annual Long Beach Armed Forces Invitational basketball tournament.

The El Toro Marines, sparked by Dick Rawlings of St. John's (Minn.), are favored to win the three-day local tourney. Doubleheaders are scheduled Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Other teams entered are Long Beach Navy, Coast Guard, Fort MacArthur and the Long Beach Jets (Air Force). L. B. Navy is considered the tourney darkhorse, but draws the rugged El Toro quintet in Monday night's opener at 7:15.

Rawlings captained the St. John's team in two of his four letterman years. He stands 6-3 and has a variety of fine shots. Teaming with Rawlings to form El Toro's potent 1-2 punch is Bob (Stretch) Caraway, 6-4 center from Illinois, who is considered one of the top college prospects playing service ball.

L. B. Navy will field an all-star team composed of members from the high scoring T. I. Navy base, directed by Frank Kirkland. The team includes two former all-state prep stars, J. J. Bleehman from Tennessee and Bud Beckett from Indiana; Russ Nystad, center from University of New Mexico; Steve Narracci from the University of Connecticut, and Don Reed from Oklahoma A&M.

Major Gustav A. Kraft coaches the L. B. Jets, who meet the Ft. MacArthur Eagles in Monday night's second game at 9:15. Tom Burford coaches the Eagles. El Toro is coached by T/S J. B. Moore and the Coast Guard quint is managed by Lt. James Frost.

Tuesday night's games will find Monday night's losers battling at 7:15 and the El Toro-L. B. Navy winner meeting the Coast Guard at 9:15. Finals are scheduled Thursday.

Tournament director Richard W. Barnes announced that all games will be open to the public free of charge. The L. B. Armed Forces Service Commission is sponsoring the affair as part of its athletic program for local servicemen.

rank going down the hill, but once we got in the clear he ran a powerful race."

St. Vincent, the public choice, paid $7.20, 4.30 and 3.30 across the board. Determine, the sentimental favorite with the crowd, and coupled with Alidon, returned $4.70 and 4.00, while Gigantic's show price was $8.40.

It was St. Vincent's third stakes victory over the grass course this winter and was accomplished under the burden of 123 pounds, third highest in the race.

He was purchased by Max Bell, Calgary publisher and one of the partners in the Alberta Ranches stable, for 5,100 British pounds after seeing him run a swift mile in almost as fast time as the feature stakes race on the same card in England, George Gardiner, Toronto stock broker, is a joint owner of the horse along with the Alberta Ranches.

St. Vincent's victory is another feather in the cap of Vance Longden, Johnny's son, who is chief trainer for the Alberta Ranches string.

New Five-Year Pact

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UP)—Syracuse University football coach Floyd (Ben) Schwartzwalder has signed a new five-year contract, it was announced Saturday.

19-Day Harness Meet Opens Saturday

Harness racing follows the thoroughbreds into Santa Anita this week with two stakes highlighting the opening of the 19-day WHRA spring meeting Saturday.

The $4,000-added Riverside Trot and the $4,000-added Arcadia Pace are the opening day co-features.

Some of the nation's top sulky stars have been training for the meeting at Del Mar and at the Bay Meadows combination harness-quarterhorse meet, which closed Saturday.

Leon Boring, readying a large public stable at Del Mar, appears to have a strong hand in the Riverside with J. G. McNamara's R. K. Giers and Mrs. Al Eastin's Song of Scotland, both of whom have turned in sparkling drills lately. Veteran Jake Rodman also will have Herman Graham's Joan's Victor in peak form and he is a stout contender.

In the north, driver-trainer Ken Cartnal apparently has a top trotter in William Lachenmaier's Style Prince. The horse has been away from competition for two years but showed he is back in sound condition recently by finishing a strong second to Diana Volo.

The Arcadia also will draw top contenders from both the north and south. Charles Henry's Black Andy tops the band which will journey to Santa Anita from the San Mateo meet. The five-year-old gelding has scored three straight wins in the north for Driver-Trainer Jack Williams Jr.

At Del Mar, Larry Masterton has Walton Stable's Hank W. ready for a shot at the Arcadia. Fourth in the Western Pace last fall, Hank W.'s best victory at Hollypark was a 2:04 win against class B competition.

It is reported from the Del Mar training quarters that Stan Adams, leading driver last fall with 14 wins, will have one of the most powerful stables at the spring meeting. The Indiana veteran has C. W. Clark's Express Hal in good form to defend his title in the $15,000-added Californian Pace April 7, and he will have one of the top trotters on the grounds in Clark's Sharp Note, the 1952 Hambletonian winner.

BOWLING ALONG

Japanese-American Citizens League bowlers wind up their ninth annual national tournament today at the Virginia and Ken Mar alleys with an awards dinner and dance tonight at the Wilton.

It climaxes a four-day pin binge for over 500 Nisei men and women. Teams participated from as far East as Chicago and west as Hawaii.

Kenny Martinson, of the Ken Mar, reveals he bid for the tourney two years ago. The overflow entries allowed him to share facilities with the Virginia.

UNUSUAL incidents were the rule rather than exception in last week's league play. For instance:

Nelda Jenkins in the Tuesday Housewife Foursome at Lakewood fired a 178 triplicate for a 534. . . . Helm's Tires, in the Monday 865 Scratch at the Blvd., blasted a new team high series of 2,852. . . . Two men on the same team in the 925 Classic at the Blvd. twirled 269 games for new season high marks. They were Slim Troost and Chuck Newey. . . . Bill Vance in the Monday Pacific Valve at North Long Beach, clicked off a 252. He owns a 144 book. . . .

Also in Monday's activity at North Long Beach, the "800" scratch, Bill McGaffey who owns a 127 book, twirled a 201-201-566. It was his first 200 game and initial 500 series. Vic Hodge came up with an all spare game of 179. . . . Ethel Staton, 120 book, fired a 168 in the Monday Mixed Trio at the Belmont. Another low average pinsman coming up with a top effort was D. Solomon in the Blvd. 800 handicap. He managed a 202-530. . . .

Fire Dept. "B" fired a game total of 1,012 in the City Employes wheel at the Major. Their average is 841.

Mrs. Lou Galaz licked all the men in the North Long Beach Mixed Wednesday with a 201-573. Gloria Woods, 117 book, rolled her highest game ever, a 186. . . .

Lowell Beckman deserves a paragraph all his own. Lowell cut loose with 11 strikes in a row in the 875 at Va. He sheared off eight on his final ball for a 298. He'll receive a special award from the ABC.

HITHER AND YON:

The thrill of bowling on opening night of the ABC tournament every year more than compensates for the odds against his team's ever winning any prizes, is the way George Lazzaroni looks at it. Lazzarini, who operates the Hotel Clair bowling lanes at Lake Geneva, Wis., will again have his team, which had reservation No. 1 for the 1955 tournament, on this year's opening night squad at Fort Wayne, March 26.

The ABC is attempting to find the national average of bowlers. In the March mailing of award kits to some 42,000 leagues will be included a questionnaire relative to averages in each league.

Wrestling Switched to Tuesday

Wrestling's big switch to Tuesdays takes effect here this week as the professional grunt and grimace artists check into the Municipal Auditorium two days earlier than usual and the local promoter, Louie Miller, renewed his pledge to provide better programs because of the change.

Starting the series this Tuesday will be Tom Rice and Juan Humberto in a tag team match with Sandor Szabo and Don Arnold.

Miller sprinkled some new faces through the preliminary card, topping it with Bill Malby against Juan Sepeda in the semi-main. Johnny Venas collides with Johnny Demcheck in the opener. Neither Malby or Venas has appeared here.

Vic Christy meets Nicky Bockwinkle in a half-hour special event. The show starts at 8:30.

Wrestling for years has been held here on Thursday nights, but Miller decided on the switch of days because he was assured of fewer interruptions in his weekly series. He previously has been caught by various week end conventions and exhibitions that forced cancellation of the matmen.

In Rice and Humberto, Szabo and Arnold will be up against a pair of the roughest men in the business. In addition, many critics are of the opinion that Humberto and Rice are unethical and practice illegal tactics. This is categorically denied by both.

The same reserved seat ticket setup is in effect, with the ducats available at the Union Cigar Store, Ocean and Pine, on Monday. Prices start at 75 cents for general admission.

Add Destruction Derby to CJA Gardena Program

Motorized "A" (for auto) bombs roar into action today at Gardena Stadium as the track's first "Destruction Derby" involving eight stock cars is staged in conjunction with the regular CJA jalopy speedfest. Trials start at 1 p. m., racing at 2:30.

The demolition event features two four-car teams—the Allied Wrecking "Whites" vs. Eddie Pack's "Blacks," cars being painted those colors for team identification. When one group has battered the other out of action, survivors then turn upon teammates to determine who'll be the only one able to steer one lap around the track.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Ron Howarth, 1841 Chatwin Ave., a student at Long Beach State College, has done what few anglers can ever hope to duplicate. Ron caught two 22-inch rainbow trout while fishing off the landing at Boulder Bay, Lake Mead.

To catch a trout in Lake Mead is rare, but to hook two such fish while fishing off the dock is almost unbelievable. Lake Mead is populated mostly by bass, crappie and catfish.

Ron and a friend, Mike Callan, 178 Pomona Ave., also a LBSC student, took a trip to Lake Mead recently, fully intending to fish for bass and crappie. But their outboard broke down shortly after they left the dock and they rowed back. There they were stranded for the rest of the day.

They bought some shiners for bait and started fishing off the landing. Ron caught both trout, using a spinning outfit. Oldtimers around the dock told the youths that there hadn't been two dozen trout caught there in 10 years.

Two other Long Beach fishermen, Park Hagan, 1126 Amelia Dr., and Roy Garrett, 1125 Andrews Dr., went to a different spot on the Colorado — Cottonwood Cove on Lake Mojave—and they, too, had a field day. They returned here with full limits of fish, and what fish! Their largest was an 8¼-pounder. They also had three 7-pounders, four others that weighed 6¼ pounds each, one 4½-pounder and the rest in the 2-pound classification.

RON HOWARTH
That's Real Fishing

They used waterdogs for bait and fished deep. They found the weather windy and cold, but here were plenty of other anglers there for the weekend.

Cottonwood Cove is developing into one of the hottest spots along the Colorado River string of lakes for bass fishing. R. D. Cole, one of the camp operators, and Lester Burke of Garden Grove fished together a few days ago and came in with limits of fish ranging from 6 to 9 pounds.

MICKEY SHOWS 'EM

Perhaps this story is a little out of date, but it hasn't been printed here and it is a good one. It concerns the adventures of Mickey Gastwirth, a member of the Long Beach Recreation Dept. staff, who last month attended a convention of recreation officials in Santa Cruz.

Mickey showed up one rainy morning at the mouth of the San Lorenzo River, wearing ordinary street clothes, plus a raincoat, plus a hotel towel wrapped around his head for protection from the rain. There were dozens of natives, all clad in rain gear, and fishing for steelhead.

Mickey watched them for a few minutes and saw an angler cast toward a spot in the boiling river mouth where a steelie had swirled. The angler connected, but instantly lost the fish. Mickey uncoiled his spinning outfit and made a cast toward the same spot. WHAM! He had one on and, for the next few minutes, waded in and out of the surf battling his fish. He finally landed a six-pounder while the natives cheered.

Mickey had bought a spinning lure on a nearby pier just prior to the expedition. He didn't linger for another cast, but took his fish, returned to the hotel and changed clothes just in time to make the morning conference.

The word got around the conference hall and Mickey received a lot of congratulations. No angler in my opinion ever deserved praise more than Mickey. He spends a great part of each summer arranging trips for boys to fish at various places near Long Beach.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS

The Corona Rod and Gun Club has a benefit trapshoot scheduled today at its lakeside clubhouse on Cota St., Corona, with the proceeds to go to the Girl Scouts. The club will give the usual array of chickens and grocery baskets to the winners of the various events. Shooting starts at 9 a. m.

Alamitos Bay Sportsmen will install officers at a dinner-dance at the Lafayette Hotel Friday night, with Steve DaCosta, popular "daddy" of the ABS driving down from Las Vegas to perform the installation duties.

Just because you have heard that halibut have been caught in Santa Monica Bay, don't expect them to turn up here immediately. It's still early and the successes out of Malibu are just occasional, not every-day events. Mostly the ocean boats are sticking to rockfishing and trying for others when the signs indicate fish are there.

The Fisherman Press, Oxford, Ohio, which publishes the monthly magazine, The Fisherman, has really gone all-out this year with its latest edition of the Fishermans Handbook ($1.25). If you are looking for anything pertaining to the outdoors, you'll find it in the 512 pages of this book. There are charts of where to fish in each state, maps of coastal waters and a list of the 32 best fresh-water fishing spots in the U. S., as determined by a nationwide survey.

PALO ALTO (AP)—Matt Hazeltine, who starred at center for the University of California last football season, smashed over for a try Saturday as the Golden Bears' rugby team defeated Stanford, 10-8.

BOOSTERS POLL

Smith Top Feb. Athlete

Jimmy Ralph Smith, scrappy Poly High guard, is the "athlete of the month" for February, the Long Beach Sports Boosters announced Saturday.

Smith, a fine playmaker, was one of the big sparkplugs in the Rabbits' drive to the Coast League title. He averaged 10.7 points per game in 12 league games.

Fritz Krauth of the Long Beach Flying Wheels was runner-up in the February balloting. Third place went to Ronnie Robertson, who finished second in the World Amateur at Vienna. Wilson High guard Roger Gurich was fourth in the poll.

AAA Adds Three to Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Automobile Assn. (AAA) Saturday added three of the world's greatest racing names to the automobile racing hall of fame, bringing the total to 17.

The only living member of the trio is Tommy Milton, now a consultant engineer at Detroit. One of the racing giants of the 20's, Milton ranks second in all-time national championship points.

Selected posthumously were Dario Resta, British star who won the Indianapolis "500" in 1916 and set a single season total point record, and Bob Burman, onetime holder of the mile record and the "king of speed" in pre-World War I days.

Two National Events Top Nitehawks' Softball Slate

The Long Beach Nitehawks, the "Yankees of softball" and somewhat of an institution in this city, will field one of their strongest teams in many years and will represent the city in two International Softball League tourneys this summer, field manager Joe Rodgers revealed Saturday.

In the most ambitious season ever undertaken by the local club, Rodgers and his players will travel to Ft. Madison, Iowa, July 2-6 for an international tourney sponsored by the VFW, and then after a short home stand will return to the Midwest for the ISL tourney at New Bedford, Ill., from Aug. 28 to Sept. 5.

Most of the old Nitehawk regulars will return this year. Exceptions are outfielders Lou Novikoff and Les Worden, who have decided to retire. For Novikoff it marks the end of a fabulous diamond career that included a long march down the softball trail with Rodgers and a few years of major and minor league baseball. Usually above .350 in the minors and in softball, the "Mad Russian" had his troubles with major league pitching.

Regulars back for another year include first sacker Larry Silvas, second baseman Cleo Goyette, shortstop Jimmy Jones and third baseman Clint Herron. Stan White will again be behind the plate, while Ted Carlsgaard and Jack Randall will share the mound chores with a sensational newcomer still to be named.

The outfield this year will place the accent on speed. Bill Hull will be back from the 1954 team, while Paul (Lucky) Humiston, Chuck King of Fresno State and Bob Pollock, former Compton College great, will fight it out for the other two spots.

The veteran Red Meairs will again handle coaching and reserve catching duties for the locals.

The ISL tourney at New Bedford will mark the fifth straight year in which the Hawks have played in the National Softball event. All the teams entered in the tourney, with the exception of the Hawks and the defending champions, will be state championship clubs.

The Ft. Madison Invitational will feature the top 12 teams in all of softball. Carrol Forbes, executive secretary of the ISL, has already notified Rodgers that the Nitehawks are officially eligible for both events.

The Hawks will play their home games on Friday night at Park Ave. Field and will open training on April 10.

Big Field Set for Sprint Car Inaugural

A flood of entries has assured California Racing Association officials of a brilliant field of chauffeurs for the season's first program of sprint car and hot road roadster races at the new Gardena Stadium next Sunday.

Upwards of 50 CRA automotive jockeys will be on hand for time trials, with the 21 fastest cars going to the post later in the day's 100-lap windup.

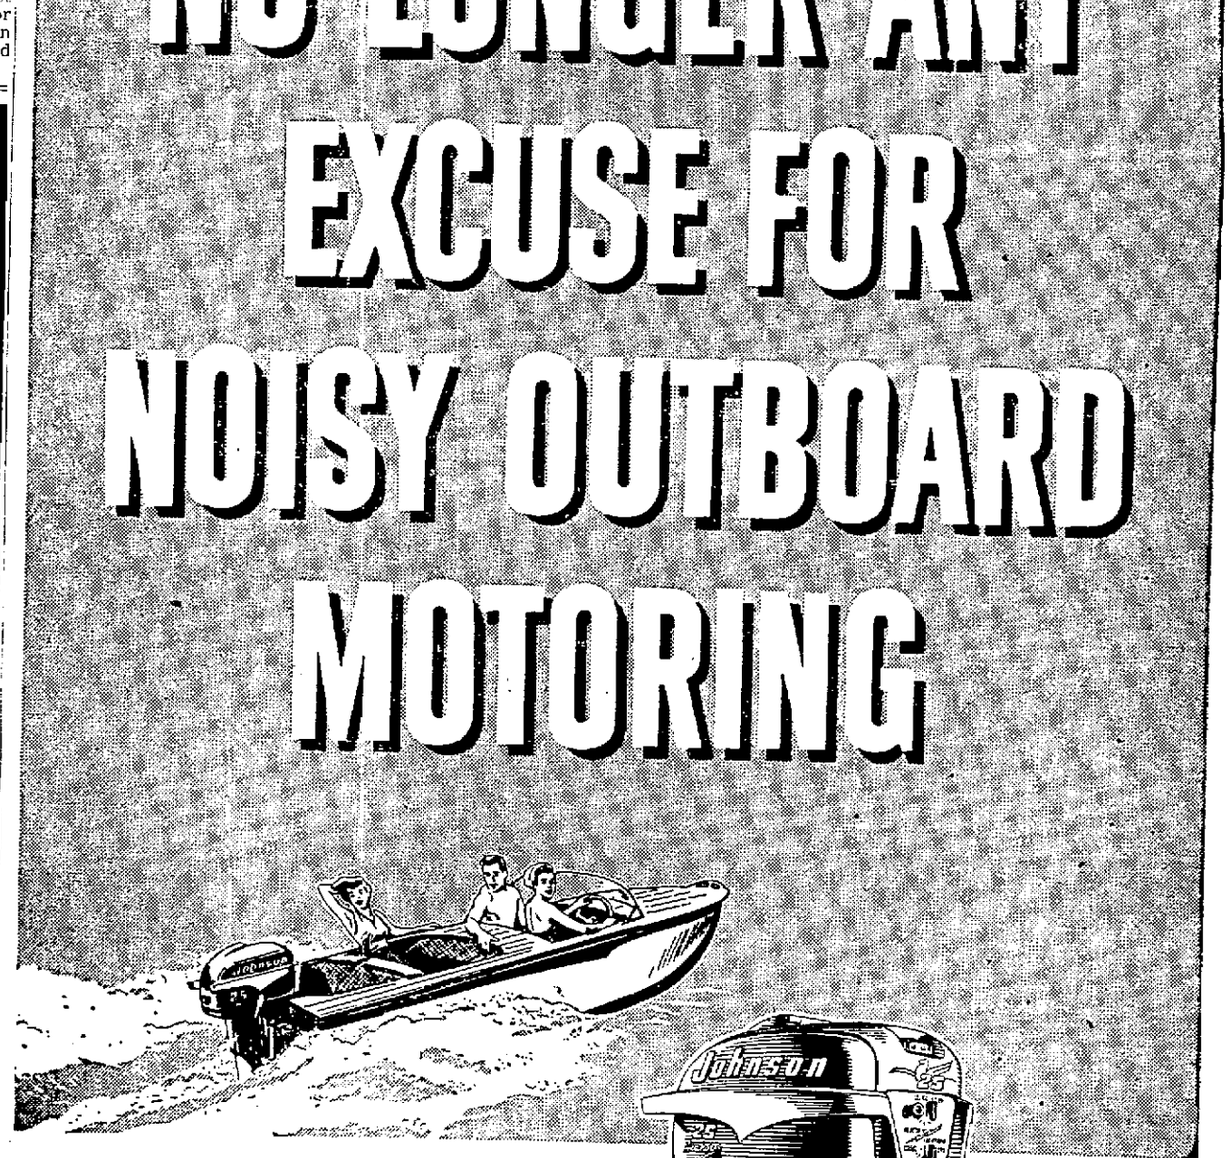

All proceeds from the program will be given to the Southern California Chapter, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation.

'Stalag 17' So Realistic Audience Forgets Applause

By JEAN MOORE

Call it a comedy if you insist, "Stalag 17" nevertheless brings stark realism of behind the scenes of war. It exposes brutality, treachery, distrust and eventual heroism realistically enough to numb an audience into forgetting to applaud the first curtain.

Such happened on Friday night at the opening of The Theatre's vivid presentation of Donald Bevan and Edmund Trzcinski's play which takes place in a German prisoner of war barracks during World War II.

With assistance of Gerald Brown, Pat Brown directed the centrally staged play with canny know-how and a well chosen all male cast.

For their sublime comedy, top honors go to Chris Soltys and Roy Malmberg, not so much for their lines, which would bring a chuckle from the Sphinx, but for their never once dropping character. The authors gave them ribald American humor, and they made the most of it, to the guffaws of the first-nighters.

As the unpopular GI who barters with his German guards and who is suspected of being an informer. Dene Hilyard does a commendable job, although he seemed years too young for the role. Rather than arousing a feeling of dislike on the part of the audience, he aroused sympathy.

Outstanding in the brief parts were Dick Fullmer as the German captain, Art Zahler as the betrayed flyer and refreshing, breezy Jerry Milleville as the little mail sergeant.

In his straight role, Roy Peterson deserves special mention for his sincerity. Robert Sorrells plays his particularly difficult role with finesse.

Credit for the impressive German spoken by the enemy side no doubt goes to Robert Faircloth, the German corporal, who developed the accent while overseas.

Others commendable in their roles were Paul Lorenz, Warren Taylor, Robert Milner, Lloyd Martin, Tom Rauscher, Ivan Marco and Travis Bryan.

"Stalag 17" continues nightly, excepting Mondays, through March 19 at The Theatre, 2400 Magnolia Ave.

Anita Ekberg Gets Film Role but Her Curves Will Be Hidden

HIDDEN BEAUTY

RIGHT: Anita's well-endowed figure well-hidden for her movie role—so well-hidden that the first day on the set one of the crewmen yelled "Hey, Mac!" at her.

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Anita Ekberg has the kind of figure Marilyn Monroe could envy but you'll never see it in "Blood Alley," her first movie.

By that peculiar twist of Hollywood logic, the onetime "Miss Sweden" winds up looking more like a man than a woman in this picture.

The blonde, blue-eyed Swedish Venus is cast in the picture as a young Chinese girl fleeing the Reds. Her lovely skin was darkened with grease paint, her blonde hair covered with an ugly black wig and her famed figure (39-inch bust) completely hidden with ill-fitting rags.

And if that wasn't enough, director Bill Wellman made her carry a baby, papoose-style, on her back and a machine gun on her chest throughout most of the picture.

Her first day on the set, a crewman accidentally pushed her. He took one look at her and said "pardon me, Mac." He probably still thinks he brushed against a man.

It's hard to believe that it was the same girl who almost melted the Polar icecap when Bob Hope took her along with his troupe to entertain airmen at the remote Thule Base in Greenland.

William Holden, who also went along on that New Year's eve junket, recalls that he had never seen any girl get the reception this one did.

"I have heard GI's whistle and stomp their feet at curvy starlets but nothing like this," Holden recalls. "When Anita walked out on the stage in a tight-fitting sweater, these men didn't whistle, they just moaned. It took six minutes for the commotion to die down.

"Finally one airman yelled out 'what's her name?' but another voice from the other end of the hall yelled back 'who the hell cares?' and the moaning was on again."

The onetime model from Malmo, Sweden, isn't the least bit perturbed about her de-glamorization for "Blood Alley."

"I prefer that my first movie role give me a chance to prove I can act. If I can do that, I'll let the physical assets take care of themselves.

"Beauty," she expounds, "is not enough for success as an actress."

Her most pressing problem at the moment is language.

"I am just learning to speak good English with a Swedish accent and now Mr. Wellman wants me to speak it with a Chinese accent.

'Three Angels' Will Open at Community Playhouse

"My Three Angels," the comedy which scored a big hit on Broadway under the direction of Jose Ferrer, and with Walter Slezak in the top role, opens next Friday evening on the center stage of Long Beach Community Playhouse, 5021 E. Anaheim St.

The play, set in a region of French Guinea where on Christmas Day the temperature graciously drops to 104 degrees, tells how three convicts with sunny natures, one heart, clever hands and sleepless brains, become the good angels of a sadly harassed household where thefamily's out of food and with no roof over their heads, and where the father's about to lose his job and the daughter practically jilted for an heiress.

Pat Spencer will play the part of Joseph, which Slezak took in the Broadway version, it was announced by Director Larry Johns. The roles of Jules and Alfred, the other two convicts, will be enacted by Bob Hanrahan and Terrence Doyle.

Others in the cast will be Clara Sharon, Dave Taylor, Gloria Martin, Given Piercy, Jim Doherty, Gary Thomas and Bill Keith.

A second performance is scheduled on the Saturday evening following the opening, and the play will continue each Thursday, Friday and Saturday thereafter until mid-April. The curtain rises at 8:30 o'clock.

THE CREW CUT KICK

NEW YORK—I took my crew cut to call on Garry Moore's crew cut. Garry had a crew cut before the crew had it.

Noticing that he was wearing one of his famous bow ties as he sat with his feet on his desk at CBS, I asked if he had another one around the joint.

"One thing we've got around here is bow ties!" He brought out a whole boxful. I clipped one on.

"Now we do look alike," Garry said. "Anybody ever tell you that you looked like Buster Keaton?"

"All the time. Especially when I was younger. And sadder."

"Me, too," he said. "I suspect we both look more like buster Keaton than we look like us!"

Compared to Garry, George Gobel's a Johnny-Come-Lately with the crew cut.

"When I was a kid in Baltimore, everybody wore crew cuts," Garry told me. "But I'd always let mine grow in the winter. When I was working in radio in Chicago in the early 1940s, I wore a crew cut in the winter. Everybody fell down laughing.

"I felt it was my personal answer to Cantor's eyes and Durante's nose. Later I got sick of it, got rid of it, and got complaints, so we took a vote.

"The crew cut won. Perry Como, a good friend of mine, gave me a haircut on the show. As for the bow tie, when I get a little fed, I switch over to a long tie, and THAT gets complaints, too."

Garry's millions of women TV fans — including my gorgeous mother-in-law — don't want him to change, as that would be a blemish on perfection.

His brilliant success—he has 19 sponsors, and CBS doesn't bother him from one year to the next—is partly explained by the fact that he's been doing the same show, with different titles and different casts, for 20 years—with five out to be on radio with Jimmy Durante.

"I got the feeling that I was being carried by Durante and that if anything ever happened to him, I'd be Abbott without Costello," Garry says.

So Garry, who'd worked in St. Louis, Chicago and Hollywood, went back on his own in N. Y.—and now he works a tight 9-to-5 day, refusing lunches and cocktail parties, and declining to work Saturdays and Sundays. He weekends with his wife and two sons, Mason, 14, and Garry Jr., 11, and Red Wing, his 35-foot yawl.

THE WEEK END WINDUP

"DON'T PRINT THAT!": Did Jackie Gleason ask Billy Rose to invest $100,000 for him?. . . . What happened to that red leather wallet Serge Rubinstein seemed to have considerable money in that fatal night? (Could robbery have been the motive, after all?)

Mrs. Mario Lanza suffered a collapse. . . . Comic Dick Shawn, who had to sleep on the floor two years ago 'cause he couldn't afford furniture, is a 10 G-a-week hit at the Sahara. . . . The musical, "Fanny," pays off its entire $300,000 cost next month.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "After a year's engagement, if a man isn't fit to be roped, the girl's fit to be tied."—Mel Allen.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A WNEW disk jockey opened his program with the line, "This show needs no introduction—what it needs is some material."

It's H. G. Hutcheson's description of bores: "Some people can visit you longer in 15 minutes than other people can in hours." . . . That's earl, brother.

New Record at City Library

This week's list of unusual recordings added to the Public Library collection is rich in historical and cultural values.

One of the most talked about is the quasi-cantata by Bales. Called "The Confederacy." It gives a moving picture of an era, as seen through its music. Folk music is represented by "Africa: Music of the Malinke, and Music of the Baoule" (recorded in Africa) and "Ballads of Long Ago" (sung by Marais and Miranda, and accompanied by the Pardo Ancient Instrument Ensemble).

Vesuvius Victims Still Clutch Gold

POMPEI, Italy (AP)—The woman wore a bracelet, rings and earrings of gold. The man's hands held a small treasure in silver coins. With seven others of their family, they died huddled at a door of their fine home.

"They waited too long," said archaeologist Amendeo Maiuri.

The skeletons have just been uncovered from the ashes which Mt. Vesuvius spewed on Pompei in 79 A. D. It was the first such find in nearly a century amid the ruins where about 2,000 of the town's 20,000 people were trapped.

Books Reveal Art of Skiing, Skate Tricks

Skates are sharp these days and skis waxed down. The winter sports season is still here.

At Long Beach Public Library are many books that will help novices get a clear idea of fundamentals in winter sports and from which old pros may pick up a trick or two.

Written especially for children who want to learn how to ski, "Skiing for Beginners," by Conrad Brown, sticks to the basic maneuvers and has plenty of pictures. Frank Harper's "Skiing Naturally" is a new easy way to better skiing by Olympic championship method, illustrated by an expert skier-artist, Hilde Mills.

From Dartmouth Winter Sports Library is the volume, Walter Prager's, "Skiing."

Besides ski technique, you can learn all about a famous ski playground from Indian days to the present time in Tyler Nicolau's, "Story of Squaw Valley." The history of the sport can be traced in "Story of Skiing," by Arnold Lunn, father of the "Downhill Slalom" and the only living man who invented a sport to take its place in the Olympic Games programs.

To find out the best places to ski in the United States and Canada, Joan and David Landman will tell you "Where to Ski." And also there is John Jay's "Skiing the Americas."

Turning to skating: Olympic champion figure skater Dick Button's instructor, Gustave Lussi, tells everyone who wants to enjoy figure skating how, in his "Championship Figure Skating," ideal either for beginners or advanced competitors.

Barbara Anne Scott, champion skater, shows how she got there in her "Skate With Me," and Sonja Henie does likewise with "Wings on My Feet." Experienced enthusiasts will like Maribel Vinson's "Advanced Figure Skating."

Ike's Conference Seeks to Boost Latin Commerce

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower Saturday discussed improved trade and economic relations with Latin America with some of his top advisers in the field.

The White House conference on the subject was attended by presidential assistant Nelson A. Rockefeller, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, brother of the President, and Sen. Homer Capehart of Indiana, ranking Republican on the Senate banking committee.

Capehart said they talked about putting more imagination into the administration of the Export-Import Bank and into economic co-operation with Latin American countries.

Demos Seeking Reuther's Aid on Farm Supports

WASHINGTON (UP) — Democratic farm leaders said Saturday they are counting on CIO President Walter Reuther to help win House passage of a bill to restore rigid high price supports for farmers.

The bill would repeal the administration's program of flexible supports for five basic crops and would restore the rigid support program that until this year had prevailed for a decade.

It is expected to clear the House agriculture committee by a lopsided vote Tuesday. The committee has many farm congressmen who favor high price guarantees.

WASHINGTON (UP) — Attorney General Herbert Brownell Saturday asked state governors to nominate boys and girls for awards of Young American medals for bravery and service in 1954.

The medals, created by Congress in 1950, give recognition each year to boys and girls 18 years of age and younger who had performed an outstanding act of bravery or had achieved an outstanding record of endeavor, service or recognition of character.

Official Bans Doomed Men's Writings

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Publication posthumously—if at all—is to be the fate of any future writings by persons awaiting execution in California.

That ruling was applied this week when Caryl Chessman was denied the right to offer his new book, "Trial by Ordeal," for publication. Chessman, in San Quentin Prison's condemned row, is the author of "Cell 2455-Death Row," which enjoyed a good sale.

After Chessman's first volume was published, some other men under death sentence tried to get permission to market their writings. They were turned down.

An aide to Richard McGee, director of corrections, commented Saturday that McGee's decision to impose the ban was based on a ruling last Dec. 31 by the California attorney general, which said:

"Prison authorities may forbid prisoners to send out manuscripts or any other class of material—other than legal documents—but the ability of a prisoner to submit a manuscript to a publisher is not dependent on the existence of civil rights."

Pope to Attend Rite Celebrating 16th Anniversary

VATICAN CITY (U.P.) — Pope Pius XII will attend a ceremony in the Sistine Chapel March 12, marking his 16th anniversary as head of the Catholic Church, the Vatican announced today.

It will be the first time in three years the Pontiff has attended the ceremony. Illness forced him to cancel attendance in 1953 and 1954.

Vatican sources said the health of the 79-year-old Pope has steadily improved since the illness that raised fears for his life three months ago.

Falls 15 Floors, Dies Hour Later

OAKLAND —Window washer Mario Vlahov, about 50, fell from a 15th floor window ledge Saturday and smashed through a skylight to the marble floor of a downtown bank. He was alive and conscious when rescuers reached him but died an hour later in a hospital.

Police said Vlahov was at work on the top floor of the Central Bank Building when his safety belt apparently broke.

SMOKE LEADS POLICEMEN TO STILL; 3 HELD

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police became curious when they noticed smoke curling up from the chimney of a supposedly vacant house, Friday.

The local gendarmes investigated and found:

One 400-gallon liquor still in operation.

Three men.

The still was confiscated. The men were arrested. The smoke stopped curling up from the chimney of the now vacant house.

French Premier Picks Defense Plan Chief

PARIS (U.P.)—Premier Edgar Faure gave Gaston Palewski sweeping powers over defense planning and nuclear research Saturday in what may be a first step toward French production of atomic and hydrogen bombs.

Palewski, a conservative supporter of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and an outspoken foe of West German rearmament, will be responsible for co-ordinating all defense plans and activities, including the work of France's atomic energy commission.

Tests Bare No Clue in Coed Death

NEW YORK (AP) — Published reports Saturday quoted police sources as saying laboratory tests of the clothing of William Patrick Farrell have failed to disclose any evidence linking him with the slaying of coed Ann Yarrow.

Farrell, 25, allegedly signed a statement to police admitting responsibility for the brutal sex slaying of Miss Yarrow in her dingy walkup apartment on the fringe of Greenwich Village.

Her body was discovered Feb. 6 by a friend. An autopsy showed Miss Yarrow was raped, strangled and mutilated with 37 stab wounds.

Farrell made his alleged confession after he was arrested on charges of raping his 20-year-old sister-in-law, Irene Miller.

Stokowski to Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Leopold Stokowski Saturday was named permanent conductor of the Houston Symphony Orchestra. Miss Ima Hogg, president of the Houston Symphony Society, and Harmon Whittington, chairman of the board, said the world famed conductor has agreed to a three-year contract, effective next fall.

It's 30 Below, but Fairbanks Mermaids Splash

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (U.P.) — Fairbanks' annual winter carnival opened today with rivers frozen solid in 30-below weather, and Fairbanks clothing stores reporting sellouts on bathing suits.

What do bathing suits have to do with a winter carnival? More than 60 women bought them to try out for the water ballet, today's carnival feature.

But no ice was broken and no cold dips were taken during a month of rehearsals. The water ballet is being staged in the huge Baker Fieldhouse at Eielson Air Force Base, where the aqua girls shed their furfringed parkas and felt-lined overshoes to perform in the big green pool, well heated against the Arctic cold.

Besides the opening day parade and the water ballet, the carnival also includes selection of Miss Alaska to represent the territory in the Miss Universe contest at Long Beach.

The idea for an aquacade in the middle of an Arctic winter came from "Blitz" Griffin, a wandering Texan, who came to Alaska four years ago.

Actually, Griffin had planned the aquacade for an outdoor show last summer. When plans didn't materialize before the end of summer, Griffin saved his ideas for the winter carnival.

The first call for women who could swim went out in January. Housewives, high school girls, Alaska University co-eds and businesswomen answered the call. Thirty swimmers were selected from the original 60.

Came rehearsal time. Griffin still had problems. For one thing, he had never seen a water ballet before. But he had an idea of how one ought to look, because he had seen some pictures. Griffin and two assistants, Mildred Scanlon and Gina Baker, worked out swimming routines to represent the 12 months of the year.

For the participants the water ballet is an opportunity to swim in a land where such opportunities are few, especially at 30-below. For the carnival, the ballet is a new wrinkle added to the usual winter sports.

Last Bid Given Oratorio Singers

Final chance to join the Long Beach Civic Chorus for its Easter Oratorio will be 7:30 p. m. Monday in John Dewey School auditorium, 8th St. and Locust Ave., according to Rolla Alford, who will conduct the rehearsal.

The oratorio, "Seven Last Words," will be sung Tuesday April 5, in Municipal Auditorium. Accompaniment will be played by the Long Beach Philharmonic Orchestra.

Sponsoring the admission-free performance are the Long Beach Council of Churches and the Recreation Department.

A $5,000,000 CRACKER

Marking a big expansion, the Hancock Oil Co. is installing a $5,000,000 addition to the refinery on Junipero in Signal Hill. This big cracking unit will enable faster production of high octane gasoline.

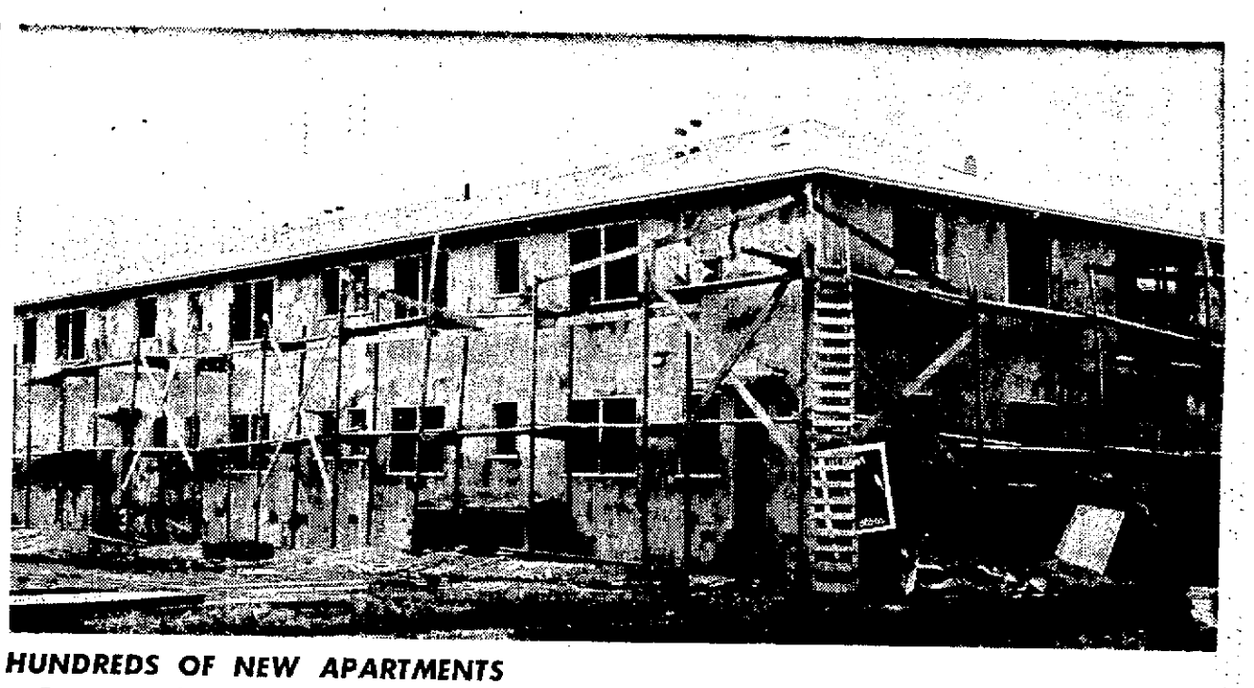

HOUSES FIRST, STORES FOLLOW

For several years Long Beach has seen construction of new homes breaking all records. Now, commercial development is pacing the construction industry, bringing new stores and industries into the area. The Pacific Air Industries Photo at the top shows work under way on the L. S. Whaley Co., Los Altos Shopping Center at Bellflower Blvd. and Stearns St. The lower photo shows the new Walker's Store in the background while piling have been driven in the foreground for the new J. C. Penney Co. store and other stores along the mall extending from Walker's.

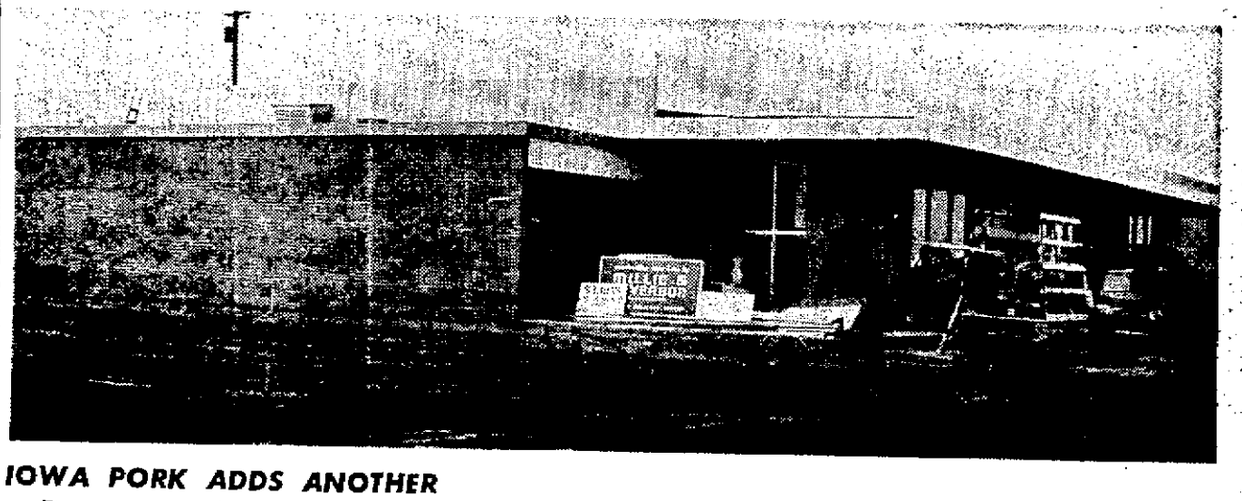

LAKEWOOD CENTER STILL GROWING

Construction of another mall section running from the May Co. south is well under way in Lakewood Center. The big new mall will house several major stores in the fast-growing center. This development is part of the overall plan announced at the birth of the big shopping center.

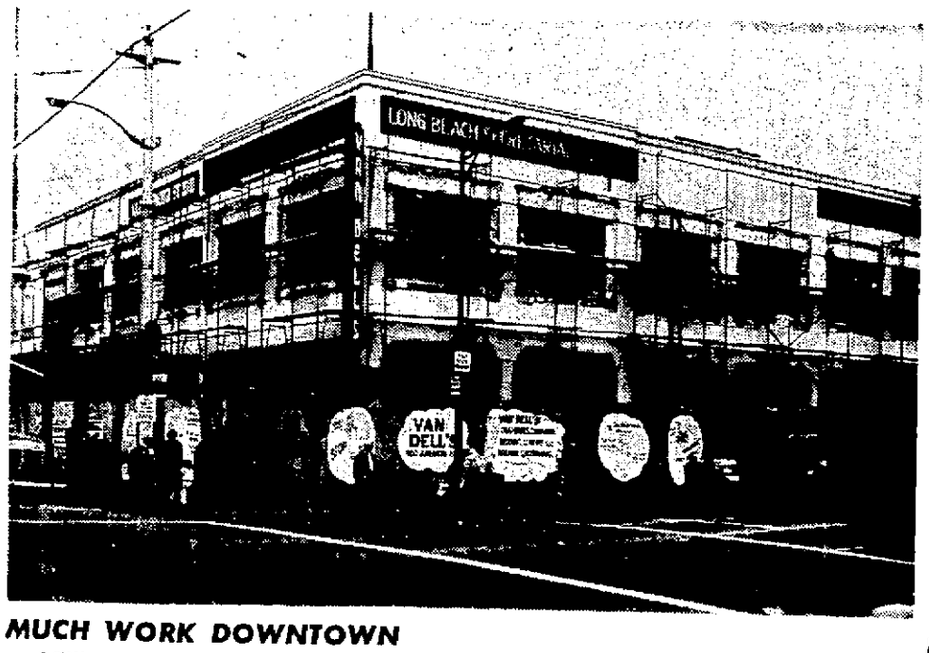

HUNDREDS OF NEW APARTMENTS

In every section of the city new apartments are springing up rapidly. This is a 26-unit apartment which soon will be completed at 231 Belmont Ave. There has been a big increase in own-your-own apartment construction the past four months, building records show.

IOWA PORK ADDS ANOTHER

Ready to open shortly will be this new Iowa Pork Shops market at Stearns St. and Palos Verde Ave. It will serve a section of Los Altos and Lakewood Plaza and is another L. S. Whaley development.

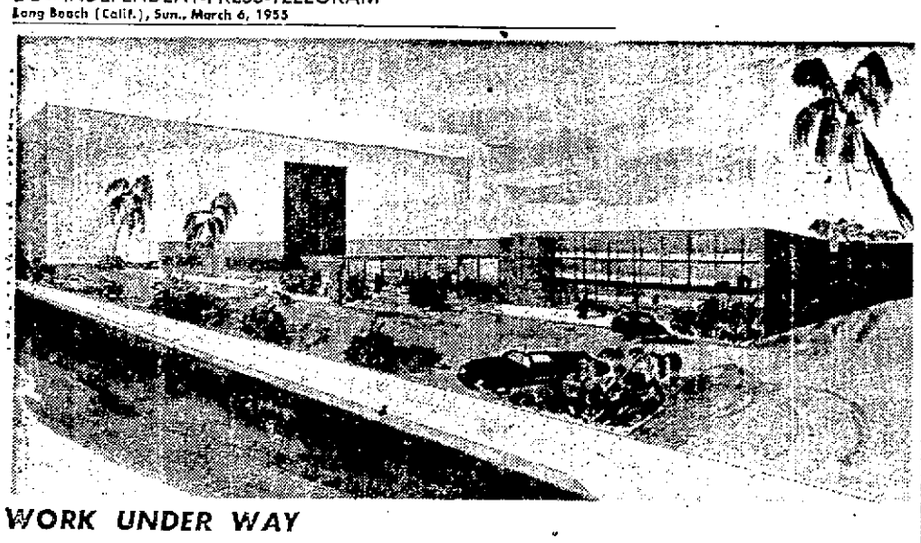

MUCH WORK DOWNTOWN

Millions of dollars in construction will be done in downtown Long Beach this year including a big new J. C. Penney store at Fifth and Pine. Other stores are remodeling like Van Dell's, 400 American Ave., shown here with a $50,000 improvement program under way.

EDISON CO. BUILDING $24 MILLION PLANT

Work is well under way on the foundation of the big new Southern California Edison Co. $24,000,000 unit of its Alamitos steam-electric generating station on East 7th St. at the San Gabriel River. Completion is scheduled for late 1956. The new plant will serve the fast-growing area of East Long Beach and adjacent Orange County areas where homes and industries have been constructed at a rapid rate the past three years. When fully completed the plant will have four huge generating units.

WORK UNDER WAY

Architectural rendering shows the new $600,000 Blue Seal Service Laundry, dry cleaning, linen supply and Fluff-n-Fold plant now being erected on Carson Blvd., just east of Cherry Ave. Peter Ficker, A.I.A., and William P. Ficker, associate, are the architects, Atkins & Wiggins, Inc., are the general engineering contractors. Completion is scheduled for about Sept. 1.

Work Under Way on $600,000 Laundry

Ground was broken last week for the building of the new Long Beach Laundry, said to be one of the most modern of its kind. The huge facility, on a plot nearly 300 feet square, is located just east of Cherry Ave., on the north side of Carson Blvd., in Long Beach.

The plant will combine four major operations: general laundry, dry cleaning, linen supply and Fluff-n-Fold, a 4-hour drive-in laundry service.

The Carson Blvd., location will produce nearly double the capacity of the old Long Beach plant located at 2187 W. 1st St., which will soon be demolished as part of the harbor improvement plan.

Grenville Whyte, president of Southern Service Co., Ltd., which operates Blue Seal laundry services from San Diego to Los Angeles, said this is the largest single-plant expansion yet undertaken by the 35-year-old firm. "Our plant here has been a part of the Long Beach development scene since the early 1920s. We are pledged to keep pace with this new expansion of Long Beach and contingent areas to the north, east and west," Whyte said.

Primary construction of the 45,000 square feet structure is of reinforced groutlock brick. The Carson Blvd., facade is to be of natural Bouquet Canyon stone, enameled metal and especially designed terra-cotta.

Huge plate glass panels, trimmed with aluminum, will feature the Fluff-n-Fold and call offices.

Laundry equipment to be installed will be the very latest design, according to Vincent Amalfitano, production executive for the firm. "With the trend to faster and more economical service," Amalfitano pointed out, "special stress will be put on Fluff-n-Fold service in which our company pioneered. Both in equipment and methods, this will be the most modern installation of its kind," he added.

More than 210 people will be employed in the new plant when it opens about Sept. 1, according to Richard Martin, district manager and plant supervisor.

Architects who planned the building are Peter Ficker, A. I. A. and William P. Ficker, associate. The building is being done by Atkins & Wiggins, general engineering contractors of Long Beach. Cost for the completed project will total in excess of $600,000.

Hold Preview Again Today

Home buyers today are quality conscious, states Bruce Bartleson, sales director for the Pembrook Co., developers of Pembrook Park, whose third unit is having its second "preview" week in Garden Grove.

"The public has enthusiastically responded to our invitation to "look under the hood" and inspect Pembrook Park Homes while under construction. In this way they see for themselves what fine quality and high grade materials go into these homes."

The popular rustic Early American architecture of previous Pembrook units is being repeated in the third unit, with shake roofs, batten and board, used brick, and diamond-paned windows being used to create this architectural theme.

Other features of the dwellings include hardwood floors, snack bars, forced-air heat and brick fireplaces. Interiors are as contemporary as the modern homemaker's demands for an efficient, well-integrated home, Bartleson said.

Homeseekers interested in seeing the dwellings under construction are invited to attend the preview of the unit. From Los Angeles and points north, drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Highway 39, turn south on Garden Grove Blvd. to Josephine St. and turn north to Pembrook Park, Unit No. 3.

Siris Store Birthday Fete Opening Today

Celebrating the 30th anniversary of the founding of the store, Siris Modern Trends, 1252 American Ave., today launches a big open house and special birthday sales event.

From the original store at Third and American Ave., founded by the late J. H. Siris, the same ideals and selling policies have prevailed through three generations. Irving Siris succeeded his father as owner of the business and now Irving's son, Richard Siris, is co-owner and manager.

"We always have strived to offer the public high type of merchandise but on prices they can afford," said Richard Siris in announcing the birthday plans.

"Our firm places more emphasis on buying, I believe, than on selling. This has been the key to our success for in buying high-grade merchandise at low prices we can pass the savings on to the customers.

"Now on our 30th anniversary we have been watching for months for real special bargains to offer our customers and many of the leading manufacturers are co-operating with us."

The store offers complete interior designing service free to customers and the stores staffed by interior design authorities, Siris pointed out. A full line of carpeting and draperies is offered and one entire floor of the store is devoted to bedroom furniture and furnishings.

A large new maple shop is being opened and the area is being carpeted in the modern "rag" rugs.

The store is open every Sunday to accommodate customers who are unable to shop on week days.

STORE ANNIVERSARY

Richard Siris and his father, Irving Siris, owners and operators of Siris Modern Trends, 1252 American Ave., will be hosts starting today at a big 30th anniversary sales event in the store.

Alpha Beta Enlarging Wintersburg Plant

Alpha Beta Markets, Inc., has called for bids for a 5000 square foot addition to the packing plant it operates at Wintersburg. It will be a one-story and basement structure. Closing date for bids is Friday.

Vickers to Speak to Realty Board

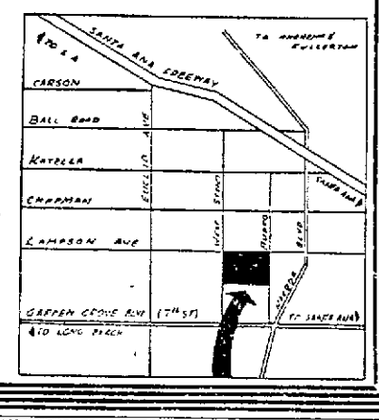

Sam Vickers, city manager, will speak on "Your Community —Its Rapid Development" at the Breakfast Forum of the Board of Realtors Tuesday, according to Max Livoni, chairman of the day. E. T. Moore, president, will preside. The meeting is at the Lafayette Hotel.

Plans to Close Outmoded Plant

LOS ANGELES—The National Biscuit Co. will close its Los Angeles biscuit and cracker bakery at 673 Mateo St. on Apr. 29. The announcement was made by T. W. Bugler, general manager of Nabisco's Los Angeles bakeries.

Outmoded building and equipment brought about the decision to close the plant, which was built in 1925 and has been remodeled several times.

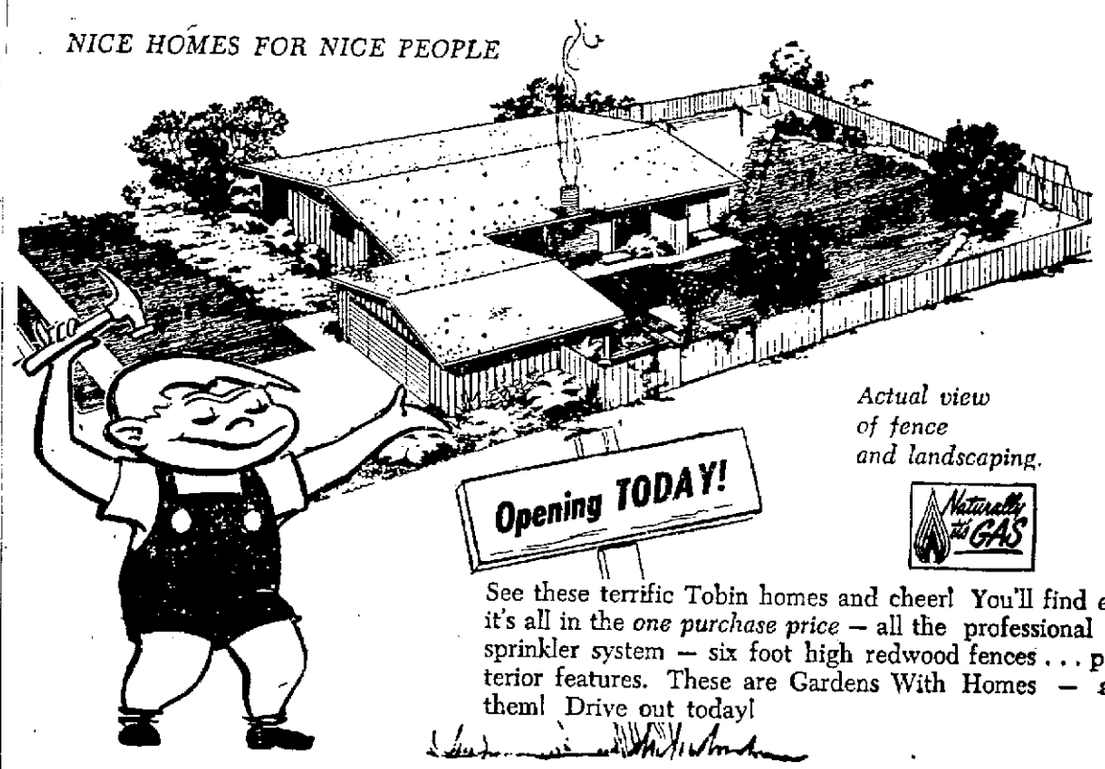

The bakery employs approximately 300 persons. Those employes not pensioned or transferred to other Nabisco operations will receive a liberal severance allowance, based on length of service, Bugler said.

Nabisco will continue to operate its second Los Angeles bakery at 652 Imperial St. for the manufacture of the special products line.

W. H. Cripps, divisional sales manager in charge of distribution and sales of all Nabisco crackers and cookies in Southern California, states that closing of the cracker bakery will in no way affect Nabisco store service or delivery in the Southern California area.

State Real Estate Leaders to Be Here

Outstanding farm lands brokerage leaders and industrial development experts will participate in an all-day Farm Lands—Industrial Development Conference, opening a three-day meeting of the board of directors of the California Real Estate Association in Long Beach March 10, 11, and 12, Floyd Lowe, Palo Alto, president of the association, announced.

More than 700 directors and members of the statewide trade group are expected to attend the three-day session, he reported. The opening day will be entirely devoted to discussion of the steadily mounting transition in California of land from agricultural to industrial use, he added, and the resulting need for residential subdivision lands.

During the morning meeting a farm brokers "workshop" will hear discussion on subjects pertinent to ethical practices and new ways to improve service. Alex McCluskey, Santa Rosa, president of the Institute of Farm Brokers, California Chapter, will preside.

Participants will include R. D. Boggs, Bellflower, regional vice president of the group; Mark Lee, Visalia; Stephen Dorcich, San Jose; Harry Ward, Perris, and Ralph H. Roussey, Oxnard.

In the afternoon session H. R. Hudson, Los Angeles, chairman of the industrial development division, will lead off discussion with a talk on the subject "Division Activity and Statewide Industrial Survey." Ernest Mohler, manager of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce, will follow with "Why Industry Came to Orange County," and L. J. LeRoy, Los Angeles, industrial agent for the Atchison, Topeka and Sante Fe Railway Company will discuss "The Community, The Railroad and Industrial Development."

A panel "question and answer period" will close the session with participants including the speakers and Ed. J. J. McKeegan, Richmond; Philip Anewalt, San Diego; Richard Robbins, Stockton; Earle Eastham, Culver City; R. D. Boggs, Bellflower; Stanley Goode Jr., Santa Ana, and Mark Lee, Visalia.

Important committees of the association will meet Friday. Proposals now before the legislature which will affect real property will be summaried and reviewed for policy recommendation by the state association.

Shamrock Buyers Include Appliances in Purchases

Buyers of Shamrock Village homes have the advantage of choosing their preference of major home appliances at the same time they select their house plan and exterior treatment, and the majority are doing so, reveals Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the second unit of the popular subdivision in Garden Grove.

Inclusion of the cost of appliances in their home loan enables many young families to buy ranges, automatic washers and refrigerators and still maintain a steady balance over their home furnishing budgets, Hart said.

The three and four-bedroom, one or two-bath dwellings feature a host of attractive high lights, including thermostat-controlled heat, rock wool insulation, television jacks and outlets, weatherstripping, decorator-planned color harmony on both interiors and exteriors, and oak, hardwood., or cork floors.

Ceramic tile brightens kitchen work surfaces, and garbage disposals are installed. Mahogany slab doors, 40-50-gallon water heaters, and pullman-type baths are more attractions. Marlite over the tubs, colored fixtures, stall showers and electric heaters in some models, are other bathroom features.

Built on king-size lots, with landscaped front and side yards, the homes are priced from $10,400 to $11,700. Veterans may buy with absolutely no down payment, it was revealed.

Within walking distance of churches and schools, the new neighborhood is convenient to transportation and shopping, recreation and industrial centers.

Models are open daily, with visitors requested to drive out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn left on Harbor Blvd. to Shamrock Village.

1954 Output Top Claimed by Both Ford, Chevrolet

DETROIT (AP)—Chevrolet and Ford both claim to have finished in the top place in the number of passenger cars delivered at retail last year.

Chevrolet reported figures tabulated by R. L. Polk & Co., industry statisticians, showed Chevrolet dealers delivered 1,417,453. It did not mention the Ford total.

Ford simultaneously reported that "net" figures showed its dealers sold 1,387,344 Ford cars last year against 1,362,087 for its "nearest competitor."

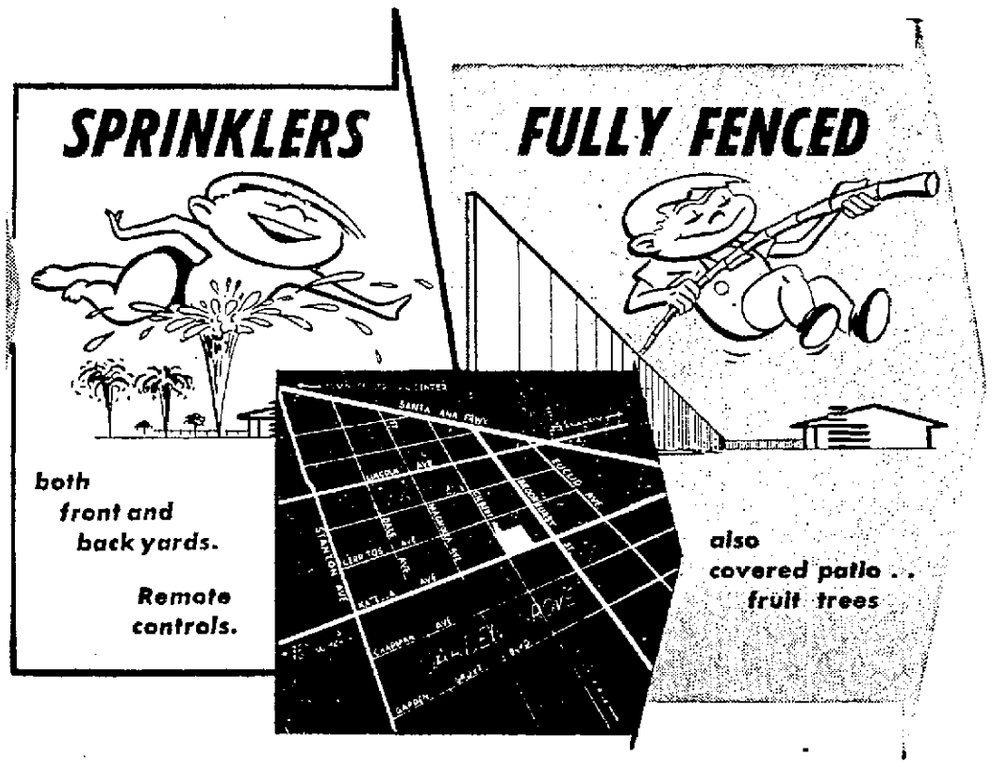

The Ford figures also were attributed to Polk & Co.. However, the Ford announcement said Polk had deducted units registered in dealers' and manufacturers' names in December of 1954 for both Ford and "the nearest competitor."

The deductions from the Ford total were 14,838 and from "the nearest competitor" 56,802. Ford also added 1,742 to its total and 1,436 to its competitor's total after these deductions.

It explained that while the units added were registered in dealers' and manufacturers' names in December, 1953, they had to be added to the 1954 total because they were sold in that year.

In what it termed "raw" (unadjusted) registration figures, Ford listed its total at 1,400,440 and its "nearest competitor's" at 1,417,453.

QUALITY STRESSED

Buyers of Casas Lindas Estates are attracted by many luxury features such as Touch-plate wiring and landscaped lots, the developers report. This is one of the homes offered.

Luxury Features Drawing Buyers to Casas Lindas

The luxury of Casas Lindas Estates have been a determining factor among the "shop and compare" buyers of the Garden Grove three and four-bedroom dwellings, reveals a spokesman for Eastern Builders Co., builders and developers of the subdivision.

High quality construction with superior materials and workmanship sets the pace for the "custom" quality of the home as a whole, it was noted. Touch-plate wiring with master control panel, paper walls, forced air heat with thermostat control, landscaped lots, walk-in closets, and decorator-planned interiors and exteriors are some highlights of the dwellings.

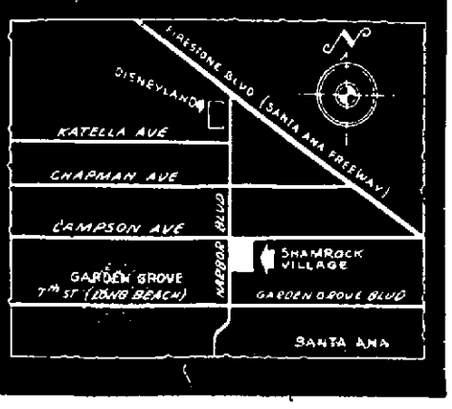

Efficiency kitchens with natural birch cabinetry, breakfast nook areas, garbage disposals, stove exhaust fans, and ceramic tile work surfaces are more attractions creating the custom variety. Floor plans and exterior elevations give a wide selection to buyers, who may also choose their preference of front or rear double garages.

Dexter Store Opens Soon on Pine Ave.

Bringing to Long Beach a full line of clothing for women, men and children, Dexter's will open March 18 at 630 Pine Ave. A long-term lease has been signed on the big store building just north of the Independent, Press-Telegram and extensive changes are being made on the interior. This is another of the recent major developments on downtown Pine Ave.

Operator of stores in this area for 25 years, Albert A. Dexter now has a store in Hawthorne and one in Burbank. With the opening of the Long Beach store he will move his offices here from Hawthore, but will continue the other stores.

Featuring manufacturers' overstocks and import close outs, Dexter said the store will bring to Long Beach an outlet for quality goods. Every item sold will be a brand-name product, he added. He is associated with the largest jobber in 11 western states in merchandising the store, Dexter added.

The interior of the store has been made into various separate departments which give the shoppers seclusion as they buy. Women's sportwear and beachwear will be two main departments.

Extensive newspaper advertising will be used to launch the store and each day a special will be offered.

M. Strohl, who has been associated with a major eastern store for years, is being brought here to manage the establishment.

For the opening big kleig lights will be used and some special events are planned.

The store will be open from 9:30 to 6 Monday through Thursday and on Saturday. Friday the hours will be from 9:30 to 9:30.

No Down for Vets on 'Futura' Homes

Young moderns in Southern California are finding their homes of the future in Brookhurst Plaza where Futura Homes, "designed today for tomorrow's contemporary living" are rapidly being sold, according to Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the three- and four-bedroom, two-bath homes. Another strong influence in the sale of these homes, "believes Hart, is the Anaheim location, in fast-growing Orange County where Disneyland, Walt Disney's famous amusement center, has already gained wide publicity.

Extraordinary features of the homes include such luxuries as built-in de luxe Western-Holly oven and gas range, full size woodburning fireplaces, natural birch cabinetry and electric exhaust fans in the kitchens, which also are equipped with GE garbage disposals and have double compartment sinks.

The large master bedroom suite in each home has a double sliding wardrobe, it was noted, and bathrooms are equipped with colored fixtures, Pullman lavatories, fully tiled showers with glass enclosures and Terraza bases. There are electric bath heaters.

Visitors are inspecting two completely furnished and landscaped models of the dwellings, which blend contemporary with conventional architecture. Veterans can buy in the development for no down payment, and new FHA 30-year financing is available to non-vets.

An R & W Construction Co. subdivision, Brookhurst Plaza Futura Homes are on Brookhurst Ave., just north of La Palma. Visitors drive out Santa Ana Freeway to La Palma, east to Brookhurst and north to the models. From Long Beach, drive out Carson (Lincoln Highway) to Euclid, turn north, cross to Freeway to La Palma, west to Brookhurst and north to the models.

'Do-It-at-Home' Exhibit Space Nearing Sell Out

More than 80 per cent of the exhibit space for the second annual "Do-It-At-Home" show to be held at the Municipal Auditorium for nine days, commencing May 6, has already been sold, according to Fred Taylor, president of Civic Productions, Inc., sponsoring the event.

Manufacturers from all over the United States will exhibit their products at the show, and at the rate applications for space are now being received, all of the available 133 booths will have been reserved at least 30 days ahead of the opening date, Taylor declared.

Last year's show attracted 64,300 visitors, necessitating holding the attraction open an extra day in order to accommodate the crowds. And this year, Taylor predicted, the attendance would approach the 100,000 mark.

Combining all the better features of a "do-it-yourself" show, the attraction will actually be two big shows in one, with dozens of exhibits featuring all types of the very latest home furnishings and appliances, Taylor announced.

The show will be devoted to everything for the home, whether it be a one-room apartment or a 20-room mansion, Taylor declared.

One of the features will be the awarding of approximately 100 door prizes, including a new automatic gas range, bicycles, an electrically-controlled garage door, a beautiful posture lounge chair, all kinds of tools, paint and do-it-yourself gadgets.

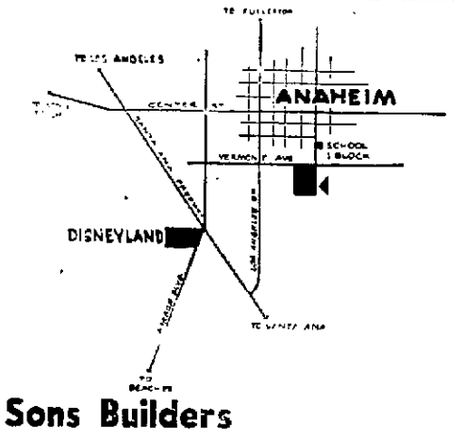

Drawings for the prizes will be held daily at 4 p. m. and 10 p. m., and the first 100 women purchasing tickets to the show each day also will be awarded a box of chocolates.

Women in Realty Dinner Thursday

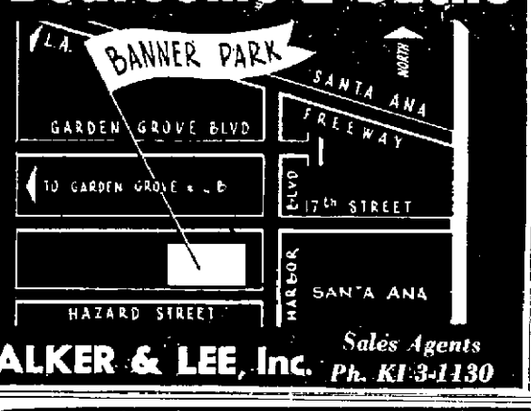

The women's activities committee of the Long Beach Board of Realtors will meet at Linden Hall March 10 for dinner at 6:30 p. m. Ruth Lindquist Sanders, chairman, urged all members to be present. There will be music and speaking, the latter stressing safety.

Increases Dividend

At the quarterly meeting of the board of directors of The Morris Plan Company of California a dividend of 37½c per share was declared payable March 15 to stock of record March 1, according to Ralph N. Larson, president. This represents an increase from a regular dividend of 35c a share paid during each quarter of 1954. The volume of business and earnings for the first two months of 1955 are above the same period for last year.

Windsor Village Can Provide Occupancy at Once

Immediate occupancy is offered buyers of Windsor Village homes, reveals George Petrow, spokesman for McCarthy Co., sales agents of the California Contemporary dwellings in Garden Grove. The dwellings, priced from $10,650 to $12,775, are available to veterans for no down payment. Monthly payments of principal and interest are from $60.55.

Front and side yards of the oversize lots are landscaped, it was noted, and interiors and exteriors are decorator-planned to harmonize with any decor. Spacious living rooms feature real fireplaces and sliding walls of glass. Among other outstanding features of the homes are the ceramic-tiled kitchens, equipped with built-in range and oven, garbage disposers, and highlighted by popular louvered windows.

The homes are 3- and 4-bedroom with one and two baths.

Although Ball Road, the most convenient street to the subdivision, is now under repair, visitors are welcome to visit the models of the homes, open daily and Sundays, by driving out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Gilbert St., and north to Windsor Village. From Los Angeles and northern points, visitors should take the Santa Ana Freeway to Highway 39, south to Cerritos and then east to Gilbert and watch for signs.

OUTDOOR-INDOOR "PACKAGE"

Nearly everything shown in this picture is included in the purchase price of the new Gilbert House & Garden homes, opening today in Garden Grove. Each home has full six-foot redwood fence, complete profesisonal landscaping, sprinkler system front and back, covered patio and paved walks. Vets may move in free. Three and four-bedroom homes sell for $59.00 to $66.00 per month.

'Gardens With Built-in Homes' Opening Today in Garden Grove

"Gardens with built-in homes"—a new approach to complete home design—opens to the public today in Garden Grove.

Known as Gilbert House & Gardens, the 172 unusual homes located at Gilbert and Katella Avenue include as part of their low purchase price a complete outdoor package.

Included with every home is full professional landscaping, outdoor sprinkler system front and back with remote controls, six-foot redwood fences around the entire backyard, paved walks and covered patio.

"Californians live outdoors as much—or more—than they do indoors," a representative of the Tobin Co. builders, said. "It seems to us that full provision for outdoor living is a responsibility of the builder . . . not something to be left for the new home owner to buy as costly 'extra'."

Despite their "outdoor-indoor package," the new homes are well within G. I. budgets. Vets may move in absolutely free, with no escrows or impounds to pay. Three-bedroom, 1½ baths, are $59.00 per month including principal and interest; total price: $11,105. Four bedrooms, 2 baths, are only $66.00, same terms, with total price $12,565.

In addition to the outdoor features, Gilbert House & Gardens have all the top features which new home buyers have come to expect in luxury homes; among them are sliding glass walls, towering brick fireplaces, nine-foot ceilings in the living room.

Unusually bright and airy in design, the work-saving home area includes two places for eating: a modern kitchen informal area and a spacious dining space. Columbia steel kitchen cabinets have sliding glass doors, the sinks feature Dishmaster dishwashing aid, Westinghouse automatic food waste disposer, 50-gallon heavy duty water heaters and other nationally famous brand names.

Four completely landscaped model homes with interiors by Aaron Schultz and colors by Libby are open both day and night, with a play area to occupy youngsters while their parents inspect the houses.

Gilbert House & Gardens, at the intersection of Gilbert & Katella Aves., has all the advantages of smog-free Garden Grove, with immediate, rapid-transportation to downtown Los Angeles via the freeway to Long Beach, Santa Ana and Anaheim. From the freeway turn right on Magnolia or Brookhurst and follow the signs. From Stanton Ave. turn east on Katella.

Pioneer Land Co. are sales agents for the new development.

Few Homes Unsold in Vermont Terrace

With only 12 homes unsold, Gene Mahaffey, sales head at Vermont Terrace in Anaheim, urges prospective buyers to act quickly for the best selection of what has been termed one of Orange County's outstanding home values.

Veterans can move in without any charge and pay as little as $57.78 a month for both principal and interest; non-veterans can buy a home for only $700, Mahaffey explained, making the terms for non-veterans to be, what he believes, the lowest in the area.

Along with the ideal financing, the Vermont Terrace homes offer built-in range and oven, refrigerator, patio fencing, all without charge. Forced air heat, fireplace, kitchen cabinets in a natural finish, and disposal are features in all of the modern styled ranch homes, Mahaffey pointed out.

Vermont Terrace is located on E. Vermont St., just off S. Los Angeles St., in Anaheim. Santa Ana buyers should drive straight into Anaheim and turn off Vermont a few blocks before the center of Anaheim.

Long Beach visitors should turn off the Santa Ana Freeway to Center St. in Anaheim and drive to the center of town to Los Angeles St. and turn south. Vermont is ten blocks from the Los Angeles and Center St. junction.

Rent, Then Buy Plan Draws Many to Banner Park Unit

Grateful for the opportunity to rent a new home with option to buy, many prospective homeowners are making plans to move into new Banner Park dwellings in Garden Grove where they may enjoy all the advantages of a new dwelling in a new neighborhood while waiting for the permanency of their status to be decided. This was revealed by Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the three-bedroom, two-bath development, who noted that the rent-with-option-to-buy plan has found special popularity with servicemen not yet eligible for GI loans.

The quality features of Banner Park dwellings are another strong influence in the heavy sales recorded at the subdivision, Hart said. He noted the following: Built-in Western-Holly range and ovens, Stanthony stove hoods with electric light and fan, garbage disposals, open beam, celotex insulated ceilings, asphalt tile kitchen and bath floors.

Veterans are buying the homes for no down payment, while nonveterans take advantage of FHA financing.

MODEL SHOWN

Smog-free Garden Grove is the location of the new community of Glen Dell Park, represented by above 3-bedroom, 2-bath exterior, on West St., between Katella and Chapman Aves., with models on view.

Sales in Glen Dell Park New Unit Reported Heavy

Large crowds pushed total sales near the $2,000,000 mark last week as Glen Dell Park's new unit of 137 large three-bedroom, two-bath homes continued to attract buyers to Garden Grove from all sections of Los Angeles and Orange Counties, it was announced yesterday by William P. Bowman, vice president in charge of sales for D. & E. Corp., the developers.

Bowman said construction is being rushed and that first move-ins could be expected within 30 days at the new residential community located on West St., between Katella and Chapman Aves.

Adding to the appeal of the homes, which are offered to vets for no down payment with no cash needed for costs and impounds, it was noted, is the development's mortgage payment insurance plan, insuring monthly payments, and now offered buyers without added costs.

Officials of the Pioneer Land Co., sales agent for the property, said that many veterans are able to qualify on earnings as low as $350 per month and that this advantage is stimulating sales. Monthly payments, it was pointed out, are exceptionally low and are spread over a long term.

Among the many features noted in a display of three wholly furnished model homes, which are open to the public daily from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. are: large 60-foot wide lots, redwood trimmed exteriors, brick planters, pot shelves and covered terraces.

All homes, it was stated, have oak floors, separate service porches, natural finish kitchen cabinets with hammered copper hardware, garbage disposers, hood and exhaust fan over range, 65,000 BTU heating, sliding glass doors, walls of glass, lath and plaster construction, and deep, double kitchen sinks with colorful ceramic tile.

The developers report that many buyers have shown an interest in the proximity of the homes to "Disneyland," which is within walking distance of Glen Dell Park.

Educators to Be Guests

Educators will be guests of the Long Beach group of National Office Management Association Tuesday night at Lafayette Hotel. Speaker will be Dr. Wallace H. Moore, head of the psychology and education department, Long Beach State College. Louise Reed, vocational counselor of City College is arranging for a group of educators to attend. They will include: Dr. William Keeley, Long Beach public schools; Mrs. Edna Barbour, State College; Mrs Carrie Conner, California College of Commerce; Mrs. Catherine Young, Jordan High School; William Guthrie, Polytechnic High School; Mrs. Maybelle Meyers, Long Beach Secretarial College; Dwight Wentzell, Wilson High School, and Kenneth Williams, Harbor Junior College.

The educational committee of NOMA has been selected by the FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America) to participate in their annual convention at the Lafayette Hotel, April 15 and 16, as contest judges and to present awards. Heading the FBLA convention is Dwight Wentzel, instructor at Woodrow Wilson High School, who was Long Beach NOMA's teacher of the year of 1954.

News From Los Cerritos Crosstown to Peninsula

By BETTY WENTWORTH
Independent Women's Editor

Wonderful plans are afoot out at Ruby and Les Callahans' Country Club Dr. domicile for the cocktail and buffet supper party for 300 they're giving on Friday eve. In the honor spot will be young Les Callahan and his petite and lovely new bride, Darrell, whose wedding was a recent social event in Phoenix.

Arriving the day before the party from the Arizona city to spend the weekend will be the Jack McWilliamses, Darrell's parents, and her young eight-year-old brother, Russell, or Rusty as he is better known. Also from Phoenix will be Darrell's uncle and aunt, the Fred Polaceks.

Flowers in a pastel motif, pink, white and lavender blue hyacinths, will provide effective color accents throughout the house, and a striped canopy awning will extend out over the veranda into the garden where a three-piece orchestra will provide background music and play for dancing in the lanai.

Invited to assist are Ruby's sister, Mrs. James Melleck, and her niece, Betty Lee Duffy, as well as Messrs. and Mmes. Douglas Graham, Warren Ten Eyck, Elmer Decker, Frank Reagan, Joseph Ball, Harry H. Newton of Miraleste, William Sample, Paul Holley Jr. and Mr. William Yeager of Los Angeles, who served as Les' best man.

Crowded out of their Anaheim rancho by the advent of Disneyland Georgia and Frende Combs bought a new home at 4282 Pacific Ave. last month and moved back into Long Beach. Last weekend on Saturday night they had a dinner engagement with Nan and Joe Bogdanovich and after picking them up swung by their new abode to show it to Joe who's just back from a South American trip.

Said Georgia, and we quote, "There must be a party going on at the Balls" as she surveyed the cars lining the avenue in front of their house. We've probably telegrapher the point of our story by now, so we'll hasten to tell you that it was a surprise housewarming for the Combses, complete with a delicious supper and a group gift of handsome card table and chairs. Ringleaders of the fun event were Phyllis and Joe Madden and Dorothy and Art Morgan with the connivance, of course, of the Bogdanovichs.

Then to really round out the weekend, the Combses entertained at a dinner party last Sunday in honor of the recently wed William Bryants, Mrs. Bryant being the former Thelma Combs.

Toasting the new bride and groom were Drs. and Mmes. Walter Smallwood, Grant Beckstrand of Palos Verdes; Messrs. and Mmes. Nelson McCook (Mrs. McCook is the honoree's sister), Joseph Madden, Richard Browning, Lester Callahan Sr., George Craig II, Douglas H. Graham, Joseph A. Ball, Fox Boswell, C. Standlee Martin and Jack V. Evans of Santa Ana.

This afternoon at Peggy and Dr. Houston Fairleys' home at 4219 California Ave. a contingent of 80 guests will be dropping in from 5 to 7 p.m. for cocktails. Incentive for the event is the departure for abroad later in the spring of the Albert Stevensons and their daughter, Mrs. Ethel Severson as well as the Walter Groshongs.

The Stephensons sail May 4 for four months in Europe and we mustn't forget that their cute little grandson, Corky Severson, is going along, too. Two days later, on May 6, the second duo of travelers takes off, first for a 37-day cruise through the Mediterranean stopping at such fascinating waypoints as Alexandria, Cairo, Beirut, Damascus and Athens; thence to Europe where they'll tour for two months. They sound like wonderfully bon voyages, n'est-ce pas?

We write about party series from time to time but would like to tell you about a succession of parties that tops them all, a veritable apogee of all series.

Out on the peninsula we'd noticed some remodeling and painting going on apace at Pat and Dr. Walter Gilkey's ocean front home. We love this home filled with its books and treasures and imbued with the personality of its owners. Pat, however, the least stuffy of persons anywhere in the world, dubbed the house with, shall we say, a fanciful, even dubious, title due to the completely individual hue of the exterior paint job which somehow makes the dwelling appear as though it had sprung up out of the soil.

This manorial title shall be nameless in our column, but delighted everyone so much that Pat decided to do great things to the interior as well. Seizures of closet cleaning ensued, followed by seizures of window washing. When everything sparkled and shone, Pat felt she should share it and sent out invitations for a series of nine parties, beginning last Monday and ending next Wednesday with today alone unscheduled. Guests, eight each day, include former neighbors from Palos Verdes, friends from Lido Isle and many from Long Beach. There, say we, is a SERIES!

On Tuesday at Elizabeth Sullivan's Elm Ave. home she is gathering a group of friends, some of them Europe bound, for luncheon and comparing of itineraries. Then on Thursday eve she and Emmett will pour cocktails for 40 guests.

Kassai Alumnae

Kassai Alumnae will have an auction sale and also will celebrate the anniversary of the founding of the organization at their annual birthday party Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the home of Mrs. Paul Williamson, 335 Euclid Ave. Mrs. J. C. Spence Jr. will preside. All Kassai alums in the area are invited, reservations to be made with Mrs. Harold Walker, 2952 Del Amo Blvd.

Gay Hats From East to Be Shown

One of the prominent society events of March will be the annual fashion show which members of Long Beach Lawyers Wives Club will sponsor March 18 at Balboa Bay Club, in Newport. Festivities will begin at 11:30 a. m. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p. m., after which Walker's Dept. Store will show a profusion of lovely, exclusive hats which have been flown here from New York City for this particular show.

Hostesses greeting guests will be the president, Mrs. Albert D. White, and members of the ways and means committee, Mrs. Ted Sten, chairman, and Mmes. Lewis Kean, Everett Miller, Robert Buck, James Starr and Robert Wenke. Art and decorations will be handled by Jeanne Joyce, manager of Walker's Millinery Dept.

Tickets may be obtained from any member of Lawyers Wives Club, or from the reservations chairman, Mrs. Ray Cullum. Others assisting with this gala event are Mmes. Ted Lee, Preston Johnson, Percy Hight, D. Thomas Johnstone and J. C. Spence Jr. Commentator will be Wilma Hastings, and five of her models will display the millinery. The Harriet Wood Instrumental Trio will provide music throughout the show. Hostesses will also wear the exclusive hat models provided by Walker's.

In the receiving line with Mrs. Hanna and Mrs. Kellogg will be Mrs. Sterlin Fisher, president; Mrs. Harold Eads of Pasadena, national press director; Miss Barbara Benson of Santa Monica, national alumnae editor; and Mrs. J. F. Jefferson of Glendale, president of Southern California State Alumnae.

Kappa Delta is the fourth largest national sorority with 250 chartered alumnae associations. Southern California State Alumnae give benefits for the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America. The local group help with the children's tuberculosis ward at the Long Beach General Hospital.

Pouring at the tea table which will be covered with a pale blue metallic cloth with jonquil and delphinium center piece will be Mrs. Jonathan Booth, past president of City Panhellenic, and Mrs. C. B. Brothers, alternating with Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. John Valuch.

Long Beach Kappa Delta sorority students attending the tea from S. C. are Misses Janine Booth, Janice Barnes, Lynne Jones and Rosemary ODonnell, and from UCLA, Jean Blyth, Joan Lee Bundy, Carol June Noble and Beth Sudenga.

The Wild Waves Are Saying

One Big Secret Kept; but Some Told!

By IOLA MASTERSON

Sometimes we have secrets we tell. Then sometimes, you rascals, you have secrets you don't tell us so how can we. And now comes the snapper. This week we have a secret we promised not to tell. So what kind of a third rate snoop does that make us?

Here's how much we can tell and just don't think we won't: There was a meeting of the St. Mary's Hospital Guild at Georgia Combs Monday morning. Enthusiasm bubbled over with such force we could hear it fizzing clear down here at 6th and Pine as they talked a blue streak and made plans for THE EVENT. Thurlyne Waite presided during the plan making and had a hard time maintaining order at times when ideas (wonderful ones) tumbled into the thought cauldron from women like Corinne Faye, over from Rolling Hills with masses of papers bearing blueprints of future fun.

Others busy with the Guild's first big ways and means project were Norma Craig, Nona Lantz and Suzanne Mingers, who would go into a sudden huddle that would do credit to a "Red" Sanders first string team and then come up for time out to beam.

Matching verve for dash and thought for idea with all of them were Ponnie Ridder and Joan Bescos, whose sharp minds will never produce any moss on their north sides!

All told, there were about 55 women present and after they had exhausted themselves with mental outpourings, good hostess Georgia refueled them with as delightful a brunch as cuisine can produce. On the buffet table, where a heavenly bouquet of giant white tulips stood guard, were such gourmet delicacies as a chilled bowl of fresh sliced fruits, cheese souffle, country sausage, hot, fresh blueberry muffins and crueilers, spread with marmalade and crisp, chopped bacon and heated to steaming perfection.

There's only one thing to do now. Wait for the word and save April 22!

Purring like a Cheshire cat with an Oldsmobile motor was Dick Browning Friday night up there at the swank preview of the General Motors Motorama at Pan Pacific as he viewed those heavenly hunks of metal on wheels and listened to his brain click like a cash register. The Motorama opened yesterday for the great G. P., Friday was strictly for the dealers and special guests.

Red Cross stands for more than aid to humanity in Long Beach this week since Tuesday night, when the merchants of town put on their annual and lavish fashion show. The Auditorium was packed to the rafters and every woman present made it a special point to make faces at her own wardrobe first thing Wednesday morning.

Thoughts and memories left over in our mind include:

Chairman Tess Heusel, sophisticated and lovely as she was introduced from the stage in a luscious be-sequined white tulle gown; Walt Jordan, the old scene stealer, serving as the most popular model there (and there were some mighty fetching ones!); Carmen Sykes, her attractive blond head seen a crowd's length away and wearing a chic beige sheath dress and pretty furs; Wilma Hastings, so suave and pretty as she commentated the show in a lovely pink bouffant cocktail dress; Dorothy and "Nellie" McCook Jr., Dorothy smart in her pink hat and "Nellie" enjoying himself as much as all the other men (they do, you know); Virginia Artman smart in black; Thelma and Bill Bryant, Thelma striking in a grey wool ensemble; Jimmie Carrey, chairman of the home gifts division, in jet black chiffon and being stopped every foot or two by friends from her wide circle of acquaintances; Cassieta Walker, all honey-beige and brown, Margaret Davis, Winifred Morris, Carol Scott (not together but turning heads wherever they went); Norma and Bill Becker, Clarence and Evelyn Miller, Helen Kral, "Vi" Dovey —the list and the memories go on and on—so pleasantly.

Betsy and George Taubman were among those who held reservations for yesterday's Santa Anita $100,000 classic, the San Juan Capistrano Handicap.

Grinning like a kid with a new toy was John Munholland when he buzzed by this week tucked carefully but neatly inside a new model of a Nash Healey sport car.

The scene changeth and nostalgia gripped an elite section of the feminine section of town Monday with the realization that luncheon dates at the Circus Room would be no more. Saying goodbye to their "salad days" at C. R. were, among others, Ginny Palsgrove, Flossie Rene and Elizabethe Tucker. However, they brightened with the thought of all the dinner steaks they'll enjoy at this now strictly evening cafe.

Maggi and "Beck" Beckley stood in silent amazement Friday night but that didn't last long. Then they really burst out laughing. It was over at Edna and Bill Abrams home where they were guests of honor at a dinner party preceding their departure tomorrow by train to New Orleans and thence on a Caribbean cruise. The amazement and then the guffaws were created with hostess Edna's surprise—she asked all the guests to come dressed as primitively as the natives in the back alleys of Trinidad and for a fitting background Edna and Bill really hoaxed-up their big sun room with plants, gee-gaws, and stuff looking like the living room of a calypso singer!

The third annual Variety Show at Rogers Junior High, performed, produced and written by the teachers and parents of the PTA themselves, turned out to be as funny a show as has been seen in these parts for quite a spell. It happened (or should we say exploded) Wednesday night. Bill Goggin, instigator of the show when he was Rogers' principal, was responsible for mirth-shaking that about brought the timbers down in his rendition of Liberace at the ivories.

Then there was Pearl Dundon, who oughta know how the teen agers look and act and really did herself, flying petticoats et al. The current principal, young, good lookin' Richard Manson, acted like a man with a secret desire as he put his heart into the role of a youthful prankster.

Mary Sprague was mistress of ceremonies and the way the audience loved her is only half what show chairman Ruth Lundell felt for her herculean efforts. There was a riotous "Jam Session Judges" skit directed by Marge Demler and featuring such "characters" as Jean Norris, Marge Davis and Ruth Lundell, herself. In the "hot seat" was that quartette of MD's (who have dubbed themselves the "Sad Quacks") Art Buell, Lewis Seapy, Phil Voigt and Don King.

The Kiwanis German Band, bare knees and all, hootled and tootled to the crowd's delight and raising mirth to the skies was the sketch done by Henrietta Tallant, Betty Estes and Texas Fraser.

Lots more fun, too, when such gals as Gladys Lane, Mary Jean Durnin, Dorothea Miller, Gusta Price, May Metzger and Kay Bixler, to name a few, whizzed through some chorus numbers under the direction of Jean Plimpton. More went on but space runs out.

SURPRISES must have been in the air this week because others who were given a whopping big one were Mayor George and Hazel Vermillion. Here's how it was. Last Saturday night the Lowell Taylors toted the Vermillions off to Ocean Park to see the Lawrence Welk orchestra in action. Threatening weather and the Vermillions' always heavy schedule almost made the popular V's back out of the date at the last minute but somehow or another they didn't. In this mood they arrived at the Aragon Ballroom and—Wow! Huge banners were strung across the entrance of the place saying "Welcome Vermillions" and the evening was in honor of the first man and his lady of Long Beach. Lawrence even coaxed George into giving the baton a couple of waves before the orchestra (to the crowd's obvious delight) and then the band leader asked George for the privilege of dancing with petite Hazel. It was quite a night.

Combined business and pleasure took Helen and Bill Harrington back to New York and with them went Helen's mother, Mrs. August Thorbeche, who is now in her 80th year and who proved to be the best traveler of the lot! Bill found the weather so cold he could hardly wait to get back to the sunshine warmth that surrounds home at 660 Santiago Ave. One of the real pleasures of the journey was visiting the Harrington's daughter and her family, Marian and Les Wittenberg of Cambridge, Mass.

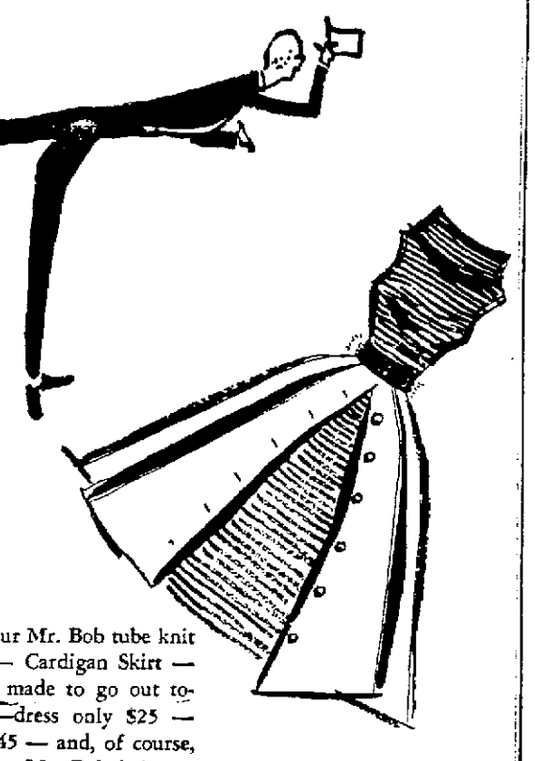

Incidentally, Bill and Helen went to see the Community Player's "January Thaw" production Friday night and Bill almost turned blue again! (P. S. He did enjoy the play!)

It isn't election year but Don and Virginia Muehmore marked their ballot in favor of a candidate they think is the best for the office. The office is that of their youngest daughter, Marcia Alyce (Marcy) Muehmore who arrived Wednesday at Harriman Jones and joins the firm of Muehmore-Muehmore-Muehmore and Muehmore.

Among Career Women

Quota Club Had 36 Candles on Its Birthday Cake

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Well in excess of 100 members and guests of Quota Club gathered in the Lafayette Hotel Monday night to pay tribute to the 36th international birthday of this women's service organization. The founder, Wanda Frey Joiner of Los Angeles, was welcomed by Mayor George Vermillion, who, with Mrs. Vermillion, was also a special guest of the evening. The honor of cutting the traditional birthday cake with its 36 flickering candles went to Mrs. Joiner.

To commemorate the occasion, Quota members invited many outstanding community leaders to share the evening with them. Of these, Postmaster George J. McMillin, Dr. Emil Lange, Claude Duncan and Sebring R. Smith spoke briefly to the assemblage, telling of the progress being made in their particular career fields as well as of community service performed through their own club affiliations.

Edith M. Glaze, a past international president, and Tray LeRoque, district governor of Quota, spoke on Quota's progress during its 36 years. The women also explained how the many new clubs formed in California had necessitated dividing the state into two districts.

Marguerite Wood, who served as charter president for the Long Beach Quota Club, welcomed the out-of-town guests. Fanny MacEnroe made the formal introductions of guests and members alike.

Kathryn Wiand, president, was in charge of the impressive evening and it was she who explained that the club's constant project is intensive aid to hard-of-hearing children.

One of the major highlights of the evening was the presentation of the "Woman of the Year" award to Mrs. Louise Huffman by program chairman Connie Brown in recognition of her outstanding community service in 1954. The award is made annually to a business woman of town who does an exceptional job for her community.

Executives' Secretaries

Apple Valley Steak House was the scene for the last meeting of the chic women of Executives' Secretaries Club. President Dorothy Kane (Petroleum Maintenance) was in charge of the evening's business discussion. A patriotic theme was carried out and the 75th anniversary of the founding of electric light was commemorated.

Compliments were in order for program chairman Doris Mitchell (Mottell's and Peek) who arranged for a delightful evening's entertainment. Anne Barrows (Independent-Press Telegram) charming and talented contralto, was soloist. R. C. Alexander of the Southern California Edison Co. was evening's speaker and, with his talk, showed a motion picture entitled, "Magic Link." Dean Davisson of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce also showed an interesting film, "It's Everybody's Business."

Two new members introduced and welcomed were Mary Kay Kelly (Western Air Lines) and Ollie Richards (Inman Co.)

Women Accountants

The important annual public relations meeting of the Long Beach chapter of the American Society of Women Accountants was an affair of Wednesday evening and occured in the Ballerina Room of the Lafayette Hotel.

Speaker of the night was Leon G. Kassab, field auditor for the Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. who spoke to the women and their many guests concerning insurance auditing.

Virginia Youngquist presided and among the important guests introduced were Otto Snyder (DBM Oil Co.), Fred Mills (Nat'l Supply Co.), Mr. and Mrs. Brad Jarmin (he is district office mgr. of Guy F. Atkinson Co.), Ouida Flack (administrative assistant, Guy F. Atkinson Long Beach office), Lester Colvin (Jones Hardware), Bernice Becker (accountant), John Hanzer (Nat'l Cash Register Co., Electronics Div.), Francis Gormley (Robert F. Moore Supply Co.), Cathy Turner (J. B. Nelsen Co.) and Betty Tracy, vice president of the Los Angeles Women Accountants' Club.

Altrusa Club

During a week of unusual and fashionable activity among the business women's clubs of town, Altrusa Club was hostess at one of the most enjoyable affairs when it entertained at an informal reception in the Wilton Hotel in honor of Lawrence Welk and his orchestra following the group's appearance at the huge Red Cross fashion show.

Helen Smith, club president, received the many guests and was assisted by Louise Dixon, Carmel Tyo, Marie Wood and Elizabeth Deutsch.

Another guest of honor was Wilma Hastings, producer and commentator of the show, who is also a member of Altrusa. Those invited to attend were members of other service clubs, city officials and Red Cross officials and volunteers. Proceeds from the affair were donated to the Red Cross.

Desk and Derrick

A busy, instructive and thoroughly successful day was fare yesterday for a major number of the members of Desk and Derrick Club. The Union Pacific Railroad Co. was host to the Long Beach and Los Angeles clubs for a tour of their tank farms and oil wells, giving the business girls of the oil industry further insight into the actual field operations of production. Following the tour the group gathered at Marineland in Palos Verdes for lunch and a trip through the Aquarium.

Dental Assistants

Third District Dental Assistants' Association met recently in the Ballerina Room of the Lafayette Hotel and, presiding for the first time since her installation was president Viola Engel.

A patriotic theme was used for the evening's table decorations which were arranged by Mary Ellen Doyle. Harriet Beadle, program chairman, introduced the honored guest speaker of the night, Dr. Harland Apfel of San Pedro whose topic concerned anesthesia. He gave an interesting and authoritative talk on its history and facts about its use. In addition, Dr. Apfel talked in a lighter vein about a tour of Europe he and his family made last year and showed colored slides of many places visited.

Mildred Dunken, ways and means chairman, announced plans for the major fund raising project of the year.

Next meeting of Dental Assistants will be March 21 and guest speaker at that time will be Dr. Joseph P. Lunn who will discuss Oral Surgery.

Fashion'wise Cotton Is for Spring

ANYTIME IS TIME FOR COTTON this spring and no one knows it better than Miss De Lois Faulkner, 1955 Maid of Cotton from Sallisaw, Okla. She will make a personal apeparance in Long Beach Friday noon, March 11, at Lafayette Supper Room to show fashion-conscious women the many ensembles which are all made of cotton. Pictured above, left, Miss Faulkner wears a brand-new play outfit designed by Stanley Wyllins for Korday. A one-piece coverall is topped by a Bermuda-length skirt. For an evening out she wears an Anne Fogarty charmer, center. It is styled with petite bodice, doll waist and bouffant skirt. Worn over multiple petticoats and crinolines, it is embroidered in a ribbon-like design. For day or date, she wraps up in a luxurious black cotton coat by Aintree. Lines are free and flowing, the wide stand-up collar frames her pretty face. It is made of textured cotton jacquard by Hafner. Reservations for the luncheon and style show may be made by calling the Lafayette Hotel.

McCabe at her home in Belmont Shore to honor all wives of Navy chaplains ashore or afloat in this area. Assisting will be Mrs. Barbara Fields and Mrs. Mary Thompson.

All chaplains wives are invited to attend and meet the other chaplains' wives who now reside here.

Another charming party in the home of Chaplain and Mrs. McCabe was the supper party last Wednesday night feting Miss Myrle James from Washington, D.C. Guests were Chaplain and Mrs. Edward Kickleighter, Mrs. Laura Walters, Mrs. Paul Raynor, Mrs. Alfred Gould, and Chaplains John Keany and W. Sullivan.

Recent house guests of the McCabes' have been their old friends from Delavan, Ill., Major Gen. Albert Ludlum Culbertson, USA (ret) and Mrs. Culbertson.

On Thursday at 12:30 p.m. the Wives of Navy Doctors Club will gather at Officers Club at the Corona Naval Hospital where they will be the guests at a spring luncheon party of the Corona Wives of Navy Doctors' Club.

All members should call Mrs. Daniel La Mothe of 616 Park Ave. as soon as possible for reservations.

Comdr. and Mrs. F. P. Brown journeyed to San Diego last Wednesday to enjoy the birthday dinner party of their daughter, Mrs. Ann Maches.

Now it can be told—the judges at the funny and gay Mad Hatter luncheon event given last Tuesday by the Officers Wives Club of Long Beach at Allen Center were Capts. M. C. Heine, Leo May, and J. C. Woelfel. Mrs. G. W. Davis who looked stunning in a tall hat made of cards, won first prize, and Mrs. George Foote, who was attractive but a shade shaky with a live hat—a singing bird in a gilded cage, won second honors. The judges very tactfully awarded the rest of the members honorable mention.

Lt. Gordon Talmage of NAS, Los Alamitos, and Mrs. Talmage, who will leave with their son, Paul, shortly for new duty and residence on Okinawa, have been feted at several farewell events in their honor.

House guests of Capt. and Mrs. J. B. Paschal at their quarters at NAS, Los Alamitos, have been Mrs. Paschal's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Dukette of San Diego.

Comdr. and Mrs. William Dellman have returned from a wonderful vacation in Palm Springs.

Capt. J. B. Paschal, commanding officer of NAS, Los Alamitos, recently attended the Naval Academy Class of 1926 reunion party held at the Officers Club at Alameda.

Attending a recent Supply Corps Association of Los Angeles luncheon event at the Statler Hotel where the Secretary of Navy was guest speaker were the following station keepers from NAS, Los Alamitos, and the wives: Capt. and Mrs. J. B. Paschal, Comdr. and Mrs. Bill Miles, Comdr. and Mrs. William Dellman, Lt. and Mrs. Dan Sunderberg, Lt. (jg) James Mengos, Ensign Jack F. Daly and Ensign Charles Terranova.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. J. R. McKinney have as their house guests this week end, Mrs. Rudd, wife of Col. Robert H. Rudd and daughter, Janet. Dinner guests last night of the McKinneys were Col. and Mrs. W. J. Bayler from El Toro.

Capt. and Mrs. David D. Hawkins were charming hosts last Wednesday night at the Officers Club, Allen Center, at a farewell event before they leave for Georgia where they'll visit an aunt and uncle on a plantation back there. Helping Capt. Hawkins celebrate his retirement were the following friends: Capt. and Mrs. T. A. Donovan, Capt. and Mrs. W. T. McClain, Mrs. Frank Adamson, Buff Adamson and Thomas Heinz. When the Hawkins return from their trip down south they will reside in Berkeley.

Lt. and Mrs. A. H. Akemon entertained a group of friends at an evening of bridge and canasta recently.

Wives of officers attached to the USS Helena enjoyed a bridge party last night at the home of Mrs. Dolores Potter.

Chief Gunner Marion F. Ryan and Mrs. Ryan visited with their many friends before leaving on a six months trip to Mexico City and Guadalajara. The Navy officer recently retired after 32 years of naval service. The Ryans came down from their last duty station at Mare Island. Mrs. Ryan was well known here in the Navy Relief Thrift Shop a few years ago.

Sgt. Mary E. Jones, who has been stationed at Fort MacArthur, is now enjoying leave in Lawrence, Mass., seeing relatives and friends. Following her vacation she will leave for an overseas assignment with the Army.

Mrs. Carl Kemmerer has been visiting in San Diego for several weeks and seeing the town with her husband, Comdr. Kemmerer, who will sail shortly for the Far East.

Mrs. E. W. Sweezy has as her house guest from Santa Cruz, Mrs. Beulah Cox.

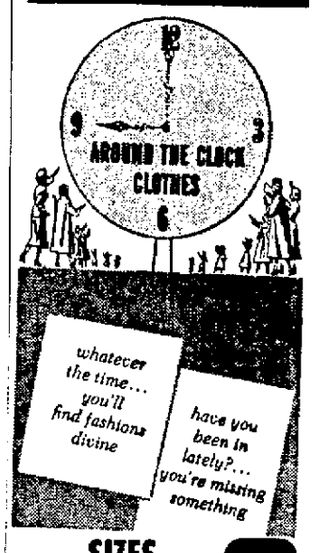

Mrs. Wayne Gamet entertained Thursday at a luncheon and card party at Hoefly's in Belmont Shore. Guests were Mmes. E. W. Hermanson, C. A. Murray and M. Steltenkamp.

One of the most charming outdoor parties of the spring season was the attractive barbecue event given by Capt. Herbert F. Walsh, USCG, and Mrs. Walsh recently honoring their friend, Dr. Fred Peterson of Claremont.

The meeting of the NCO Ladies Auxiliary of Fort MacArthur was held recently. The tables featured Washington's birthday motif, prepared by the hostesses, Mmes. A. A. Ulan and Z. M. Lipsett. In connection with her new appointment as chairman of the anticipation committee, Mrs. Ray Christie reported that the Ladies Club had presented a baby book and a sleeper to the new son of M/Sgt. and Mrs. R. Clarke. Club president Mrs. George Fenneine announced that club members would enjoy a Chinese luncheon Monday at the Golden Pagoda. New members welcomed at the meeting were Mrs. James Bash and Mrs. Lesser Dodd.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harry H. Robertson proudly announce the arrival of a baby daughter, Grace Alice, who was greeted at home by brothers Harry and Christopher, and sister Donna.

Mrs. Shipley to End Career as Chief of Passport Office

By VIRGINIA WELDON KELLY

A daintily pretty Maryland gentlewoman of monumental good health, paprika personality, stainless steel backbone and jet pilot courage will retire, April 30, from one of the most important governmental posts ever held by a woman. She is Mrs. Ruth Bielaski Shipley, chief of the U. S. State Department's passport office since 1928.

Daughter, granddaughter and great-granddaughter of Methodist ministers, her life has been bounded by the Ten Commandments, Christian Doctrine, the Constitution and United States law.

This has not endeared her to a few politicians and bureaucrats—nor to Reds and fellow travelers. Most of the Congress are her admirers but one senator termed her capricious and tyrannical.

Undaunted she held that those with Communist affiliations should not receive passports.

In the past some Presidential advisers tried to compel Mrs. Shipley to issue passports to persons she deemed unfit. When she retorted, "Put it in writing"—that was generally the end of the pressure.

In one widely publicized case she was overruled by the then State Undersecretary David Bruce and a passport was issued to a certain scientist. Only a few months ago, over her objections, the scientist received another passport. Oregon Sen. Morse loudly berated Mrs. Shipley for her stand in the matter.

Mrs. Shipley is now fighting an important and final battle for the appointment as her successor of her associate, Miss Frances Knight.

Many leading Republicans favor Miss Knight's appointment. However, there is strong opposition to the appointment of a woman from the Public Information branch of the State Department.

Assistant State Secretary McCardle, a former newspaperman, heads the Public Relations division.

Ruth Shipley has long believed that women must give more to their jobs than men. She also thinks that women must be more resourceful, more humane, more tender, without being wooly witted. She follows this course.

Several years ago, on a week end, when governmental Washington was closed tight, a Long Beach, Calif., couple received word that their son was very ill in England. When Mrs. Shipley received this life and death message she worked nearly all night on the complex arrangements. At dawn a young man in the New York passport office rushed the passports to the airfield and handed them to the anguished parents. Mrs. Shipley promoted the young man and he now heads the downtown N. Y. passport office.

Again at dawn, a few days ago, the White House told Mrs. Shipley that an American lay critically ill in Brazil. In 12 hours, she and her associates located a famed specialist, and prepared him with inoculations, photographs and passport for the mercy flight.

The State Department has no biographical data on Ruth Shipley except that she entered the patent office in 1903 and the State Department in 1914. She believes in keeping quiet and doing her job. She has adamantly refused magazine offers for articles. She is one official who will keep silent. But she will not be idle. After a trip she will probably enter personnel work.

Not long ago, President Eisenhower discussed with the Chairman of the JCS, Adm. Radford, the vitriolic attacks on Radford being made by some columnists. The President advised Adm. Radford not to read or bother with the columnists. Mr. Eisenhower explained that he follows that course himself.

At the recent White House Radio and TV Correspondents dinner for the President, Mr. Eisenhower sat beside TV commentator Dick Harkness.

The President admired the resplendent gold brocade vest Dick was wearing with his sober dinner jacket. Dick jokingly offered to swap with the President if the President was willing to do so at the banquet. The President declined.

A reception followed the double ring service at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Phillips, 2136 Tehachapi Dr.

After the service, a reception for the immediate families was held in the North Hollywood home of Mr. and Mrs. Logan.

new, safe ALL-IN-ONE capsule discovery for easy reducing

science now helps you take off your fat while you eat the foods you choose

Do you like sweets, candy, cake, butter, gravy, potatoes? Have you tried one thing after another to reduce, spent dollar after dollar for pills and tablets and in spite of everything you've tried you're still too fat? Well, be as skeptical as you like, but now, right now, there's a wonderful new kind of capsule that helps you take off pounds and inches of ugly fat safely, quickly and so much easier you hardly know what's happening. You don't suffer starvation dieting hunger, you take no drugs, you don't exercise. In fact, you don't even diet one bit more than you want to, because you automatically eat less and here's why . . .

COUNTERACTS HUNGER

Just recently a well known scientist perfected a new tiny capsule that combines not one but all the recognized proven aids to reducing. It combines the vitamins and minerals often lost when cutting off fattening foods containing these needed vitamins and minerals. It combines the vegetable cellulose that has no calories, yet expands when it absorbs water, thereby helping give the feeling of a full contented stomach. In fact, these tiny capsules are so packed with vitamins and minerals, protein and non-caloric filling food, they actually equal and exceed many a meal.

FAT GOES FAST

You'll be surprised at the fat you lose the first week, the inches that disappear the first month. No hunger, no strict dieting, no drugs, no exercises. And the cost is absolutely nothing unless you grow slim, more youthful looking, more active and enjoy better health.

. . . something to talk about!

Hello! You probably don't know me, but I'll bet you know many other young women like me. I'm part of one of the biggest groups of women in the United States—the career girl! Most of us are in the same boat always seeking to look our smartest, . . . on a budget! So with this in mind, I'd like to take a few minutes of your time to tell you about new accessories, new items to let you look better groomed, smarter (and yet that your budget can afford)!

One of the newest items for better grooming I've found is LIP-TEX. It gives you a lasting lip-line and your lipstick (under LIP-TEX) looks better, feels better, lasts longer and absolutely will not smear (you can take my word for that, I've tried it)! Movie stars and models use LIP-TEX because they can use creamy, moist lipsticks which prevent their lips from drying and cracking, yet LIP-TEX gives them a stay-on glaze, and doesn't dry lips. (P. S. you can use LIP-TEX for your eyebrows, too—it lets you work all day and dance all night and not have to worry about your eyebrows leaving you! You can swim with LIP-TEX, too)! Best of all, it's only 50c in Walker's Cosmetics, Street Floor.

Attention: all busy, budget-wise white collar girls! This season you are really, really a white collar girl—for many of our new-look fashions need the crisp, fresh, light touch of a white collar, cuffs and gloves. I call them "Personality Accessories," because they're personally styled for you and no matter what your size you can wear them. The big, bold cape collars and the mid-arm gloves are for the tall girls, and the small, petite Peter Pan collars and wrist-hi shorties are for the shorter girl. And if you're an extrovert—we can please you with our smart black and white, or red and white check collar and matching glove set . . . and for the very demure . . . sheer embroidered nylon collar and matching glove set (white, of course)! Be real dramatic—add a brightly colored flower, or a sperkling pin to your collar . . . pick up the color in earrings, a scarf, and wow! you have the new-spring you!

Have you dreamed of a nylon stocking with never a wrinkle . . . never a twisted seam—an all new stocking that fits you perfectly, not approximately . . . that smooths over you when you stoop, sit or stretch (there's no popping holes in these nylons)—if you have, listen to this—because Walker's has them! These "stretch" sheer stockings are the new wonder of the fashion world . . . And remember, they fit all! The tiny slender leg, the short plump leg, the long stemmed legs and even the "ample" legs.

You'll find all these things in Walker's accessory department, street floor.

When the new $6 million Los Angeles Police Facilities Building in the Los Angeles Civic Center is opened for public view in May, one of the focal points of interest will be the world's largest glass mosaic mural ever executed by an American artist.

The mural, which "hangs in space" in the lobby of the building, was designed and made by Joseph L. Young, American artist who received his training in Europe from famous muralists.

The monumental mosaic mural, 36 feet long and 6 feet high, is the first major work of this type in the world to depart from conventional installation in the wall or floor. The mural is comprised of more than a quarter million tiny glass stones (called "tesserae"), each piece set by hand. More than 50 diverse colors were used. The mural, cantilevered from two supporting columns in the main lobby, weighs six tons.

The artist has created a design that reveals the history of Los Angeles as seen on a sunny day. Interlocking images that move down the panel show a technique of crisp black outlines superimposed over a background of abstract shapes.

Among the landmarks included in the works are the Los Angeles City Hall, Grauman's Chinese theater, oil wells on Baldwin Hills, Los Angeles-Long Beach harbor and the industrial area. The growth of Los Angeles is symbolized by the freeway cloverleaf near Civic Center. Old street cars contrasted with modern trackless trolleys.

Business is spotlighted by Miracle Mile with the Prudential Life Insurance Co. building against the skyline. History is reflected in the Alameda St. mission church while science is recognized with the Griffith Park Observatory. Angel's Flight, UCLA's Royce Hall, traditional and modern homes also are part of the mural's story.

Jean Coults of Palm Springs and John Hilton of 29 Palms will be honored with an art tea from 2 to 4:30 p.m. today, opening a dual exhibition of oil paintings at the Addington Gallery in Desert Hot Springs. The public is invited to attend the tea and view the paintings which will be displayed through March. There is no charge at any time. The daily showing will be from 2 to 5 p.m.

Why Grow Old?

Proper Exercise Aids Figure

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I am dipping into the mail bag this week. It is a temptation to do this too often because the mail I receive from readers is so fascinating and highlights practically every human problem.

After writing for 18 years I often think, "Now I have been asked everything," and then along comes a brand new question. I suppose this can go on forever.

The letter from which I am quoting today is not unusual in the problem it poses but is rather so universal in the experience of women that it will be helpful to many of you.

"I am not one of those women who need to lose weight. I am even a bit on the slim side but I need badly to redistribute the weight I have. I am way out of proportion. All of my weight seems to land on my legs and hips and around my waist. Will you please discuss this in one of your columns?"

I have often said in this column that we cannot lose weight by exercise alone, that we have to diet for that, but that we can distribute our weight more attractively with exercise, whether we do or do not need calorie counting.

We can recognize the pattern of our weight distribution by the late teens or certainly in early womanhood. This is inherited in that our glandular and general physical makeup is inherited. You have often noticed that in certain families all the women tend to have large hips, or a short waistline, or thick ankles, or big fatty deposits over the abdomen. You can see this pattern even in women who are the correct weight.

So, one must recognize these inherited tendencies and use the type exercise indicated. Even in the case of overweight, when dieting is essential, exercise will help make the figure more symmetrical.

As in the case of the reader from whose letter I quote, over and over again, I have seen very slim women who had lovely figures except for out-of-proportion hips, or abdomen or legs. I have seen them bring the offending measurement into line through exercise alone.

This is especially important at middle age when women find weight landing on them in new and annoying ways. Many slim women suddenly find that they have a roll over the girdle. This will not be as large as the one the overweight woman has, but it is there just the same. This can be managed through selected exercise.

If you would like to have my reducing exercises for the hips, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 3 "Hip Exercises," to Josephine Lowman in care of the Press-Telegram.

This feature appears daily in the Press-Telegram.

Interesting Speaker Must Dramatize His Message

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case N-366: Harry R., 31, is a clergyman with a college diploma and three years of seminary training.

"Yet I am an abject failure in the pulpit," he spoke sadly, "and I am considering quitting the ministry.

"I thought I had a call to preach and all my life I have struggled to prepare myself for this responsibility, but why keep on?

"Parishioners fall asleep if they do show up, and the pews keep getting emptier and emptier. Yet I try my hardest. But it doesn't seem to do any good.

"My wife cried last night when I suggested I better call it quits, for she insists I can be a fine minister, so out of deference to her wishes I promised I'd have an interview with you."

"If at first you don't succeed," paraphrased Sir William Lever, "try another method."

Every normally intelligent person can learn how to make an interesting speech, sermon or oration. But it requires the right recipe.

Harry's homiletics professor in theological seminary simply taught his students the wrong method.

Jesus gave us the best formula for public speaking that anybody has ever evolved, and it is the "narrative" or anecdotal method.

Start out with your main point or text. Then document it with concrete cases told in narrative style, which bear out that text. Christ thus used parables, which were simply relevant stories.

Harry's professor, however, had urged his divinity students to make sermons that were almost wholly expositional or "essay" type of addresses.

Those are very boring to audiences. Even erudite college professors grow sleepy or their minds wander when listening to a recital of ethical statements that aren't dramatized with interesting cases and narration.

Go to the Bible, for instance, and read chapter after chapter from Leviticus or Proverbs and you'll find your audience asleep in 5 to 10 minutes.

Or, read the Declaration of Independence aloud and then shift over to the Constitution, with its 22 Amendments.

Can you imagine any modern audience listening to that kind of oratory for 20 to 30 minutes without being sleepy?

And I say this with no thought of being sacrilegious or unpatriotic, but such expositional material just is not interesting to audiences of average people.

So I told Harry to pick his text for the following week and I'd help him map out his sermon outline.

I urged him to name at least three parishioners in his address so he would thus tie them into his sermon (as well as waken them if they were nodding).

He was also to use stories and try to employ the modern baseball pitcher's change of pace by walking out from behind the podium and growing confidential when he narrated one or two of the stories.

I've heard our topnotch American bishops tell as many as 12 to 15 illustrative stories in a 20-minute sermon, so you young clergymen should imitate their successful formula.

For further specific advice, send for my booklet "Public Platform Strategy," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus a dime.

Its advice is for musicians, as well as speakers, and changed Harry into a popular sermonizer inside of 90 days, for all he lacked was the proper recipe.

House Guests, Showers Fill Lakewood Calendar

By BERNICE AHRENDES

Lakewood hostesses have been busy with spring housecleaning along with preparing something extra special for their special guests. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis had Mrs. Davis' (Ruth) brother, Pvt. Roy Arnold, who is stationed at Ft. Ord for their weekend guest. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Wallace of Torrance joined the group for dinner.

Mrs. Clyde (Marie) Shamburg of 6142 Amos Ave. was the honoree of a stork shower held at the home of Miss Barbara Hewitt. Dainty things in pink and blue were brought to the party by Joan Owens, Pat Saunders, Shirley Saunders, Ima Sykes, Delores Modlin, Doris Mulder, Nancy Downs, Margie Warnick, Mmes. Frances Bigham and Mrs. Grace Shamburg.

Delores Buell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Auburn Buell of 5732 Whitewood, celebrated her 15th birthday Friday evening with a slumber party. Her guests, dressed in their prettiest P-J's, danced to records, sang songs and then in the wee hours one by one went to sleep. Up bright and early for breakfast though were Marlene Laird, Sue Musselman, Karen Suckla, Mildred Allenbaugh, Sandy Woldsberger, Joan Correll, Tess Cleaver, Judy Spaseff and Barbara Hermes.

Tuesday evening Miss Claire Cullen of 5725 Del Amo St. had as her guests for dinner, Mmes. Bernice Merrill, Dorothy Tidwell, Adele Clouse, Ronicka Harn, Charlotte Maynard, Alma Thyrgerson, Helen Groscolos, Myrtle Bunt, Mildred Canfield, Mildred Hoover, Jo Stocks, Ella Hay, Kay Rake, Cleo Lamb, Lucille Davis and Miss Delores Dyer.

A centerpiece of blue iris and pink carnations with a stork was the decor to suggest the dinner given to honor Mrs. Merrill.

Jody Lynn Haislett of 6042 Lorelie celebrated her first birthday Monday with a party given by her mother, Mrs. Bob Haislett. Her young guests were Mark and Linda Powers, Gary Bockman, Debi Rose, Niles Seyler. Older guests were her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Haislett of Long Beach, Mmes. Loman Murray, Archie Morisson, Maurice Winet, Pete Black, Joyce Rose, Morley Bockman and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Powers.

An unusual shower was attended by a group of Lakewood ladies. The shower was given for Mrs. Omer (Louise) Carson of Alma, Ark. Mrs. Carson was feted by her former neighbors at the home of Mrs. Andy (Elizabeth) Teigen. All the guests brought their gifts unwrapped so they could see each other's, then wrapped them after their arrival to send in one large box to Mrs. Carson. Each guest wrote Mrs. Carson a note to accompany her present.

Attending were Mmes. Opal Crabtree, Bessie Riggs, Elaine Bridwell, Val Kent, Pauline Anderson, Dorothy Ogan, Doris McCoy, Jewell Beard, Margarite Elam, Mae Johnson, Mabel Neville, Gladys Eagon, Virginia Priddy, J. Hatsfield, Regina Steadman and Nellie Stewart.

Chef of the Week

Tasty Ham Omelet Tops Speraw's Culinary Efforts

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

"Let Speraw (sparrow) build your nest"—that's the business slogan of Chef of the Week and "Young Man of the Year," Oliver J. Speraw.

Speraw has another slogan, too -- perhaps even he isn't aware of it, but it reads like this: "building a community civicly is as important as stacking bricks." That attitude accounts for his having been recently declared the "Young Man of the Year," an honor bestowed upon him by the Jr. Chamber of Commerce.

Though born in Minneapolis, Minn., he received his education in Long Beach, having come here with his family in '20.

Aspiring as a child to become an architect, Speraw is a living example of American Democracy -- he started his career by carrying the paint bucket as a painter's helper. He now heads his own construction company.

His business career was interrupted by three years spent in India and Burma as a member of the walking air force. Since his return to Long Beach, however, his extracurricular Long Beach activities include, serving as a water commissioner and as president of Jr. Chamber of Commerce. Statewise, he has acted as general chairman of both the California State Jr. Chamber board meeting and of the Far West Institute, U. S. Jr. Chamber, Treasurer of the Walfare Bureau, he holds membership in the Knights of Columbus, the Newman Club, and is a director of the Miss Universe Pageant.

Versatile, and known as one of the busiest men in town, he carries on his profession at home each weekend, practically changing the contour of the house on each occasion. He's known for his retentive memory, too, which stands him well, for he's joined the Speakers' Forum, that he may learn to think on his feet.

Mrs. Speraw says our "chef" will eat most anything—but when he cooks, it's invariably a Ham Omelet.

FLUFFY HAM OMELET
(Serves 4)

6 eggs
1 tbl. cold water
¼ tsp. onion salt and pepper
4 tbl. chopped ham
1 tbl. butter

Separate eggs—beat whites until fluffy. Add water and seasonings, continue beating until stiff. Beat the yolks and fold into whites. Heat butter in pan and pour egg mixture into it. Cover and cook over low heat until omelet has set. Uncover, add ham and bake in slow oven 325 degrees for 20 minutes. Omelet should spring back when it is done. Fold over and serve on warm platter.

Never Remember Failure More Than Half an Hour

By ANGELO PATRI

Boys and Girls, you are discouraged every once in a while. You say, "I give up. It can't be done." This because you have failed to reach the mark you set for yourself. Maybe you didn't make the team. Maybe you lost out in getting a part in the play. Something happened that you felt was a failure on your part and so you sat down by the willows to weep.

Don't. You're allowed a half hour or so to groan over your hard lot and then you'd better get up and go to it again. You've gotten your second wind and are ready to try again. That's what everybody else does.

If you think the fellow that won the place on the team that you wanted and didn't get did not have times of discouragement and said to himself, "I give up," you're mistaken. Everybody who ever tried to do anything worth while sat down halfway up the hill and mourned softly to himself just as you did. They rested there until they felt better all over and then they started on again, renewed in body and spirit. They'd gotten their second wind.

That's what you must do. Sit tight. Rest. Take a long breath and soon you'll be taking heart again. Take stock of mistakes, plan for a new attack and go ahead. You may as well for you will never get anywhere by sitting down to cry and saying, "I give up."

Look about you. Your teacher doesn't give up although he has to tell you the same thing over and over, do the same work over and over no matter how wearisome the task. Your father does not give up, nor does your mother. They get tired too, and they fail to win everything they set out to get but they're in there still trying. You will have to do the same thing.

There is no easy way to success in any undertaking whether it is winning a war or working an algebraic equation, making a camp fire or winning an election. Any worthwhile job demands everything you've got and it calls for the second wind every time.

In any work you begin you will find that the first stages are easy. You haven't reached the hard places yet. The way grows harder. You begin to tire, to say, "Oh what's the use"—Better not think that way. It's time to take thought and to catch your second wind. It is that call on reserve power that carries the worker over the top.

You store reserve power by doing a little bit more than your daily best. Store it. You're going to need it.

Lead Is This Hand's Key

When East bid four hearts in today's hand it was clear that he considered his suit to be quite powerful. A sensible player doesn't bid for ten tricks in an unsupported suit without considerable length and strength in that suit.

Opening lead—♦ K

For this reason, West should have regarded a heart opening lead as the safest possible opening. The lead of the king of diamonds from a suit headed by K-Q-J may have looked equally safe, but it turned out to be disastrous.

South won the first trick with the ace of diamonds, drew two rounds of trumps, and led a low diamond. West had to win with the jack, and East showed out, thus revealing the complete diamond situation.

Later on, South could lead the nine of diamonds through West towards dummy's trumps. West had to cover with the queen of diamonds, and dummy could ruff and thus establish the eight of diamonds. If West failed to cover with the queen of diamonds, dummy could discard instead of ruffing.

The point was, of course, that declarer needed to ruff only one diamond in the dummy. This was important, since after two rounds of trumps dummy had only three trumps to take care of declarer's two losing hearts and two losing diamonds. South gave up only one spade and one diamond, thus making his doubled contract.

There would have been a very different story to tell if West had led a heart to begin with. South would have had no favorite diamond situation to help him. He would have three trumps in dummy to ruff two hearts and one diamond.

Hence he would eventually lose two diamond tricks in addition to the inevitable spade loser. Thus South would be down one trick instead of making his contract.

Molly Mayfield

This Boy Needs Discipline

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

This problem has to do with my mother, my brother, Joe, and myself.

Let's just sum it up by saying that Joe has been the boss of the house ever since I could remember. I thought he would outgrow it but it seems he hasn't. Of course, he is worse when Dad isn't here, but he is bad enough all the time.

He tells mother to do this, do that. And if he says he is going to do such and such a thing, and mother says no, that he mustn't, he simply says to her, "oh, yes I am" — and he does as he darn pleases.

Here's a typical scene in our house:

JOE: Mother, fix my lunch now! (He never says please.)

MOTHER: Just a minute, Joe, I'm very busy.

JOE: Right now, Mother! Don't make me mad! (Then Mother fixes Joey's lunch.)

Or, he is in bed with a cold, and it's mother this, and mother that. Seems like it would drive her crazy. (It would anybody else.) She's really a wonderful mother and I've tried talking to her about letting Joe boss her around but it doesn't do any good. She says he is "just a baby."

She wanted to take him to the doctor for a checkup. Joe said he wouldn't go, and of course that was that. Just yesterday he told her to get off the phone so he could use it, and she did!

Daddy can make him behave if he tries to, but usually he's too tired to try by the time he gets home.

Well, Molly, you've heard my story. Please give me some advice. — B. G.

P. S. Joe is 9 years old. I am 14.

DEAR B. G.:

If you're a good husky 14 why don't you take Joey across your knee sometimes and give him the old one-two-three!

That's exactly what your mother ought to do when he refuses to obey, or sasses her, or tries to boss her around. Only a baby, my eye! A child of nine should certainly be taught to mind — or he is going to end up a child of 12 who refuses to, a youth of 16 who is out of control, and a young man of 21 who will have to learn discipline the very hard way.

Maybe, if you showed your dad your letter to me he'd realize that, tired or not tired when he gets home, he's got to tell the little dear precisely where to get off. — M. M.

Camp Fire Girls Ready for Birthday

Camp Fire Girls, the oldest youth organization for girls, will celebrate the 45th anniversary of the founding of the organization March 13 through 19.

Camp Fire has proved through its leisure-time program for girls 7 to 18 that there is nothing whatsoever the matter with youth today if it is provided with constructive activities to fill the gap between home and school. More than 4,000,000 girls have enjoyed a program combining fun, friendship and high ideals in the 45 years Camp Fire has been in existence, and they have enjoyed it the American way; for girls of every race, religion and economic background are welcome in Camp Fire.

A Community Chest Agency, Camp Fire serves three age groups: Blue Birds, 7 to 10; Camp Fire Girls 10 to 15, and Horizon Club, girls high school age. Homemaking skills, community service and development of new interests are emphasized in the program.

In these chaotic times, it is heartening to note that Camp Fire continues to present practical leisure-time training in citizenship, helping girls practice it while they are growing up. In line with this policy, it has adopted as its birthday theme this year, "Let Freedom Ring!" Camp Fire Girls will concentrate throughout the year on gaining a fuller understanding and appreciation of the Bill of Rights and the freedom it guarantees.

At a time when it is more important than it has ever been for each individual to assume personal responsibility for keeping freedom strong, Camp Fire is to be commended for its birthday program. Happy Birthday, Camp Fire Girls, "Let Freedom Ring!"

Royal Neighbors

Long Beach Camp No. 3822, Royal Neighbors of America, will meet at 8 p. m. Tuesday in Machinists Hall, with Valeria Popp as chairman. A social hour will follow the business session.

Child Care

Asks Help With Boy Who Steals

By BEULAH FRANCE, R.N.

(Q.) "My 8-year-old boy takes change from my purse. He has also taken utterly useless things from department stores. He's lovable and loved; we're a very affectionate family. I know there must be a reason for his one form of naughtiness, but he says he himself doesn't know why he does it. I hope you can help me help him.—MRS. S. T.

(A.) You are right in recognizing that your boy needs help. To tell him "Thou shalt not steal" and expect that commandment to cure might prove worse than useless. Doing that is like applying a healing lotion to a sore without discovering and treating the infection's cause.

No child steals without some reason. Your boy says he doesn't know why he does it. Perhaps that's true. A child's mind can conceal even from the child himself inner feelings which he doesn't dare admit.

Only skilled psychiatrists can delve deeply enough to find the sources of such troubles. Often children tell such specialists what they can't discuss with their dearly loved fathers and mothers.

It may be, however, that you and your husband can find the cause without professional aid. Talk with your son sympathetically. Does he get a thrill taking things from the store? Does he like to see what he can get away with? Does he help himself to money from your purse in order to buy what his allowance won't permit? If so, what does he purchase? What unfulfilled need does the money meet?

Explain to him that throughout life there will always be others who have more than he has, just as he has more than less privileged children. Teach him that stealing is sinful. Make him see that in life no one has everything he wants and that by stealing we lose our earthly friends as well as favor with God.

Ask Beulah France to help you with your child care problems. Write her in care of the Press-Telegram, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope for her reply.

This feature appears in the daily Press-Telegram.

An old-fashioned Sunday Walk

by SANDO BOLOGNA

DURING WALK, Mr. and Mrs. Bologna pause to let daughters Sandra, Anita and Flavia feed pigeons on Waterbury Green. Other stops: railroad station, newsstand.

WATERBURY, CONN.

When I was a small boy, it was the custom for a family to take a Sunday walk after church, during which you would greet friends, visit the local places of interest and discuss the events of the week.

With the increasing popularity of the automobile, the old Sunday walk has become almost a forgotten institution. Instead, people rush home, get into the car and race around trying to find some way to fill up their "free" day.

In our family, we have never given up the Sunday walk. Before the children came, my wife and I would take the walks alone. After Flavia, now 13, was born, I would proudly push the baby carriage as we walked downtown to buy the Sunday paper, say hello to the paperman, then head home for Sunday dinner. Now that we have three daughters instead of one, we think the walks are more important than ever.

We try to take them all together, but that doesn't always work. If there is a large meal to get, my wife prefers to go home directly, taking one of the girls to help her. Those days, after Mass, we stand outside and settle whose turn it is to go home with Mother. If Flavia has walked the previous week, I walk with Sandra, 9, and Anita, 7.

Why Walking Is Good

What's so exciting about a Sunday walk? First of all, my daughters review their past week's activities to me at a leisurely pace. They open up discussions of their plans for the next few days at school, in Girl Scouting, in church functions and in their social life.

Usually, our first visit is at the railroad station, about half a mile from our home, where we say hello to John Honan, the station master, who's been with the railroad 53 years. We talk to the ticket agents, Richard Woosley and Michael Gabriel, and to Anthony Coviello, who checks mechanical parts of coaches and freight cars. In this way, the children learn a great deal about railroading and points beyond Waterbury.

Leaving the station, we cross the street and stroll awhile in the quiet Library Park, noting whether the plants are in good health and whether our friends, the birds, seem well.

Then we may drop around to radio station WATR to watch disk jockey Anthony Pagliari preparing his program. Or we may go to the newspaper building to talk to our friends of the press, or to police headquarters to meet the officers at their work, or to the fire station to admire the brightly polished engines.

At Bauby's newsstand we chat with Joseph Falzone, who always has several stories to tell. Sometimes we buy peanuts from him to give to the pigeons, if we have not carried bread or cookies in a bag from home.

In winter, when there is enough snow, the girls often bring their sleds and we slide in Fulton Park. In spring we watch to see how much the flowers have grown since the preceding Sunday, how the trees are coming along and which new birds have arrived from the South.

Going home, we feel refreshed and very much alive. As we sit down to Sunday dinner, we thank God for His goodness.

HOSPITAL-BOUND? PERK UP!

● Statisticians, who like to figure out such things, have discovered that the average American can expect to be hospitalized four times during his lifetime. Years ago, this added up to a frightening prospect. But things have changed. New drugs, new operating techniques and new concepts of patient care have made hospital stays 1) shorter, 2) more pleasant and 3) proportionately less costly.

All this has come about in the last generation, and particularly in the past 10 years. It amounts to a "quiet revolution" in hospital care. That revolution, in fact, is in many ways today's biggest medical news, more important to more people than most of the stories that make one-day headlines.

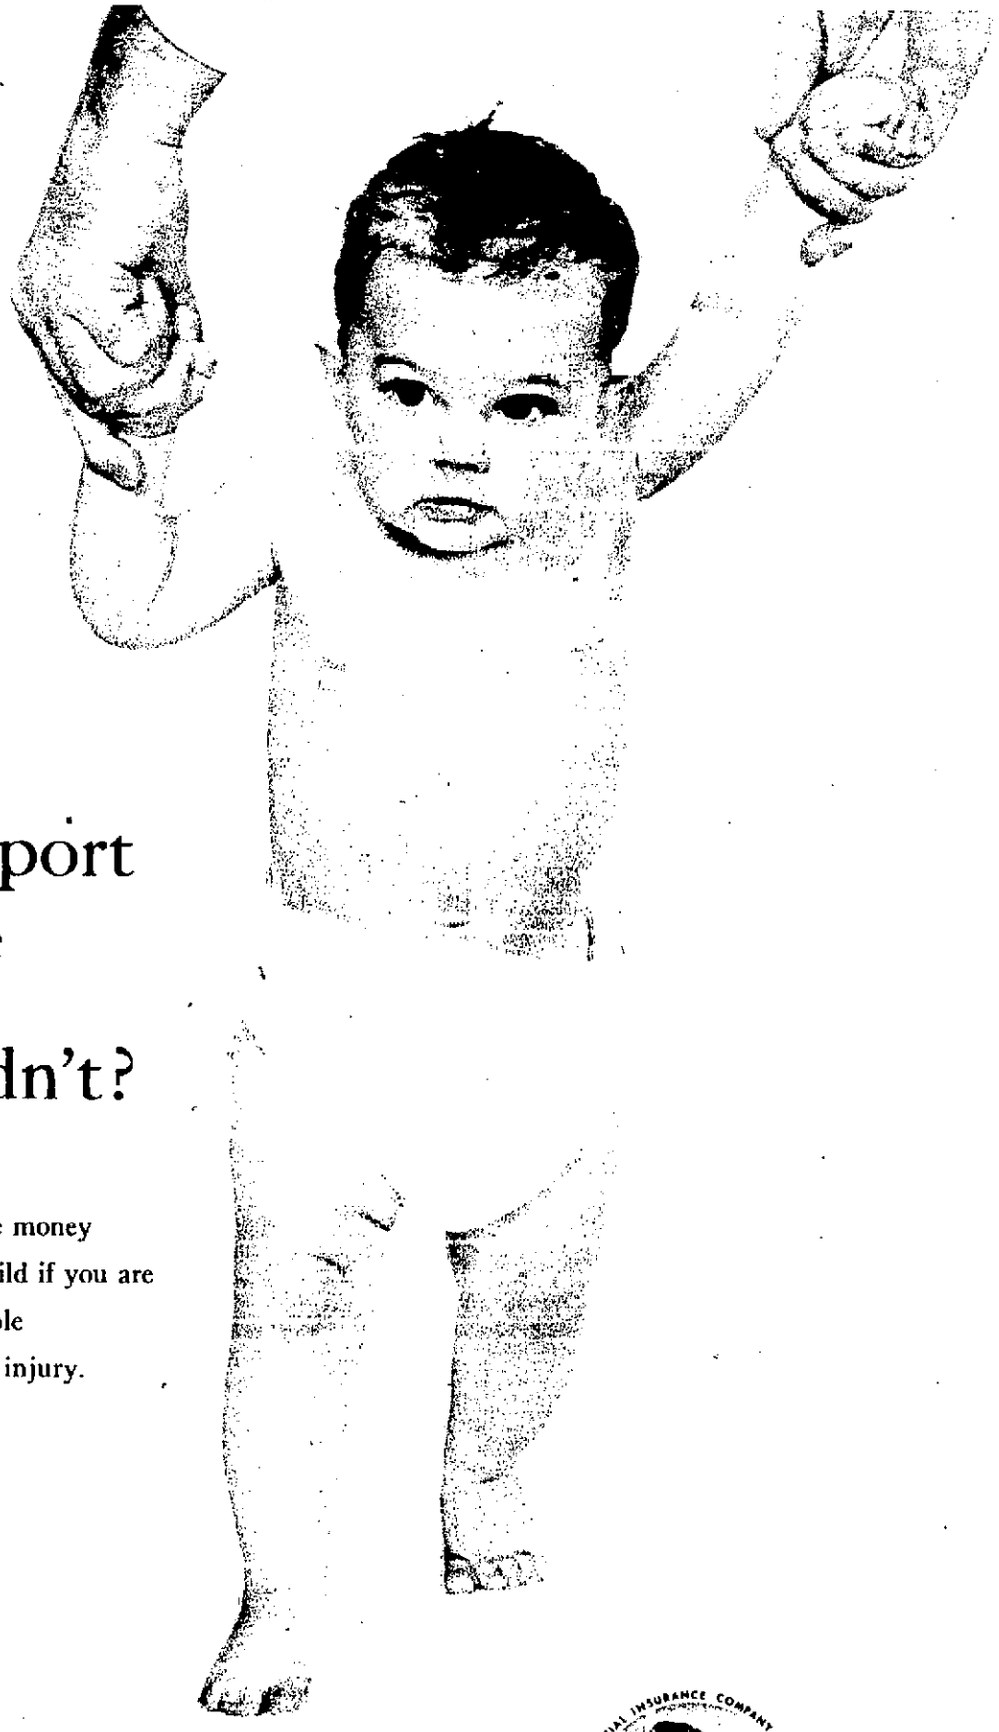

For more about this greatly encouraging news, turn to page 6.

STORY TIME: Somehow, the one about the octopus suddenly didn't seem such a good idea.

Notes I've Been Taken By

The man had a perfect system for remembering people—he thought

by DICK EMMONS

If you see me at a party scribbling busily in one corner of the room, I will not be jotting down an idea for the next charade. I will be transcribing on note paper the name, sex, outstanding physical characteristics, visible scars and general impression made on me by the last person I met.

This is my own, homemade system for jogging the old memory and avoiding the embarrassment that otherwise would surely visit me when I was again introduced to the same individual at a subsequent party.

I've been doing this for months now and my wife, Helen, and I have come to lean heavily on my notes. Before any social affair we conduct a briefing session in the ready room.

"The Darrows are going to be there tonight," Helen said crisply during a recent pre-party skull practice. "What's his first name?"

"One minute," I replied, thumbing briskly to the D's in my little book. "Here we are. George. Insurance. Fire, automobile, house, accident. No life."

"He seemed pretty lively to me, the way he kept dancing under the mistletoe last Christmas."

"The note means he doesn't handle life insurance," I explained kindly. "Here's some more background. Favorite subject: himself. Easily encouraged to tell more anecdotes by occasional snicker. Has habit of clapping listener on back at punch-line."

"His wife's name is Clara, right?" my wife asked.

"Check," I said, reading aloud. "Clara Darrow. Not bad. Not bad at all. In fact, very good. A lissome creature with a smile that invites tenderness and . . ." My voice trailed off and I snapped the book shut. "All set, dear? We better get going."

"Wait a minute!" my wife roared. "Let me have that book!" I underestimated the girl's footwork; in a trice she had caught me fleeing down the hall and was sitting on my stomach reading more of my notes about Clara, with expression.

"Five-feet-three in her stocking feet. Likes to be tickled behind the ears. Enjoyed story about the five foolish fishermen and the island of the mermaids. Try the one about the over-eager octopus—with gestures—at next opportunity."

I saw then that my biographies were all too complete.

That night my wife quickly found Clara, walked up, tickled her behind the ears and said, "My husband has a story about an octopus he thought you'd like to hear. All right," she rasped at me, squaring her feet and placing her fists on her hips, "tell it. With gestures."

Forced to modify the account considerably, I found it didn't come off very well. The only one who laughed was George Darrow, who came up at the end and thumped my back.

"That's a great one, old man," he thundered, "but did I ever tell you about the fellow who—"

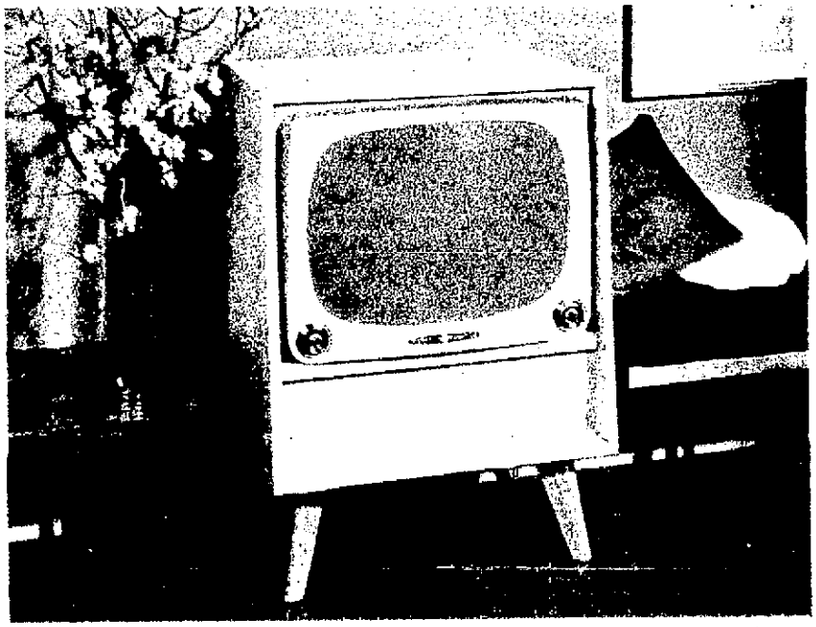

"Yes," I said over and over again, nodding vigorously and backing away.

"Well, he couldn't sleep, see, so—"

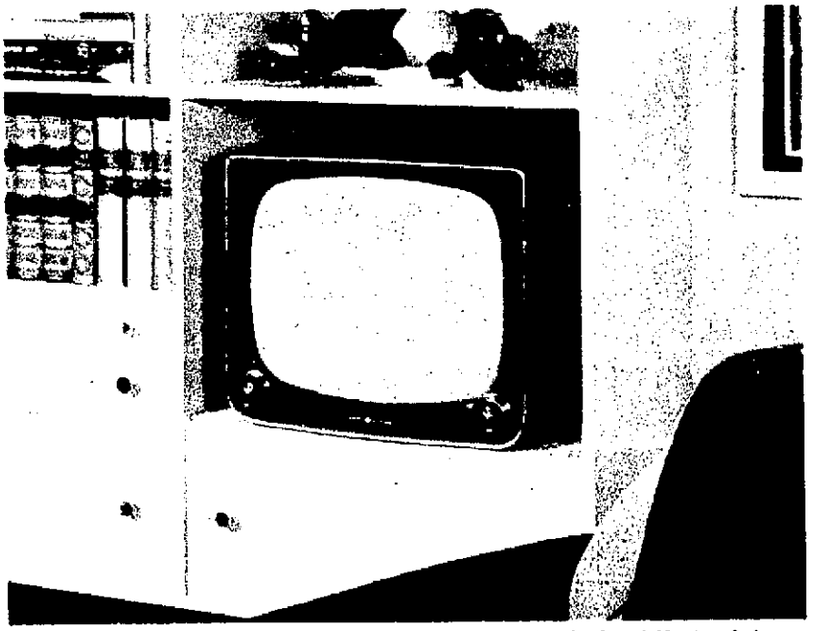

When I finally broke away, I made some hurried corrections in my notebook. In the D section it now reads:

"Darrow, George. Avoid."

"Darrow, Clara. Avoid at all costs." ■

Today's big medical news:

Shorter Hospital Stays Than Ever

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN and SID ROSS

The middle-aged man smiled as he left the University of Chicago Clinics. Suffering from a form of arthritis, he had been resigned to a long and costly stay in the hospital.

But new methods of treatment made possible his release in just a few days. From then on he was an outpatient, receiving necessary care but living at home and working a normal five-day week.

That man was one of a vast army of Americans hospitalized each year, an army which is taking part in a quiet revolution. It's the biggest news in medicine today—the revolution in hospital care that spells better treatment, shorter stays and steadily greater chances of survival in complicated cases.

This year, well over 20,000,000 Americans will be hospitalized, about three times as many as 20 years ago. Statistically speaking, you, a member of your family or a friend will, at some point in 1955, require hospital care. Most likely you will have any one of a hundred or more "acute" conditions.

EARLY AMBULATION: Patient is helped out of bed shortly after operation. This reduces chance of complications and speeds recovery.

DIET: Using new knowledge of nutrition, a hospital dietician plans meals for patient to keep her strong during recovery period.

HOW LONG WILL YOU STAY IN A HOSPITAL?

One out of two patients is confined to the hospital for less than one week, according to a recent study conducted by the Commission for Chronic Illness, Baltimore. Chart shows percentage of patients who stay longer than a week. Only about 12 per cent still stay longer than a month.

Here's the kind of treatment you get for specific illnesses when you are hospitalized

Acute illnesses are those that flare up, need quick attention and can be cured. They include everything from an infection to a broken bone or—though it is hardly an illness—childbirth. A recent Maryland study shows that seven out of eight hospital cases fall into the acute category.

The eighth case (about 12 per cent of the total) involves a "chronic" disease, such as heart trouble, cancer or tuberculosis.

Now, suppose you are an "acute" patient some time this year. What can you expect in the way of care, as contrasted to a generation ago?

Because of today's improved diagnostic devices—electrocardiograph and ballistocardiograph for the heart, electroencephalograph for the brain and others—doctors can determine better than ever what's wrong with you. One physician points out: "Thirty years ago, we often had to operate on a patient to find out what was wrong. Now, in most cases, we know what's wrong before you reach the operating room."

Before the operation, too, you now get a physical "build-up" if you need it. Vitamins, minerals, glucose will fortify your system for what lies ahead. In 1930, no patient received such thorough care.

Then take anesthesia. Virtually unknown 25 years ago, pre-anesthetic medications now make the operation easier and safer for patient and doctor. Demerol may be given to calm you. Atropine prevents complications in the lung during surgery.

In addition, one of the new, safer anesthetics—sodium pentothal, for instance—can put you to sleep in your room before the operation and let you wake up there after it is over. The patient of 25 years ago often was wheeled to the operating room in a state of emotional upheaval and had to be held down while ether or chloroform was given.

Is your heart strong enough to withstand surgery? Today, the electrocardiograph and X rays give a clear answer. Formerly, the doctor relied largely on his stethoscope.

CHECKUP: Doctor takes a heart patient's blood pressure to see if he can continue to be treated — not in hospital but at home.

DIAGNOSIS: Technician uses recently developed time-saving device, a "flame photometer," to check body fluids of patient.

"WONDER DRUGS": Patient is about to receive an injection of one of a wide variety of antibiotics which destroy infection and shorten hospital stay. Improved antibiotics are developed "almost daily."

And if your heart rate indicates that you are in trouble on the operating table, the doctor now can turn to new drugs and treatment techniques. Intravenous quinidine can help; so can the present-day purer form of digitalis. Blood from blood banks is available. The really critical patient can be put in an oxygen tent.

Those two old time post-operative killers, pneumonia and blood clots, have been eliminated to a large extent, the former by antibiotics, the latter by early ambulation (walking). Thirty years ago, long periods in bed could actually prolong or complicate your illness. When doctors discovered that, early ambulation became a hospital routine. Today you walk earlier, go home earlier, recuperate faster and more safely.

The Experts Tell Why

The revolution in hospital care affects both the acute patient and the chronic patient. PARADE asked experts from coast to coast two questions: Why are hospital stays shorter today? How long can patients with specific ailments expect to be hospitalized?

The answers were provided by the University of Chicago Clinics, the Los Angeles County Hospital, the Crawford Long Hospital (Atlanta), Georgetown University Medical School (Washington, D. C.) and the Ochsner Foundation Hospital (New Orleans). Here are their basic reasons for shorter hospital stays:

1) Antibiotic drugs (penicillin, terramycin, etc.). New derivatives of these "wonder" drugs are being developed almost daily.

2) Early ambulation.

3) Better diagnosis and pre- and post-operative care.

4) Improved medical and surgical techniques and better hospital personnel to apply them.

5) Increased emphasis on home care for patients because of high hospital costs and because many patients can do as well at home as in a hospital.

As a result of these factors, anyone needing an operation in 1955 will probably spend up to 50 per cent fewer days in the hospital than he would have 20 years ago. If he has a leg fracture or a serious infection, his stay may be cut up to 70 per cent. On chronic diseases there are few statistics available, but here too there is evidence that some hospital stays have been cut up to 50 per cent.

As for PARADE's second question, on length of hospital stays in specific illnesses, the University of Chicago Clinics provided a concrete breakdown which, on the average, may be taken as representative of most hospitals. Here it is:

Fractures: Many years ago, fracture cases stayed in the hospital for weeks if not months. Today, even many severe fracture cases are discharged in about two weeks. New techniques for "pinning" parts of broken bones together are partly responsible; one of these techniques permits the patient to walk on crutches almost immediately.

Burns: Antibiotics have performed near-miracles in preventing infection and cutting down hospital stays. Complicated cases which once required skin grafting and a six-month hospital stay may be discharged today in three to six weeks. Many of today's burn patients leave the hospital without scars or other signs of injury.

Appendectomy: Hospital stays have been cut in half in the past few years—from eight to 10 days to four to five days.

Childbirth: More than 90 per cent of all babies are born in hospitals. As late as 1940, new mothers were hospitalized 10, 12 or even 14 days. Today, some hospitals send mothers and their babies home after a day or two, though the average stay is three to five days.

Tonsillectomy: As a rule, children still remain in the hospital a day or two. But an important advance has been made in ailments relating to the tonsils and adenoids. Years ago, many patients were hospitalized for long periods because of infections associated with the tonsils. These infections, together with the need for hospitalization, virtually have been wiped out.

Gall-bladder disease: Formerly hospitalized three weeks or longer, these cases, involving surgery, now remain in the hospital about six to 10 days.

Hernia: Years ago, cases were bed-ridden about two weeks and kept in the hospital up to four weeks. Today, they sometimes leave the hospital in three to seven days.

Anemia: This term includes a large class of diseases. Years ago, every anemia sufferer died. Today, with liver extract and Vitamin B-12, few cases even have to be hospitalized—and those briefly.

The diseases classified as leukemias offer a different picture. Some forms are fatal. Others used to require hospital stays of several weeks, but now can be treated in a few days.

As for five main types of chronic disease, these "informed guesses" were made by Chicago Clinics authorities:

NO HOSPITAL BED FOR HIM

Heart patient, holding bottle of drug he takes at home, lives and works normally in spite of his illness.

Great Progress—in Some Cases

Arthritis: The largest single group are the rheumatoid arthritics. For them, the average hospital stay has been cut up to 50 per cent or more in the past generation. A significant number of arthritics can be treated in outpatient departments—without hospitalization.

Cancer: Surgery involving the breast or colon once called for hospital stays of several weeks. Now, as little as one week suffices in some cases. Surgeons are operating on—and saving—patients who would have been considered "hopeless" 20 years ago. The same holds true for cancer of the cervix and prostate gland. Fifty years ago, prostate-cancer operations carried a 25 to 30 per cent death rate; today, that rate is down to 1 or 2 per cent. But progress has been much less marked against cancer of the stomach and lung.

Heart disease: In certain types, the patient remains in the hospital four weeks as opposed to eight or more weeks 20 years ago. Because high blood pressure is treated in earlier stages today than before, hospitalization time has been reduced.

Tuberculosis: In the past decade, TB sanatorium stays have been cut up to 50 per cent. TB still is important, but great advances against it have caused some TB facilities to close for lack of patients.

Ulcers: In some cases, stays for ulcer surgery have been cut from three to four weeks to 10 days to two weeks.

To this remarkable record, one researcher at the University of Chicago adds:

"Great strides have been made in hospital care. Today we don't even see cases of those old-time killers, typhoid, diptheria, scarlet fever."

However, he points out, a new field has opened in hospital care. This is the field of long-term degenerative disease associated with aging—senility, stroke, certain types of heart disease, etc. Knowledge in this area is sketchy.

"Those illnesses of aging provide a big part of the hospital problem of the future," he says. "Come talk to us in a few years—you'll really get a story." ■

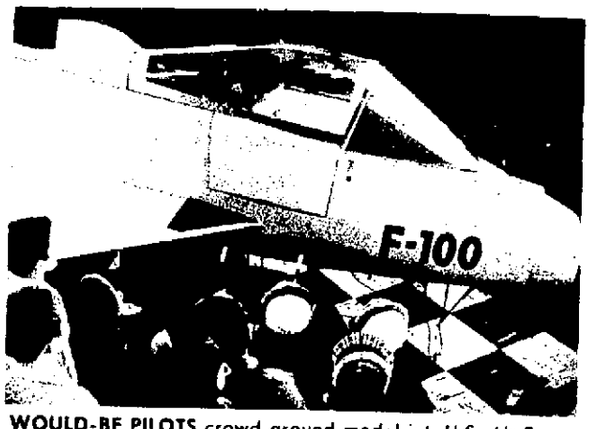

He's deep in thought—or prayer.

Scale-Model Jet Fighter Aces

HAMMOND, IND.

The kids from the Carmelite Orphanage near here may not all grow up to be jet pilots, but they know how it feels after flying the Super Sabre Red Ball Jet—an exact scale model of the F-100—in a local shoe store. Climbing into the cockpit, they heard a recorded whoosh as the plane pointed up, saw themselves "flying" on a movie screen, heard "tower to pilot" instructions via headphones, "landed" safely. The plane, now on tour, advertises shoes for just plain walking.

WOULD-BE PILOTS crowd around model jet. U.S. Air Force and builders of real F-100 have approved this type of activity.

...and when you awake washday is over!

BENDIX

Fur-collared pilot grabs control, hangs on.

Lad in T-shirt really feels he's flying.

Girl says, "So what? Just a jet."

Four-year old: he wants to bail out.

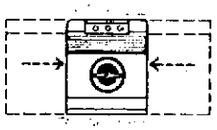

It can happen tonight! You can curl up in bed and sleep like a princess while the BENDIX DUOMATIC Washer-Dryer takes washday out of your life

Here is the one machine in all the world that washes then DRIES your clothes . . . and we mean thoroughly dry, not damp dry . . . while you drift off to dreamland. On this page, you'll find facts, not dreams, about this miraculous new machine . . . the Bendix Duomatic

You're a rested Mother

. . . cheerful and understanding when Sister's lunch lands in her lap and Johnny marches home in mud-soaked jeans. Your Bendix Duomatic is a whiz at getting youngsters' hard-to-wash things sparkling clean—and dry-for-wearing, too. Much of the time you won't even touch the clothes with an iron. Just put them in . . . then put them on!

The two helpers you want most . . . in ONE machine

An automatic washer . . . an automatic dryer! Now for the first time in anybody's lifetime, you can have both in one handsome, wonderfully compact machine.

You'll set the dials just once to wash, rinse and thoroughly dry your clothes. Or, you can use the Duomatic as a washer only . . . or a dryer only . . . whenever you like. No washday appliance has ever been so versatile . . . so completely ready to do exactly what you want when you want it.

Clothes are lifted and tumbled 500 times every ten minutes

The Duomatic washes clothes whiter . . . brighter . . . cleaner than you've ever seen them.

That's because its tumble-action is unlike other machines.

Your clothes plunge deeper into the suds . . . they're lifted higher . . . turned and tumbled (ever so gently) 500 times in 10 minutes.

Two wonderful tumble rinses plunge your clothes in and out of clear, warm water until they're immaculately clean. And they stay that way because they're lifted out of the water as it drains away.

Atomic tests show the Bendix Duomatic washes three ways cleaner than other leading automatic washers.

But you won't need tests to tell you.

A special heater keeps wash water hot

Women who have the Duomatic say the built-in Magic Heater is almost as wonderful as the machine itself. Other washers let the wash water cool off, but the Bendix Magic Heater keeps it hot and hard working all through wash cycle . . . keeps it extra hot for extra-dirty things.

You're a beautiful housekeeper

. . . you'll have the crispest curtains, the fluffiest blankets . . . and you'll do them with your eyes shut. None of the lugging and tugging that made "heavy cleaning" a thing to be dreaded. Now, thanks to the Duomatic, it's as easy as setting a dial.

Balmy breezes dry your clothes

After your clothes are washed and rinsed, the Duomatic blinks its bright green eye and automatically turns into a dryer.

Now soft, warm air blows through your clothes while the Duomatic fluffs and tumbles them lovingly dry.

And consider this: Duomatic drying is so gentle, manufacturers recommend it for Fabulous Fabrics like Orlon, Dacron, Nylon. Fabrics you'd hesitate to trust to other dryers.

Space is no problem, neither is installation

The Bendix Duomatic gives you a washer and dryer in just 36 inches of wall space. Fits neatly into the kitchen, the pantry, even the bathroom. And it's now available in both gas and electric models so your husband can't bring up that old bugaboo about installation costs. Would it be a good idea to mark this paragraph—for him?

You're A Brand New You

. . . take a look at yourself, all smiles, no worries, all kinds of pep. With the Bendix Duomatic there are no washday chores to wash you out. As a matter of fact there are no washdays.

Proved in 2 full years of home use

The Duomatic is no "experiment"—it's been an everyday blessing in thousands of homes for two years now. And—if you think we lavish praise on the Duomatic, you should see the hundreds and hundreds of letters we've had from grateful owners. You'd read comments like these . . .

"The best surprise is the way it washes. I've never had clothes come out so clean" . . .

Mrs. John Self, Chicago, Illinois

"I love the way our Duomatic dries, too. It never steams up my kitchen or overheats the house" . . .

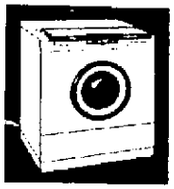

Mrs. Rolfe Christopher, Beaumont, Texas

"With two small children, it's a life saver. Like having full time laundry help" . . .

Mrs. E. C. Gutknecht, Milwaukee, Wis.

Shouldn't you take your husband by the hand and look into the BENDIX DUOMATIC tomorrow?

Do you want a separate washer or dryer?

The new Bendix Tumble-Action Washer washes just like the Duomatic does. Same superior cleansing action . . . same rinses. Bendix Tumble-Action is the only washer with Tip-Top Laundry Guide. Closed, it hides the dials, gives you extra work space. It opens to reveal convenient, up-front controls and a complete laundry guide.

And the new Bendix Fluff 'N' Tumble Dryers dry like the Duomatic does . . . gently, with safe low temperatures and a high flow of clean warm air. What's more, they're very low priced . . . as little as $158.88!

Thrifty Bendix Tumble-Action uses less water . . . so, of course, it uses less detergent, too!

Bendix prescribes ALL, the modern "controlled suds" detergent, for best washing results. ALL never chokes up your washer with suds that slow down washing action. That's why a free box of ALL is packed in every new Bendix.

Why do they always kick the tires of a used car?

You've seen them do it in lots of used car places. You've done it yourself, haven't you?

The salesman quotes a price. Or says "What do you think? Doesn't that sound like a good buy?" That's when the used car shopper kicks the tire . . . reflectively.

The tire-kicker is wondering: Has the car been thoroughly inspected? Reconditioned for safety, performance and value? Has it been honestly described? Is the dealer reputable? Does he stand back of the cars he sells—in writing? When a fellow has the answers to those important questions he has the assurance he needs. He stops kicking and starts clicking.

You'll be sitting pretty with the right answers the minute you ease into a clean, well-groomed OK Used Car at your Chevrolet dealer's. Drive it, and experience what "reconditioned for performance and safety" means. Buy it, when you hear the down-to-earth price that means more value, more pleasure per dollar. EXPERT: As firm's employe since 1872, James Rearden gives useful tips to newcomer, Mrs. C. M. Lowe.

83 YEARS ON ONE JOB

South Carolina mill clerk sets world's record

by GEORGE ROBINSON

GRANITEVILLE, S. C.

This will be quite a year for James Wesley Rearden, a leading citizen of this little mill community nestled in the rolling hills of Upper Horse Creek Valley near Aiken. On June 6 he'll celebrate his 94th birthday. On May 10, he'll round out 83 years of work with the Graniteville Company, a group of modern cotton mills.

And that makes Mr. Rearden the holder of the longest continuous industrial work record in the world. In the office of the president of the Graniteville Company hang five portraits. Four are those of presidents of the firm. The fifth is that of the shipping clerk to whom the firm long has paid tribute for "always doing a little more than is expected of him."

The remarkable Mr. Rearden has a standing offer from the Graniteville Company to retire any time he wants to or report for work any hour of the day he chooses. But he's regularly among the first on the job, walking the short distance from his white frame home (not far from the plant gates) to his office. He treats himself to a short rest period after lunch every day, but otherwise puts in full time.

A retirement system was adopted by Graniteville in 1949 for employes reaching 65, but Mr. Rearden—then 88—had been told long before that he could work as long as he cared to. So he's doing just that. "As long as they'll let me," he says, "I'm going to show up for work each morning. I like the people I work for and I'd feel lost without something to do."

That "something to do" for the past 35 years has included teaching the Young Men's Bible Class at St. John's Methodist Church in Graniteville, where he has been a member 70 years and has sung in the choir almost that long.

Mr. Rearden won his longest-work-record title fair and square. In 1950, the Thomas De La Rue Company, Ltd., printers and engravers, of London, challenged the U.S. to produce a man with a longer continuous work record than their Harry Adkins, a 75-year man. The Rearden record, supplied through the National Association of Manufacturers, showed that he topped Adkins by three years.

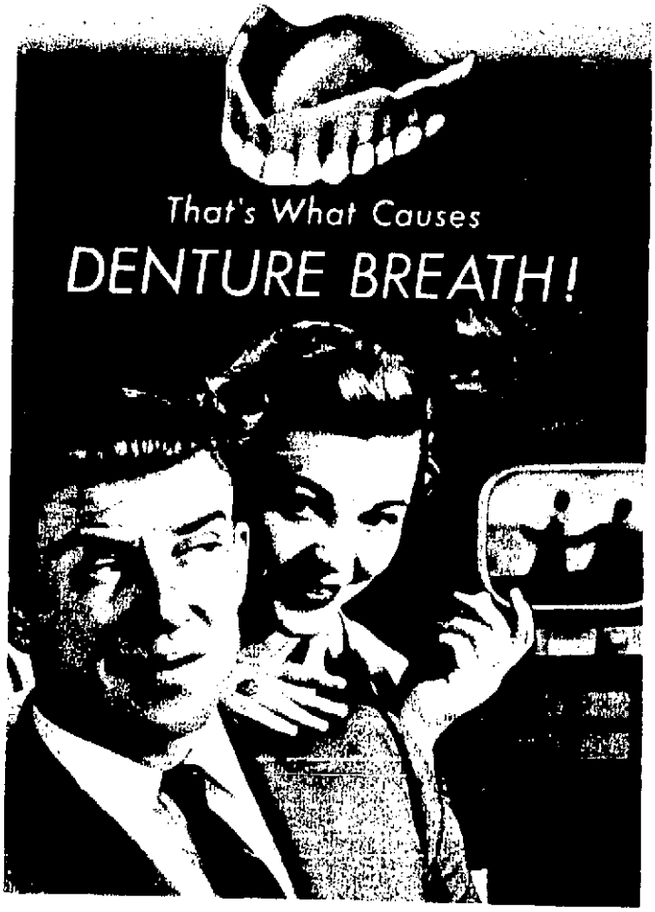

He Started at 10

He began work for Graniteville on May 10, 1872. He was nearly 11 then, but—as he recalls—"big for his age." That was the only reason he was able to get a job in the plant; every child under 13 was supposed to be in school. Mr. Rearden's first job was "tack boy," his only tools a needle and thread plus a shoe knife for cutting thread to tack cloth.

Mr. Rearden still remembers the company's founder, William Gregg, who started the mill in 1845. It is the oldest cotton mill in the South operating under its original charter. As for Mr. Rearden, he feels the same about his job today as in 1947, when the company honored him on his 75th consecutive work year.

Said he then: "If I had to make the choice again, it would be the same as it was in 1872." ■

New Rinso Blue washes whiter —because it blues as it washes

Guess which girl washed her towel with RINSO BLUE? (The one on the right.)

New sky-blue detergent washes cotton, rayon, even nylon whiter—because it blues as it washes! Unless your present detergent does that—it's doing only half the job!

RINSO BLUE does so many different jobs, and does them all so brilliantly, that it honestly makes other detergents seem obsolete. Listen to this:

1. RINSO BLUE actually blues as it washes. As a result, sheets, shirts, pillowcases—yes, even rayon and nylon clothes—come out cleaner and whiter, your colored clothes brighter. And you don't need to add any bluing!

2. We developed this new RINSO formula to give you the cleaning power to get clothes really clean and white in your washer.

3. RINSO BLUE dissolves instantly, even in the hardest water—makes rich suds that float out grimiest dirt, even from soiled work clothes. Yet it's safe for your finest lingerie.

4. It's delightfully mild. That's why so many gals also use RINSO BLUE for doing dishes. It cuts grease like crazy—leaves glasses sparkling. And you don't need to dry!

Lever Brothers unconditionally guarantees new RINSO BLUE, just as we have always guaranteed Rinso soap in the green box.

If you don't agree that RINSO BLUE is a big improvement on the detergent you are now using, we'll gladly refund your money.

▶ Above all, remember this: RINSO BLUE gets your clothes extra white because it blues as it washes. Unless your present detergent does that—it's doing only half the job!

Here's Mitzi Gaynor, the little ballerina they said was "through" in show business—and so she bounced right back to stardom.

The studio dropped her too soon

Mitzi Gaynor can prove it: she's doing better than ever, now

HOLLYWOOD.

When Henry Gerber of Detroit read the announcement four years ago that his dancing daughter, Mitzi Gaynor, had been signed to a "standard seven-year studio contract" by 20th Century-Fox, he glowed. For the next seven years, he felt, his talented, bouncy Mitzi would enjoy financial security, reaping a hefty salary 52 weeks a year.

Like most of the public, Mr. Gerber was laboring under a misconception. In Hollywood, when a studio signs a young actress to a "standard seven-year contract," it simply means that it is guaranteeing the girl 20 weeks of employment at a fixed salary during the first six months—nothing more. If after the first six months the studio wants to exercise its option and continue the actress' employment for another six months at increased salary, it is entitled to do so. If not, the girl is dropped. She can be released at any option period during the seven years.

There are minor variations—sometimes a player is guaranteed 40 weeks of salary in the first year—but basically the standard studio employment contract sounds much better to the aspiring hopeful than it really is.

In the case of Mitzi Gaynor, this smiling sparkplug was dropped last April by 20th Century after four years of work. At the time, her salary was $1,500 a week and she had just started dancing in There's No Business Like Show Business. Mitzi was unceremoniously released from the studio roster for one reason: the executives were convinced she lacked the indefinable magic that makes for screen stardom.

Anyone who's seen Show Business knows they were wrong. In fact, they modestly admit it themselves. But the misjudgment of talent is an inherent part of this business. Every studio has made personnel mistakes. Sam Goldwyn dropped Betty Grable. MGM let Marilyn Monroe go. Columbia showed Barbara Stanwyck the door.

Mitzi, at 23, is gushingly happy that 20th Century dropped her. Says she: "It's turned out to be the best thing that ever happened. Paramount is paying me $100,000 to work opposite Bing Crosby in Anything Goes. Donald O'Connor has had me on two of his TV shows at $5,000 each. Irving Berlin has talked to me about Sayonara. Ethel Merman wants me to do a 'spectacular' with her for Max Liebman. I'm telling you, man, things are jumping. Real crazy."

Currently Hollywood's most-in-demand young dancer, uninhibited Mitzi is a contemporary illustration of that hoary-haired show business adage: "You're only as good as your last role." Before she "stole" Show Business from Dan Dailey, Ethel Merman, Marilyn Monroe and Donald O'Connor, Mitzi was about as much in demand in this town as a heavy snowfall. The movie moguls knew she could dance, sing, mimic and do light comedy, but she was difficult to cast because she generated more cuteness than sex appeal.

She also was plump, to put it mildly: she tipped the scales at 145, an incredible weight for a 5'6" dancer. As a result she was assigned a series of "near-nothing" roles in Take Care of My Little Girl, Down Among the Sheltering Palms, We're Not Married and Bloodhounds of Broadway. These films made her extremely popular with her family and friends, but not too much so with the public.

She Streamlined Herself

In 1953, however, Mitzi decided to diet. "I cut down on my calories," she explains, "and hired a masseuse. I also got a new hairdo and a dye job. It took a year but I came out a brand new Mitzi—112 pounds. Not only that, the fellows stopped treating me like their kid sister. I even got marriage proposals." One proposal she accepted from publicist Jack Bean last November. They were married in San Francisco.

Despite her streamlined figure and her more adult facial appearance, however, Mitzi failed to stimulate the waning enthusiasm of her employers. Last spring they decided to cast her in Show Business and drop her from their contract list.

"When I received the letter telling me they didn't want me any more," Mitzi recalls, "I was really broken up. But not for long. I've got Hungarian blood—my father was a musical director in Budapest before he came to this country—so I'm just naturally irrepressible. 'Mitzi,' I said to myself, 'you'll show them yet.'

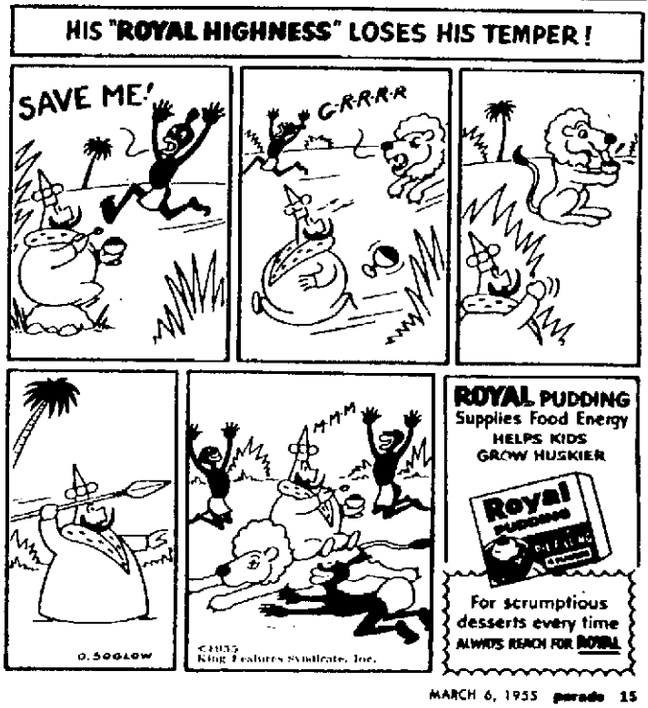

"Right off, Donald O'Connor hired me for his TV show. Then I worked my head off in the picture. When it was released this past Christmas I got rave notices. Then one offer after another. My agent signed the Paramount deal."

A week later, a 20th Century-Fox executive phoned the Gaynor girl, his voice tinged with pain. "I can't believe," he said in fatherly fashion, "that our Mitzi has signed with another studio. Why didn't you talk to us, baby?"

Mitzi giggled and said: "You dropped me too soon."

Born in Chicago and reared in Detroit, product of a broken home, Mitzi Gaynor has been dancing for pay since she was 11. After one thousand hours of USO entertaining, she came to Hollywood with her mother, and here she was recognized as a "dancing natural" by light-opera producer Edwin Lester. In one of his operettas, The Great Waltz, 15-year-old Mitzi demonstrated her prematurely veteran stage presence. While she was dancing with Walter Slezak her petticoat came loose and slipped to the floor. Casually and nimbly the cherubic ballerina stepped out of it and continued waltzing.

George Jessel, then a producer at 20th Century-Fox, chanced to watch that particular performance.

"When I saw Morris (Jessel's name for Mitzi) carry on as if nothing had happened," he says, "I decided the kid was worth a screen test. I brought her to the studio and she sang I'm in Love with a Wonderful Guy. She was absolutely great. I changed her name from Gerber to Gaynor—after all, Gerber sounds as if she owned a delicatessen—and put her in My Blue Heaven. After that the studio signed her. The rest is history. Only I dare you to mention the name of the guy who dropped her."

It takes no daring, George. Everyone knows Darryl Zanuck runs 20th Century-Fox. ■

COMICS: Mitzi and Donald O'Connor strut in a comedy take-off in a scene from There's No Business Like Show Business. Her dancing stole the show, critics said.

AUTHOR OF "AMY VANDERBILT'S COMPLETE BOOK OF ETIQUETTE"

'BABY TALK'

Showers? Announcements? Here's useful advice

There is a whole field of etiquette of which adults rarely think until they actually get involved in it. I refer to babies and their budding, but important, social life.

One subject of general interest is baby showers. A basic rule on showers of all kinds is that they are properly given for, not by, the persons concerned. The suggestion always should come from, and be arranged by, a friend. The recipient, of course, usually knows that the shower is planned and may delicately let it be known what gifts would be welcome.

Here are some questions in the "baby" field from PARADE readers:

Q. In a few months, I expect to become a grandparent. I have been asked to give a baby shower for my daughter. I have declined, simply because I don't think it is proper to give a shower before the birth – so many unfortunate things could happen.—Mrs. W.R., Orange, N.J.

A. I agree with you only in part. Showers are usually given before the baby's birth because we do look on the coming event with optimism – which is good and normal.

However, you are right in another respect. Arrangements for the shower should come from friends of the mother-to-be, otherwise it looks as if the family itself is soliciting presents. I know you'll be able to put this tactfully to those who think you should be the sponsor. And don't be pessimistic about your coming grandchild—think how many people have been born!

Q. Is it necessary for me to send birth announcements to all the families that were present at a baby shower given for me?—Mrs. G.K.C., Augusta, Ga.

A. I would send them to the various girls who came to the shower for you. Stationery stores have very charming little birth announcements which are quite proper to send out. A more formal—and more expensive—way of announcing the new baby is to have tiny calling cards with the baby's name attached to your joint calling card with white, pink or blue ribbon. Any good stationer will show you how this is done.

Q. We are going to have a home christening for our baby. Should formal invitations be sent out? We plan to have it at 5 o'clock and follow it with a buffet supper. Should both the minister and his wife be invited, or just the minister? Isn't there some traditional punch that is served?—Mrs. I.W.R., Long Beach, Calif.

A. Formal invitations are not sent for a christening. Close friends and relatives are invited by telephone, by word of mouth and by note. The clergyman's wife is included in the invitation. The traditional drink at christenings was a "cuddle cup," but this has largely been replaced by champagne, plain or in a delicate punch. Often at afternoon christenings sherry is served.

Let me add a thought from my book, on the subject of home christenings: "It should be kept in mind that this is a celebration in honor of the baby, following a formal, religious ceremony. It has a character quite different from a cocktail party and should be kept on such a plane that even the most conservative baby could not object to the behavior and bearing of his elders."

Q. Can you suggest some suitable baby presents aside from the usual sacques, bonnets, blankets, etc.?—R.R.W., Charleston, W. Va.

A. One of my own favorites is a silver dumbbell which makes a fine comfort when the baby's teeth come in. Any baby will be enchanted, too, by the wide variety of nursery mobiles now being offered; hung above the crib, they will fascinate him for hours on end. For the baby who is literally going to get "everything" there is nothing better than a savings bond or a contribution to his savings account.

I used all in my washer, and I told my neighbor, Mrs. Smith, that all's "controlled suds" "won't overflow in automatics" and that all's remarkable cleaning power gets clothes "spotlessly clean, soft and fluffy!"

THE STORY OF all—the original "controlled suds" detergent prescribed by the makers of both top-loading and front-loading washers

all is an utterly new and different kind of detergent—created at the request of automatic washer makers.

all washes with "controlled suds"—the kind that permit your clothes to slosh around in your washer free and easy, just the way the manufacturer intended. Thick suds actually hinder washing action and can ruin costly parts.

What's more, all's "controlled suds" go to work down in the water where the clothes are. all's "controlled suds" get out every single speck of dirt and flush it down the drain with the rinse water.

Millions of women bless the day they discovered the modern way to get cleaner, brighter washes with the now-famous "controlled suds" detergent, all.

But because many other women are accustomed to using a lighter weight, fluffy detergent, we now present a brand new form of all . . . EXTRA FLUFFY all. If you have been using a lighter weight, fluffed-up product, you no longer have to buy the old-fashioned sudsing kind—buy new EXTRA FLUFFY all.

New EXTRA FLUFFY all, in the big red box, is on your grocer's shelf right beside the old favorite CONDENSED all in the bright blue box. And they're both prescribed by automatic washer makers.

A Shore Dinner from the Freezer

by Beth Merriman, PARADE'S FOOD EDITOR

No matter how far inland you may live, a shore dinner at home is yours for the asking—when you ask at the frozen-food counter of your supermarket or grocery. Two new delicacies—seafood chowder frozen in cans and precooked frozen fish sticks, golden-brown and flaky—are featured in today's dinner.

SHORE DINNER

Frozen Clam or Fish Chowder
Deep Sea Casserole
Frozen Mixed Vegetables with Curry Butter
Tossed Salad
Frozen Apple Pie Beverage

DEEP SEA CASSEROLE

1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
8-oz. medium egg noodles (about 4 cups)
½ cup sweet pickle relish
¼ cup chopped stuffed olives
½ cup finely chopped onions
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 cup mayonnaise
¼ cup milk
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Salt and pepper to taste
1 10-oz. pkg. frozen pre-cooked fish sticks

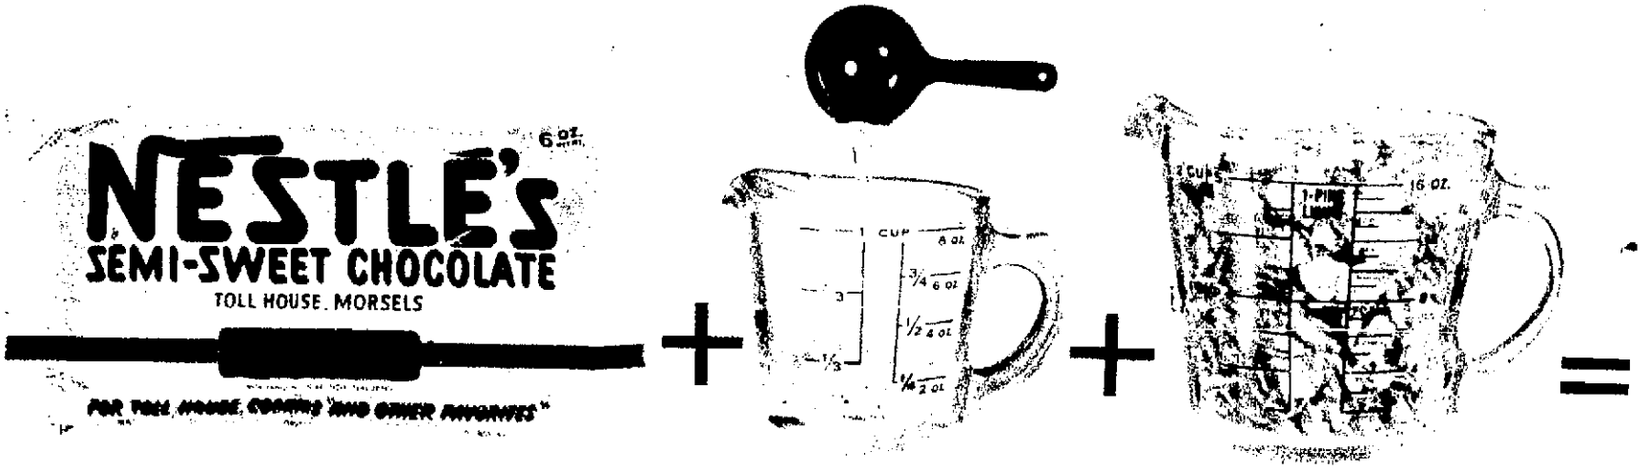

Add salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add noodles so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain. Combine noodles, pickle relish, olives, onions, parsley, mayonnaise, milk and lemon juice. Season with salt and pepper. Turn into greased 2-qt. casserole. Top with frozen fish sticks. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Makes four servings.

KITCHEN HINT

Spices lend zest to vegetables. Melt butter or margarine; blend in selected spice, salt and pepper. Toss with vegetable. With mixed vegetables, try curry.

WATCHFUL TV EYE helps Mrs. Fletcher keep tab on her three children in back yard. Other cameras are in children's bedrooms. Sets are complete with intercom system.

ALWAYS A BREEZE

Patio is "air-conditioned" as air filters through butterfly door. Low-slung house surrounds patio, contains 1,900 square feet of space, is built on a ¾ acre plot.

WEST COVINA, CALIF.

How'd you like to live in a house where:

You'd be able to peep at your sleeping children without leaving your bed.

You'd always have a breeze on the patio.

You'd never trip over a lamp cord.

You'd never worry about burglars.

Your windows would close automatically when a thunderstorm blew up.

Your meals would be cooked in mid-air above a cold, ordinary-looking cabinet.

The lights would shut off automatically when you left a room.

The whole house would be heated by a gadget the size of a basketball.

Pipe dreams? Not these. Every one has been built into a house here, not far from Long Beach, and every one works.

The designer of this "House of Tomorrow" is 24-year-old Jack Fletcher, who built many of the futuristic gadgets himself. Yet Fletcher, son of an aeronautics manufacturer, didn't set out to build a dream house. It "just growed."

It started in 1951 when Jack was an Air Force corporal. He and his wife, Joan, began by outlining a home they would build some day. "It grew gradually," Jack says. "We'd think of something and I'd rough out plans on how it would work." By the time his hitch ended, they had dozens of brand-new ideas.

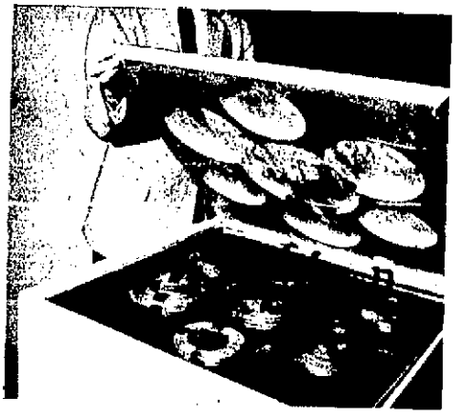

They also had three children—Janie, 3, and twins Johnny and Ricky, 2. So the house was tailored for a family of five. "People are so taken with the advanced features," Fletcher says, "that they overlook the ideas that make it comfortable." An example: the house is laid out in two sections, one a children's romping area, the other a living room and patio for entertaining.

CHIMNEYLESS fireplace is old Chinese trick. Smoke is drawn down under floor into a central flue.

AIRBORNE skillet fries eggs without touching stove. Plywood cabinet is cold to touch. Below, Fletcher displays stove interior—seven magnetic coils.

'House of Tomorrow' —TODAY

The "nerve center" is a massive electric control board. Its switches allow such features as the automatic lighting – which snaps on when you enter a room, off when you leave—to be shut off when not needed.

It also controls TV cameras which peer into the children's rooms and the play area. Receivers are in the parents' bedroom and the family room, so Mrs. Fletcher can keep an eye on the kids. The bedroom set also has an intercom hookup. A flip of a switch pipes music into any part of the house.

Floor lamps are cordless, plugless, socketless: they light up when set over electronic units in the floor. Windows include a sensitive device called a solenoid, which whisks them shut at a drop of rain or gust of wind. Burglars are foiled by an amplifier which magnifies night noises 50 times, and an electric door lock which sets off an alarm when tampered with. The telephone will automatically dial police or fire when a button is pushed.

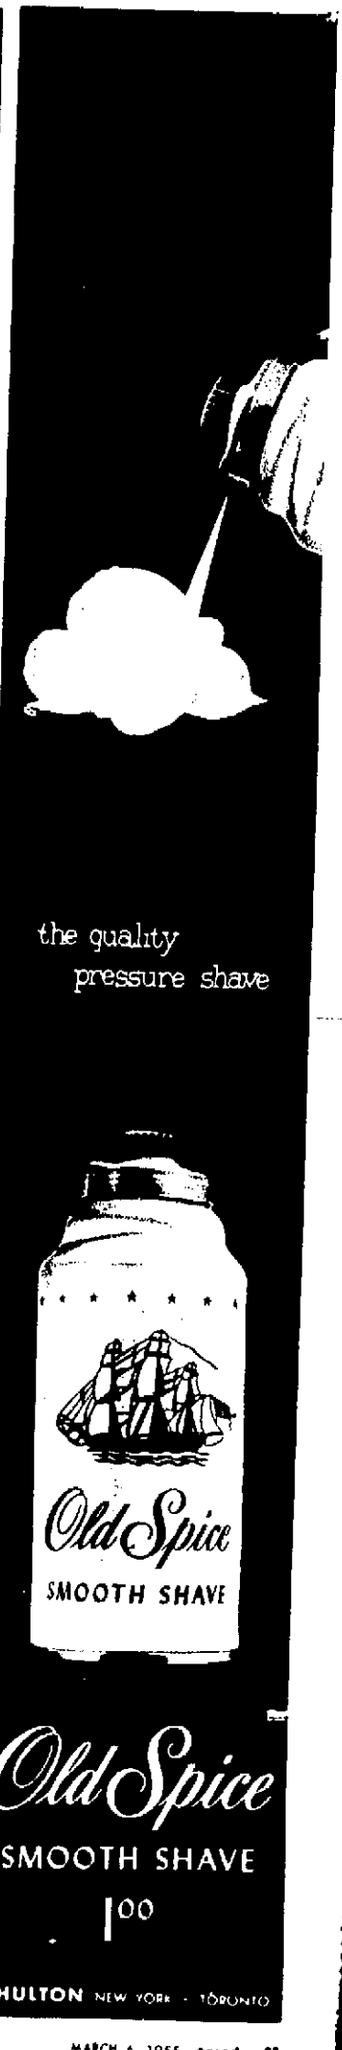

But the high light of the house seems to be the kitchen "range." A plywood cabinet, it houses magnetic coils which set up eddy currents in the pan, thus do the cooking. The cabinet remains cold—because magnetic repulsion keeps the pans two inches above the surface.

The front of the house and the front of the garage provide free air-conditioning for the patio. They funnel air through a butterfly door into the patio, wafting a breeze even on calmest days.

One idea is centuries old. Above each fireplace is a picture window, so guests can enjoy both fire and view. Where does the smoke go? It's drawn under the floor into a central flue. The Chinese thought of this a long time ago.

But the heating system is so advanced that it's completely secret. Even Fletcher doesn't know how it works; it was given him on condition he didn't investigate. Developed in Canada, it is housed in a small sealed cabinet.

Well, how would you like a house like this? Of 30,000 people who visited it, many oohed and aahed; but others thought its gadgets just too eerie. And there's the matter of cost. Fletcher estimates it at $35,000, with his work thrown in free. Builders says it's a bargain. But for most young couples, $35,000 means the "House of Tomorrow" is a long way off. ■

LONDON.

Monkeys, as most people know, often act more like people than people do—except, perhaps, people who act like monkeys. (Like monkeys acting like themselves, that is; not like monkeys acting like people.) Today's example is this mother and child at the London Zoo. The child wants something and the mother is expressing weary interest. But she's not really interested. It's happened 43 times in the last hour and now she just wants to be let alone. Like monkeys, like people. ■

ILLUMINATED by setting sun, rubber "freedom balloon" strains toward sky. Inside are leaflets which will spread widely after balloon bursts over Hungarian territory.

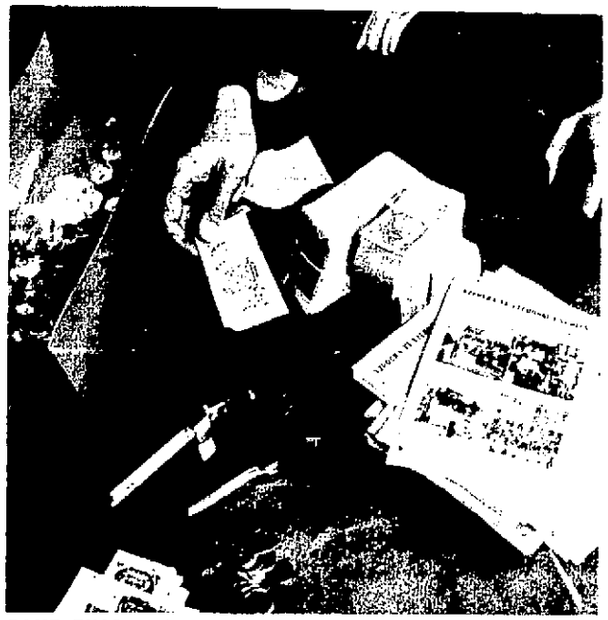

Why Red leaders keep talking about

THOSE BALLOONS

RADIO FREE EUROPE, one of whose latest exploits is described here, is not "another U.S. propaganda agency." As explained by C. D. Jackson, former special assistant for political warfare to President Eisenhower, it is a center in which Europeans themselves can keep alive the idea of freedom.

RFE merely supplies the resources the radio equipment, the wire facilities, the financing which permits patriotic Europeans to carry on a war of ideas with the Red rulers of their Russian-dominated homelands.

Privately supported, Radio Free Europe now is soliciting funds throughout the U.S. Contributions can be made at any Post Office. Address envelopes to 1955 Crusade for Freedom, % your local postmaster.

FAKE BILLS and coins, inscribed with freedom slogans, are carried by some balloons along with well-illustrated leaflets (r.).

Like a sliver slowly festering under a Red fingernail, the activities of the U.S.-sponsored Radio Free Europe (RFE) long have been the bane of Communist leaders in satellite lands.

RFE has specialized in radio broadcasts. But lately, and largely unobserved by the U.S. public, it has launched, in conjunction with the Crusade for Freedom, a new campaign with two new weapons.

Weapon No. 1 is a device: pudgy, pillow-shaped plastic balloons which carry leaflets deep into captive lands. First tried in 1951, balloons now are floating eastward from secret bases in West Germany in growing numbers.

Weapon No. 2 is an idea: how best to embarrass Communist governments without betraying free-world sympathizers to the secret police.

Recently both weapons were tested, simultaneously, in Hungary. Working under American supervision, a team of Hungarian patriots on the RFE staff came up with a list of "Twelve Demands" which were then printed in leaflet form. The Demands would serve to rally freedom-loving Hungarians and make administration difficult for the Reds.

Rights—on Paper

But the "Demands" were not a call to revolution. Instead, they were appeals for privileges which the Reds themselves agreed Hungarians should have, but which in practice are denied.

For example, the Demands called for right of free speech, of assembly, of equality before the law, of the right to elect local councils. All of these rights—familiar to every American—exist in Hungary, but only on paper.

Crusade released thousands of balloons with millions of leaflets. Radio broadcasts backed them up. Soon, through leaks in the Iron Curtain, came word that the Demands were being read, talked about—and denounced by the Reds. Late last year the Hungarian Government itself protested to the U.S. State Department against the balloons and the "inciting, slanderous" leaflets.

The U.S. answered, simply, that Radio Free Europe is a private, not a Government, organization; that what it does is its own business; that when frontiers are closed and travel cut off, balloons are about the only way left to communicate.

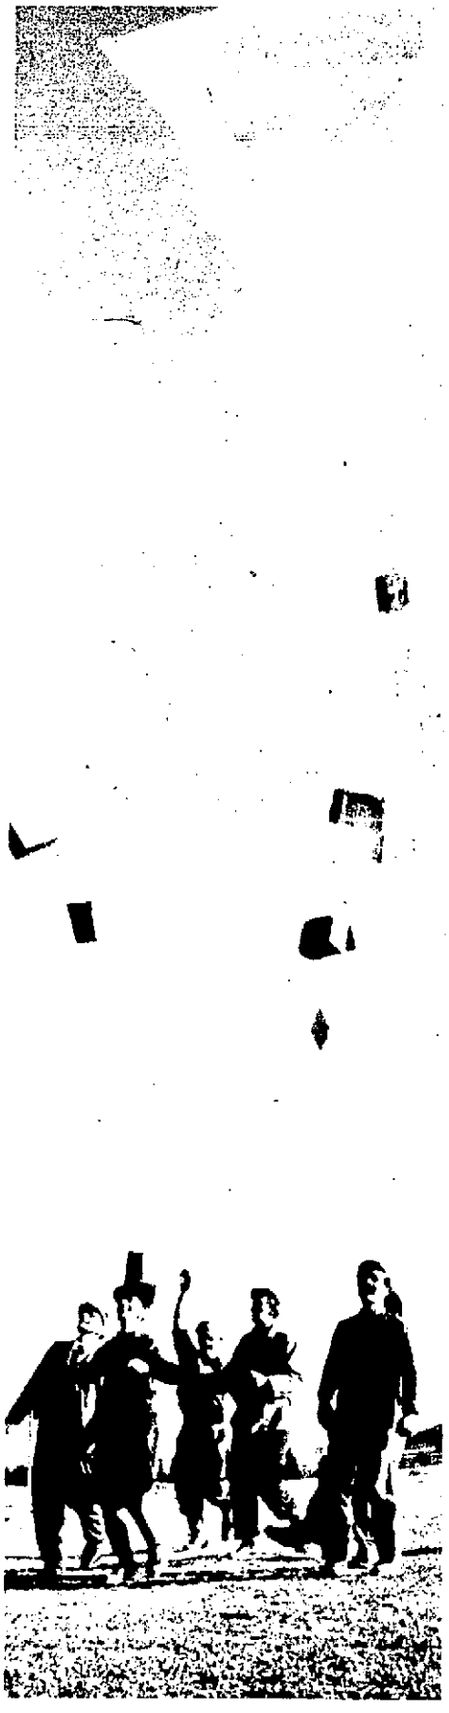

How Can Reds Criticize?

Besides, the State Department inquired, what is wrong with leaflets telling Hungarians to demand free local elections which the Hungarian Government itself guarantees? And equality before the law—when Hungary proclaims it, can outsiders be criticized for advocating it too?

So it went with the rest of the Demands. In fact: "The United States Government hopes that the day will come when balloons will no longer be necessary as a means by which the people of one country may freely communicate with peoples of other lands. Presumably it is within the power of the Hungarian Government to take the necessary remedial action. . . ."

Does all this do any permanent good? Yes, reply RFE leaders like Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, president of the American Heritage Foundation. Such incidents keep alive the spirit of resistance, keep Red rulers off balance, give patriots legitimate goals to strive for.

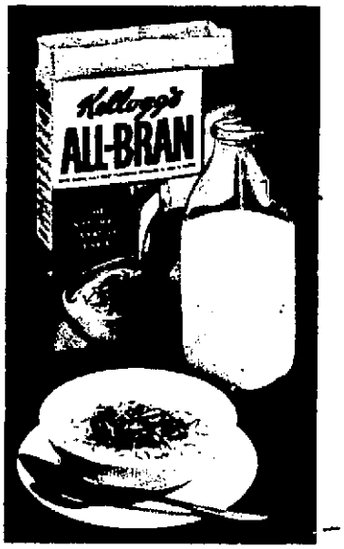

They also make Communist leaders look just a little stupid. ■

Twin weapons, balloons and leaflets, are released into the breeze that blows over the Iron Curtain.

WHICH IS THE PHONY 50-cent piece? Actually, only the 1942 coin (2) is genuine—but it takes an expert eye to spot it.

Coin Counterfeiting: It's a Living—Sometimes

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Forrest Starling was a skilled artisan of Perry, Ia. To make ends meet, he minted phony 50-cent pieces in his own back yard, using a homemade die, a press and a rolling mill operated by three automobile transmissions.

Working alone, as most "coiners" do, Starling strove for quality. He produced better coins, in fact, than the Government. He used more silver than the U.S. Mint does. Finally arrested and asked for his occupation, he answered proudly: "I'm a counterfeiter and a damn good one."

He had anticipated the law. Only a few weeks before his capture, he took his son on a trip to Leavenworth, Kan., to see the town. Like a good tourist, he took a look at the penitentiary. "I wanted to see the place," he said later, "because I expected to wind up there." And like a good counterfeiter, he passed a few coins in Leavenworth stores during his visit.

Starling's downfall came because of another "improvement" he made in Uncle Sam's half-dollars. An Iowa bank clerk, handling a Starling product, noticed the reeding (the grooved outer edge) was too deep. Otherwise, the coin looked like the real McCoy. Secret Service agents later asked Starling why he had made the reeding so pronounced. "It was my mint," he said haughtily, "and that's the way I wanted it."

Though perhaps an exaggerated case, Starling typifies the handful of rugged individualists who still counterfeit small coins (including, incredibly, pennies). Few but dedicated, these five-and-dime swindlers are no threat to the nation's monetary structure. Many actually lose money on each coin they counterfeit. Apparently the artistic satisfaction is worth it.

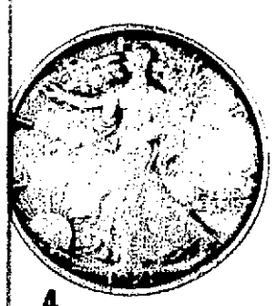

"Coiners aren't a menace, but they sure are a nuisance," Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman summed it up for PARADE.

Back in the late '30s and early '40s, they actually were a menace. It was legal then to manufacture metal slugs identical in size and shape to Uncle Sam's coins. The slug business coincided unhappily with the vending-machine boom: slugs "bought" millions of dollars' worth of cigarettes, candy and soft drinks. Congress remedied the situation in 1944 by outlawing slugs. But a small counterfeiting fraternity lingered on.

Three Classes of Coiners

Its most exclusive member is the counterfeiter of rare coins. With delicate instruments, magnifying glasses, dentists' drills, acids and chemicals, he may work for two months to turn out a nearly perfect replica. Unfortunately for him, rare-coin dealers not only give the product a microscopic examination but naturally regard any "new find" with extreme suspicion. Success comes seldom to the elite of the counterfeiting dodge.

The mass manufacturer of everyday coins does better. Like any other free enterpriser, he buys equipment, keeps books, makes marginal profits. His capital investment (multi-ton presses, delicate dies, elaborate machinery) usually runs high.

by JACK ANDERSON and FRED BLUMENTHAL

Leo Gallie and William Ehlers were in this class. They made shiny nickels in the basement of an abandoned Florida, N. Y., farmhouse with heavy presses run by a gas engine. To deaden the racket, they ran the exhaust for 100 feet underground.

Their five-cent pieces, coined on a stamping press almost identical to the type used by the Government, looked so authentic the jury almost refused to believe they were counterfeit. It took the testimony of an assay expert, who had analyzed the coins' chemical contents, to convict the pair.

At the bottom of the counterfeiters' social scale is the shoestring coiner who turns out sloppy imitations. About all the equipment he needs is plaster to make molds, some cheap metal (usually babbitt, antimony or lead) and a stove to "cook" or melt the metal.

One home coiner sent his small daughter to the corner store with a bootleg quarter to buy bread. As she waited for her change, the grocer eyed the coin.

"I'm sorry, little girl," he said, "but this quarter isn't any good."

"It is, too, good," chirped the child. "My daddy just cooked it." And so he had, as Secret Servicemen discovered that afternoon when they investigated the grocer's report.

It's one thing to turn out passable counterfeit coins, but quite another to make a living at it. The margin of profit is so small that the coiners—unlike counterfeiters of paper money—must do the passing themselves.

A coiner may make the best penny in the world, but he can't pay the landlord in pennies without arousing curiosity. He might be able to stock up on peanuts and sell them at a discount, but that's all he'd end up with—peanuts.

Even if he deals in bogus quarters or 50-cent pieces, the profits are fantastically low. A homemade quarter, for example, takes at least an hour to produce. To dispose of it safely, the counterfeiter usually slips it in a vending machine and buys a pack of cigarettes. He can smoke the cigarettes or peddle them at a discount. But the most he can hope to net is something like 15 cents an hour.

This doesn't take into account the risk of arrest. There was Robert McCauley, who loved the coconut pie sold at the Automat self-service restaurants. He invested a good many of his home-cooked nickels in it. But one day, after he dropped three phony coins in a slot, the restaurant manager—accompanied by Secret Servicemen—came out along with the pie.

Another coiner, Edward Berglund, had a weakness for slot machines. He lost so much money on them that he began feeding them his own 50-cent pieces. To ease his conscience, he marked each coin plainly with the word slug, and, when arrested, claimed he had played fair. The judge ruled otherwise.

Most coin counterfeiters keep aloof from other forms of law-breaking. Police in Houston, Tex., were startled when Joe Riley came in and asked to be arrested for counterfeiting. He chose this method to rid himself of an unwanted partner, an ex-convict who had been up for murder and robbery.

But Riley had trouble convincing the cops he was a coiner. Then he had trouble with the judge: Riley pleaded guilty, but got only a suspended sentence. In desperation, he told the judge he was a sick man and needed to go to jail. He went—for 13 months.

With all their poverty, their long hours of tedious work, their inevitable stays in prison, the coiners are a proud lot. Take James Burton, who wound up in Leavenworth penitentiary six separate times. During one stay he magnanimously taught his profession to a fellow-con, Frank Marshall. When they got out, teacher and protege went their separate, counterfeiting ways. Then one week they were arrested almost simultaneously.

Burton, the old master, was anxious to see the work of his pupil. "Boys," he told the Secret Service agents, "you've always given me a square deal. Now I'd like to ask a favor. I want to see Frank Marshall's outfit." Obligingly, the agents took him to his pupil's counterfeiting plant.

Burton carefully looked over the equipment, inspected the product and shook his head. "It's too bad," he said sadly. "Frank will never make it." ■

HOW TO SPOT PHONY COINS

Some phonies are almost impossible to detect, but here are four useful tests:

- Drop the coin on a hard surface. Genuine coins have a clear ring. Counterfeits usually sound dull.
- Rub it between your fingers. If the coin feels greasy, it probably is no good.
- Look at the corrugated edge. On genuine coins the grooves are even and regular. On counterfeits they are either irregular or missing altogether.
- If you own a business, get an inexpensive acid formula which, sprinkled on a phony coin, immediately blackens it. Ask your druggist for this mixture: 10 grains silver nitrate, 1 cc. nitric acid, 30 cc. distilled water.

SAMPLES of counterfeit coins are brought regularly to Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman. Here he shows writer Blumenthal a few.

SPILL during a skiing lesson is a big joke to Jane Russell, who is one of the "regulars" at Sun Valley.

RACING down the slope is Van Johnson, rated as another of Hollywood's ace skiers. Training as a dancer helped him master sport.

By LLOYD SHEARER
PARADE'S WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

SUN VALLEY, IDA.

Not even their studios' dire warning, "stay off skis, or else," is holding back Hollywood's ever-growing coterie of ski enthusiasts this winter.

With vast contempt for possible broken limbs, the film stars have been deserting their swimming pools for the ski slopes. Had you been here one recent week, your ski colleagues would have included Gary Cooper, Van Johnson, Andy Devine, Joan Caulfield, Esther Williams, Cornel Wilde, June Allyson, William Wyler and Dick Powell.

Stay for the season — who has the money?—and you'll undoubtedly run into Ray Milland, Betty Hutton, Judy Garland, Jane Russell, Arlene Dahl, Robert Young—in fact, more screen celebrities than you'd find in any one Hollywood studio.

The stars usually bring their families with them. Consequently they're seen in a doting parental light, although in some cases their offspring ski much better than they do. This is true of Maria Cooper, Gary's beautiful 17-year-old daughter. The Coopers (see cover) have been coming to this posh winter resort since 1941. In that time Maria has been taught by the world's greatest ski experts. Her famous dad, at 53, is a fair skier himself, but as he points out: "You can't compare me to a young chicken."

"Coop" and his statuesque wife, "Rocky," Hollywood's most zealous ski fans, got Clark Gable out on a slope near here on a December day in 1945. Gable dutifully climbed 3,000 feet to the takeoff point atop Mt. Baldy, but by the time he got to the bottom the seat of his trousers was frozen stiff. "From here on in," he vowed, "my game is golf."

But Gable is an exception. Practically every other film figure who's tried skiing loves it. Joan Caulfield dubbed herself "the crybaby of Baldy Mountain" after she sat down in the snow and cried because she couldn't keep up with her husband, producer Frank Ross.

"I don't care how long it takes," Joan says. "Some day I'm going to be much better than Frank!"

This past Christmas, Esther Williams and her family slid into skis for the first time. Like any other neophyte, Esther fell occasionally, but by nature she is so graceful and by experience so well-conditioned that Sigi Engl, local ski ace, told her she could become a crack skier with an absolute minimum of practice.

"So many of the screen stars have had dance training," Sigi claims, "that they're a natural for this sport. Girls like Betty Hutton, Jane Russell, Arlene Dahl, Judy Garland — they're supple and light on their feet. They pick up skiing very easily. In some instances they're better at it than their husbands."

One case in point involves June Allyson and Dick Powell. When the Powells first came here, they brought all the chic ski clothes — identical husband-and-wife outfits—then hired ski instructors. It took June two weeks to summon up courage to ride the ski lift. When at last she did, Powell hired a cameraman to shoot movies of him and June skiing.

A Slight Misunderstanding

Back in Los Angeles he ran off the film one night. Pointing to a small figure on the screen, he said to his children: "See that girl up there? That's your mother after two weeks of expensive ski instruction. Look at her skis. They're six feet apart. You could run a tractor between them."

A few moments later, as the figure on the screen awkwardly staggered into closer camera range, it became crystal clear that it was Dick Powell, not June Allyson. Says Powell: "Until I'm in my grave, I'll never live that one down."

Of the Hollywood ski contingent, three of the most proficient are Gene Kelly, Dan Dailey and Van Johnson. Significantly, all three are dancers. Kelly in particular is an athletic "natural." Three years ago, in Switzerland, he spent a day watching and listening to the experts, then raced down a mountainside with such effortless perfection that veterans refused to believe it was his first try.

Most movie stars do not like taking sports instruction in public, especially when repeated pratfalls are involved. For skiing, though, they make an exception. Says Dick Powell: "There are a great many of us who have landed on our derrières instead of on our skis. In this sport it's the kind of fun you can't help showing—and sharing." ■

FAMILY LESSON: Swimming star Esther Williams and two of her three children listen carefully as Papa Ben Gage shows them how to "bend your knees."

Industry's Secret Agents

By Douglas Nelson Rhodes

TOWNS AND VILLAGES all over the U. S. — including those in California — are being invaded by small bands of highly trained, tight-lipped secret agents who operate in true cloak-and-dagger style — spies engaged in hush-hush missions that would do credit to fictional tales of international intrigue.

Failing in their missions, these confidential agents may face firing squads, for they are corporation "site teams," a new phenomenon of the great expansion and decentralization trends now sweeping industrial America. Their task is to pick locations for multimillion-dollar factory projects, and do it so quietly that competitors, land speculators and such will get no advance inkling of what's afoot.

More than 300 large firms employ site teams to roam the country seeking likely plant locations. The biggest corporations have their own industrial development departments for this work but many smaller companies hire professional site seekers who operate free lance. These specialists have reduced the problem of finding the right site for the right factory to an almost exact science. From "spy" team field reports they compile dossiers of prospective factory towns — written analyses that are detailed down to the number of pigeons roosting in the town hall belfry.

SITE TEAMS work in squads of from three to five men each. In a typical survey they arrive in the "target" town at sunup and scatter to perform their individual missions: Number One may meet the local mayor for a secret conference; Numbers Two and Three check all public utility facilities, scan railroad yards and observe highway and traffic conditions; Number Four may charter a plane to snap aerial views of the area; Number Five is likely to stroll about town to chat with townsfolk, check on schools, churches, recreational facilities and civic development. Missions accomplished, team members rendezvous at nightfall and depart quietly to submit reports to the home office.

A town's economic future and development prospects sometimes hinges on such trifles as a casual conversation between a service station attendant and a site sleuth enacting the role of a tourist. One village of 1,500 inhabitants, for instance, lost its big chance to quadruple its population and at the same time share in a $2,000,000 annual payroll when the station man remarked that he planned to move away because law enforcement under corrupt local political bosses had degenerated until it was virtually non-existent.

"It's quiet right now," he admitted, "but that's because there's a rumor that a big corporation is planning to build a factory here. It's just a temporary whitewash, though. As soon as the deal is closed things will be as bad as ever."

A CAREFUL RECHECK of the political setup by the site team revealed that the man's cynical attitude was justified — that the politicos had done a thorough job of concealing the true facts relating to civic morality. Result: the company built its plant in another part of the state where a clean local government prevailed.

Industrial development specialists seek towns which are best "tailored" to the needs of their clients and many a small community has finally awakened to the fact that the way to snare some of the current $2,000,000,000-a-month rate of American industrial expansion is to make their town conform to a particular standard that will attract the scrutiny of industry's secret agents.

Here are some of the things site sleuths look for:

Civic pride and sense of responsibility: If homes and gardens are well kept it's a good indication that their occupants are self-respecting folk who will make ideal employes and neighbors.

Local political setup and community development: Honest, efficient law enforcement, well-maintained streets and community facilities, such as municipal swimming pool, tennis courts and so on, indicate good municipal "health."

Commerce and trade conditions: An adequate shopping district with wide variety of goods at reasonable price levels. Such conditions encourage population growth and prosperous economy — hence a good labor supply of well-fed, well-clothed employes.

Housing, churches and schools: Actual or potential supply of good rental housing, churches representing major denominations and adequate schools, with up-to-date vocational training facilities, are important factors in rating prospective factory sites.

Transportation and power supply: Modern highways, conveniently located urban streets, railroad terminal facilities and plenty of cheap electric power are the prime requirements of many manufacturers.

Cultural development: A progressive local newspaper, good television and radio reception in the area, amateur music or hobby groups and a well stocked public library, are plus marks for any community hoping for new industry.

Tax structure: Most manufacturers expect to pay their fair share of local taxes but are wary of towns with high bonded indebtedness.

Local attitude toward newcomers: If merchants and townsfolk are inclined to resent an influx of strangers in their community life, many companies prefer to pass up a town. To be good workers, employes must be happy, accepted members of their new hometown.

SPECIAL TAX concessions or free factory sites are offered by some towns. Others set up industrial foundations or little corporations — capitalized by sale of stock locally — to prime the pump. Townspeople themselves build the factories for lease at attractive rates to prospective industrialists.

Such sugary bait is often spurned by large companies, however. They want not subsidies but active local support in providing necessary community facilities and services so that their new plants may operate at a high peak of efficiency and profit.

Site sleuths sometimes have to comb the country for as long as five years and make out thousands of field reports before a decision is finally made on a big plant location. Before the du Pont company selected Kinston, N. C., for the site of its multimillion-dollar Dacron factory, agents had thoroughly investigated 87 different communities as potential locations. Very few of the 86 losers ever suspected that they were under detailed scrutiny, so quietly did the industrial Sherlocks go about their work.

Every secret investigator has his own pet methods of disguising his purpose when visiting a town under consideration. Many go to such extremes to conceal their identity that they even remove labels from their clothes lest some sharp-eyed localite notice the city where they were purchased and start putting two and two together. Robert Pfenning, ace site picker for General Electric, is one of these. He doesn't want to be identified in any way — when he's nosing out prospective plant sites — with the city of Schenectady, N. Y., where GE's home office is located.

MOST TOWNS show a willingness to go all out to make new factories welcome and offer every co-operation when they learn they've been picked for a new plant location. Edmund H. Robertson, secretary of the American Industrial Development Council, an association representing 200-odd big business concerns, states that the quaint, sleepy little hamlet of song and poem has been largely transformed into a wide-awake would-be metropolis. He states that there are now more than 800 different industrial development agencies and committees — aside from chambers of commerce — in the U. S., and they're all actively engaged in trying to lure new business to their localities.

One town of 3,426 population (London, Ky.) organized a community improvement campaign that really hit the jackpot: It snagged six new industries within a few months and in the first year of its existence it sparked 115 projects, including a $63,000 health center, a new airport and a strawberry-growing industry that created a need for a new food-processing plant which is now pouring new payroll money into town at the rate of $250,000 a year.

"That's one town where a disguise would be a handicap," one veteran site sleuth remarked. "We just let the townspeople know who we are and what we're looking for and then spend the rest of the day at the movies. The industrial development committee will do all our work for us — and even type up our field reports!"

Site sleuths, hunting location for a multimillion-dollar plant, often confer secretly with town officials.

Local transportation facilities in the form of good bus or streetcar systems are always a consideration.

Good schools, with progressive programs for industrial training of students, are an important factor.

DOWN IN COACHELLA AND IMPERIAL VALLEYS

Indian Fortunes Reach Their Lowest Ebb

Forty acres of raw land like that above, the birthright of the sturdy Cahuilla Indians, is endangered by changes in white man's law.

By Bill Conway

LONG AGO, before the Spanish troopers and their patient padres passed, the talking-smoke of the Indian people stood tall on Signal Hill. From the Southland's coastal ranges and inland deserts the tribesmen came to the council fires and there was feasting and dancing, harvest and hunting, and much fine talk of the wonderful years to come.

But that was 1,000 years ago, before the white man came. The Dieguenos are few and scattered, the Pipimares are gone from California's coastal country. Even their dismal burying grounds have been trampled into the earth and forever erased. Occasionally a plow or a bulldozer turns up a broken skull or a weathered skeleton, along with a few pitiful shards of ancient pottery. That is all. The shoreline tribes are dust.

The desert Indian, the sturdy Cahuilla, still survives for he was made of tougher stuff. Also, it must be admitted, he lives today because his hunting range was on land men said was worthless and because of that he was not forced back and back to starve on sterile mountain slopes. The Cahuillas still live, a friendly, laughter-loving people, but the full-blood strain is fading fast. Today there are fewer than 300 Cahuillas in the entire Coachella and Imperial Valleys.

WHEN AMERICA MOVED westward on rolling, restless wheels, it was inevitable that a few far-sighted pioneers should settle here in the low desert. The men who made the laws did the best they could. They set aside certain lands as Indian reservations, giving each Cahuilla, or Mission Indian, 40 acres of raw land under restricted title which did not permit him to sell. Thus the Cahuilla Indian became a "ward of the government."

Neglected, untaught, unwanted, the desert Indian has been a governmental problem child.

"Do you know," said Joe Loma, a young Cahuilla, "what nation held its prisoners of war in concentration camps for the longest period of time? Well, I'll tell you, mister. The United States. And who were the prisoners? I'll answer that one, too. We, the American Indians."

UNDER PROVISIONS of House Congressional Resolution No. 108, dated June 9, 1953, and authored by Rep. Harrison of Wyoming, a degree of "freedom" would be granted the Indians.

The resolution, too lengthy to quote in full, advocates that all offices of the Bureau of Indian Affairs be abolished. This legislation was opposed by President Eisenhower, who contended that the Indian, generally, is not yet qualified by education and training to handle his own affairs where sale of tribal lands is concerned. The President's view is shared by Virgil R. Lawson, energetic young spokesman for the Indians of the Torres-Martinez reservation in the Coachella Valley. Lawson, a Cahuilla, attended high school in Indio and studied at Riverside Junior College. His position as spokesman corresponds roughly with that of chief, a title which has been virtually abolished in recent years.

"In almost every case," Lawson said, "continued government protection is needed. The Indian is not yet ready, because of neglected training, to compete with the white man in labor and agricultural occupations, the only avenues for which the Indian is congenitally fitted. Reservation people, mostly, are poverty-stricken. While a few have attended trade schools none has received the academic and business education which would equip them to handle their own affairs where large sums of money are involved."

UNDER PRESENT LAW an Indian may clear the restricted title to his 40 acres of land by proving to the Bureau of Indian Affairs that he is "competent." Adjudged competent, he is permitted to sell his land and give a clear title to the buyer. All too frequently he will sell his land for a fraction of its worth and that, precisely, is what Virgil Lawson and other straight-thinking Indians are trying to prevent.

An Indian woman walked into Latham Moore's general store at 100 Palms, near the Torres-Martinez reservation. Her man was in jail, she said. Arrested by the Highway Patrol for drunk driving after he had wrecked his new car by crashing into the rear of a truck. No money. Kids hungry. Would Moore like to buy her new refrigerator, never hooked up? Half price.

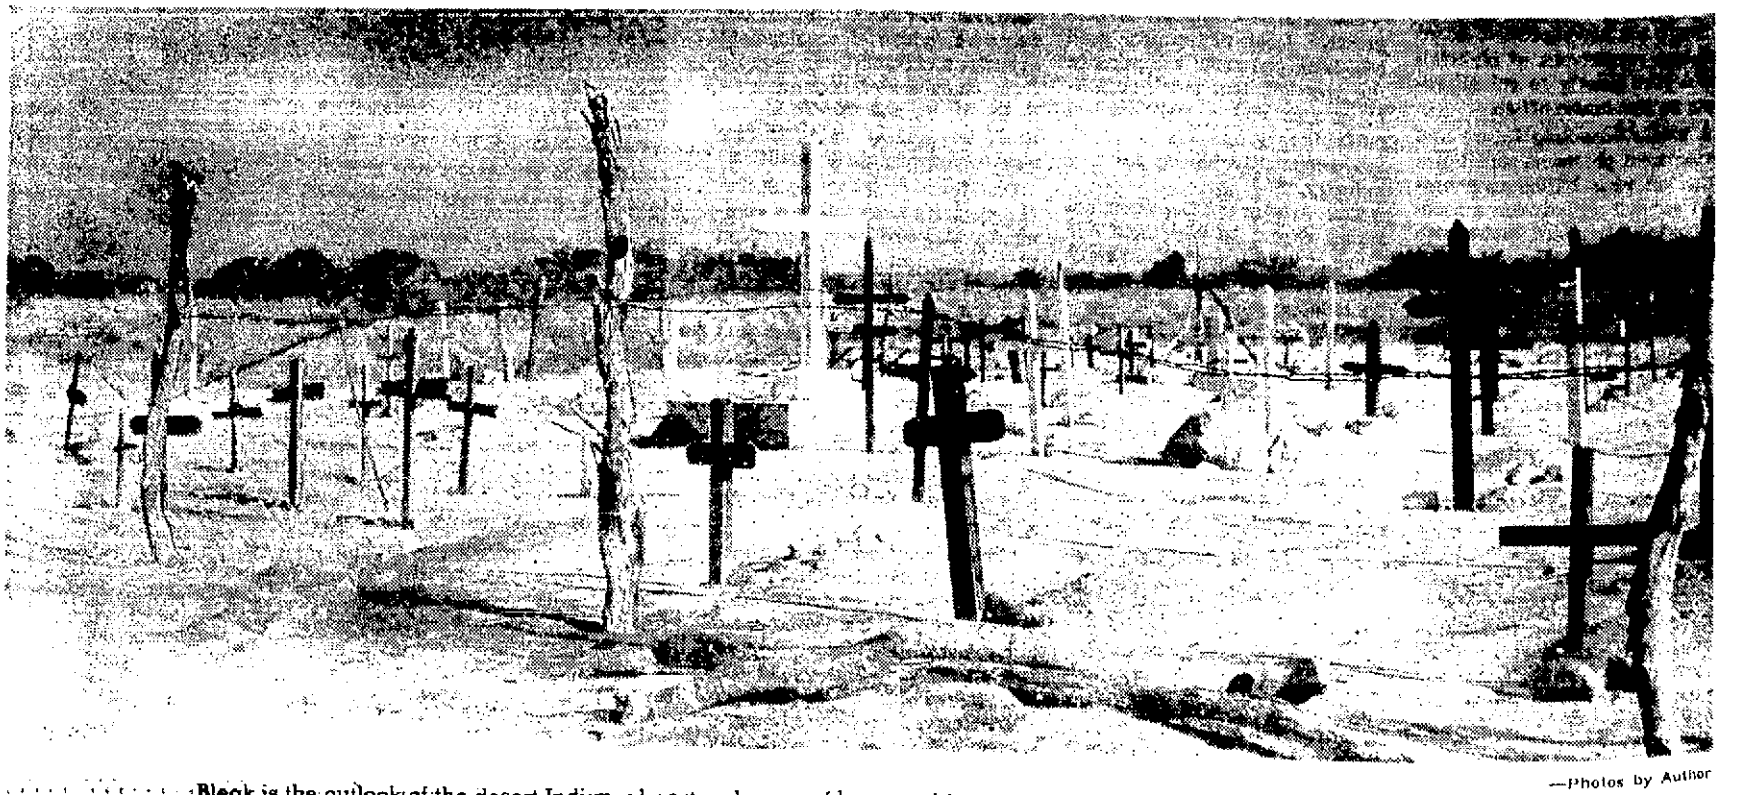

No, the storekeeper told her, he had no need for a new refrigerator. But she could go ahead and pick out the groceries she needed. He would extend credit. Couldn't let the kids go hungry.

The woman selected a sackful of groceries, signed a charge slip and walked out, carrying her supplies two miles to the dismal shack set down among a clump of catalpa trees, flanked by cactus and mesquite. Virgil Lawson watched her go.

"There you have it," said Lawson softly. "Her man sold a part of his 40 for $4,500. That was exactly a month ago. Now he is in jail, the money is gone and the kids are hungry."

"And the refrigerator?"

Bleak is the outlook of the desert Indian, almost as barren of hope as this neglected Indian graveyard deep in Coachella Valley.

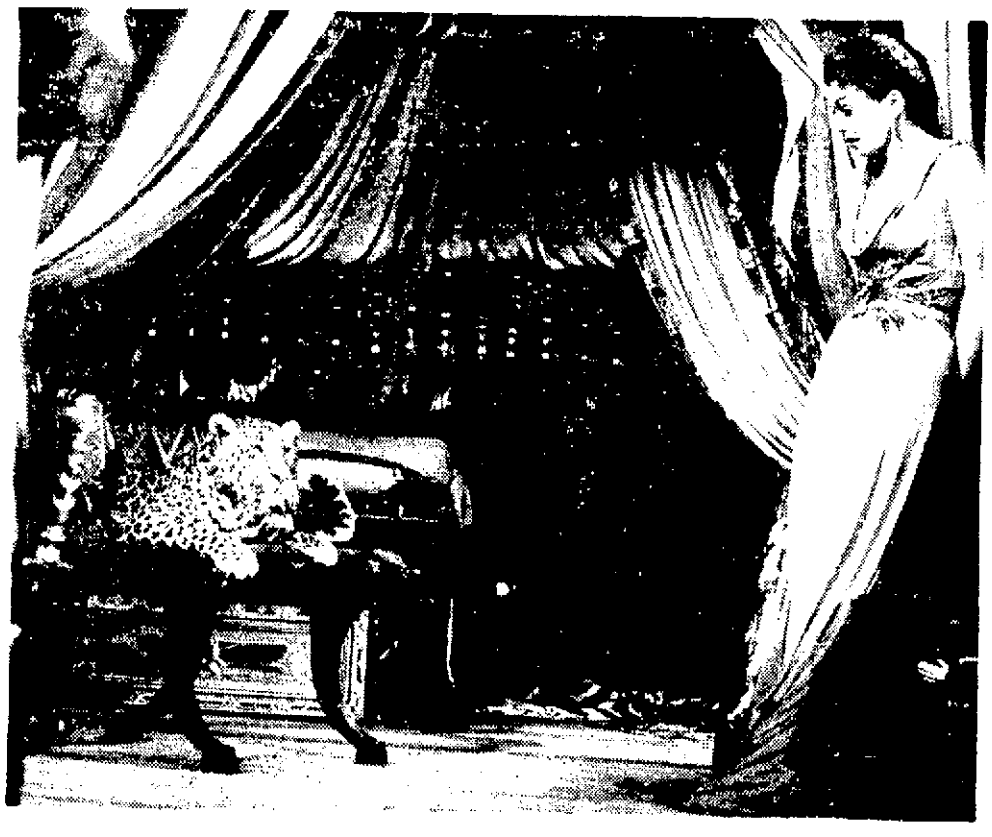

Flirting Is Dangerous

Esther Williams, the movie mermaid, becomes Amytis, the Roman maiden who flirts with Hannibal, the invader, in "Jupiter's Darling," the new M-G-M CinemaScope extravaganza, and you might think it gets her exactly nowhere after a look at the accompanying pictures. But Esther, as just about everybody knows, has a way with her, so you shouldn't be too surprised that as the beautiful wife of a Roman senator, she persuades Hannibal to spare the Eternal City. And in the doing, Esther spares none of her attractions. In addition to doing a bang-up job of flirting, she swims, she extricates herself from an underwater knife attack, she faces wild beasts, she rides elephants and she sings. Howard Keel plays the singing Hannibal in the musical. And, oh yes, the part of Apollo is done by Long Beach's Johnny Olszewski of the Chicago Cardinals. And does he score when Esther tosses a dainty kiss his way!

Suspected of spying, Esther is chased deep into the Mediterranean by a savage knife-wielder, and she's silenced by Howard Keel.

A little later, she's scared stiff by a "tame" leopard, and she's slapped around by one of Hannibal's toughest generals.

An idea worked out into comfort for tired feet has developed a mushrooming business for Mrs. Edna Thornberry.

Walking on a Cloud

By Helen Johnson

EVERYBODY likes comfortable shoes. Nothing brings smiles to any person's face as quickly as foot contentment.

So thought Mrs. Edna Thornberry, of 2481 Clark Ave., when her family complained about the difficulty of finding house slippers to their liking. One day she decided to do something about it. So she designed and originated the slipper-loafers patented under the trade name of Dor-Enas of California, which right now are waiting for the nation's feet to step into them.

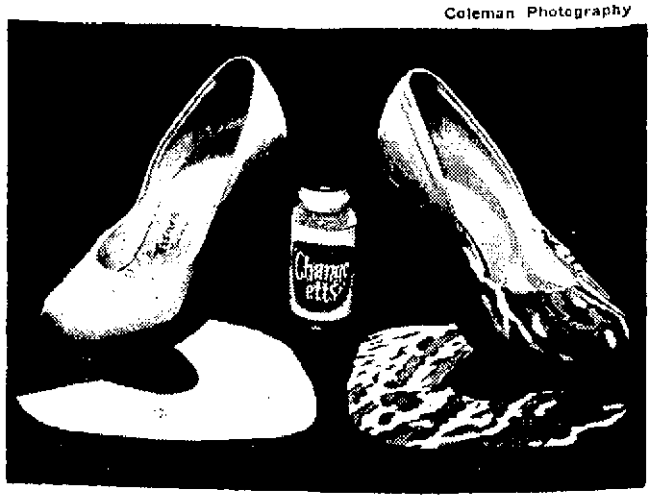

The footwear is simple, inexpensive, ultra-comfortable, and very easily made. A piece of sponge rubber, a bit of upholstery, plastic or leather, a "snip" here and a "tight pull" there. Then a few stitches on the machine. That's all there is to it. Except, of course, Mrs. Thornberry's secret way of cutting the sponge rubber and designing the patterns. And presto! A pair of most comfortable and attractive foot coverings sit temptingly by the favorite TV chair.

Never dreaming of commercializing on her idea, Mrs. Thornberry found her little project mushroomed overnight. From her immediate family, to neighbors, friends and church bazaars, it grew and grew until her time was so taken up that it was impossible to fill all the orders

Another of Mrs. Thornberry's ideas also is taking hold. It is a kit for use in making wardrobe-matched footwear.

Listerine Antiseptic Stops Bad Breath 4 Times Better Than Tooth Paste!

Germs—The Major Cause of Mouth Odor

Far and away the most common cause of bad breath is fermentation of proteins which are always present in the mouth. This fermentation is caused by germs and research shows that your breath stays sweeter longer, the more you reduce germs in the mouth.

Listerine Antiseptic Kills Germs by Millions

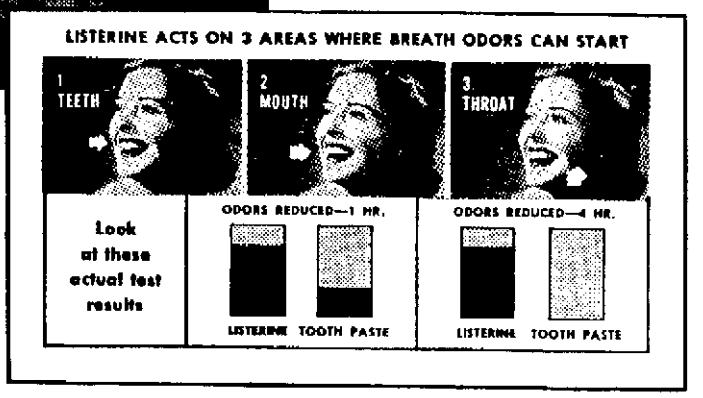

Listerine Antiseptic kills germs by millions on contact. Test after test has shown that even fifteen minutes after gargling with Listerine Antiseptic, germs on tooth, mouth, and throat surfaces were reduced up to 96.7%; one hour afterward, as much as 80%.

No Tooth Paste Kills Germs Like This ... Instantly

Tooth paste with the aid of a tooth brush is an effective method of oral hygiene. It depends largely on the mechanical and masking methods of removing unpleasant mouth odors. But no tooth paste gives you the proven Listerine Antiseptic method —banishing bad breath with instant super-efficient germ-killing action.

Listerine Antiseptic Acts on Many Surfaces

Listerine Antiseptic kills millions of germs on tooth, mouth, and throat surfaces. It kills disease-producing germs as well as many types of odor-producing germs. No tooth paste offers proof like this of killing germs that cause bad breath.

GLAMOUR GAL'S VERDICT

'Older Men Kiss Best!'

By Harry Niemeyer

A MOVIE GLAMOUR GAL who has smooched a lot of cinematic leading men thus far in her career said this week that it's the married gents who really have the know-how in kissing.

"The longer a man has been married the better his screen kiss," says petite film actress Gloria De Haven. "A married gent with a happy home life can kiss rings around Hollywood's bachelor boy actors."

Gloria, who broke up a two-year stay in the east, where she played the night club circuit to return to films as Tony Curtis' leading lady in Universal-International's music picture, "So This Is Paris," elaborates that screen bachelors are too often inclined to sluff their kisses before the cameras.

"I could name a couple of boys who are definitely known as real George material in the pages of the fan magazines," says the actress. "But I've smooched both of them in movie scenes and one of them kisses with all the feeling of a halibut, while the other one's lip pressings wouldn't send a gal as far as the corner grocery store."

Warming up on the osculatory subject, Gloria declares that the older the actor the more polished the kiss — married or unmarried.

"Men really start to learn the art of kissing when they reach middle age," she says.

Although Tony Curtis, her co-star in the new film, has definitely not reached the middle-age category, Gloria feels sure that his happy marriage to Janet Leigh has made him an above average kisser.

"Tony had to give me a sort of sisterly peck on the cheek in an early sequence," she says. "But it wasn't sisterly and definitely not a peck."

"It was the sort of appreciative kiss a wife likes to feel when hubby comes home and she's all tired out from housework."

Gloria, who has been married to John Payne and New York building contractor Martin Kimmel, concluded: "There's no make-believe in the kisses you get at home!"

After smooching some of the most handsome bachelors on movie sets, Gloria De Haven says married men kiss best.

slacked up at both doors! It was then she consulted a firm in Costa Mesa which has now taken over exclusive option of manufacturing these glamorous "cloud-walkers." Everything points to ovehwhelming success in the venture.

THE SHOES have been tried out at the VA Hospital, and all branches of the service are waiting to get them. Crippled arthritics, disabled veterans, old folks and even teen-agers, all sing their praises. Movie stars, writers, artists and people from every walk of life are among buyers.

Mrs. Thornberry has also developed another idea. She wrapped it up in a kit called Changetts. In this kit is found several patterns and a special adhesive. If a girl has a limited budget, naturally her shoe supply suffers. But with these two seemingly insignificant items, one or two pairs will prove sufficient. Because, for a few cents and a little time, any shoe can be transformed to match or accent the most sophisticated costume. Velvet, fur, metallics, prints, and even lace can be used. Should a change be desired from one day to the other, the material can be pulled off and something different pasted on.

In making this shoe-fashion transition, the entire shoe can be changed. Or, the material can be placed on the heels and toes, or over the whole shoe except the heel. Again, the heel and back of the shoe may be covered only. A plain shoe, like a step-in pump, is the best "subject" to work on.

THE KIT is a real boon to travelers. One dressy pair and casuals are now sufficient for the best-dressed person. By use of this kit, wardrobe matched shoes which formerly were a luxury only a select few could afford, now are available to all.

More than 3,000 salesmen scattered through the United States, Hawaii and Central America are ready to place the kit before the public. And Edna herself has been caught in such a whirlwind of activities that no 24-hour day is half long enough. Back of it all, however, she is still "shoe-conscious." For she wants to make people happy by showing them how to have "happy feet."

Torn asunder as if struck by a Jovian bolt, Split Mountain in Borrego Valley is a geological wonder.

By Mark McMillin

IN SOUTHWESTERN CALIFORNIA, the tourist traveling along State Highway 78 passes through Split Mountain in Borrego Valley, an impressive but little known geological wonder, located in the Anza Desert State Park, a huge area extending from the northern border of San Diego County south to within a few miles of the Mexican border.

Here, among the barren and rock-ribbed hills grow hundreds of species of desert plant life, such as the flame-flowering ocotillo, lavender desert verbena, cream-colored desert lily, scarlet cactus, the yucca, cholla, smoke tree and century plant, first noted by the Spanish conquerors of the early 18th Century.

Visitors also are intrigued by Split Mountain, which presents, in its towering cliffs of multi-colored sandstone, an open-book geological history of the region, which at various times has been completely inundated with salt water, subjected to violent earth tremors that ages ago lifted huge fault-block mountains up out of the earth's interior, overgrown with a vast tropical jungle, served as the bed of a wide-spreading lake, evidences of which still remain, and finally developed into the present desert area.

SEVEN MILES from Borrego post office, the tourist comes to Palm Canyon Playground, located near Palm Canyon, where today he finds concrete evidence of the former tropical jungle, still harboring forests of the Washington palm tree, California's only native palm. Scientists agree that this one surviving species of prehistoric California's jungle days is a "residual remnant of the days of the saber-toothed tiger, ancestral horse, camel and ground sloth, fossils of which have been found here." Some 500,000 years ago, Palm Canyon was a palm-lined shore of the greatly enlarged Gulf of California, before it receded to its present greatly diminished size.

By turning left on a dirt road leading off from Highway 78, the tourist enters the low hills of the Fish Creek Mountains, site of a formerly well known gypsum mine. Here a short trail leads up the canyon to a meadow, in prehistoric times a watering hole where mastodons came to drink, and where they left their fossil footprints — the size of which never fails to amaze the visitor.

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

They Paint on Cloth

By Jule Armin

DECORATING for the family is truly a family affair at 2807 Harvey Way. There Papa George Couron originates designs and freehand paintings for framing; Mama Maxine paints clothing, curtains and decorative portraits, and 15-year-old daughter, Tonie, just naturally following suit by painting her wardrobe and venturing into the field of original design. Between them they have garnered 30 prizes at various fairs and hobby shows in their hobby - textile painting.

The three of them form a wonderful team, have a lot of fun and make a lot of beautiful things to wear and to decorate their home as a result of their cooperative hobby.

"Any other family could do the same," says Mrs. Couron, who keeps two lively little boys content with odds and ends of paint and scraps of cloth while working on her own projects. "There's nothing like a common hobby for building family unity. Painting on textiles is an art almost anyone can master. If you hesitate to draw your own patterns, you can trace a design or buy ready-cut stencils and guide patterns at art or hobby shops. We like the free-brush technique ourselves because it allows for more individuality and we think gives more of a third dimensional effect. George draws most of our designs. We trace the basic lines but develop the idea and color scheme to suit ourselves."

For those who need a hobby that will pay for itself, painting on textiles is the answer, advises Couron, who says: "The materials to work with are inexpensive and the painted articles are all both usable and saleable, we've discovered. Whenever we wear something we've painted, people invariably ask if they can make or buy one like it. Thus we found a hobby that pays its own way. And that seems to be what the average family needs these days."

Textile painting covers a far wider field than most people realize, in the opinion of Mrs. Couron. "Tonie, our daughter likes to decorate everything in her wardrobe," she says, "from the filmyist negligee and nylon stockings, to dashing sport clothes, with sturdy play togs for her little brothers, and ties and blouses personally designed for her special friends. Even my seven-year-old boy has trimmed his T shirts by textile painting pictures I have outlined from his color book."

The Courons credit their teacher, Eldred Spears, for interesting them in their hobby and giving them their successful start. Mrs. Spears taught them a principle of flowing very thin paint into a slightly heavier painted outline, then building up the design by gradually shading in the darker colors to create a 3D quality. Basic fabric color is used as background and for highlights.

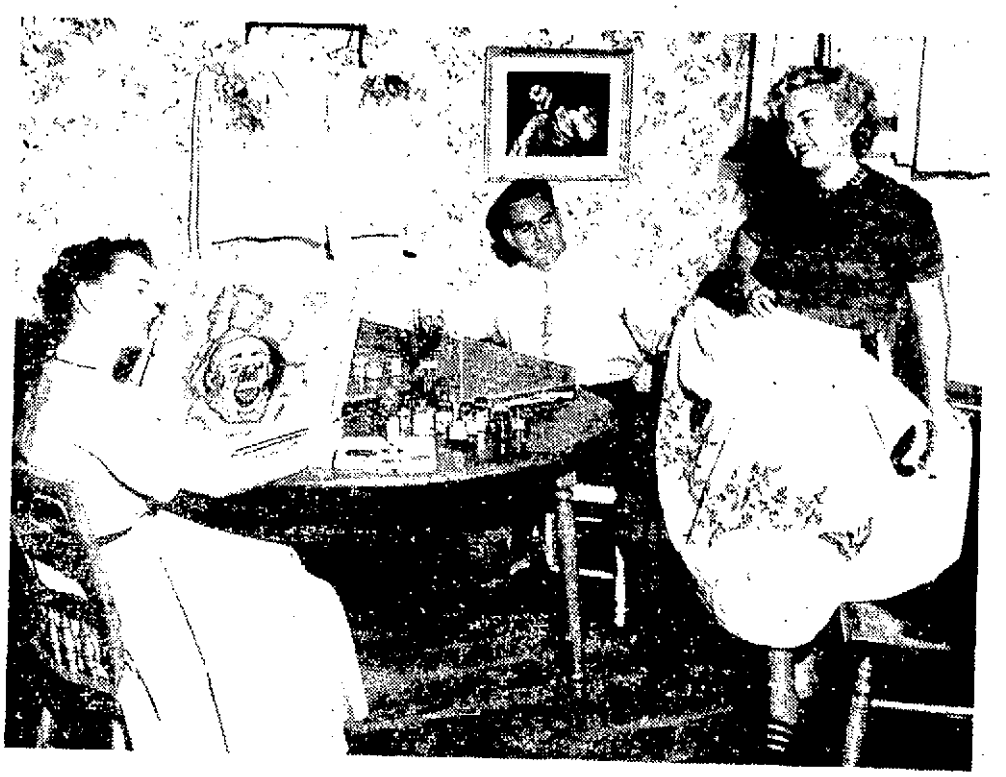

Used in this manner, textile paints are exceptionally good for portrait painting, easier to work with and less expensive than the usual canvas and oils, the Courons say. Effects can be varied widely, they say. Examples of their work include black and white studies -black paint on white nylon (these have the quality of charcoal drawings but won't rub off), and colors that appear to be oils or water colors.

At the moment, Mrs. Couron is applying colorful katcina dolls to green curtains.

Toni Couron started coloring pictures drawn on cloth by her mother, using crayons. She gradually worked into originating her own designs.

Designs are traced through thin material from the desired subjects or with graphite carbon on thick materials. Colors are then filled in. Tiny glass or jewel-like beads can be applied to give a sparkling effect.

"What we can do, others can do," the Courons say in summing up their mutual hobby.

PET PARADE

Philanthropic Cat

By Eleanor Avery Price

THERE PROBABLY ISN'T a person in the country who loves cats more than Mrs. Sara Thomas of 524 W. 4th St., president of the Long Beach chapter of the Good Shepherd Foundation, Inc., an organization whose purpose is to try to locate the owners of lost and found cats and to encourage cat owners to curtail breeding.

Therefore, it seems only right that Mrs. Thomas should own Butch, a cat who is also a philanthropic creature.

Butch came to the Thomas residence in October, 1949, when he was about 1½ years old. He was apparently a stray and Mrs. Thomas took him in, fed him, and then set about locating his owners. It seems the owners, who had gone to the trouble of eyedropper-feeding him because his mother (and the rest of the litter) mysteriously died, and caring for him for well over a year, were not much interested in having him back, so Mrs. Thomas decided to adopt him.

There already was a Thomas household cat called Fluff who was 15 years old and frail and sickly from a wasting disease that gave it a ravenous appetite. Butch immediately recognized the condition of the old cat and so appointed himself as Fluff's protector.

At meal time, Butch would see to it that Fluff had all the food wanted even if it meant going without a meal himself.

Butch kept his ears alert, too. If he heard a dog or other suspicious noise in the alley back of the house, he would run out, look up and down the alley, then come back and sit close to his frail leashed friend, his face solicitous with his protective attitude.

FLUFF IS GONE now, and Butch reigns supreme, but his department is still one of agreeableness and benevolence. He accepts the leash and is as tractable a cat as cats come.

Mrs. Thomas takes excellent care of Butch for she knows that instead of a cat having the proverbial nine lives, its make-up is quite delicate. Clean drinking water, and a balanced diet with plenty of meat and some green food now and then are provided. No sour or spoiled food ever finds its way to the cat's dish.

COOKING

Accent on Spanish Food

By Mildred K. Flanary

Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

FOOD EDITORS all over the country are paying homage to a great lady, Elena Zelayeta. Because of her inspiration to them, this has been officially declared Elena's Week!

To know Elena Zelayeta is to have a favorite friend, to know a special person. Elena of the gay laugh, the nimble fingers, the quick wit — Elena, who has thousands of friends and sees none of them.

Elena's friends remember that she is blind only when she asks to have a letter read, an elusive jar of spice located. Left a widow with two young sons, she never let her handicap deter her desire to raise and to educate them. She has become a popular and able public speaker, the owner-manager of her own restaurant in San Francisco and has her own TV show. This week Elena will be heard and seen on several popular radio and television shows which emanate from Los Angeles.

A superlative cook, Elena is noted for the simplicity and subtleness of her recipes. Some are inspired by Spain, from whence her parents came, while some have the Mexican accent, the land of Elena's birth. They appear in "Elena's Famous Mexican and Spanish Recipes" and "Elena's Fiesta Recipes." From the sales of the former she purchased her first guide dog. The books are now obtainable in Long Beach stores.

We've snatched a few of our favorite recipes from her books. They follow:

Old-Fashioned Mexican Dessert

(Postre Antiguo)

¾ cup sugar
4 whole cloves
1 cup water
½ cup sherry
5 egg yolks
½ pound of pound cake
Maraschino cherries and canned figs for garnish

Boil the sugar and cloves in water for 5 minutes. Remove from fire and add sherry. Moisten the sliced pound cake with this syrup and place the slices on a platter. Add the slightly beaten egg yolks to the remaining syrup, and return to the fire, stirring the mixture constantly until it coats the spoon. Pour over the sliced cake and garnish with cherries and figs or any chosen fruit. Berries are nice, too. Serve warm or cold to six.

Small New Potatoes

1½ pounds very small new potatoes
4 tablespoons butter
3 egg yolks
1 cup broth
1 tablespoon prepared dark mustard (not yellow, please)
Salt and pepper to taste

Boil the potatoes in their jackets, peel, and fry in butter. Mix egg yolks, mustard and broth, and cook gently until it begins to thicken. Add the potatoes and let simmer for a few minutes. Season, and sprinkle with minced parsley. Serves four.

Elena Zelayeta of San Francisco, noted restaurant proprietor and cookbook author, as she appears on TV show.

Eggs With Tortilla

(Huevos con Tortilla)

1 tortilla
3 tablespoons oil
2 eggs
Salt to taste
Grated cheese, or diced Monterey Jack or Romano cheese

With scissors cut the tortilla into eighths and fry in hot oil, not too crisp. Beat eggs, add salt, and pour over tortilla, turning as you would an omelet. Add cheese at end of cooking time, just long enough to melt. Serves one or two. (Probably only one!)

Elena's Mexican Rice With Sour Cream and Green Chile

1 cup raw rice
1 can green peeled chili peppers
½ lb. Monterey Jack Cheese
2 cups sour cream
2 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper to taste

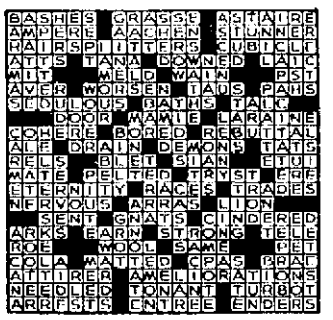

Cook the rice in boiling salted water until just tender. Cut each chili lengthwise into three strips. Cut half of the cheese into small oblongs, wrapping a chili strip around each piece. Butter a casserole and put in a layer of well-seasoned rice, then two or three stuffed chili peppers. Season with salt and pepper, cover with sour cream, then repeat until all ingredients have been used. The top should be of sour cream, the remaining cheese grated, and the butter in dots. Put in a 350° oven until browned on top, about 30 minutes. This serves six.

Kitchen Tip:

Elena's Kitchen Tip: Scalloped potatoes will have more zest if you add about one teaspoon of grated horseradish for four people.

Casual Living

Strong character is evident in the livin; room of the Robert Knox home. Fine domestic and imported contemporary pieces in furnishings provide interest.

Driftwood-stained redwood, coral trim and planters of yellow give exterior typically California atmosphere.

By Eileen Ball

DEVOTEES of casual living are becoming almost as indigenous to California as its oranges. A whole new generation of homeowners — young marrieds with their heads in the clouds but with their feet very much on the ground — will have none of the stuffy protocol that was imposed on their uncomplaining grandparents.

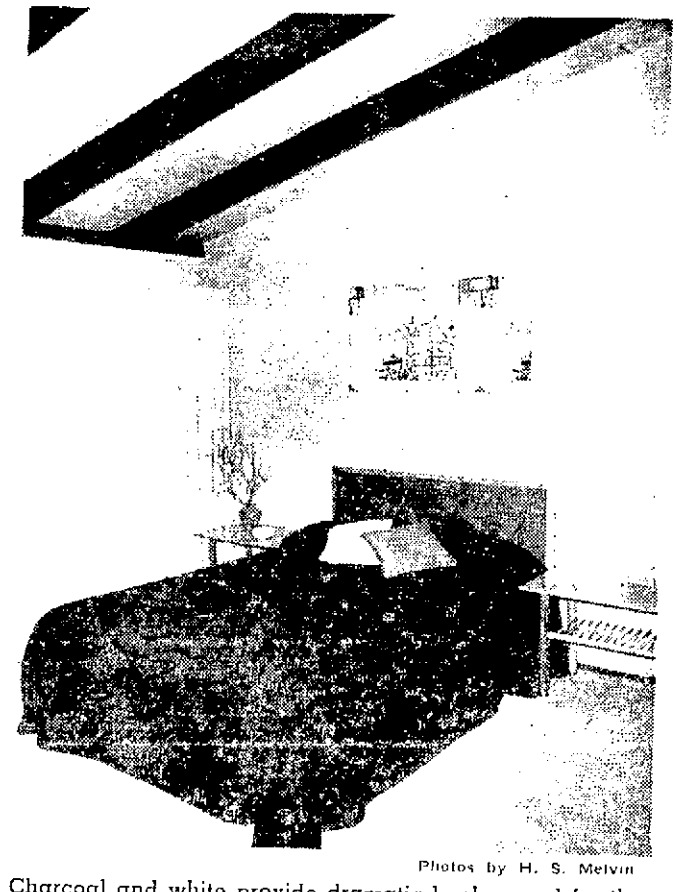

This younger generation of homeowner has, for the most part, little use for the sort of house that puts forth a certain number of rooms designated for a certain inelastic set of uses. For example, they want — and demand — houses where the Sunday roast may be carved in front of the television set or out on the patio, free from the static limitations of a "dining room."

They want houses that can withstand children's romping without becoming obviously rumpled or ill at ease. They are looking for houses that accommodate the every-day practicalities of living and that can, at the same time, unfold for parties.

A family typical of the thousands looking for just such a dwelling are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knox who, with their little son, bought a house at 6416 Madera St. Designed by the architectural firm of Poper & Lockett, AIA, their home comes very close to fulfilling the specifications of their dream place.

The strategic placement of high grapestake fencing has drawn the yard close to the house, giving it the privacy of an outdoor living room. Redwood board-and-batten siding, painted a soft driftwood gray, is livened by trim of coral and squat planter boxes made of concrete blocks painted soft yellow.

What the Knoxs have done with their house from the stand-

The Knoxs' small den opens off the living area and can be partitioned off whenever desired by sliding doors.

How contemporary and provincial moods can be mingled is demonstrated in the kitchen-dining area of the Knox home. Dinette set is imported from Denmark.

point of decor is worthy of more than casual mention. Here is a house that exemplifies the possibilities that can be attained when the unbeatable forces of good taste, good furniture and youthful verve are brought to bear. In short, this little contemporary home proves beyond doubt that these youngsters who so wholeheartedly lend their support to the new esthetic are bringing about a revolution in living that makes subservience to traditional mannerisms seem a little pointless.

A DUAL FIREPLACE wall divides the living area from the kitchen-dining space. It presents its handsome wall of common red brick to both areas, adding an important decorative element.

Except for the actual chimney, the brick stops short of the ceiling in the manner of a partial roof. Over it spans a heavy wood beam that supports the low-pitched roof. Exposed natural wood rafters slope away from this main supporting member, creating an interesting sense of rhythm.

The fireplace wall, as well as the exposed ceiling members satisfy the love that advocates of contemporary architecture have for the display of structural materials.

Warm beige provides the monochromatic color scheme for

A long, low Paul McCobb bench in satiny birch spans the width of the windows overlooking the garden. It is met in the corner by a larger table, over which hangs a plastic bubble lamp — a handsome high light for this conversational area.

Much of the room's gay insouciance is dependent upon the whimsical Toulouse Lautrec posters framed in charcoal molding and mounted, in turn, on mats covered in white shantung.

A SMALL STUDY may be made part of — or separated from — the living area by means of sliding partition doors. Here, Knox revamped a wardrobe closet to serve as a built-in storage unit. The lower segment of the offset has been fitted with louvered doors, behind which is housed the television set and the phonograph. The area above is used for the display of books and art objects.

Knox's penchant for louvered doors is further evidenced in the swinging "saloon" doors which he has installed in place of the original standard doors in the hallway. It is interesting to note how even such an insignificant feature as a solid door can serve to "box in" a room. For there can be no doubt but that the little half doors substituted by Knox have served to increase the feeling of larger area living rooms.

Standing against the wall that defines the end of the living area and runs into the kitchen is a handsome case piece that expresses one of the finest features of good contemporary furniture. Although, in reality, it is part of the dinette set (an exquisite import from Denmark) it does not shout its use as china storage. So neutral is its styling, it could stand in any room and look completely right for that spot. Here, it becomes a good looking commode.

IN THE DINING AREA a small round birch table boasts a complement of simple Danish chairs, superb for their exquisite craftsmanship.

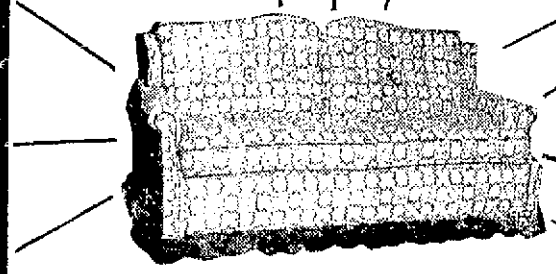

The kitchen combines the contemporary mood and shades of provincialism with a result that is doubly charming.

Stained and waxed to a finish emulating that of the birch cabinets are adjustable wood shutters that have been hung at the window. How wonderfully "at home" these antique shutters look (painstakingly sanded down to their original wood by Mrs. Knox) in their new, strictly modern setting!

View of Dr. Wernher von Braun's moon rocket approaching its destination is from "Man in Space," next Wednesday night's Disneyland show on Channel 7.

TELEVISION

Rocket Flight Into Outer Space

By Ed Velarde

CAN MAN SURVIVE a rocket flight that would blast him 1,075 miles beyond the earth? This is the $4 billion question posed by Walt Disney and three of America's foremost space scientists in "Man in Space," premiere show from the Tomorrowland realm of "Disneyland" to be seen on Channel 7 from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., Wednesday, March 9.

To answer this question, a year's effort was required to produce, with the services of the three eminent scientists, a factual, realistic picturization of the first successful passenger flight into outer space. It is an event that scientists agree will not occur for at least 10 years. And when it does, a combined investment of $1 billion will be represented.

Disney's genius to entertainingly present factual material is again brought into play in "Man in Space," beginning with a pictorial history of rockets and their development through the centuries. He introduces an animated cartoon sequence depicting the probable difficulties man will encounter in outer space. And he concludes the hour-long teleshow with a graphic visualization of man's first flight beyond the space frontier, a conquest achieved by means of a four-stage rocket.

SPACE AUTHORITIES who lend authenticity to the telecast are Dr. Wernher Von Braun, ranking space scientist and rocket engineer; Willy Ley, science-factual authority and space historian; and Dr. Hans Haber, ranking high-altitude and space-flight authority.

Among the material to be presented is Ley's prediction that within 10 years rockets bound for the moon, Mars and planets even more distant will be leaving on time-table schedules from a space station 1,075 miles beyond the earth.

He scorns such intangibles as flying saucers and other "interplanetary" phenomena.

"I am quite sure there is life elsewhere in our galaxy," he says. "I consider it possible that we can get visitors from space, but I do not think flying saucers are it."

LEY CAME to the United States from his native Germany in 1935 after helping pioneer the German Society for Space Travel, an organization that included some of today's best rocket and guided missile men.

"It will cost about $4 billion," he says, "but think of the industrial possibilities. The space depot could provide an accurate weather prediction service. Its location means improved observations of sun spots and other solar manifestations affecting the earth. A whole new chemistry, biology, and physics research program would begin on that platform out there in space!"

Von Braun agrees. Like most contemporary space scientists, he believes a man-made satellite as humanity's first foothold in space could dominate the world.

A pioneer in developing liquid fuel rockets used effectively during World War II, he helped perfect the V-2 and advanced rockets at White Sands Proving Ground which are initial steps toward space travel. His work as chief of Uncle Sam's Guided Missile Development Division at Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Ala., is still top secret.

Anyone in a rocket is going to be mighty uncomfortable no matter how you look at him, Haber declares.

"The floating and feeling of weightlessness he will experience when he leaves the earth's gravitational pull will be disturbing and will affect his co-ordination," Haber explains.

A SPACE TOURIST in transit must wear pressurized and air-conditioned clothes, the doctor says. He will have to drink out of closed tubes and back away from his own breath to avoid suffocation, unless air inside the rocket is ventilated constantly. He is likely to suffer vertigo. When he finally leaves the ship to stretch, he is in danger of being incinerated by the intense heat of the sun or frozen.

"But," assures Haber gravely, "there is no indications that basic bodily functions will be affected."

Dr. Haber narrates an animated cartoon sequence featuring Homo Sapiens Extra-Terrestrialist or "Space Man," a cartoon personification of Mr. Average Male surviving a harrowing round trip into outer space. Dr. von Braun discusses the probability of a passenger-carrying rocket expedition. After explaining some of the present approaches to such a flight, he outlines the mechanics of a four-stage rocket he has designed toward interplanatory travel. This leads into a realistic, factual animated cartoon presentation of the first successful manned-rocket journey beyond the space frontier.

Stereo camera takes two pictures, as eyes see scenes. A viewer must be used to bring the films into focus.

CAMERA ANGLE

Stereo Gives Depth

By the Shutterbug

IF SOMEONE were to ask, "What is the newest thing in photography?" we'd probably answer "stereo." Of course, actually stereo isn't new. It has been around a hundred years or so. We're sure you heard about the stereopticon slide viewers that occupied a place of honor beside the plush-covered family album in Victorian parlors. Viewing scenes of distant places through these was one of the popular pastimes of the day.

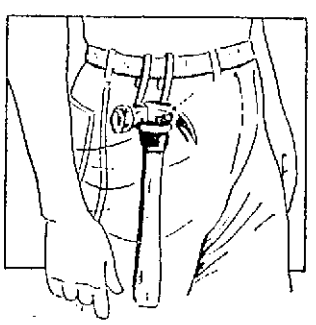

The thing that is new about stereo is that now we take our own stereo pictures. The scenes viewed through stereo viewers today are our own personally important pictures—they are the same pictures we snap with ordinary cameras for our family albums, or photograph on 35mm slides to project.

In stereo pictures, all the objects show up in their natural relationship to each other. Thus, the beautiful scenic view, which tends to come out disappointingly flat in other pictures, will have all the qualities that made us want to photograph it. This is because such scenes most always owe their charm to depth — or perspective — both very difficult to capture in our snapshots. But with stereo, the scene will be just as you saw it.

Stereo pictures are not difficult to take. You just shoot color pictures but view your subjects in all their natural three dimensional charm when you look at them through the stereo viewer.

LONG BEACH CINEMA CLUB will present a movie program for Orange County Cinema Club at 8 p. m. March 15 in Santa Ana College, 17th St. and Bristol Ave., Santa Ana. THE INDIANS

"Oh, that," said Lawson. "The refrigerator has never been used because their shack is not wired for electric power. And the salesman knew it."

That is a typical case. Only a few of the desert Indians who have sold their land under their new "freedom" have obtained more than a fraction of the actual value of the acreage. And almost without exception those who have sold spent their money foolishly and, in many cases, are now on state relief rolls.

OLDER TRIBESMEN, including those who have been drawing old-age pensions, will be cut off the pension lists unless they sell their lands, the Riverside County Welfare Bureau recently informed the tribe through a letter to Lawson. Aged and infirm Indians, obviously, are not able to plant and harvest even a small acreage because they are unable to borrow the money required to have the land cleared, buy machinery, pay for irrigation waters and other expenses. Should they be adjudged competent — which they certainly are not — to sell their lands, they would follow the usual pattern and spend their money unwisely in a matter of a month or two.

Younger Indians who served loyally in World War II and, more recently, in Korea, are unable to obtain loans, in most cases, to improve and stock their land because land with a restricted title is not acceptable as collateral for a loan. Even if the title is cleared and vested in an individual, lenders are chary about advancing funds secured only by raw desert acreage. And so the Indian gets a job, when he can, digging irrigation ditches, trimming date palms, picking and packing the crops his white neighbor plants on near-by watered land. Or he goes into the cities and finds work in factories and industrial plants — and he is unhappy there.

DESPITE the apparent liberty granted at long last, this is the time of low ebb in the fortunes of the desert tribes. The fires of hope, kindled briefly by Congressional action two years ago, now burn low and cool in their hearts. They hold frequent tribal meetings in abandoned schoolhouses and old churches on their reservations and listen to one speaker advocate selling lands at once, another urging them to wait and condition themselves to accept freedom. The reservation Indian hears the opposing arguments and is puzzled.

Over the ghost trails of Spaniards and Indians long since gone the roaring trucks go by, carrying their cargos of foodstuffs to cities across the mountain passes. Beyond the sharp cleavage of drab and green that marks the reservation's boundary line the white man's tractors lift their metal clamor as the white man seeds and weeds the row-crops that bring him wealth. The Indian watches and wonders what the future holds.

For there are no row-crops growing in the Indian's lonely fields. Only dust-devils dancing, swirling away to the sky. Only the hot wind prowling, whimpering softly like a lost and lonely gnome. Nothing fresh and green. Only mesquite and sagebrush and the tangled catalpa jungles where the coyote and the sullen rattlesnake hide from the heat of the day. And down from the clouds the wild geese fling their taunt to the men who are not yet free.

The Cahuilla listens and is sad.

Along the Old Mission Trail

Cypress Point on the Monterey Peninsula is a stiff test of golf, as this view of the 16th hole shows, but the beauty of the surroundings more than makes up for it.

By Ray Hewitt

Resort Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram

THE TIME was late fall 1947 and California was in the throes of preparing to celebrate its 100th anniversary. Civic leaders were in a dither dreaming up ideas to commemorate this notable event . . . the state legislature had appropriated money to be used for such celebrations as they approved and a commission had been appointed to supervise the events and the spending of the money.

After the pot had simmered for several months no one seemed to have come up with an idea with which to "kick off" this series of celebrations which would span three years of history. Then one group, the California Mission Trails Association, advanced the idea that if the state was going to seek the attention of the world, what better way than to go all the way back and portray the Portola expedition of 1769 which opened the coastal area of what is now California and brought civilization here.

As most persons will recall, Portola's was a semi-military expedition to establish the claim of Spain to this fabulous land. Like all of Spain's colonizing projects, it was also semi-religious. Fra Junipero Serra was selected to be the religious head and Capitan Don Gaspar de Portola as military leader.

Arriving from Mexico City in the vicinity of what is now San Diego, the expedition established a base camp, and after many delays started north in search of the bay of Monterey, which had been described in glowing terms by various sailors. The story of the travelers' hardships and adventures has been told too many times to need repeating here, but 108 days after their start they finally reached the end of their journey north and discovered the bay of San Francisco, where, in the chronicler's words, "all the navies of the world could be anchored."

Father Serra did not make the overland journey but went north by ship. However, Father Crespe, another Franciscan, did make the overland journey and he wrote a detailed diary of the trip. Using a copy of this diary as the basis of their plan, the Mission Trails Association sold its idea to the Centennial Commission and were directed to proceed.

AFTER MONTHS of preparation a crew of horsemen was as-

DUBLIN.

NOTES OF AN Irish traveler: Ireland is one of the less expensive and more charming countries of Europe. Hotel rooms in Class A areas won't run you more than $2 to $3 a day. The standard lunch in the same hotel runs $1 and dinner is $1.70.

It should be noted, however, that there are not too many Class A hotels. Ireland is not geared up to a tourist trade in the way France is. The Automobile Association, 23 Suffolk St., Dublin, publishes a handbook for members with all hotels listed plus the accommodations.

Usually you get one of these with the car that you rent.

Ireland's best buys are the woven goods from the cottage industries.

The wholesaler takes his yarn around to the country cottages that are equipped with looms. It comes back later, peat-smoked and handsome, in the form of Donegal tweeds and so on.

Grafton Street is the best shopping street in Dublin. It takes you about 15 minutes to walk both sides of the street in a window shopping expedition.

TOP OF THE IRISH designers is Sybil Connolly on Grafton Street. Her tweeds are the best I have ever seen. She also does some evening things using Irish linens that are very handsome.

She ought to be in the States about now, by the way. She is showing in Los Angeles on St. Patrick's Day, March 17. I am not sure of all her American outlets. But Lord & Taylor and I. Magnin's are two of them.

If you are looking for a St. Patrick's Day gift for an Irishman, send $4.50 to Shannon Airport, Ireland. Ask for one of their poplin ties with the Clan crest. They claim to have every Irish name.

The ties come in forest green, black, navy blue and maroon. The receiver pays the mailman about 35 cents duty. But his family crest is on the tie and it's an unusual gift.

SHANNON AIRPORT is a free port. No Irish duties or taxes. They are just beginning a new service on men's jackets, suits and topcoats. Women's things, too, I think.

You ask for a set of samples of various tweeds. They come with a measuring chart. Average price for a Donegal tweed jacket is $28. There will be some American duty, however, and possibly some retailoring.

A NEW MINTED SET OF ALL IRISH COINS IS ANOTHER NICE GIFT. THEY COST $1.50 AT THE AIRPORT. SO I IMAGINE $2 WOULD COVER IT, POSTAGE AND ALL.

Southland Magazine's roving correspondent will answer your questions on travel from his own experiences in making reservations, changing money, locating restaurants and battling foreign languages. Make the question specific. And don't forget the stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. Stan Delaplane, care of Southland, Independent, Press-Telegram.

HOW TO Improve Home Storage Space by Organizing, Utilizing Attic

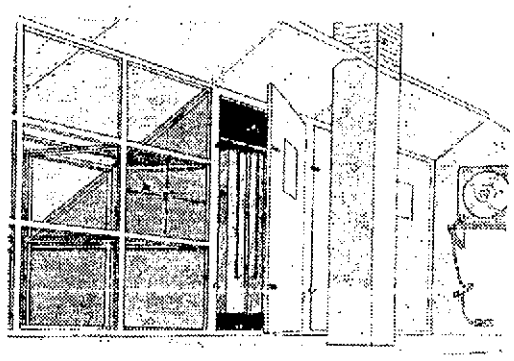

DOES YOUR ATTIC look like a run-down second-hand store? Then it's time for a change. The same kind of systematic sorting and storing that works out well in an office or warehouse can bring order to your attic. And by stacking or hanging everything in a place of its own, you'll find that you will make room for more suitcases, garment bags, and little-used sports gear.

First step is to throw or give away the piles of magazines and old clothes that are only catching dust. Next, sort the other things in the attic; divide them into groups by their size or type. Then decide on the kind of shelves and closets you need to arrange your attic efficiently.

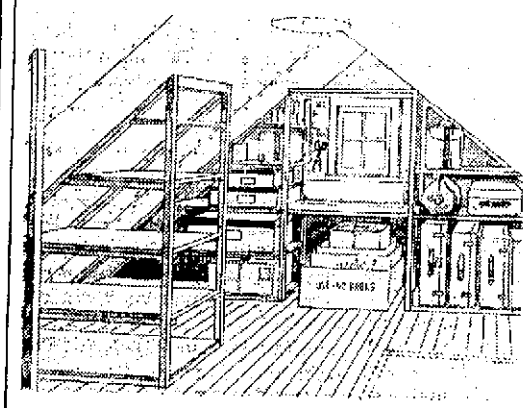

Here are some ways you could make better use of your attic space. Most of these storage aids are built from hardboard and wood. All are constructed in a way you can copy. See which item your should start with.

1. UNDER-THE-EAVES BINS may be filled with outgrown clothes and off-season sports gear. A turn-button on the roof joist overhead holds the lid up while you look through the bin. Paint size numbers or names on each bin.

2. FREESTANDING SHELVES can be built in the center of the attic, then pushed into space under the eaves. Nail shelves to the frame, or balance them on the frames for easy removal. Keep boxes, paper, scissors and cord on a shelf under the window so you can do all of your wrapping in the attic.

3. STORAGE CLOSETS will keep garment bags in mothproof safety. Fit the doors tightly—seal them with tape. Open shelves at left store cartons. Cover mattresses and pillows with plastic so they won't get dusty.

4. READY-MADE CLOSET BOXES, bags, and drawers come in handy in the attic, too. Build a simple framework to fit the stack of prefabricated drawers, you'll have a mothproof chest for woolens. Shelves above the frame will hold boxes for linen, clothing and shoes.

Grow Prizewinning Pansies

By conforming to a few simple rules of culture, any home gardener should be able to grow pansies of prize-winning quality.

By Walter Finch

FEW FLOWERS come close to the pansy as the leader in popularity of modern bedding plants. Pansies continue to hold top popularity with little competition year after year. Little wonder when one views a beautiful bed of prizewinning plants at a garden competition, but the question still remains of how to develop like blooms in the regular home garden environment.

Actually, there is little that remains in the way of a secret to successful growing of exhibition quality pansy plants. Of course, quality seed must be chosen and most commercial growers are very meticulous on this point. Cost of seed is of secondary importance. The primary thing is to secure the very best seed obtainable because the flower can never be any better than the strain of seed that is planted. Secondly, rapid unchecked growth must be maintained until the plants are ready for sale in retail nurseries and this too, has become a carefully watched procedure to the point that most commercial growers today offer perfectly grown stock to their retailer trade. At this point, the home gardener takes over the care of pansy plants and here again certain procedures must be followed through for best results, according to the California Bedding Plant Advisory Board.

PANSIES LIKE a cool soil that is porous and well mixed with a good organic humus. They require abundant phosphate for good root development such as is supplied by bone meal or superphosphate. During the winter season they thrive in full sun although as the days lengthen they will tolerate more shaded conditions. Drainage should be excellent and the soil surface should be lightly cultivated at two week intervals or after each heavy rainfall. In the way of pest control, slugs and snails must be controlled otherwise the flower petals will be continually chewed before they are half open with a result that is not appealing. Also aphids must be kept well under control with regular sprayings or dustings with the proper insecticides as they tend to reach epidemic proportions before they are noticeable. In such cases the pansy plants will be severely checked and will not be capable of reaching the full potential quality that is built into the seed embryo.

Many strains of pansy are available but the two outstanding strains offered today are the Swiss Roggli and the American Mastodon Jumbo. Modifications of these two strains are offered under many labels most of which are fine mixtures. Basically the Roggli pansy is a bold rich color with a huge black face although some such as the white and one yellow are solid selfs. In the Mastodon or Jumbo strains the coloration is many-hued within the single pansy and there is a much wider color selection. Many of the blossoms have fine pencilings or whiskers that lend a distinctive touch to their appearance. This strain lacks in good blues and deep reds which are found in abundance in the Roggli Strain. In the matter of growth the Roggli Pansy is more compact and tends to get a little bunchy while the Jumbo Pansy sprawls out and will need a little trimming to keep it tidy.

An Orchid for Every Garden

By Bob Gilmore

Badger Seeds Photo

Cymbidium orchids thrive in Southland soil if planted in a sheltered location and protected from the wind.

YOU CAN GROW orchids in your own garden easily, quickly, successfully and with a minimum of care. The variety to choose for this type of culture is the cymbidium orchid. Even the cost is nominal.

Cymbidium orchids in Southern California seem to grow as vigorously as a geranium. They do not require either a protective greenhouse or a professional horticulturist. The truth is that if you can grow a rose you can grow a cymbidium; and if you can't, then turn the job over to your 5-year-old child. Chances are, you'll find cymbidium orchids easier to grow than tuberous begonias or gardenias.

Before you start growing orchids there is one distinction to get clear. Orchids can be divided roughly into two main groups: The terrestrials which root in the soil and the epiphytes, which root in other plants or rocks but not in the soil. Although epiphyte orchids often grow on trees they are no parasites. Cymbidium orchids are evergreen terrestrials. This means they are always in foliage with the roots in the soil.

Cymbidium orchids are natives of India and Indochina. In their homeland they are often found growing in decaying masses of vegetation. Familiar sites for them are in dead tree stumps. This situation provides excellent drainage, a factor that is essential for successful culture. It is believed that more cymbidiums die from poor drainage than from any other single factor.

CAREFUL CONSTRUCTION of the growing bed plus proper soil should guarantee good drainage. Heavy soils such as adobe or clay have poor drainage. Sandy soils have excellent drainage. Water penetrates easily and quickly. A soil mixture of equal parts of leaf mold and mountain soil should suffice. Adding gravel will prevent packing.

The beds should be raised, being from eight to twelve inches above the surface of the soil. Water naturally drains to a lower level and this type of raised bed will encourage proper drainage.

The plants require very little water during the winter when they tend to go dormant. During the summer watering about once or twice a month should prove ample. Withholding water at this time seems to encourage flower production in the following season. Make sure the moisture penetrates the soil to a depth of at least four or five inches. Then don't water again until the soil dries out.

Liquid fertilizers may be applied about once a month during summer. In winter once every three months should suffice.

Flower Show

Entries are now being accepted for the Southern California Spring Flower Show which will be held in the Floral Building at the Los Angeles County Fair Grounds in Pomona on April 22, 23, 24. This event, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Pomona, has been endorsed by the Inland Empire Chapter of the California Nurserymen's Association and is being actively supported by garden clubs and flower arrangement groups throughout this area. All proceeds derived from the show will be used for charitable purposes.

Awards will be made for individual arrangements, potted plants, corsages and specimens, as well as for many classes of floral arrangements. Entries are open to all amateurs and entries from children are particularly solicited. Children's entries will be grouped in a special junior showing for which special awards will be made. Anyone desiring an entry blank should write Mrs. Jean Wheeler, in charge of amateur exhibits, at P. O. Box 67, Pomona, or phone LYcoming 9-8058.

While the show will feature amateur florists, it is open for display purposes to nurserymen and professional florists. Professionals, however, will not be competing with amateurs for awards.

Fuchsia Film

Three-D pictures of fuchsias will be shown by Loren Paulsohn of Inglewood, president of the California National Fuchsia Society, at a meeting of the Long Beach branch of the society at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in Machinist Hall, 728 Elm Ave. Visitors are welcome.

Garden Tips

GARDENING TIPS for the week. . . Dichondra seed will be in short supply this spring. So buy your seed at once before all stocks are exhausted. Coated dichondra seed, which facilitates planting, is also available.

As the weather warms up you should plant citrus such as lemons and oranges as well as the more tender subtropicals. Provide plenty of moisture to insure the roots taking hold quickly.

To sustain the customary spring growth of all plants apply plant food at regular intervals. Don't overfeed but give moderate feedings at frequent periods.

W. Atlee Burpee Photo

Not all the glamour in Brazil is exported for the Miss Universe contest. Long Beach garden fans may also enjoy the Latin beauty of Gloxinia.

By Murtha Hurley

GLOXINIAS, those glamorous plants from Brazil were once comparatively unknown here. Today, through the efforts of hybridizers, any careful gardener can grow them.

If you are a patient gardener, willing to assist the plants' development from tiny seedlings to colorful blooms, you can grow Gloxinias. It takes five months from seedling or bulb to a productive flowering plant.

The Gloxinia is a native of humid, tropical forests. These conditions must be approximated as closely as possible to grow this unusual bulbous plant successfully.

Get the best seed. Specialists who carry varieties of Gloxinia bulbs can supply the seeds. You can choose them in separate shades of blue, purple, pink, several crimson tones and white, or a mixture of all colors.

SINCE THE SEEDS require a warm, sheltered location for germination, sow them indoors or in a heated glass house.

The seeds are very fine so do not sow them too closely. Use shallow clay pots. You must hurry for seed culture this year; planting time is growing late. Use the same soil mix as for tuberous begonias. Place two inches of gravel in the bottom of the pot, then a mixture of fairly coarse compost, about 2/3 leaf mold and ⅓ peat moss, several handsful of sand. Add a thin, finely sieved layer of the same mix on top. Soak the pots from below—then sow the seed.

Do not cover the seeds with any soil, after you sow them in the pot. Cover the pots with glass and keep well shaded during germination, seedling and growing stages. A temperature of 70 degrees to 80 degrees is required.

Water with a fine mist spray.

Just as soon as the seedlings begin to show, gradually remove the covering, giving more light and more air.

As soon as the seedlings are large enough to lift out, trans-

Don't plant lawn seed until you read these facts

"Deep feed" your grass with this 2-way lawn fertilizer

Golf® BRAND LAWNFOOD

feeds your lawn 2 important ways:

1. It contains fast-acting chemical nitrogen to give grass an immediate sparkle and lushness.

2. It also contains organic nitrogen, plus other needed food elements, for the steady slow feeding that means sound and continuing growth.

High in nitrogen . . . Golf Brand Lawnfood goes further! One pound does the work of three pounds of ordinary fertilizers.

25 LBS. . . . $2.95
50 LBS. . . . $5.45

Kill lawn weeds, crabgrass using your garden hose!

Here's the easy way to kill broad-leaved weeds and ugly crabgrass. No complicated equipment, no measuring or mixing. Besides your garden hose, you'll need:

Golf BRAND 2-4,D WEED KILLER
. . . kills dandelions, plantains, other broad-leaved weeds. Single pint covers 2000 square feet! $1.15.

Golf BRAND CRABGRASS KILLER
. . . kills crabgrass, also controls many common lawn diseases. Single pint covers 1200 square feet. $1.75.

NORTHRUP, KING & CO.

Golf Brand flourishes anywhere—in sun or shade, on level or grade

Stop worrying over the "difficult" places in your lawn. Golf Brand Lawn Seed gives you a blend of 11 perennial grasses, designed to meet virtually all the various conditions found in every lawn.

You get sun-loving grasses, including famous Merion Bluegrass, to keep the lawn green in hot weather . . . fine-leaved fescues that thrive in deep shade . . . bentgrasses for beauty and exquisite texture . . . still other grasses with root structures that cling to slopes. Wherever you plant Golf Brand, the particular grasses best suited for the conditions take over . . . and flourish!

What's more, some grasses are always at their growing peak, to give you a rich green lawn all season long.

Grow a lawn so thick it crowds out weeds

The sooner you plant Golf Brand, the sooner you can enjoy a thick velvety turf, a carpet-like lawn of lasting beauty! Golf Brand is a blend of 11 perennial grasses fungicide-treated to insure high germination. These are grasses famous for their beauty and long life. Given the initial care it deserves, a Golf Brand lawn will grow ever thicker. By the end of the first year, and particularly during the second year, your Golf Brand lawn grows so thick it actually crowds out weeds!

For a perfect lawn—seed, feed, weed the Golf Brand way

1. SEED. In buying lawn seed, you get exactly what you pay for. Even at their peak of growth, cheap ryegrass mixtures can never give you a permanent, thick luxurious turf. But when you plant Golf Brand, you start a permanent lawn. A lawn that, with proper care, will grow more beautiful each year.

2. FERTILIZER. Regular feeding is a "must" for a perfect lawn. See column at left, for facts about Golf Brand Lawnfood.

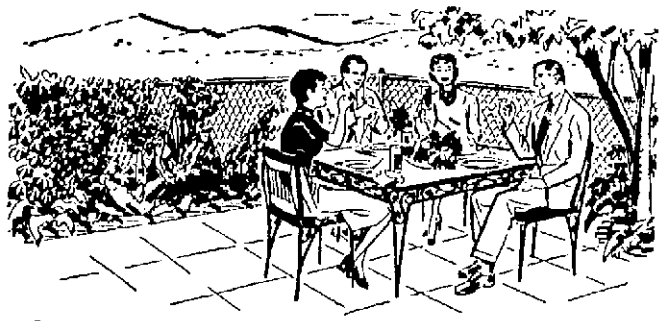

3. WEED CONTROL. Kill weeds and crabgrass as easily as watering your lawn. See column at left for details on Golf Brand Weed Control program.

Start Pelargonium Cuttings Now

By Burleigh M. Beakley

PELARGONIUMS are easily multiplied by softwood, off-season cuttings of new growth brought on by pruning the plants The small plants propagate quickly from terminal material and will bloom in later spring to make vigorous pot or garden specimens for landscape planning. The compatible Long Beach area climate encourages pelargoniums to a resplendent growth.

Not only is the pelargonium a fast-growing, vigorous floral decorant, but it offers a multitude of colors and combinations of colors, hues and brilliant flower markings. It has a wide variety of leaf patterns and markings. And there are numerous completely different foliage fragrances, or mock scents of such vegetal items as apples and mint with which is charms the prospective collector.

The process of taking and rooting pelargonium cuttings is simple and almost failure-proof once a few points of procedure are mastered. Use only pest-and-disease-free succulent growth of flowerless terminals with short joints for the strongest plant reproductions.

To get the proper texture of cutting stock, test the material by bending it. If, when sharply bent, it snaps cleanly leaving a shred of cambium uniting the two parts, it is right.

POPULAR VARIETIES range in many colors and are usually separated by names. A few of them are:

White: Mary Bard, pure white with rose throat markings; Duchess of Kent, pure white.

Pink: Mackensen, brilliant rose flowers on a dwarf shrub; Bella Donna, cerise pink with mottled upper petals; Ruth Macafee, quantities of large salmon-pink blooms; Diener's Giant, finest large pink blooms.

Salmon: Sue Jarrett, clear, dependable salmon color, Grandma Fisher, large, ruffled deep-salmon blooms.

Lavender: Lavender Quedlinburg, spreading lavender blooms marked with black and white; Waltztime, pale lavender with dark purple veining on the upper petals.

Red: Easter Greetings, one of the first to show spring color. Fire-truck red; Amanda, red that glows; John Wintermute, lasting deep blood-red blooms; Carmine King, shrubby, early blooming plant with carmine flowers.

Maroon and Magenta: Dutchess of Cornwall, dark maroon with white petal edgings; Marie Rober, darkest purple or black with verdant growth and vigorous vertical foliage.

Multicolored: Neuheit Faiss, heliotrope violet with deep purple blotches; Springtime, brilliant salmon overtones on clear white background.

Let cuttings wilt for day to reduce rotting, dip in root hormone, set in clean sand and keep sand evenly moist.

For pelargonium cuttings, use 4-inch new growth tips. Cut straight across, 1/8 inch below the axil of leaf.

—Photos by the Author

After ½-inch roots form, transfer cutting to pot in equal parts of sand, peat moss, good loam.

Gloxinias

plant them to a larger container or flat, spacing about three inches apart.

When the first leaves are an inch wide, transplant the seedlings into 2½-inch pots, one to a pot. Use a soil mixture of ⅓ coarse leaf mold, 1/6 peat moss, 1/6 fine loam or silt and ⅙ compost and sand.

Remember the warmer the temperature the faster Gloxinias grow and the larger they become. To obtain large plants from seed, it is necessary to shift the plants as they develop to next size larger pots.

Gloxinias can also be grown from bulbs.

Start the bulb in moist peat moss. When the plant shows its first growth, transplant to 3-inch pots. As development continues, shift to a 4-inch pot.

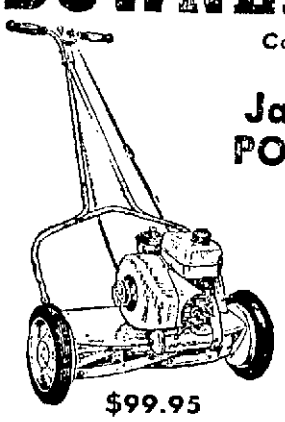

Plants started from bulbs grow faster and larger than from seedlings and when mature will easily fill a 6-or 7-inch pot.

Violet Show

April 29 and 30 are the dates fixed for the annual African Violet Show, to be held at Norway Hall, 7th St. and Redondo Ave., under sponsorship of the African Violet Society. Mrs. L. D. Thalheimer, show chairman, suggests that all amateur growers begin grooming their plants now for exhibit and competition.

Lots of Babies Mean Lots of Business

AMERICANS ARE HAVING babies, buying homes in the suburbs and new automobiles ..and just generally spending a lot of money at what the editors of Fortune Magazine often describe as a "furious" pace.

These editors devoted a considerable part of the talent at their disposal in 1953 and 1954 to studying the buying (and living) habits of the American people.

With ponderous eastern insularity, Fortune reported the great trends toward home-making in this land since 1947. It seems incredible that Fortune should miss analyzing the greatest home-building, baby-creating boom of the country; but since the same trends were apparent around New York City, it probably has no effect on Fortune's conclusions that the area sometimes classified (by Fortune) as "The Far West" was roundly ignored.

(There is, after all, a place called Lakewood . . .)

The editors of Fortune collected the articles they caused to be prepared, and Hanover House has published them under the title, "The Changing American Market" ($4.50).

Projecting the welter of statistics into the future, Fortune's editors see prosperity generally through 1959, then a recession of sorts, and a newer boom in the 1960s. Fortune sees a continuing demand for good and bigger houses; a competitive market for automobiles; a good market for clothiers with imagination, and an active trade for all merchants who aim at families whose incomes range from $4,000 to $7,500 (after taxes).

"The Changing American Market" hedges most of its predictions; buries the readers under a mountain of charts. A preface explains that there wasn't room in Fortune for most of the charts. That seems understandable.—G. C. F.

ANNE M. LINDBERGH

A pattern of living—not a panacea but a goal towards a fuller life — is offered by Anne Morrow Lindbergh in "A Gift From the Sea" (Pantheon, $2.75).

As the author, wife of the famed flier, vacations at the seashore, she gathers sea shells and compares them to life's problems. While she meditates she shares with the reader her answers to everyday frustrations and pressures. She proposes a "balance of physical, intellectual and spiritual life."

The beauty of her philosophy lies in its simplicity and sincerity. She tells us we cannot collect all the beautiful sea shells on the beach, but we must choose and discard, and keep only the perfect specimens. "A Gift From the Sea" will be eagerly read and enjoyed by all seekers of harmonious and graceful living.—F. T. H.

MEN OF AVARICE: Julie and Charles-Hubert Poissonard, able to make the most out of everything, made 47 million francs out of the German occupation of France. Their avarice included larding the butter, watering the milk and shorting the weights, and since they were storekeepers, all of this was mighty, mighty profitable.

"The Best Butter" by Jean Dutourd (Simon and Schuster, 3.50) traces the Poissonards and an assortment of Parisians through defeat, occupation and liberation during World War II. Dutourd scored with a satirical novel, "A Dog's Head," and presumably meant to be satirical all the way here, too. But things get a little grim in spots. An entertaining, often chuckle-funny novel.—G. C. F.

Bushrod Sheridan wanted to be known as a landowner in his own right rather than as the husband of Allegra Saunders Sheridan, whose family had lived on a fine Missouri farm. To attain his dream, he took his wife and daughter on the second run in the Oklahoma Territory, and the story of what happened to the family is ably told by Alberta Wilson Constant in "Oklahoma Run" (Crowell, $3.95). — E. G.

When kindly Bishop Nevin of the Diocese of Seattle dies, his successor, Bishop Blunt, tries to reform his baseball-playing, practical-joking priests. The job is not an easy one, as you'll find when you read "The Bishop Finds a Way," a humorous novel by Michael Cunningham (Farrar, Straus and Young, $3). - F. T. H.

LAND OF VIOLENCE: A Grand Canyon guide named Bill Parks combines ranching and romance with smuggling and violence for a corking yarn of the Arizona Territory in the late 1880s. His first novel is called "The Mestizo" (Macmillan, $2.75), and in it a young rancher, a sheriff and his deputies, and the Rangers come to grips with a wild animal of a Yaqui mestizo who has an uncommon lust for blood. The Territorial saloons, Apache renegades, the long, hot Arizona days, the cooling nights with their gallon-size stars and glowing campfires among the cactus, the zing of Indian knives and the ricochet of king-size bullets all combine to make "The Mestizo" top-notch western.—F. T. K.

NEWLYWEDS — and couples contemplating matrimony — will find many a helpful suggestion in the choosing of fine, useful things for their home in "Off to the Right Start" (Bobbs-Merrill, $2.95). Marjorie Binford Woods, who has helped to plan 10,000 weddings, and Justine Feely, the authors, give many a pertinent pointer on how to select such items as china, silver and glassware, linens, things for the kitchen, and then tell how to put these necessities to work to best advantage.—F. T. K.

IMPRESSIONIST: The reader will not have to be a patron of the arts to enjoy and profit by "Noble Savage: The Life of Paul Gauguin," by Lawrence and Elisabeth Hanson (Random House, $5). Here is one of the greatest of the impressionists, one whose paintings were wide of the flattering and photographic likenesses loved by the public. Gauguin was perhaps the product of his own mixed parental backgrounds and he was early impressed by the dark-skinned people who appeared to him as true primitives. At first only a "Sunday painter" (Gauguin was a well-to-do stockbroker with a wife and children when he picked up the brushes) it was not long before the man abandoned his profession, his family and most of his possessions to paint what he wished. His early "Study of a Nude," done without previous experience, still is one of the best of all nudes, but he is most noted for his canvases of Tahiti, where he died. One only regrets that the illustrations in this volume were not printed in the colors that mean Gauguin and no other artist.—G. L.

ONE FOR PSYCHIATRISTS: "Children of the Stone Lions" (Putnam, $3.50), by Paul Hackett, is the ugly story of two warped youngsters who can't make a go of their attempt to be normal human beings. Amateur psychiatrists may like it.—G. C. F.

NEW PAPERBACKS: "Line of Fire," adventure and excitement, by Donald Hamilton; "New Ways to Greater Word Power," by Roger B. Goodman and David Lewin, and "The Only Game in Town," a novel by Charles Einstein (all Dell First Editions, $.25 each); "1001 Valuable Things You Can Get Free," a compilation of give-away items, by Mort Weisinger (Bantam, $.25); "Drop Dead," a mystery, by George Bagby (Bantam, $.25).

California Leads

California leads the nation in utilization of public libraries.

According to a recent figure released by the United States Office of Education, the total annual public library circulation in the state is 44,914,762. This is about four books per year for every man, woman and child, in addition to all books purchased.

Stamp Notes

For the first time, President Dwight D. Eisenhower appears on a postage stamp.

Depicted on each of the three adhesives is President Eisenhower shaking hands with President Syngman Rhee.

The 10 weun is blue, 19 w brown and 71 w green. In the background are the flags of the United States and the Republic of Korea.

The Old Mission Trail

sembled. They were costumed in exact replicas of the garb worn by the soldiers of Portola, as was also the man who characterized Father Crespe, and they headed north from San Diego for the long journey north. Their starting date was July 8, the same as the Portola expedition's, and they followed the diary to the last detail, taking the same 108 days, camping as near as possible to the same spots, and arriving at the point high on the hills back of San Carlos in mid-October. The event received national and international publicity.

Until this time the Coast Route between San Diego and San Francisco had not had much publicity. Travelers generally preferred the inland route via Bakersfield and Fresno as it was a trifle shorter and faster.

It was about this time that the California State Highway Commission began to be aware of the necessity of doing something about the Coast Route, U. S. Highway 101. And since then vast sums have been spent to improve, widen and in many cases, reroute, this highway so that today, while it is still a few miles longer between the Los Angeles area and San Francisco, it takes no longer to drive and it still offers the most scenic and historic route north.

There is certainly no comparison needed of the delights of driving the scenic and cool Coast Route with any other route.

Winding beside great stretches of white, sandy beaches with huge, snow-crested breakers rolling in from the blue Pacific and dipping through mountain passes such as the one north of Santa Barbara, where U. S. troops under Gen. Fremont outmaneuvered the Spanish and proceeded over San Marcos Pass to capture Santa Barbara without a shot.

Santa Ynez Valley and Santa Maria, with its flower-bordered streets; Pismo Beach and San Luis Obispo, with its famous old mission established by the Franciscans in 1772, please visitors. The highway now bypasses San Luis Obispo but a convenient turnoff leads into and through the city. Over La Cuesta grade, once the terror of motorists but now a wide, four-lane, divided, high-gear highway, the road leads northward through the pastoral scenes of the Valley of the Oaks (Paso Robles) and the rich Salinas Valley, often referred to as the "salad bowl of the nation."

FROM SALINAS a side trip leads to historic Monterey and Carmel, and the coast may be followed to Santa Cruz and groves of giant redwoods.

The Santa Clara Valley is still abloom with its vast orchards of prune, cherry and other fruit trees and no lovelier drive can be found in the entire world than the stretch of El Camino Real between Palo Alto and San Francisco. For those in a hurry, Bayshore route is a freeway all the way into San Francisco.

The Mission Trails Association, a non-profit organization devoted to promoting interest in the scenic and historical interest along the Coast Highway, has published a brochure, illustrated in color, which may be obtained free by addressing Ray Hewitt, care of the Independent, Press-Telegram. The association also has a colored, 16-mm film which will be loaned to clubs, schools and other groups without charge.

MORRIS SPIER
When Is a Sandwich Not a Sandwich

PEOPLE LOVE to eat foods which are different from what they're supposed to be. And if that's a slightly ambiguous sentence, here is a possible explanation:

One of the most successful items served at the Village Inn, 2099 Bellflower Blvd., is a sandwich which isn't a sandwich.

On the menu it's listed as a Steak Sandwich. The host's patrons know very well that it's much more than a mere sandwich and order it with great and satisfying regularity. Priced at $1.85, the "sandwich" is a whole meal, consisting of a half-pound top sirloin steak served with big slices of garlic bread and a large baked potato with a creamy cheese sauce and chopped chives.

Morris Spier and Jack Lavkin, the Inn's neighborly hosts and owners, realize, of course, that some people have even bigger appetites. So for them they serve a splendid Top Sirloin Dinner. This steak weighs a full pound and is prime quality Kansas City beef. Charcoal broiled to perfection, the sirloin is such a handsome beauty that many men prefer its company to that of their wives. (This is a fact that they seldom admit, however.) Tabbed at $3.50, the steak is served with a great big salad, including roquefort or cream French dressing, a baked potato, garlic bread, fresh vegetable and coffee.

The Inn also offers its guests an excellent Lobster Thermidor ($2.75) with each serving including a pound of fresh lobster sauteed in butter and wine and dished up with mushrooms, pimento and a rich cheddar sauce. It is served on the same complete dinner as the sirloin steak.

Incidentally, talented Norman Cowan appears nightly except Sunday at the Inn's piano bar. He can play any song that was ever written -- and some that weren't. —TEDD THOMEY.

Poker Clubs' 'War' Rages at Gardena

Dime Dinners Draw Crowds; Cafe Men's Squawk Stirs Mayor

By JIM PHELAN

GARDENA—Anonymous death threats over the telephone . . . steak dinners for a dime . . . private detectives investigating cab drivers at 3 a. m. . charges of pandering and illegal liquor sales.

Put them all together and you get Gardena, California's "Little Las Vegas," home of the legalized poker palace.

Gardena burst into the news last week with a price war that sent the tab for a full dinner down to a dime at one of its six plush poker palaces.

Hungry Californians, many of whom would not know a bobtailed flush from a full house, flocked here by the hundreds to queue up for the most sensational food bargain since the soup kitchens of the late Great Depression.

Behind this comic-opera war is an ugly situation that has been brewing for months. Some sober Gardenans are fearful that it is going to get out of hand.

Gardena's troubles started last fall when bitter competition for business broke up an agreement between the poker houses to run only six days a week. Under this agreement, each club closed on a different day and all ran on Saturday, when card players are plentiful.

Rival operators blame the collapse of this agreement on Ernie Primm, present boss of the Rainbow Club and a reputed partner in the Monterey. Primm has the reputation of being an aggressive, hard-driving operator, with close connections to the present city administration.

Primm sold the Monterey some time back, and then opened the new Rainbow nearby. Primm said the Rainbow was not bound by the closing-day agreement, and he ran it seven days a week. Last December, the Monterey ran into business trouble and changed management, with Primm said to be an influential figure in the new setup.

With the Rainbow running full time, the other clubs scrapped the agreement six weeks ago and all went on a seven-day schedule.

Some months ago, the "Gardena War" spread to the taxicab business.

Transportation is a big factor in a poker club's business. Many players don't have autos, and getting to and from the clubs is a vital problem. Each club has its regular players, and the poker barons guard them as jealously as a farmer guards his prize

L.A.C. SAYS:

It Happens Often

The series of articles these newspapers have carried concerning the Eldred case should save many persons their security. Because this case happened in nearby Santa Ana, it is brought close to home. It is another case of an attractive, vibrant personality gaining the confidence of people and then bilking them. It is tragic that so many old people lose their life savings. It is also tragic that a man with so much ability should use it in such a sordid manner.

This case is the old one where people entrust their money to some local go-getter. In this case it was to buy trust deeds and keep them in their possession. They

AT LAST, TAX ON VERY AIR YOU BREATHE!

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Taxpayers have been predicting for years it would happen, but when it did, city officials were stumped.

A businessman set up some oxygen-vending machines—two minutes of oxygen for 25 cents—and asked the officials what taxes he should pay.

He found out no one ever had thought to figure how to tax on "the air you breathe."

City officials asked the attorney general to decide if oxygen (air) is merchandise. There's a tax on merchandise.

GOOD MAN GONE

Jimmy Given Last Sendoff in Skid Row

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Some 500 down-and-outers raised their quavering voices in dimly remembered hymns Saturday at the first funeral anyone can remember on Skid Row.

The service was conducted for "Brother Jimmy" at Sister Sylvia's rescue misson on E. 5th St. On the county's death register he was described as "James Pierce, about 40, transient from Richmond, Va. Died Feb. 18, 1955 in General Hospital from the effect of acute alcoholism."

After no one else came forward to claim the body, which lay in the county morgue for three weeks, Sister Sylvia decided to provide a funeral in her mission.

Pierce came to the mission six months ago, was converted and went to work as a cook at the mission's City of Refuge in the desert near Twentynine Palms. But his previous life on Skid Rows had broken his health and he died.

When the regular habitues of the mission and soup kitchen shuffled in Saturday they were surprised to see a silver-handled coffin at the front. Sister Sylvia, a tall, auburn-haired woman dressed in a black ministerial robe, called on the men to sing "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Rock of Ages."

On the platform behind Sister Sylvia some of her converts, ex-alcoholics, gave brief eulogies. "He was a good man,

I hate to see him go," said one. "No one ever kept the soup counter cleaner," said another. Sister Sylvia said Brother Jimmy had been saved and "had given up demon rum to do the Lord's work."

POP CAN WATCH HIS OLD FIGHTS

9-Year-Old L.B. Boy Builds His Own Television Set

Byron Clinton Perkins, a 9-year-year-old third-grader with a faceful of freckles, isn't one to let anything stand in the way of his favorite television programs.

Some time ago, when he found himself left out in the cold when it came to choosing the family's TV entertainment, he hit on a simple and logical solution.

He built his own set.

Of course, he had a little help—his dad, W. B. Perkins, of 1138 E. Plymouth St., happens to be an electronics technician — but the help was strictly in the form of advice and instruction.

Byron did all the work himself, figuring out where various parts went after talking over the diagram with his father, and then installing and wiring them.

Many of the parts in the 22-tube, 17-inch set were donated by "ham" friends, or "cannibalized" from old sets. Others were bought as needed. The picture tube was his Christmas present.

The whole project took just over a year, and Byron is still having a little trouble with Channel 2—his favorite.

But he expects to get this ironed out soon, and meanwhile he can take his pick of the programs in the privacy of his room while Pop watches the fights in peace.

Byron's no stranger in the world of amps and ohms. He's already built two radio sets, and is now working towards his novice radio operator's license.

And though building a TV set is a pretty notable accomplishment for a nine-year-old, he's still not satisfied.

He's already started to work on a gadget to convert his set to color.

Copter Saves Downey Girl in Mountains

A 15-year-old Downey girl was rescued by a helicopter Saturday after falling 25 feet to a rocky ledge while hiking up Mt. San Jacinto, near Palm Springs.

Barbara Glover, 9033 E. Buckles St., was treated at Desert Hospital for minor head injuries.

Police said the girl, accompanied by a boy companion, Jean Boutalt, 8211 Alameda St., Downey, were hiking at about the 3,000 foot level when she lost her footing and fell.

Police and a mounted patrol unit, led to the scene by Boutalt, carried the girl to an open area and placed her on a stretcher. An Army Engineer helicopter then transported her to the valley floor where an ambulance took her to the hospital.

U.S. Revises Its Rules for 'Risk' Firing

Measures Taken to Avoid Mixups as in Ladejinsky Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration revised the controversial system of security firings Saturday. It said its aim is to assure "fair and impartial treatment" of suspected federal workers.

The new rules, which did not go as far as many critics demanded, were drafted by Atty. Gen. Brownell and aides. President Eisenhower directed that they be put into effect.

Aimed at uniform procedure throughout the executive branch, the rules provided among other things:

Charges should be "specific enough to be meaningful to employes." (There have been complaints that in some cases charges were so general that the accused could not draft a defense.)

Subordinate officials should not be given the final say-so on whether an employee is to be suspended.

Various agencies should take steps to "avoid conflicting evaluations." This was aimed at the case of Wolf Ladejinsky, tabbed a security risk by one agency and cleared by two others.

The new regulations provide that hereafter when an agency head decides to take adverse action against an employe previously cleared in another agency, he should first consult with the head of the other agency.

It is also "suggested" that a personal interview with the employe "prior to suspension is helpful in most instances." Ladejinsky said he tried in vain to get a personal interview with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson.

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC), who plans a critical study of the security setup, said that "they (the Eisenhower administration) acknowledge their security methods have been wrong, because otherwise they wouldn't have had to change them."

PRINCESS MUST CHOOSE

Report Meg Weighs Romance or Palace

LONDON (AP)—The Sunday Pictorial said Saturday night that Princess Margaret was packed off on her Caribbean tour to decide whether she wants to stay on as a palace princess or marry RAF Group Capt. Peter Townsend. He is the much-decorated Royal Air Force hero whose eligibility is handicapped by a divorce and his age—40.

The mass circulation tabloid splashed across its front page in bold black type: "Now the tour is over—she has to choose."

It said, "preparations have been made for informing Parliament and the public" if she chooses Townsend, the former royal equerry who now is in Belgium in a minor foreign service post.

In an unusually forthright three-page feature, the Sunday Pictorial said the pretty 24-year-old princess must choose soon between "the palace or the man."

The Pictorial printed two pictures of the couple together showing Townsend grave and unsmiling at the side of the vivacious princess. These pictures were taken in 1947 when the princess was 16. A third picture showed Townsend at a race meeting during his "exile" in Brussels—alone beneath a tree while around him race parties chatted together.

It described Townsend, as "lonely Peter . . . the exile who waits in silence."

The report seemed certain to revive a No. 1 talking point throughout the nation. It said:

"Princess Margaret was given the royal tour by herself in the Caribbean sunshine as a last gesture to help her decide her personal problem which affects the whole nation.

"It was thought that its appeal might make her resolve never to relinquish the rights and responsibilities of a palace princess.

"It was feared that the strong-willed sister of the queen would still choose love.

"That is why preparations have been made for informing Parliament and the public.

"People all over the world will wait with sympathy and understanding for the decision of the lovely Princess Margaret."

Talk of a royal romance with Townsend, first mentioned publicly 21 months ago, died down with his assignment to Brussels as air attache at the British embassy.

The fact that Townsend divorced his wife in 1952 raised difficulties so great that only a romance as strong as that of Margaret's uncle, the Duke of Windsor, with American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson could survive them.

Ike Appoints Board to Aid in VA Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower Saturday appointed a seven-member commission, headed by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, to see whether payments to veterans can be reduced.

He asked the commission to submit a report by November on which he can base recommendations to Congress for "modernizing" laws under which the government spends $2,800,000,000 a year for pensions, disability compensation and related nonmedical benefits for veterans and their dependents.

Noting that the nation now has 21,000,000 veterans, "and the number is increasing rapidly," the President said the cost is likely to double over the next few decades.

The politically explosive question he handed the commission is whether future generations, including veterans themselves and their survivors, can afford the snowballing financial burden of such payments.

Any move to reduce them will bring the wrath of the big veterans' organizations. These groups already are fighting mad because of a recent Hoover Commission report recommending the Veterans Administration close 20 of its hospitals and otherwise curtail free medical service to ex-GIs.

Gen. Bradley, now retired, was Veterans Administrator after World War II and later Army Chief of Staff.

Earthquakes Stir Fear of More Blasts

All Nonresidents of Pahoa Ordered Out, Others Set to Run

PAHOA, Hawaii (AP) — All nonresidents of Pahoa were ordered out Saturday and officials prepared to evacuate the entire town on "a moment's notice" as earth tremors gave warning of possible new eruptions in the volcano-torn district of east Hawaii.

Trucks were dispatched to evacuate about 200 persons still living east and south of the town. Nearly 400 refugees were in Pahoa from that part of Puna still bubbling under tremendous lava eruptions.

An observation plane sighted smoke and flame which might indicate eruption along the fault line extending upward from the devastated Puna Peninsula to Kilauea crater, several thousand feet higher.

The sighting was made at 4:30 p.m., Hawaii time (6:30 p.m., PST.). Pouring rain fell as residents of the peninsula began streaming through Pahoa with their belongings piled on cars, trucks and pickups.

Dr. Gordon A. McDonald, Hawaii volcanologist, made the recommendations for evacuating people after hearing of the continuing earth tremors which hit at 1 p.m. Hawaii time and were increasing.

MacDonald at first said he was recommending evacuation of Pa-

Tots Go Back Into Blaze, Five Perish

PORTSMOUTH, Iowa (UP) — Four small children and a courageous 11-year-old baby sitter died Saturday, huddled in a back room of a flaming basement house.

Sitter Jean Kleffman had led three small boys to safety, but instead of remaining outside, they tagged behind her into the burning basement when she went to rescue the fourth child, a baby.

The flames crackled up through the single entryway, blocking escape and all five were trapped and suffocated.

The dead, besides quiet, auburn-haired Jean, were the children of Mr. and Mrs. John Raymond, John Jr., 5, Russell, 4, Jerry, 3, and Anna Marie, 9 months.

Mrs. Raymond had left the children with Jean, as she frequently did, while she drove 45 miles west to Council Bluffs to get Mr. Raymond, who works there as a truck dispatcher.

Danny Raymond, 7, was playing outside when he saw the flames.

"I screamed, 'Fire!'" he said, then ran half a block to the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Loule Raymond.

"Come quick, our house is afire!" he called.

But by the time help arrived, flames blocked entry.

Fire Chief J. J. Herkenrath said the fire may have started from wiring. The basement house had three rooms and a bath.

Sunny Forecast Here; Good Ski Day on Peaks

A sunny afternoon following morning clouds was predicted for today by the Weather Bureau.

Up in the local mountains, ski enthusiasts should be able to look forward to a good day on the slopes with warm temperatures, but plenty of snow—albeit a little wet.

Good skiing was reported at the Lake Arrowhead-Big Bear areas and the higher slopes at Mt. Baldy.

L.A.C. SAYS:

It Happens Often

gave them to Eldred to keep in his safe. He collected the interest and principal payments and sent them to the investors. But apparently he started using money for other purposes and started cheating, hoping to make a killing before he was caught.

Again it was the old story. He took people's money to buy trust deeds—but he used the money for other purposes. He took one person's money to pay interest and monthly principal payments on trust deeds to others. But it finally caught up with him and the last money going into his possession was completely lost.

This kind of fraud has been going on throughout history in some form or another. Older people will remember the wild schemes of Ponzi. He was supposed to have a sure fire plan to make everyone rich. He paid five per cent or some such amount a month. Money flowed into him in fabulous amounts. But he was simply paying out the first obligations with the last money to come in. Those on the tail end of the speculation lost everything they put in.

One big reason so many people lose their money in these schemes is because they are avaricious. When interest rates on sound trust deeds and mortgages are 4½ or 6 per cent they want 6 per cent. In such a frame of mind they are sitting ducks for promoters offering higher interest. Many trust deeds bearing higher interests are sound investments. But investors should be sure the legal papers go through escrow and are given into their possession before placing any money in the investment.

Unless investors consider themselves experts in such financial affairs they would be wise to consult their bank. For their legal standing of ownership and possession they should consult their attorney. It is tragic that people who have spent years, carefully saving, should so carelessly entrust their money to an individual without checking. An honest and sound dealer in trust deeds and mortgages would welcome such an investigation on the part of a prospective investor.

An elderly person with a very large amount of money may be justified in speculating with a portion of his money. But when it represents old age security, it is terribly foolish to try to make one or two per cent more interest when safety can be had with reasonable interest on the money.

This writer would not attempt to set down rules. But the Better Business Bureau slogan "investigate before you invest" is certainly a sound policy. It is apparent those who have lost in the Eldred and so many similar cases did not follow that policy. Because they did not they have seen a tragic end to their life savings.—L.A.C.

Card Clubs Battle for Players' Favor

dairy herd—and for much the same reason.

Gardena has only one licensed cab company, the Gardena Yellow Cab Co., headed by August Chopp. Chopp and his drivers complained that the poker clubs "financed and condoned" unlicensed limousines to carry card players, thus cutting in on the cab business. The Yellow drivers finally threw a picket line around the Rainbow Club.

Primm promptly sued Chopp for damages and asked for an injunction against the picketing. The pickets were withdrawn, but Chopp fired back with a countersuit, asking damages and repayment for "loss of revenue" to the wildcatting limousines.

Chopp filed two affidavits charging that his drivers have been beaten, that a cab was sabotaged, and that two threats were made against his life. Chopp says that he received anonymous phone calls on Jan. 17 and Jan. 19, warning him to drop his lawsuits.

"The last time," says Chopp, "the caller told me 'Call off that suit or you'll never live to find out how it comes out.'"

Two months ago, someone hired a Los Angeles private detective firm to carry on an intensive investigation of Chopp's drivers. Detectives, posing as "Good-Time Charlies," rode the cabs in the early morning hours and filed reports charging that the drivers made illegal liquor sales, overcharged on trips, and offered to steer their fares to prostitutes.

These charges were presented to the Gardena city council with a request that the cab firm's license be revoked. At about the same time, an application to license a new firm, the Ace Cab Co., was filed.

Head of the Ace Cab Co. is Heber W. O'Neil, a friend of Primm. Primm denies persistent reports that he is financing the new cab company.

The Ace application will be heard by the city council Monday morning. The hearing is expected to be well-attended by Gardena's gambling fraternity.

"If one poker clique gets control of the cab business here," says Ray Morris, manager of the Embassy Club, "the rest of us are going to be over the barrel."

The long and bitter war flared on the food front last Wednesday. This battle, too, started with the dynamic Mr. Primm.

The Rainbow Club circulated tickets advertising a "50-Cent Player-s Special" meal. Business flocked to the Rainbow-Club.

Harry Klassman, boss of the Embassy Club, fired back by cutting the price of a full meal to 10 cents. He didn't restrict it to players, but offered it to all comers. By Saturday, the Embassy said if had served 3,000 meals for a dime each and Klassman's club had patrons queued up in lines.

Primm's club later withdrew its 50-cent meals and went back to standard prices.

Embassy Manager Morris, however, vows that "We're going to keep up the 10-cent meals until we get some respect for orderly operation around here."

The food bargain has regular restaurant operators howling in anguish. They complain that all their regular customers are now eating at the Embassy. Saturday, the club offered swiss steak with mushrooms, potatoes, vegetable and bread and butter for 10 cents, as well as roast pork, scrambled eggs and ham, and creamed chipped beef at the same price.

Mayor Adams Bolton said that Klassman defied him when he complained about the Embassy food bargain.

"You should have heard the language he used," said the mayor. "He claimed that he wasn't breaking any law and that he'd sell his food for any price he wanted."

At this point, there is no armistice in sight in the war of the poker palaces. One alderman says that he is going to offer a resolution Monday to suspend the licenses of both Primm and Klassman for a month, in an effort to cool down tempers and get a peace conference going.

A sizable group of Gardenans are talking about a recall movement. They claim that the present administration has brought on Gardena's trouble by playing too cozy with one poker faction.

In all the fighting for business, so far, none of the six clubs has unleashed the final, ultimate, H-bomb weapon.

"What I'm waiting for," said Poker Player Harry Karpe, "is the day they start wooing up with free chips."

92 in Texas, but Zero in North Dakota

By Associated Press.

March's fickle weather spread icy winter across the northern tier of states Saturday while parts of the south perspired in summerlike temperatures.

The maximum reading at Grand Forks, N. D., was zero.

But at Presidio, Tex., the mercury hit 92 degrees. Birmingham, Ala., with 83 degrees, and Charlotte, N. C., with 84, reported their highest temperatures ever for so early in the year.

A cold wave chased a brief taste of spring from the Midwest and moved southward and eastward, while a blaze of ice made driving hazardous in much of New York, New Jersey and New England.

At least two persons were killed in accidents blamed on the ice. Some fresh, freezing drizzle was reported in western New York Saturday.

Rain pelted wide areas of the East where recent storms have swollen streams and rivers.

Flood fears abated in Pittsburgh, however, after the U. S. Weather Bureau there forecast that the Ohio River would crest from one foot above the 25-foot flood stage.

This level would result in only minor damage.

Part of the River Downs Race Track in Cincinnati was under water from the Ohio River flood.

Temperatures plunged 30 degrees as late winter's Arctic blasts hit the northern plains and surged south and eastward.

hoa, a town of 600, now swelled to more than 1000 by the week of volcanic action. Later he modified his recommendation so that it might be delayed temporarily to "avoid panic."

There were two ominous threats:

1. The fountains in the erupting lava fields have dropped from 800 to 300 feet indicating pressure is building up under ground.

2. Quakes preceded the last two major eruptions earlier this week.

Charles Kauhane, speaker of the Territorial House, ordered "all the trucks and mobile transportation available in surrounding areas rushed immediately to Pahoa to stand by."

Radio calls went out for volunteer drivers.

He also ordered air coverage of the 20-mile slope from Pahoa to Kilauea to report any signs of smoke or fumes from the fault extending from the crater in a direct line to the flaming fissures below here.

MacDonald told an emergency meeting of Civil Defense and territorial officials:

"Let's not get rattled. We don't have to run yet. Let's look before we jump."

The order to evacuate more areas on the Puna Peninsula includes the small towns of Kalapana and Opihikao.

MacDonald, in a later study of the seismograph readings, placed the center of the quakes in the vicinity of Makaopuhi crater, the last of the chain of craters toward Kilauea.

"If an eruption follows the quakes," Macdonald said, "the flow can go two ways. If it comes east, we would have to evacuate Pahoa and the whole Puna district. If it went south, Pahoa would be safe for now but the south coast would be threatened."

"This son-of-a-gun (Kilauea) fault has been quiet too many years."

There has been no eruption west of Pahoa as yet.

Macdonald also said:

"There is a definite possibility of danger to Pahoa and even Olaa, a larger town 11 miles north of Pahoa. That is why I am recommending every preparation for evacuation of Pahoa on a moment's notice."

Son Drowns as Mother Attends Brother's Funeral

LANCASTER, Ky. (AP)—A 10-year-old boy fell from a bridge and drowned in flood-swollen creek waters Saturday while his mother attended the funeral of her brother.

The body of Mrs. Woodrow Marshbanks' son, Tony, was recovered about 300 yards downstream from the bridge, where Tony, a brother and cousin were playing.

Mrs. Marshbanks was in Berea, Ky., for the funeral of her brother, Sam Ward. Ward committed suicide at Dayton, Ohio, while he and Mrs. Marshbanks were attending the funeral of her brother-in-law.

The brother-in-law was killed in an automobile accident.

Boy, 4, Defeats Auto-Safety Plan

Neil C. Ritchison, 24, of 12162 Firebrand Ave., Garden Grove, was afraid his four-year-old son, Rodney, would fall out of the car some day, so he installed special safety catches on the doors.

Saturday night, as Ritchison rounded a corner in his car at Junipero Ave. and 17th St., Rodney opened a rear door and fell out.

The safety catch had failed to function.

Rodney was treated at Community Hospital for abrasions and released after X-rays showed he suffered no fractures.

Dulles' Plane Lands at Travis on Way Home

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles, en route to Washington to make a Far East report to President Eisenhower and the nation, landed at 9:25 p.m. Saturday night on a flight from Honolulu.

An Air Force spokesman said Dulles remained aboard during the half hour refueling stop.

Dulles worked in Honolulu Friday on reports on his Far East tour in which he attended the Bangkok conference of Manila pact nations and visited Burma, Indochina, and Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa headquarters.

The secretary will report immediately to President Eisenhower, then make a nationwide broadcast on Tuesday night. Eisenhower has said that by the time Dulles returns he "certainly will have at least some new ideas or variations of ideas to put into our calculations."

Political and psychological maneuvering by the Communists led to speculation that comparative quiet might prevail in the Formosan area for the next month or six weeks.

There were predictions here that Communist-controlled countries would send large, strong delegations to an Afro-Asian conference scheduled for late next month in Bandoeng. Their aim, it is believed, would be to dominate the conference and fit it to the Red pattern.

If this is the plan, it is reasoned, the Communists might steer clear of serious attempts at military capture of the more important Nationalist islands while the diplomatic stage was being set for a Bandoeng maneuver.

This could mean that any outright showdown for capture of big islands, like Formosa itself, or Quemoy, might not develop until May.

Father Jailed for Beating Twin Girls, 2

A 22-year-old Long Beach father was jailed Saturday after he assertedly whipped his twin daughters, 2, with a belt for not eating their dinner.

William F. Gragg, 762 Via Carmelitas, was arrested after a baby-sitter told her parents, who called sheriff's deputies, that the children, Terry Ann and Debra Lee, were "covered with bruises."

Gragg's wife, Anna, 20, is in Seaside Hospital for treatment of a skin ailment. The couple has two other children, Leslic Owana, 3½, and Candise Linn, five months.

Joint Defense Command for Formosa Seen

TAIPEI (Sunday) (UP)—Adm. Robert B. Carney, U. S. chief of naval operations, disclosed today that a joint Chinese-American command probably may be set up here to organize the defense of Formosa against possible Communist attack.

Carney said planning for the joint command is not complete, but added that the recent Chinese-American defense pact made it extremely likely one will be formed.

"A joint command is always necessary when forces of two nations get together," he said.

Carney expressed his views at a press conference shortly before boarding a plane for Honolulu and eventually to the United States.

Heavy weather Saturday brought fighting along the embattled China coast to a standstill. Nationalist Chinese military quarters said not a shot was fired along the 150-mile "front."

The Communists made no attempt to follow up their attack on the northern outpost island of Kaoteng, which was beaten off by Chinese artillery Friday night.

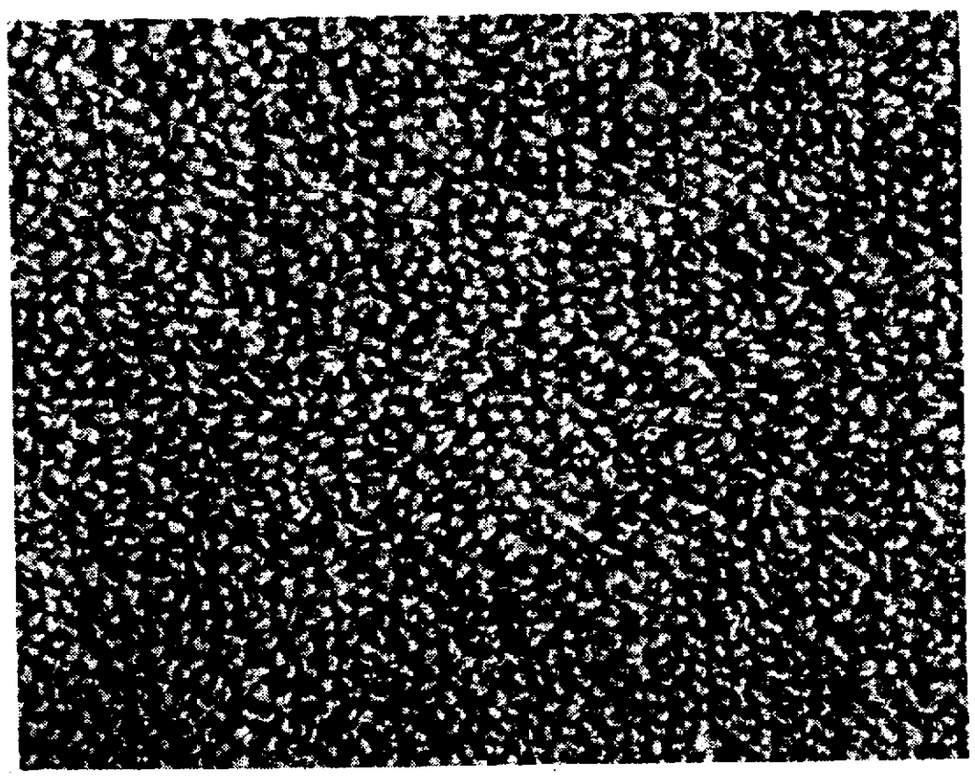

The official military information service issued no communique on the day's operations because "there is nothing to report."

Minorities to Be Quizzed on Housing

Do Long Beach non-whites want better housing? And can they pay for better housing?

These questions will be asked and answered in a non-white housing survey which begins this week, part of a community survey under the auspices of the Civic League of Long Beach, 601 Pacific Ave. Harry R. Christensen is president and Clyde G. Roseberry, executive director of the Civic League.

Under direction of John Hepler, 70 Argonne Ave., who last summer aided in a smiliar survey in Portland under the auspices of the Urban League, 20 college students and 20 citizen volunteers, Monday will begin contacting organizations with minority group members.

Members of the minority groups will be asked to answer a three-page housing-market questionnaire. Beginning in early April, the interviewers will conduct a house-to-house canvass in areas inhabited by non-whites, presenting the questionnaire.

Included in the questionnaire.

Are you interested in buying a house? How old a house? In what price bracket? How much of a down payment can you make?

Are you interested in renting a desirable house or apartment? How much rent can you pay? How many bedrooms do you need?

In what area would you like to live?

Would you object to being the only non-white living in an all-white block?

Other information includes income, education, and the size of the family.

Hepler, who received a bachelor's degree from Kansas State College and a master's degree in political science from the University of Chicago, says that, as the results of the Portland survey are tabulated, they establish that property values do not drop when non-whites move into a neighborhood.

The widely-quoted Laurenti survey in San Francisco, he says, established that property values go up and not down with the advent of non-whites. The Beldon Morgan survey in Los Angeles, according to Hepler, showed a drop in the values of high-priced housing, but not low or medium-priced housing with the advent of non-whites.

First results of the community survey will be told at a Civic League banquet at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Lafayette Hotel.

Dead-Leather Office Here Is Booming

By GEORGE ERES

Postmaster George McMillin has so many pairs of babies' shoes he doesn't know what to do.

Well, not exactly. He knows eventually that the unclaimed ones will have to go to the "dead leather office" but meanwhile there are about 250 pairs of babies' shoes piled in cartons in his office.

They've been at the post office for more than three months.

Apparently what has happened is that somebody has gone about the country taking orders for bronzing baby shoes and asking that the shoes be sent here.

"There have been some inquiries to the post office box number concerning the shoes," said Postmaster McMillin, "and as a result we have been able to return about 60 pairs of shoes to owners."

When the Post Office gets a lead as to who may have ordered the shoes bronzed, it sends off a form letter which reads in part:

". . . This mail was addressed to a post office box . . . and the addressee has failed to call for his mail and his present whereabouts is unknown.

"We have several hundred pair of baby shoes and packages in the mails, all of which bear a number, perhaps indicating an order number. We feel that these shoes are of sentimental value and we would be very glad to return them if you could send us any order number which might identify yolr shoes . . ."

Postmaster McMillin said the indications are that people have been paying the "shoe-bronzing" salesman from $10 to $12, or a part of the amount.

The salesman has been covering a lot of territory. Shoes have come from Maryland, Nevada and Northern California.

Postmaster McMillin would like it fine if the man would take the shoes off his hands, bronze them and send them back to the mantlepieces around the country where they belong.

Snow Urges U.S. Beat Reds With Aid to Backward Lands

With both nations realizing that total war would constitute international suicide, the United States and Russia are now in a state of competitive co-existence, based on an atomic stalemate.

That's the opinion of Edgar Snow, one of the country's best-known foreign correspondent, who spoke Saturday night at the Unitarian Church in the Long Beach Liberal Arts Forum series.

Snow, termed "the greatest reporter to come out of Asia" by Fortune Magazine, stated that realization has come to both opposing powers that neither communism nor democracy can be smashed by force.

Statements of Molotov and other Russian leaders have indicated, Snow said, that they fully realize that total warfare would mean destruction for both sides. He believes the peaceful basis, confident of their ability to "sell" communism to the rest of the world.

Reds are content to compete with the United States on a

"If the United States wants to win—or even hold its own—in this competition," Snow warned, "we must find better democratic ideas and implement them before the impoverished peoples of the world embrace communism."

The United States should concentrate its energies in helping such nations solve their economic problems by constructively planning with them and contributing finances to that end, the speaker said.

"Force of arms hasn't stamped out communism yet, and it never will," he declared.

World peace cannot be stabilized when a fourth of mankind—China—is not in the United Nations, Snow said.

"We should open negotiations with Red China to see if some agreement can't be reached on the Formosa question," Snow said. "Then, steps should be taken to admit them to the U. N."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Meadowlark Club Signs Drilling Pact

A lease for oil drilling under the 103-acre Meadowlark Golf Club course, near Sunset Beach, has been signed by club owners with Ted Sterling of Brentwood.

Ten wells probably will be drilled, with drillsites near the pumphouse in the center of the course near the No. 3 fairway, Gomer J. Sims, club co-owner, said. Drilling will start within six months and will not interfere with golf play.

Meadowlark Golf Club was established in 1923 and was acquired in 1944 by Sims and Cecil B. Hollingsworth.

About 20 organizations have sought drilling rights on the golf club property, which is in the new Sunset Heights field.

Flying Meet

A Long Beach unit of the Civil Air Patrol, Group 7, Saturday marked sites of old plane wrecks in the Monrovia area.

The local unit's purpose was to paint conspicuous yellow crosses at the locations of wreckage in remote places.

Today, five CAP squadrons, including local men, will go to Fletcher Airport in Rosemead for the AAU-CAP Flying meet.

Bandits, 14, Caught

Two 14-year-old boys were captured by juvenile officers Friday after they had robbed a grocery-store clerk at 1103 Eubank Ave., Wilmington, and escaped as the store owner fired three shots at them.

The junior high school students, arrested at their homes, obtained about $70 in holding up Mrs. Beulah Haughsted, the clerk, with a .38-caliber revolver.

One youth, who had been recognized by a customer in the store, said he had committed other robberies but refused to answer other questions "under Commandment Five."

Fall Hurts Baby

A 3-month-old boy, Chris E. Upchurch, was listed as "slightly improved" but still in serious condition at Community Hospital Saturday night as the result of injuries sustained Friday, when he fell off a bureau at his home, 2309 Iroquois Ave.

His mother, Mrs. Marcia Upchurch, told police she left the baby lying on top of the bureau while she left the room. In her absence, he fell to the floor.

ANCIENT SPORT GOES MODERN

Fencing Matches Now Scored Like Pinball

By BERT RESNIK

Long Beach fencers—the dueling kind—are wired for more than sound.

They're hooked up for touch, or touche, if you prefer to be technical.

The Cavaliers Fencing Club at the Downtown YMCA is the first West Coast group to participate in the shocking revolution.

The object is to eliminate any argument about who hit who first. Before a bout, three strands of wire are run through the sleeves of each participant, Club Coach John McKee explains.

The plug emerging from the sleeve is connected to the foil. The hilt connection point also serves as a hookup for two wires in the gutter of the foil. The same two wires, at the other end, are attached to a switch in the point of the foil.

When Fencer No. 1 hits Fencer No. 2, the foil point depresses and the switch is electrically activated.

All of which could make Fencer No. 1 a human ground wire for a short circuit. This would hardly be inducement for a man to try and score first.

But wait, before you toss the foil in the junk heap. Science has all the answers.

Remember those three wires that went up the fencer's sleeve? That's where the short circuit gets foiled.

For these strands exit at the rear of the waistline and are fastened to a reel. There's 80 feet of wire on the reel. It works like an automatic fishing reel.

When the fencer goes forward to the attack, the line plays out. When he retreats, the slack is taken up.

So fine, but it still sounds like the fencer is bait for an electrical jolt, reel or no reel.

Science says it's not so.

The reel is hooked up with an electronic box and here is where the circuit is completed. A buzzer sounds and a light lights (what else would it be doing?) when Fencer No. 1 makes contact with Fencer No. 2.

In brief, the foil point strikes, the switch switches, the juice flows through the sword, over the wired fencer into the reel, then the box and then BINGO—or touche, if you prefer to be technical.

Trudi Wodgenske, Pacific Coast Inter-Foil Champion, Women's Division, concedes the advantages, but still isn't too happy with the change.

"I suppose I eventually will get used to the wire down my back," she said. "And I can see where it makes it a lot easier for the judges."

She looked back at the wire trailing from her to the reel.

"But it's just unfeminine to be dragging around a wire tail."

Unfeminine or not, Coach McKee is looking for more women and men fencers to join the Cavaliers. He works full time for Douglas Aircraft Co's. Long Beach division and coaches on Saturday afternoons.

McKee believes the electrical foils will create more interest in the sport.

In addition, they're short-circuit proof, he says. There's no chance for an electric shock, he says. It's perfectly safe, he says.

Purse Finder Does Sleuth Job to Track Down Owner

An honest woman, Monica Casey, 3523 E. 3rd St., went to a lot of trouble to return a lost purse to its owner, Saturday.

Miss Casey found the bag belonging to Mrs. Mercedes Lofton, 305 Wisconsin Ave., on a bus bench at 4th St. and Wisconsin Ave., Friday afternoon, minutes after Mrs. Lofton walked off and left it.

Waiting vainly for Mrs. Lofton, a City College student to return to the bench, Miss Casey finally gave up and went home.

Then she tried contacting the missing purse's owner by telephone—but Mrs. Lofton had been married and had changed her address recently and all her identification carried her maiden name.

Finally, after tracing her through old addresses, Miss Casey contacted Mrs. Lofton and the purse was returned, contents intact.

TREASURE HUNT PLANNED

Torrance Police to Search for Bandit's Buried Loot

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO

TORRANCE—Local police are due to go on a treasure-hunting expedition Monday when they dig for between $3,000 and $4,000 supposedly buried by a young robbery suspect at various locations between here and Long Beach.

Det. Sgt. Percy Bennett said that Raymond E. Parker, 22, of 20320 Valerie St., has promised to lead them to caches of cash he obtained in almost a score of robberies in various parts of the Southland during recent months.

Parker told of burying the loot in glass jars in fields east of here.

He was jailed Thursday night, within a half hour after he assertedly robbed a liquor store at 18178 Hawthorne Ave. Parker's car was stopped near his home by officers Bob Wright and Jack Hahn because it answered the description given by the clerk, Paul Welch of Redondo Beach.

Investigators said that Parker admitted the robbery in addition to the other holdups.

The suspect reportedly told officers that he was hazy regarding some of the crimes because he was "high" on marijuana when they were committed. Police said he appeared to be under the influence of the drug when he was arrested.

Loot from the liquor store robbery and the .38-caliber automatic pistol he used in the holdup were left at his trailer home just before he was nabbed, Sgt. Bennett said. Parker was quoted as saying he was planning to rob a theater in Redondo Beach later that night.

Several of the robberies assertedly confessed by Parker were in Long Beach.

Girl Cyclist, 5, Hit by Auto

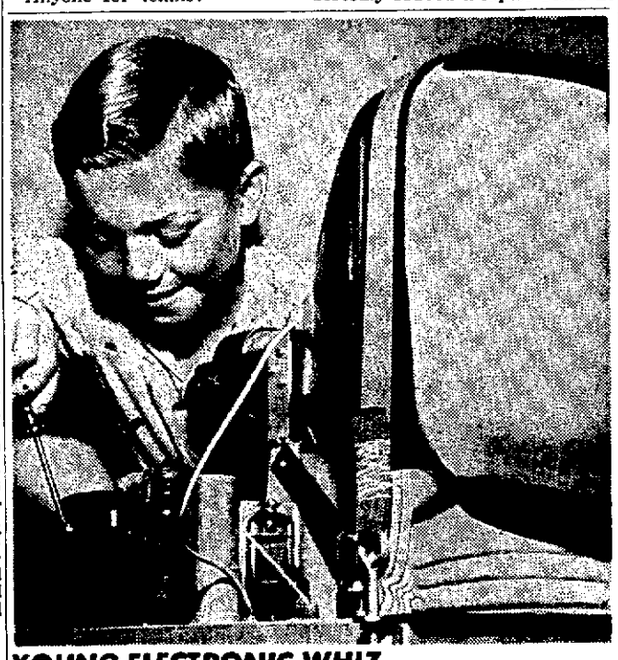

A 5-year-old girl was knocked from her bicycle Saturday by a car that struck her as she rode from an alley onto 15th St., near Atlantic Ave. She escaped serious injury.

Florence I. Torbery, of 1549 Atlantic Ave., was treated at St. Mary's Hospital for abrasions and contusions on the right elbow and left knee and released.

Driver Robert E. Bice, 22, of 14301 Cedarwood St., Westminster, told police that the child darted out of the alley and struck his car before he could stop. He was not cited.

Man Hurt When Car Overturns

Edward W. Longbrake, 33, of Whittier, suffered minor injuries Saturday afternoon when his car was struck and overturned by another auto in a collision at Orr and Day Rd. and Telegraph Rd. in Norwalk.

Longbrake was treated by a private physician. Sheriff's deputies said the other car was driven by Louis A. Meza, 34, of Los Angeles, who was not hurt.

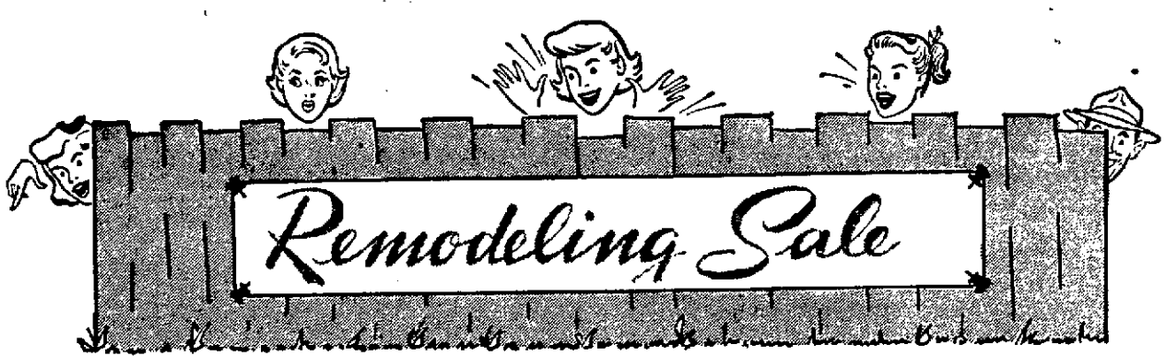

Trend to Suburban Centers 'Will Turn'

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—A professor of business administration predicts that the present trend to suburban shopping centers will turn because women like the "adventure" of downtown shopping.

Prof. Harold B. Wess said women still want the excitement, glamor and drama of downtown window shopping, eating out, going to the theater and meeting friends.

SAMPLE PUZZLE

Have you ever worked a crossword puzzle all the way through and then thought to yourself, "Gee, I wish they would give a prize for solving these things"?

If you have, your chance of winning a prize is on its way.

BONANZAGRAM, a new word puzzle that is as intriguing as any crossword you ever saw, starts in the Independent, Press-Telegram on this page today and there will be $100 or more in cash awarded each week.

The new puzzle, constructed by a group of the nation's leading crossword-puzzle constructors, offers prizes for anyone who can solve the clues given in a story or anecdote and fill in the correct letters in a message and complete the unfinished words.

If you are good at solving crosswords, if you can solve mysteries before the end of the story, or, if you are just handy with words, BONANZAGRAM is for you.

Or even if you aren't so good at these things, but just like to learn words and work puzzles you can still have a fine chance at the $100 weekly prize offered by the Sunday Independent, Press-Telegram.

The contest is open to any reader of the newspaper except its employes or a member of the family of an employe of this newspaper.

Easy punctuation and the correct letters in the blank spaces will do the trick.

Try the sample BONANZAGRAM puzzle before you refer to the official answer.

Detective Webster deciphered the cryptic message written by the dying man in this way:

Here is how he figured it out:

The man was in FLUE and not in BLUE—there are many later clues to that FLUE (obviously he was a thin man!) including the writer's signature. On my TRAIL is more logical than on my TRAIN—there are no railroad clues. MY WIFE was miserable—the clue to this (instead of LIFE) is the plural pronoun US that comes later. GOOD clothes and FUN is indicated, rather than FOOD, clothes and FUN, by the fact that the blackmailer left them enough for meals—and RENT too. ROOKED us is more logical than HOOKED us. LAST FALL indicates that months have passed, as the introduction stated. I was SHAVING is made logical by what he did with that razor in his hand—I CUT him DEAD—and rules out I was SHAPING my plans. And now that he is dying, the man makes a philosophical statement:

MAN IN FLUE WAS A BLACK-MAILER. HE WAS ON MY TRAIL FOR YEARS. MY WIFE WAS MIS-ERABLE, WITH NOT ENOUGH GOOD CLOTHES OR FUN. HE LEFT ENOUGH FOR RENT AND MEALS, ROOKED US OF EVERY-THING ELSE. LAST FALL I WAS SHAVING, MY PLANS FOR ESCAPE ALMOST SET. HE CAME. I CUT HIM DEAD AND RID HIM. THE WORLD IS BETTER SANS HIS BREED. REMOVE SOOT AND THE DIRTY BRICKS WILL REVEAL ALL.
ANDY IRONS

SOLUTION

The world is BETTER SANS his BREED. He means, of course, the whole category of blackmailers, and not just one man's GREED. Remove SOOT (not BOOT or FOOT or ROOT) ties in with that FLUE—just as the dirty BRICKS is much better than dirty TRICKS in the matter of REVEALING all. And of course the signature gives a chimney clue too.

The first puzzle without answer appears on this page and other puzzles will appear each Sunday for the duration of the contest.

Bonanzagram Solutions Locked Up in L.B. Bank

The only person—outside of Independent, Press-Telegram employes and their families—ineligible to compete in the Bonanzagram Puzzle Contest starting today is Gus Walker, president of the Farmers and Merchants bank of Long Beach.

Reason? Banker Walker will hold the answer to each week's puzzle locked in the bank vault.

The syndicate handling the puzzle contest will send by registered mail each week to Walker's desk the sealed answer to the puzzle that will appear in the I. P-T the following Sunday. He will put the sealed envelope in the vault until after the deadline for solving the puzzle. Then he will hand it to the judges.

The judges will select those entries which contain the one correct answer and winners will be announced on the following Sunday along with publication of the next puzzle.

This safeguarding of puzzle solutions will guarantee all contestants an even chance.

SCIENCE GIVES UP ON 'IDEAL' COOKING PAN

PARIS (U.P.) — Science, which has unlocked the mystery of the atom, today confessed that it is baffled by the simple problem of making for the housewife a satisfactory saucepan.

A competition organized by the Household Arts Exhibition for creating the perfect saucepan, abandoned the attempt.

The specifications were for a saucepan that is easy to clean, hard to upset and whose handle could be easily grippled without turning or burning the fingers. Not one of the 356 models submitted by manufacturers and industrial designers fulfilled those basic requirements.

How to Play "Bonanzagram"

Solve the "Bonanzagram" by filling in all the missing letters, as indicated by the underscores, in the message. Insert only one letter above each underscore. Many clues to the missing letters are hidden in the story, or anecdote, accompanying the message. Clues may also be found in the message itself, and, in a few cases, the contestant's general knowledge should provide the correct letter. The contestant will note that the message is unpunctuated. Proper punctuation is one of the important keys to a correct solution.

When properly filled in, the "Bonanzagram" will spell out a clear message that will conform in every way with the clues. In many cases it will seem that more than one word would be the correct one. That's part of the fun! You should weigh the clues and select the BEST possible word in each case.

How To Submit Entries

1. After solution is completed, "Bonanzagram" should be clipped and pasted to a two-cent postcard with your name and address.

2. Entries will be received at the Independent, Press-Telegram office at 6th St. and Pine Ave., until 5 p. m. on the Tuesday following publication of each new "Bonanzagram." Mail entries must be postmarked before midnight Tuesday. Address "Bonanzagram," P.O. Box 230, Long Beach.

3. Entries may be mailed in envelope but contestant's full name must be printed in upper left corner of address-side of envelope.

4. Copies of the Sunday Independent, Press-Telegram need not be purchased to enter. Facsimiles made by hand and corresponding as closely as possible to the original "Bonanzagram" printed in the newspaper will be accepted but are limited one to a family. Mimeograph, duplicator or other unofficial mechanical reproduction is forbidden.

How To Collect The Prizes

The entrant must work out and keep duplicate solution as a claim check. When the solution is published in the Independent, Press-Telegram each Sunday, he should compare his "claim check" with the published solution, and, if his claim check is identical, he should call in person with it at the newspaper office, 6th St. and Pine Ave., between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. on the Monday following publication of the solution.

If a winner cannot call at the Independent, Press-Telegram office in person Monday, he should mail his solution to "Bonanzagram," Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th St. and Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. The letter must be postmarked not later than 5 p. m. Monday. Important: this address is only for claim checks, not entries.

4. Only one winning entry from a family will be eligible for the prize.

5. The Independent, Press-Telegram retains the right to correct typographical errors.

Nixon Ends Journey; Advocates Broader Latin Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nixon returned from a four-week goodwill tour of the Caribbean area Saturday with a plea for continued good trade and business relations with Latin America.

Nixon, who said he would make a series of recommendations to President Eisenhower and the National Security Council on his findings, said:

"I am convinced that area is entering a new era of economic stability, and to achieve it they must have trade relations with the United States and other countries.

"We must seek every possible way of reducing trade barriers and do everything we can to stimulate increased investments in that area."

The vice president, who was accompanied by Mrs. Nixon on the 7,500-mile aerial tour, said he believed "one of the more constructive results" of the trip was the promise he obtained from the presidents of Nicaragua and Costa Rica to seek an easing of tension between those countries. The heads of the two Central American states have been feuding for some time.

In a statement given to reporters during the homeward flight from Port au Prince, Haiti, Nixon said U. S. trade with Latin America "deserves primary consideration" because he said it exceeds this country's trade with Europe and is greater than "our combined trade with Asia and Oceania."

This country should continue buying Latin America's products for its own good as well as that of the 20 hemispheric republics, he said, adding:

"Latin American countries simply cannot develop and preserve strong economies unless their products have access to United States markets."

Emphasizing it is good business for the United States to make such purchases, he said U. S. sales to Latin America are important in maintaining U. S. industrial production.

His statement on trade policy followed the line of President Eisenhower's recommendations. He mentioned specifically that many Latin-American products compete with those of the United States, saying:

"This is true of oil, sugar, wool, tung oil, lead, zinc and certain other metals."

"The American people must face squarely the question of whether we will continue to import from our sister American republics even though at times this means undeniable competition with American producers in a limited number of industries," he said.

"As the people and Congress must, the President has squarely faced this issue."

Nixon said Eisenhower's answer was spelled out in his 1954 and 1955 economic messages and "is that if we would have prosperity, security and stability in the United States we must work for prosperity, security and stability in all of the Americas."

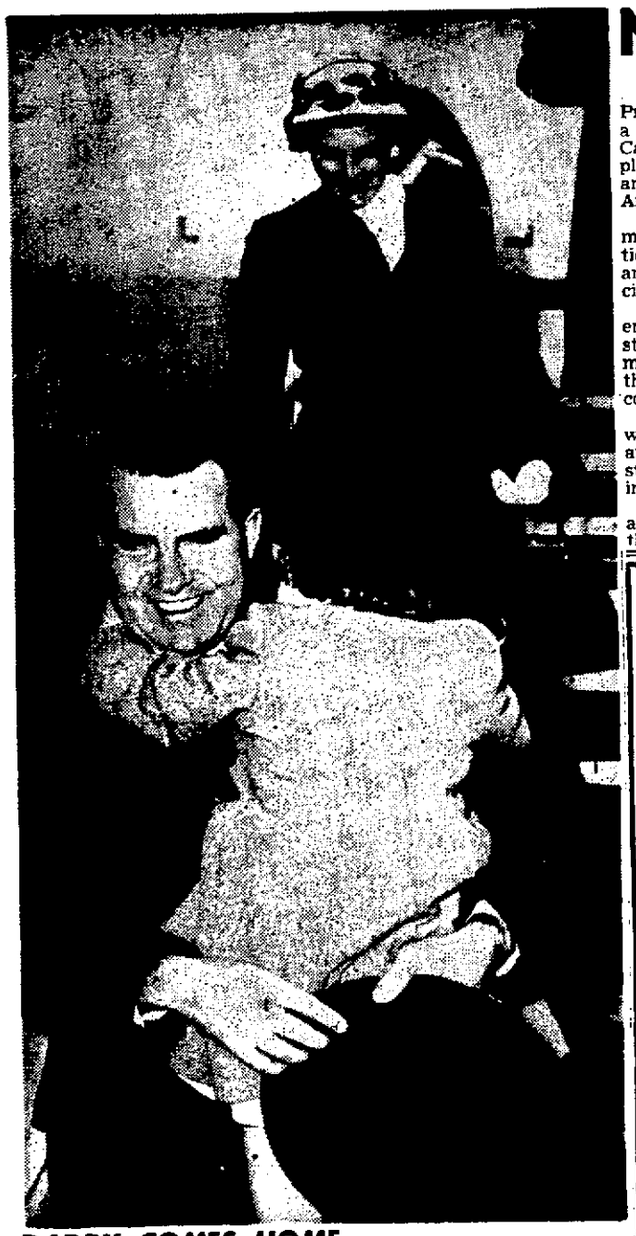

Nixon said the list of products that Latin America needs to sell in the United States also includes coffee, bananas and a few other mining and agricultural products. But he said all such products represent "only a few of hundreds of items imported annually into our country in great quantities."

He said "a policy insuring that the volume of Latin America's crucial products coming into United States markets will not be reduced will affect only a limited number of our own domestic industries."

While "the number of products affected may be small," he said the effect of such a policy throughout the hemisphere "would be enormous."

Nixon said his trip, which took him to Mexico, Cuba, Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Panama, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic and Haiti, gave him "physical proof of the importance" of Eisenhower's policy to "these members of the American family."

At the airport, the Nixons were greeted by their daughters, Julie and Patricia, who had remained in Washington to attend school. Diplomatic representatives of the countries Nixon visited also were on hand, with Undersecretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr.

Atom Rays Don't Hurt Him, but---

LAS VEGAS (AP)—A security guard who is undergoing medical examinations because of accidental radiation exposure during the March 1 atomic test said Saturday he fears the reaction of his wife more than the radiation.

The Atomic Energy Commission announced that guard Eugene D. Haynes, 36, received the highest radiation exposure ever suffered by a worker at the atomic test site near here. The AEC said Haynes is not expected to suffer permanent or serious injury from the accidental exposure.

Haynes, who formerly operated a gasoline service station at Cotati, Calif., was interviewed today by a reporter for the Las Vegas Review-Journal. Haynes told the reporter that his wife had not yet heard about his case, and "She'll probably blow her top."

Haynes told the newsman, "I feel fine and I don't see what all the hullabaloo is about."

Haynes, a veteran of South Pacific combat with the Marines in World War II, drove his car into a banned area during the test. "It was dusty and I didn't see the lines," he said. "I went in a ways, then turned around and came back."

The AEC said a later check of Haynes' film badge showed that he had sustained a radiation exposure of 39 roentgens. This is 10 times the amount that any one worker is allowed to receive for a 13-week period. However, the AEC said that it takes an exposure of about 450 roentgens to be deadly, and that even then only about half the persons exposed would be killed.

Polio Shots Readied for Nine Million

NEW YORK (AP)—Nationwide distribution of enough Salk anti-polio vaccine to vaccinate 9,000,000 children is well under way, it was disclosed Saturday.

The distribution by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is in anticipation of a favorable report from the scientific evaluation center, established to measure the results of the test vaccination of 440,000 children last spring.

In addition to the 9,000,000 vaccinations purchased with $9,000,000 in March-of-Dimes funds, pharmaceutical manufacturers are piling up a considerable stock for the use of private physicians—also in the belief that the scientific evaluation report will be favorable.

The evaluation center at the University of Michigan, directed by Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., is expected to make its report soon after April 1.

No one aside from Dr. Francis and his associates has any indication of what these answers will be, and Dr. Francis has taken elaborate precautions against "leaks." But scientists who have been close to the development of the vaccine from the beginning, were positive that the report could not be entirely unfavorable.

An entirely unfavorable report would be that the vaccine had no protective value against polio whatever.

The elaborate and large-scale tests of Dr. Jonas E. Salk, who developed the vaccine at the University of Pittsburgh, first in animals and then in human beings, all but ruled out such a sad end to man's greatest hope so far for licking polio.

The report has to show that the vaccine is effective to some extent, these scientists believe, and the big question it will answer is how effective.

Jelke Goes to Trial Again Monday as Procurer

Margarine Heir Seeks Acquittal on Two Charges

By ARTHUR EVERETT

NEW YORK (AP)—At 1 a.m. of a hot summer's night nearly three years ago the doorbell sounded in a plush $147.50-a-month apartment at 155 E. 47th St. on New York's fashionable east side.

Minot E. (Mickey) Jelke padded sleepily to the door early that morning in 1952. Waiting outside to arrest him were police vice raiders.

Thus began the sexiest New York crime story since Charles (Lucky) Luciano was sent to prison in the 1930s for white slavery.

For on the background of the case were illicit $100-a-night rendezvous, the alluring charms of glamorous love-for-sale girls, the smoky, edgy excitement of cafe society and its smart supper clubs, the soft mink and hard diamond aura of Park Avenue and the Social Register.

Now three years older and 25 pounds lighter, Mickey Jelke is scheduled to go to trial again Monday on procuring charges.

He is accused of living beyond his immediate income on the proceeds of prostitution.

Both sides foresee no delay when the case is called. They expect the trial to last three weeks to a month.

Mickey's first trial began Feb. 2, 1953, and ended 25 days later, with his conviction on two of nine original counts. These two accused him of procuring Pat Ward for prostitution, and conspiring to do the same with Marguerite Cordova. He will be retried only on the two counts. Together they carry a maximum 40 years in prison.

Originally, Mickey was sentenced to serve three to six years in prison. But because General Sessions Judge Francis L. Valente barred press and public from the state's presentation of evidence, the whole thing was upset on an appeal.

Valente, now in his 11th year on the bench, barred his courtroom to outsiders "in the interest of public decency and morals."

Fifteen months later, the appellate division of the State Supreme Court held Valente's action "unorthodox . . . 'unwarranted." The 3-2 majority said the all-male jury justly convicted Jelke but that Valente, in effect, bungled the trial. The finding later was upheld by the state's highest court.

Jelke, now 25, served seven months in the workhouse in 1953 for two guns found illegally in his possession at the time of the vice raid.

He lost his rating as the town's most eligible bachelor, and his listing in society's bluebook, the Social Register. But he gained a wife—shapely, blonde Sylvia Eder, 27. They were married last year.

Recently Mickey inherited a $125,000 share in the estate of his brother, John F. Jelke, III, who vanished on an Air National Guard training flight early in 1954. He is also due to come into an inheritance of three million dollars later this year. It is part of the fortune built up in the family's multimillion-dollar oleomargarine business. His father, John F. Jelke of Chicago, sold out to Lever Brothers Co. in 1948.

Mickey has spent much time recently in Florida, working on fishing boats.

Valente's ban in the first trial had the effect of keeping secret many of the names of men who bought the love of the so-called Jelke girls. This time, the defense says, the names will go on the record.

Actually, some names leaked out of the first trial from the testimony of Pat Ward. But to a man they protested they had met her only casually. And there was no tangible suggestion from any quarters that any of them were romantically involved with her.

Hottest item in the case is the little black books which listed the names of the so-called Johns, past or potential customers of the call girls.

Cafe society is fearful lest these names be spelled out this time with chapter and verse.

Pretty much the same cast of characters is due to reassemble in Valente's General Sessions Court.

Besides Jelke and Valente, there will be Asst. Dist. Atty. Anthony J. Liebler for the state. Jelke has a new lawyer, George Washington Herz, one of the town's better known trial lawyers.

Also on hand will be the state's galaxy of Pat Ward, Barbara Harmon, Pat Thompson, Marquerite Cordova, Virginia Dee and Erica Steel, hard, provocative, and blonde, brunet or red-haired as the fancy strikes.

Chief state witness again will be the girl who finally told the cops about Mickey. She is Pat Ward, of the pixie face, lithe figure, and Peter Pan collar.

Now 21, Pat is ready to repeat her sordid tale of conversion at Mickey's hands into a $100-a-night teen-aged call girl. She claims she did it for love of him, with eventual marriage as her goal.

Pat allegedly turned over to Mickey $10,000 to $15,000 of her love-for-sale earnings from September 1951 to February 1952.

Product of a broken home, Pat is a lower East Side girl who changed her name from Sandra Wisotsky in a pathetic quest for the glamor of a cafe society "career."

Besides Pat Ward, Jelke's fate rests also with Marguerite Cordova, a 25-year-old former hatcheck girl. Mickey allegedly conspired to make her a hustling, bustling high-priced call girl.

After the first trial, the defense agreed the most damaging evidence against Mickey was a handwritten list of Johns he allegedly turned over the Marguerite.

Liebler, while not irrevocably committing the state, said he anticipated no new surprise witnesses.

Mickey didn't take the witness stand last time in his own defense. Herz isn't saying yet whether he will this time.

Now, Mickey says:

"Believe me, I have learned the hard way."

Motor Officer Hurt

Motorcycle Officer Robert T. Aughton, 31, went to St. Mary's Hospital Saturday night with a possible fracture of his left knee, suffered when his motorcycle collided with an auto at 16th St. and American Ave. Kenneth W. Carr, 22, of the USS Watts, was cited for making an illegal turn.

Liquor Store Robbed

Two young, nervous and swarthy bandits Saturday night held up a liquor store at 6069 Cherry Ave. They menaced the clerk, Albert E. Minnis, 42, with revolvers and departed with $150 from the cash drawer, eight packs of cigarettes and half a dozen assorted pint bottles of whiskey.

Court Plea Century or More Too Late

JERSEY, Channel Islands (AP)—An invocation out of the 9th Century sounded in court here Saturday. "Haro, Haro . . ."

The startled court president, Sir Alexander Coutanche, bent an ear toward the kneeling middle-aged woman who voiced it, roved in his mind over the pages of history, and then smiled in recognition.

Haro is a corruptio of "Ah, Rollo," the form of address for Rollo, who ruled Jersey as the Duke of Normandy when it was part of France instead of Britain.

By hailing him, the islanders could ask the Duke to intercede for them in their grievances. Mrs. M. Douglas Woodward, the invoker Saturday, used the full cry:

"Haro, Haro, a l'aide mon prince on me fait tor" (Ah, Rollo, Rollo, to my aid, my prince, I am wronged).

Then, in a language switch spanning more than a thousand years, she added:

"In the name of Her Majesty the Queen, Duchess of Normandy, I ask her to restrain heavy traffic from damaging my house." It's the vibration that does it, she said.

Ushers hustled her back to her seat, and Sir Alexander ruled she was crying Haro in the wrong place.

"It must be raised on the spot where your grievance lies," he said.

The petition also was a century or so late with her beseeching to Queen Elizabeth II. Not since the 1800's have British monarchs claimed Normandy as one of their dukedoms.

SEXY BABE 2,400 YEARS OLD

Lysistrata Puts P.O. in a Fret

By BEN ZINSER

Ever hear of a gal named Lysistrata?

You probably will soon, if you already haven't.

This sexy Greek babe of 2,400 years ago and her story have the Post Office Department in a fret.

"Lysistrata" is the name of a play written by the ancient Greek dramatist, Aristophanes. Lysistrata also is the name of the play's heroine.

What has happened is that a Beverly Hills book dealer has asked Federal District Court in Washington, D. C., to restrain Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield from destroying a rare volume of the play.

Larry A. Levinson, the book dealer, sought a preliminary injunction last week to force Summerfield to return to him a volume of "Lysistrata."

The Los Angeles Post Office seized the volume last August after it had been addressed to Levinson from the Hammersmith Bookshop in England.

THE POSTMASTER GENERAL says the book is "plainly obscene . . . lewd . . . lascivious . . . calculated to deprave the morals of persons . . . and certain to arouse libidinous thoughts in the minds of the average normal reader."

In a word: SEXY.

The suit is described as the first direct court test of the Comstock Act of 1873 which gives the postmaster general authority to censor literature and art sent through the mails.

The suit asks that the law be declared unconstitutional as an abridgment of freedom of speech and of the press.

"Lysistrata," despite its age—it first was produced in Athens in 411 B. C.—still is performed occasionally on the American stage.

It was done in the early 1930s by a cast headed by Violet Kimball Cooper, Miriam Hopkins and the late Sidney Greenstreet.

City Librarian Edwin Castagna says he can recall looking out of his hotel room window in New York City in 1930 and seeing a sign advertising the play.

"I was not aware of any increase in sex crimes in New York at the time of the play," he remarks acidly.

The book, incidentally, is on the shelves of thousands of private libraries in American homes.

"The Men, Naturally, Were Fit to Be Tied."

It is in virtually every public library in the country.

There are more than 30 copies of it in Long Beach public libraries.

It is on the first-year reading list of the Great Books discussion program, listed between Plato and Aristotle.

AS FOR THE STORY behind "Lysistrata," the author, Aristophanes, lived and wrote during the 29 years of the Peloponnesian Wars between Athens and Sparta—and he soon wearied of war and its price. So he wrote "Lysistrata"—literally "dismisser of armies."

The story was a vain effort to end the bloodshed.

The play is a farce-comedy that tells how the women of Athens and Sparta band together in a plot to withhold their delights from their men until a peace treaty is signed.

Lysistrata tells the women: "We must refrain from the male altogether."

Hearing this, the men, naturally, were fit to be tied. And when the women trotted out their most fetching transparent gowns, cosmetics and perfumes, the boys were unstrung.

The play is one of only 11 comedies that have survived the thousands written when ancient Greek culture reached its peak. Eleven of these are by Aristophanes.

LIBRARIAN CASTAGNA'S attitude toward the current case is this:

"It is somewhat uncivilized to try at this late date to restrict the use of books that have stood the test of centuries and are regarded as classics.

"The names of those who wanted to do censorship have been lost, but the authors for the most part have been remembered. Some of their names are immortal.

"If we want to understand the past, we must read what people said then. If we water it down, we've lost the past."

Atty. Edward D. Grazia of Washington, D. C., who filed the suit for Levinson, said in a 24,000-word supporting brief—much longer than the play itself—that "what is obscene to the postmaster general is the laughter of genius to 24 centuries of western civilization."

Summerfield retorts that "the effect of the book is intensified and heightened by the indecent and lascivious character of the illustrations."

The book in question is a translation illustrated by Norman Lindsay, one of Australia's most renowned artists. Although this particular book is not in the Long Beach libary, some of Lindsay's "Lysistrata" illustrations may be found in the library here in a book dealing with art.

Lindsay's work has been exhibited at the Leicester Galleries in London and in numerous Australian art centers.

ATTORNEY DE GRAZIA argues that "the postal obscenity statute, inasmuch as it (applies) to the circulation of literature, stands today as a pernicious impediment to freedom of literary and artistic expression in the United States. It has no social justification."

He urges the court to "find void and unconstitutional the provision which makes the postmaster general a censor of literature and of art."

Long Beach's librarian, meanwhile, says that one can find a dozen books in any library that would be more objectionable to a censor than "Lysistrata."

Aristophanes himself would more than likely be pleased with the publicity his play is receiving at this time. Monday marks the beginning of California Library Week.

No Actual Work Yet on Federal Hospitals Plan

WASHINGTON (UP) — Not a brick has been laid under the $21,000,000 program which Congress authorized last July to help build hospitals, nursing homes and treatment centers for the chronically ill and disabled, the U. S. Public Health Service disclosed Saturday.

Dr. John W. Cronin, head of the service's hospital division, said government regulations for building such projects were not completed until January. States are now making surveys of where the facilities are most needed as a preliminary to submitting applications for federal funds.

Cronin said he is sure states and local communities will come up with more than enough eligible projects to use up every dollar of the $21,000,000 voted by Congress.

Demo 'Big Army' Man Challenged on Tax Cut

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) Saturday challenged Democrats resisting a proposed military manpower cut to join Republicans in their fight to kill a $20-a-person income-tax reduction.

But Sen. George (D-Ga), who announced he will oppose the tax cut voted by the House, indicated clearly he will be open to compromise suggestions if the House refuses to go along with the Senate's expected rejection of the measure.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which stripped the $20 provision out of an administration tax bill, said he would "fight to the utmost" against any revenue loss now.

Knowland, the GOP floor leader, said the income-tax cut the House passed would cost the treasury $2,200,000,000 revenue at "an inappropriate time." It would be effective next Jan. 1.

"Democrats who have been advocating that the military forces be expanded can hardly support a tax cut now," Knowland said. "Pay increase to civil service workers is going to require additional funds.

"To have a loss of revenue under such circumstances wouldn't be constructive or responsible handling of the fiscal affairs of the government."

President Eisenhower asked for a year's extension of corporation and excise taxes expiring April 1 which yield about three billion dollars, and House Democrats added the $20 income-tax cut to this bill.

The Senate Finance Committee knocked out this section and George, a key member, said he is worried that if it comes to a Senate-House showdown the whole bill might be jeopardized.

George said he believed every legitimate effort ought to be made to compromise differences after the Senate passes its version of the bill. But, he said, he can't envision at this time any tax reduction he would be willing to support.

Superships' Foe Gives Up Opposition

WASHINGTON (UP) — Chairman Clarence Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee Saturday withdrew his opposition to President Eisenhower's request for a fifth $180,000,000 aircraft supercarrier.

The Missouri Democrat said in an interview, "We've got to support the President. We've got to support his budget. We've got to support every weapon, regardless of costs."

"We must show a united front," Cannon added.

He said previously that he would oppose any more supercarriers which he claimed are "obsolete" and would be sunk "within 10 hours" if war broke out.

Cannon's opposition had threatened a possible new row over air versus naval power which marked the stormy B36 bomber hearings a few years ago.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga) of the House Armed Services Committee, meanwhile scheduled hearings Monday to air the Navy's need for the 60,000-ton, Forrestal-type supercarrier. The move was aimed at combatting Cannon's expected opposition.

"I feel confident we will pass the President's recommendations," Vinson said in a separate interview. "We are fully committed to supercarriers."

Army Restoring Full-Strength Armored Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army, putting new emphasis on the tank as an atomic age weapon, announced Saturday it is bringing another armored division back into service.

The World War II-famed 3rd Armored Division, based at Ft. Knox, Ky., is being converted from a skeleton training unit into a full-strength combat organization. At full strength, an armored division has about 14,500 men and almost 350 tanks.

When accomplished, this will bring the total of U. S. armored divisions to four—the 1st and 4th, based at Ft. Hood, Tex.; the 2nd in Germany; the 3rd at Ft. Knox.

Investigate Testimony of Matusow

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—A federal court and grand jury this week will see if they can unsnarl the mixed-up testimony of ex-Communist Harvey Matusow.

The youthful former Red, who for years has pointed out people he said were Communists, recently reversed his testimony. Various agencies are seeking to winnow the truth of his conflicting statements.

Matusow is scheduled to testify here in person.

In El Paso, his testimony specifically was about Clinton E. Jencks, official of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter workers, an independent labor group.

Jencks was assessed a federal sentence of five years in prison after conviction of falsely swearing to a non-Communist affidavit.

Icebreaker Due In From Antarctic Trip

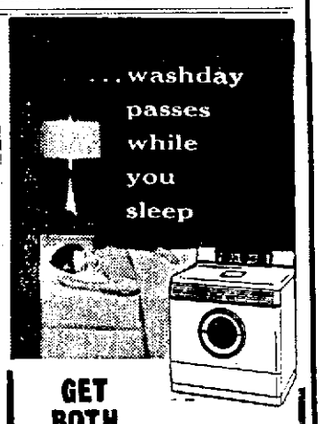

BUENOS AIRES (UP) — The U. S. Navy icebreaker Atka is scheduled to dock here Monday, 11 days ahead of schedule on its return voyage from the Antarctic, it was announced Saturday.

The Atka spent two months surveying the ice barriers of the South Polar continent in preparation for new explorations of the area by the United States and 37 other nations in 1957-58.

'YOU DON'T HAVE TO DIE'

Family May Survive With Small Shelter

(Editor's Note: Last Sunday's Independent, Press-Telegram presented a full page of information on Civil Defense against the H-bomb. Today additional information from the Federal Civil Defense Administration is published, with emphasis on the home shelter.)

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — Someday when the sirens wail in an American city it may not be drill. It may be the real thing.

If it is, people may remember February, 1955, when the Atomic Energy Commission gave the warning: the radioactive cloud from one hydrogen bomb could spread death over an area the size of New Jersey.

Now, since the AEC announcement of fall-out effects, Federal Civil Defense Administration officials hope the public will awaken to the possibility of danger, but at the same time will see that survival is possible.

For Civil Defense is here to stay. There are, says Administrator Val Peterson, only two things that could end it in our time: absolute assurance that the world could live in peace, or a positive statement by military leaders that no one could lay a finger on the United States.

At the headquarters of the FCDA here, he and members of his staff tell you there are other facts of life in the atomic age besides those in the AEC announcement.

"You don't have to die," says Peterson.

This, in essence, is the FCDA message: An H-bomb attack would be horrible. But the Civil Defense program is ready to face it. If you were caught in the direct target of a bomb you'd probably never know what hit you. But outside that two-mile range you and your family would stand a good chance of survival —if you take the trouble now to learn what to do.

Peterson cites these five simple steps:

1. Prepare a shelter area in your home whether you live in a city or in the country. A basement shelter is good, but an outdoor shelter with three feet of earth cover and an air filter intake naturally is better.

(Such an air filter system would consist of two separated shafts with porous substance on top of the intake shaft. A filter similar to that used in an auto carburetor would be perfect, for example. You would need an intake fan powered by batteries with a 72-hour capacity.

(You also would need an exhaust system hooked up with the intake, with fans for both operating at about the same speed. The tops of both shafts should be covered and elevated above the surface of the ground.

(By using such an air filter system you could burn candles in your shelter.)

2. Stock your shelter with a three-day supply of emergency food and water.

3. Get a radio, preferably battery-operated, and keep it in a safe place.

4. Don't get panicky and flee aimlessly. Radioactivity disintegrates rapidly and you would be safe in reasonable shelter until Civil Defense officials informed you the danger had passed.

5. If you should be exposed to fall-out, remove outer clothing and wash exposed parts of the body thoroughly—with soap in the water you have stockpiled.

Unless you've been exposed to serious contamination it would not be necessary to destroy or discard clothing, since in most cases it could be rendered safe by laundering or by simply waiting for natural decay of the radioactivity.

SHELTER FOR SURVIVAL

Artist's drawing shows what an H-bomb shelter advocated by some Civil Defense experts would look like. Val Peterson, federal CD administrator advises such a shelter area for every home. He says people in sound shelters three feet underground would have a good chance of surviving an H-bomb attack outside a two-mile range of a direct hit.—(AP Sketch).

Tool Engineers to Hear Expert

Don L. Davis, an authority on gadgets and inventions, will address Long Beach Chapter, American Society of Tool Engineers, at its annual banquet at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Supper Room of the Lafayette Hotel, says J. H. Medford, program chairman.

Honor guests will include Mayor George Vermillion; Wayne Ewing, national secretary of the ASTE, and Malcolm Epley, Independent, Press-Telegram columnist.

'Bum Check' Bill

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UP)—A bill to make it a misdemeanor to issue a check without sufficient funds in the bank has been introduced in the Minnesota legislature. The bill, says State Sen. Daniel Feidt, is aimed only at those "who knowingly write bum checks" not those who just make a mistake.

CAPITAL CAPERS

By WALTER T. RIDDER, WESLEY PEYTON and ROBERT E. LEE

WASHINGTON — Rep. Rooney (D-NY), is known around here as the scourge of the bureaucrats. Officials of the executive branch appearing before Rooney's appropriations sub-committee are generally subjected to a searching and brutal examination of their budget requests, well larded with Rooney's sharp and caustic observations.

To everyone's surprise, Rooney finally had a nice word to say about an administration official. Recipient of this unheard of approbation was Warren E. Burger of St. Paul, assistant attorney-general.

Burger testified that his civil division of the Department of Justice had recovered thirty million dollars in the past year—or twice the normal amount.

At conclusion of Burger's testimony, Rooney peered at the witness and declared he rarely gives compliments to anyone—never to a Republican —but he wanted to congratulate him for an outstanding job.

Another Democrat said Burger's performance would be worth $200,000 per year in private practice. Rooney agreed and added Burger's position should be lifted to cabinet rank.

Burger thanked Rooney and suggested the congressman and President Eisenhower get together on both the matter of $200,000 per year and cabinet rank.

Automobile pedigrees are given much attention down here. A recent classified ad for a used car went something like this: "Plymouth 1952 4-door sedan, a beautifully kept car formerly owned by a congressman's secretary . . . $895." Presumably had the car been previously owned by a cabinet member's secretary the price would have been considerably higher.

In most congressmen's offices, the interior decor runs largely to blown-up aerial views of cities, university campi, timber, oil wells, or other outstanding landmarks of the individual's district.

Rep. John J. Allen (R-Calif) finds his aerial views of Oakland helpful in the field of applied constituent psychology.

"Every time a constituent come to Washington," Allen explains, "he's homesick. He comes to my office. I'm busy. The secretary asks him to sit down and wait a few minutes, please. He goes over to the picture; it makes him feel better just to see Oakland. Pretty soon, he takes out a pencil and pinpoints a house. 'That's where I live,' he tells no one in particular. He looks at it a while longer, then tells the secretary I'm probably pretty busy and he won't take up any of my time. He goes away happy—and I keep on working."

Rep. Reuss (D-Wis) decorates his office with a huge, three-dimensional map of Western Europe, showing clearly the topographical ups and downs of that continent. One Wisconsin constituent of Swiss birth was delighted to be able to pin-point the exact valley in which he had been born, and offered Reuss congratulations on his excellent map. "A pleased constituent," said the congressman as the man departed happily from his office, "is a joy forever."

'DEAR JOSEPHINE—'

Schoolgirl's Worry About World War III Draws FCDA Letter

By WES PEYTON
(Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON — The Federal Civil Defense Administration went out of its way Saturday to assure a little girl in San Jose it is doing everything it can to avert World War III.

Josephine Lopez, an eighth grade student in Thomas P. Ryan school, has been reading the papers lately and getting a little worried about what she reads.

So she wrote President Eisenhower:

"I am a student in the eighth grade in Thomas P. Ryan school in San Jose. And I am asking a question of interest to me. My question is:

"I read in the newspaper a topic that interested me about a World War Three. I was thinking, why couldn't we have a man from the state go to the schools and talk to our parents about civil defense.

"Please answer. Yours truly, Josephine Lopez."

THE PRESIDENT forwarded Josephine's letter to Val Peterson, Federal Civil Defense administrator, who replied:

"Dear Josephine — President Eisenhower has forwarded your letter to me, as I am the man whose job it is to see that America has the best civil defense that all of us, working together, can develop.

"You said that you were interested to read in the newspaper about the possibility of a third world war.

"A lot of us are interested in this possibility, Josephine. And a lot of us are working as hard as we can to see that it just never happens, if there is anything we can do to prevent it.

"One of the things that will help prevent another war is the kind of serious, patriotic interest in civil defense that you have. We need a lot more of it.

"If an enemy knows that our people are organized, that they won't get panicky and quit if we are attacked, that they will pull together and work together to get back on our feet and get the guns and planes rolling again off the production lines—then, Josephine, there is a good chance there just won't be a World War III.

"YOU WONDERED why someone couldn't go to the schools and talk to the children and their parents about civil defense.

"It is being done, and has been done in places where the people know and think about what we're really facing in the world today. But there's always so much more that can be done. That's our job, Josephine, yours and mine and everybody's — to see that there's more thinking and talking and planning to be prepared if someone tries to attack us.

"We're busy people in this civil defense business. But not too busy to take time out to tell you, and people like you, what you want and need to know.

"I'm sure that if your school would ask him, the civil defense director there in San Jose, or someone in his office, would come and talk to you, and the other students, and your parents and teachers about things we have to do to be strong and prepared and organized on the home front so that no enemy will ever defeat us.

"I hope that this answers your question. And don't worry. We have little need to be afraid as long as America has young people like you. Yours affectionately, Val Peterson."

U. S. Gives Pakistan Modern Fish Boat

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—A fishing boat is among the latest American aid to Pakistan. U. S. Ambassador Horace A. Hildreth has handed over a modern diesel-engine, 67-foot craft for use in deep waters of the Arabian Sea. Intended to help in a program of fisheries development, it dwarfs the small vessels used by Pakistanis in the past.

Facing Death in Chair, He Strikes Oil

JOLIET, Ill. (AP)—A convicted murderer sentenced to die in the electric chair has just been informed that oil was discovered on his land in Oklahoma.

Harry Spegal, 28, a Champaign, Ill., taxi driver, is in the death house at Stateville Prison awaiting an appeal of his conviction. A jury found him guilty Oct. 14, 1953, of strangling 6-year-old David Wayne Anderson, son of a fellow roomer in a boarding house.

Spegal was granted pauper's status in the Illinois courts although he was one of five heirs to a 40-acre tract in Oklahoma, considered worthless except for a nominal rental paid by the Sinclair Refining Co. for oil and mineral rights.

C. E. Tate of Champaign, Spegal's court-appointed attorney, Saturday said Spegal received a letter from his agent, Franklin A. Jolly of Berkeley, Calif., informing him that the company has brought in a well on the tract.

Jolly, an accountant who has Spegal's power of attorney in connection with the Oklahoma property interest, wrote that Sinclair plans to sink three more wells there.

Tate said the agent also wrote Spegal that quarterly royalty checks would start rolling in soon, and asked how these should be handled.

Tate said he did not know what the property interest would ultimately be worth.

Warden Joseph Ragen said Spegal took the news "very calmly."

Spegal was granted a stay of execution on his death sentence, originally scheduled for last May 5. Tate said that he believes Spegal will win a new trial.

Army Fights Meningitis at Ft. Dix, N.J.

FT. DIX, N. J. (AP)—A blood infection similar to one that killed a trainee here Feb. 22 Saturday struck a third GI and triggered mass distribution of sulfa drugs to this Army base's 40,000 personnel.

Capt. Tom Hamrick, public information officer, said distribution of four sulfadiazine tablets to each man and woman was ordered by the post surgeon as "a precautionary measure" and there was "no cause for alarm."

Unmarried personnel were restricted to the post for 12 hours, but married personnel were permitted to go home after receiving tablets.

The latest trainee to contract the infection was Pvt. Michael T. Danza, 19, of the Bronx, N.Y. He was reported in critical condition the the post hospital.

Friday night Pvt. Richard A. Robinson, 21, of Norwell, Mass., was flown to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, D. C., in serious condition with a similar ailment contracted Wednesday.

Pvt. Irwin Weinrib, 18, of Far Rockaway, N. Y., died in the post hospital Feb. 22 of what was described as "fulminating meningitis—a quick killer."

Implications that Weinrib was denied proper medical treatment and additional allegations of mistreatment by his buddy, Pvt. Leslie Feldma, 19, of Far Rockaway, N. Y., are the basis of an investigation now in progress.

Gas Buyers Given Pledge of Protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House today assured 30,000,000 natural gas consumers their pocketbooks will be protected if independent gas producers are exempted from federal price controls.

President Eisenhower's cabinet fuels resources committee recommended last week that some 4,000 independent producers be removed from price controls until their gas goes into interstate commerce.

"These recommendations do not, however, represent recommendations of the President," Gerald D. Morgan, special counsel to the President, explained.

"They are merely recommendations of the advisory group to the President," he added.

Morgan's assurance that President Eisenhower will consider the consumer before taking any stand on such legislation was given in a letter to Rep. Glenn R. Davis (R.-Wis.).

Whirligig Take-off Test by Physics Prof Succeeds

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—A physics professor lost his calm Saturday and yelled, "It works! It works!" after he lifted his plane into the air by centrifugal force while whirling at the end of a rope around a barrel embedded in lake ice.

Shortly afterward, however, the barrel tipped over, letting the light plane slither across the icy surface of Lake Kegonsa, 12 miles south of here.

Undaunted, John G. Winans, University of Wisconsin physicist, and his son, Ted, 13, set to work to fix the barrel up again for a new attempt at the unconventional take-off method.

Actually, Winans never was in "free flight." But he did lift the plane off the lake without dropping the 400-foot nylon rope anchored to the barrel.

In fact, he had the plane in the air several times before the barrel tipped over. The first time, he landed and shouted to about 30 onlookers: "It works! It works!"

Winans is intent on proving that long runways are unnecessary for take-offs. He devised the barrel-and-rope system of flying in a circle until enough airspeed is gained to drop the rope.

Izvestia Jeers at U.S. Food Offer

MOSCOW (Sunday) (AP)—An indication that the Soviet Union would reject an offer by the United States of a gift of surplus food was seen today in a scornful article in Izvestia which denounced the "hypocrisy" of such an offer to Albania.

The article in the government newspaper said "American imperialists" long had had designs upon Albania, and the food offer was another way of trying to penetrate the country.

Top Brass to Watch Air Show

Sky Angels Will Stunt in Review

Freshly scrubbed and polished, Los Alamitos Naval Air Station prepares to put its best foot forward this week for its annual military inspection and review.

Active duty personnel will be inspected Friday morning. More than 4,000 men of its "Week-end Warrior" squadrons will be reviewed Sunday afternoon, March 13, by high ranking officers in naval aviation. The public is invited to the Sunday review, which will be followed by an air show featuring the Blue Angels, the Navy's No. 1 jet stunt team.

On hand for almost a week of activities will be the chief of naval air training, Vice Adm. Austin K. Doyle, USN; the chief of naval air reserve training, Rear Adm. Daniel V. Gallery, USN, and the commander of Marine Air Reserve training, Brig. Gen. Frank H. Lamson-Scribner, USMC. It is not known whether Adm. Doyle's schedule will permit his presence at the military review and air show.

Capt. J. B. Paschal, USN, commanding officer of NAS Los Alamitos, announces that two of his squadrons will be awarded the prized Noel Davis trophies at the Sunday review. These trophies are presented to the Naval Air Reserve units throughout the country maintaining the best records of efficiency during the year. Rear Adm. Gallery will present Noel Davis trophies to Capt. Willard I. Staples, USNR, the former commanding officer of Air Wing Staff 77 and to Commander John A. Harper, USNR, commanding officer of Air Attack Squadron VA-772. The trophy is named for a Naval Reserve aviator killed in an attempted transatlantic flight in 1927.

A high light of next Sunday's review will be the first public appearance of Lt. Col. James F. (Skeets) Coleman, USMCR. The executive officer of Marine Fighter Squadron VMF-123, his regular job is the test flying of the Navy's Convair XFY-1 "Pogo" Turboprop fighter.

He will tell how it feels to fly the world's first vertical takeoff plane.

Gates of the air station will open to the public at 1 p. m. March 13. Ample parking for automobiles is available at no charge.

Adm. Doyle became a naval aviator in 1922. In World War II he commanded various aircraft carriers, including the USS Nassau and USS Hornet.

Adm. Gallery was a member of the U. S. Olympic wrestling team in 1920. He was commanding officer of the U. S. Navy Fleet Air Base in Iceland when World War II began.

While commanding the escort aircraft carrier Guadalcanal, he staged the first boarding and capture at sea of an enemy vessel since 1815 — the capture of the German submarine U-505 off Cape Blanco, French West Africa, in June, 1944.

Gen. Lamson-Scribner, a Marine flier for more than 27 years, has served in the Marine Corps since 1923, when he was graduated from the Naval Academy. Among his decorations are the Legion of Merit, which he won in the Ellice, Gilbert and Marshall Islands in World War II, and the Distinguished Flying Cross, which was awarded for his services in Nicaragua.

He joined the 1st Marine Aircraft Wing in Korea in September, 1951, where he served as assistant commander until August, 1952, when he took his present assignment.

ADDICT

Ex-Bible Salesman Success in Crime

CHICAGO (UP) — A handsome onetime Bible salesman turned drug addict has admitted to police that he gained $10,000 from passing bogus checks to help satisfy his craving.

John Francis Lawlor, 26, told police in suburban Oak Park Friday that the ease with which banks cashed the checks he got from Bible sales led him into the phony check racket.

Lawlor told Police Sgt. Lewis Case that he was "a top salesman" of the Bible for three years.

"Yes," replied Case, "but you never read it."

Jurist Urges Clinics to Give Addicts Drugs

NEW YORK (AP) — General Session Judge Jonah J. Goldstein believes crime could be reduced if clinics were set up to supply addicts with narcotics.

"Crimes are committed not under the influence of narcotics but to get money to buy narcotics," he said in his court this week.

"I wish we could put common sense into the law by providing narcotics for addicts who are poor, so that they would not have to commit crimes to obtain money to buy drugs. At the same time we would do what we could to treat them, try to cure them, and if we cannot cure them, then give them the narcotics they need under proper medical supervision."

Pickford Prefers Marilyn Monroe to Play Pickford

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Mary Pickford said today she wanted Marilyn Monroe to portray her in a movie of Miss Pickford's life.

Miss Pickford, known as America's Sweetheart during her film career, said she believed America's pinup queen could play the role "better than most actresses in Hollywood."

The retired actress said she planned the film, which she might direct herself, if she is successful in buying a studio property which she and Samuel Goldwyn are battling over in court. The property goes on the auction block April 2.

Jazz Works Its Way Through College

By DAVE EMERY

In a sound-proof room at City College, a tape recorder tingles at what it hears.

Spiraling notes and a catchy beat . . . a sudden clarinet solo scrambling toward outer space . . . a saxophone groaning strangely, raspy, like a fishmonger's voice.

A cluster of eavesdropping students and an English teacher "who just dropped in" tap their toes to the bouncing, snagging rhythm of modern-sound jazz.

The thick-walled studio in which they stand is the workshop of faculty-man Duane Gurnee and his Recording Dance Band.

Gurnee himself is 39, a blond, blue-eyed fellow who looks about 10 years younger than his age. He became a school teacher in 1953 after he got his master's degree in music from San Francisco State College while he was playing saxophone in Golden Gate night spots.

Gurnee's 21 hand-picked Dance Band musicians are mostly students who want professional experience to get them in shape to tackle the fiercely competitive music world beyond the campus.

They dissect modern-sound jazz like biology scholars dissect frogs.

Through Gurnee, who has kept intact his friendship and contacts with a handful of big-league musicians, the Dance Band members get sheet music pre-releases of arrangements for such bandmen as Stan Kenton and Dave Brubeck.

In addition, they play professional-sounding stuff created by the 10 members of a class Gurnee teaches in music arranging.

Student engineers from Dr. Gerald Strang's Sound Recording Techniques class put the music on records or tape.

Blueprinted after a similar highly successful class at Los Angeles City College, the Long Beach college Dance Band sounded its first notes just last month.

The Dance Band class is to the music department what higher calculus is to mathematics.

"Not just anybody can cut this stuff," Gurnee declares. "Some of these students are of professional caliber right now."

There are plenty of good reasons for forming the class: It covers an area of music formerly ignored by colleges, for instance. And it is claimed that modern jazz is the only music truly representative of our culture.

But the biggest fact, Gurnee explains, is this:

"Not many musicians can go out any more and get jobs playing Sousa marches. It's tough enough for the ones who can carve their way through modern music."

It's so tough, in fact, that the college doesn't encourage student musicians to try to make a career of dance band playing.

But neither does the school turn its back on the few persistent musicians with the ability to make the grade.

After the Dance Band students end a selection with a dazzling burst of music, they sit back and listen to their performance played back by one of the sound-recording engineers.

By tearing their own music apart and putting it back together again, the players hope eventually to equal the work of the Los Angeles college group, which now records its jazz numbers for Columbia records.

The important thing to Duane Gurnee's dedicated students right now is that "their kind of music" has taken a solid foothold on the campus.

The longhairs are making room for the crew cuts.

NEW-SOUND JAZZ flares into life when this combo of Recording Dance Band students put their talents together and make big music during an impromptu session. The players are Pat Meyers, 18, on sax; Richard Roberts, 19, on bass; Ronnie Hoopes, 19, on trombone; Phil Rivaldo, 18, on drums, and Jim Ogden, 20, on trumpet.

DAVID VAN KREIDT, jazz arranger-composer for Stan Kenton and Dave Brubeck, lectures to a City College music-arranging class. Writing music of near-professional quality, this class provides arrangements for the school's new Dance Band to put on record. Student technicians from another class do the recording.

Amid controls in a City College sound booth, Engineer Leon Duhamel, 18, gets a big earful of music bound for the tape recorder beside him.

Students use "big time" methods in arranging and analyzing modern jazz techniques, which are far advanced from their original, simple rhythms.

Democratic Timber for '56 Scarce

By WALTER RIDDER
(of The Independent-Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON — With President Eisenhower having told a press conference recently that he probably wouldn't make public his plans about 1956 until about a year from now, the Democrats are turning rather restless eyes upon their own presidential situation.

Naturally, Adlai E. Stevenson, 1952 standard-bearer, looms largest in their thoughts. His name is familiar to the voting public, he has managed to impress his personality upon the electorate, and the party machinery is largely for him.

But Stevenson himself has not yet given a public clue as to what he plans for the coming presidential contest. It is whispered here that he will make up his mind sometime in the fall.

While a logical choice, there are still certain factors which may make Stevenson decide to sit the next one out. His plans, it is suggested, may depend in large measure upon the plans of Dwight D. Eisenhower. If it looks as if the President will run again, Stevenson may very well bow gracefully out of the picture. American political tradition, which Stevenson knows very well, is against losing candidates eventually winning, and the Illinoisan may not be keen to engage Eisenhower once again.

The above is, of course, predicted upon the international and domestic situation remaining stabilized at about present levels.

Should Stevenson not run, the Democrats would be hard put to find themselves a candidate. The most logical person would probably be Gov. W. Averell Harriman of New York. The natural tendency of the American politician these days is to seek presidential candidates among men with administrative, rather than legislative, experience.

"We're supposed to be the party of talent," lamented one highly-placed Democrat, "but when talking about potential presidential candidates, after you've mentioned Stevenson and Harriman, who have we got?"

Sen. Kefauver of Tennessee can't be entirely disregarded, although the feeling here is that the magic of his crime investigation has pretty well worn off and that he would be hard put to generate the kind of public support which he gained in 1952.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan already has stated his willingness to receive the convention's accolade.

OASIS IN OIL JUNGLE

Harbor Exodus Soon May Hush Shouts at Seaside Playground

Gallant little Seaside Playground, an oasis of recreation amidst a jungle of oil wells and pumping equipment, rapidly is nearing the point of no return.

A general exodus of the harbor area is under way as engineers push their plans to clear out all structures and raise the ground level, a necessary step in subsidence "remedial" work.

"Seaside Playground has been placed on a month-to-month schedule," says Dr. Frank B. Harnett, assistant director of municipal recreation. Seaside is located at Ocean Blvd. and Ventura Ave.

"We will keep the playground in operation as long as there are children residing near by who will use it."

Since 1946 Seaside Playground has operated under the steady hand of Mrs. Mary Ann Martin, a slender, dark-eyed woman who raised a family of her own and then "adopted" the kids of the harbor area.

An unsung heroine, Mrs. Martin has devoted virtually her entire being to the playground task.

Seaside Playground has competed in all city-wide playground events and exhibited stellar qualities of sportsmanship.

On the home grounds, the Recreation Department's classes in handicraft, dramatics, rhythms and music have been filled to capacity. Scores of small fry listened with rapt attention during story-telling hours.

Somehow or other service clubs and civic-minded groups around Long Beach learned about Seaside Playground. Like magic, a fine television set appeared in the recreation room. Fishing poles and reels were placed in the hands of adventuresome lads.

Mrs. Martin had eager crews of sun-bronzed boys and girls launched on a garden project. Soon the parched soil of a section of the playground bloomed with flowers.

A little red hen hatched out a brood of baby chicks and excitement among the smaller playground-goers ranged high.

Mrs. Martin's philosophy about children is simple and direct.

"I believe in American boys and girls," she says.

"While the children attending my playground possibly lack the abundance of material advantages enjoyed by some others, one thing is for sure.

"They don't lack determination."

As for the present—and last—crop of Seaside playground youngsters, you will be able to see them in action next Saturday at 1 p.m.

They will be sailing their kites in the all-city kite tournament on the beach at 1st Pl.

Home Burns, Mother, Son, Patient Die

EDMESTON, N. Y. (AP)—A widowed mother, her son, and an aged man she tried to rescue perished Saturday in a fire that demolished a nursing home.

Another son and the six other residents of the home were carried to safety by firemen.

The victims were Mrs. Adelaide Strait, about 50, the operator of the home; Adelbert Strait, 7; and Shora Dennison, 74, a patient.

Mrs. Strait telephoned the alarm at about 3:20 a.m. Then she returned upstairs to try to rescue Adelbert and Dennison, who, with Mrs. Strait were the sole occupants of the second floor.

Fire chief Thomas Lockerbie said he believed the fire had started in a defective chimney. He described the building as "an old shack which never should have been used as a nursing home."

U.S. Commanders in Orient Parley With Thai Chiefs

BANGKOK, Thailand (UP) — Commanders of U.S. Army and Navy forces in the Far East will arrive here this weekend for 12 days of military conferences with Thai government leaders and the U.S. Military Advisory Group located here.

A brief announcement from U.S. Command headquarters in Tokyo said the high-level military group will "familiarize themselves with the military situation in the Thailand area."

Thailand is considered by some U.S. military and diplomatic leaders as the next likely area for a Communist expansion drive in southeast Asia.

EX-NARCOTICS COP HELD ON DOPE CHARGE

Thomas H. Rankin, retired Los Angeles narcotics officer, with Ebba Irwin, San Pedro police department phone operator, following their arrest Saturday at San Pedro. Rankin was charged with possession of $10,000 worth of opium.—(AP Wirephoto.)

Ex-Cop Says Illness Put Him on Opium

A retired police lieutenant arrested in San Pedro early Saturday with $10,000 worth of opium, blamed the pains of arthritis for his narcotics addiction.

Harry Rankin, 56, of 2001 W. 164th St., Gardena, a veteran of seven years on the Los Angeles Police Department narcotics squad, was picked up at the home of Ebba J. Irwin, 43, 745 W. 40th St., San Pedro.

Sheriff's narcotics officers, acting on an anonymous tip, walked into the house and found 140 ounces of opium.

Rankin was lying fully clothed on a bed, an opium smoking kit beside him. Miss Irwin, for 20 years night switchboard operator in the San Pedro police station, answered the door.

Sheriff's narcotics detail head Capt. K. E. Irving said Rankin admitted being addicted to the powerful drug. He claimed the huge cache of opium was his and that Miss Irwin had nothing to do with it.

Later Saturday in County Jail, where both suspects were booked for investigation of narcotics possession, Rankin told officers he suffers from arthritis.

He said he started using narcotics to relieve the pain of the ailment shortly after his retirement as a policeman in 1948.

Rankin told them, Irving said, that he high-jacked the opium on the American side of the border at Tijuana after he watched a dope-ring runner hide it.

The drug, "enough to last Rankin a hundred years," according to Irving, was neatly stored in 20 7-ounce cans, sealed with tape.

Found beside the retired officer was a rare Chinese opium scale, a charcoal heating cup, and a handmade opium pipe.

Rankin and Miss Irwin were released on $2500 bail each late Saturday afternoon. Their writs of habeas corpus are returnable March 10.

Shortly after she left jail, Miss Irwin resigned her job with the police department.

U.S. Health Work Boosted in Egypt

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — The Foreign Operations Administration Saturday announced expansion of its health programs in Egypt. Agreements recently signed with Egypt, the FOA said, provide for two new health projects and expansion of existing programs under the Egyptian-American joint committee for public health.

One of the projects calls "for improving the Egyptian system of vital and health statistics so the nation's basic health problems may be identified, planned and the results more accurately evaluated."

HAS HORSESHOE

Youth Beats Death Thrice in One Fall

BRADFORD, England (AP)—Billy Harrison, 18-year-old steeplejack, cheated death three times Saturday.

He was working on a 75-foot factory chimney. Falling stonework smashed his scaffold and sent him hurtling down from the top.

He landed in a water tank 40 feet below and was stunned.

But he didn't drown. The same stonework had plunged through the bottom of the tank, and the water drained away.

The stone hurtled on and fractured a six-inch gas main. The gas swirled up into the tank.

Firemen pulled Harrison to safety just in time. One said: "The tank reeked of gas. A few minutes more and it would have been too late."

He is in a hospital with shock—and three small cuts.

To My Friends:

I am glad to announce my return to work and serve you as in the past 32 years. Sincere thanks for the loyal and steadfast support.

CARS TIED UP FOR MILES AND MILES

Traffic was jammed for miles Saturday when four cars rammed into a truck-trailer which jacknifed on Hollywood Freeway. Truck driver braked sharply to avoid hitting an auto and 24 tons of newsprint rolls spilled in all directions. — (AP)

King-Sized Jams Snarl 2 Freeways

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Police reported several hundred cars were stalled on the Hollywood and Santa Ana freeways in the downtown area Saturday in one of the city's worst traffic jams.

The Hollywood freeway jam was caused by a minor traffic accident in which a large truck-trailer jacknifed and was struck by five cars at the connection with the Harbor and Arroyo Seco freeways.

Police reported no serious injuries, but said one man was believed to have suffered a rib injury and a woman a back injury.

The Santa Ana freeway jam occurred on the freeway's westbound lanes, east of the Civic Center, when overflow traffic snarled at the connection with the Pasadena freeway.

West Germany Keeps Up Fight for Saar

BONN (UP) — West Germany declared Saturday that the Saar basin is German territory, and insisted its inhabitants would retain the right to demand reunion with Germany even after the controversial Saar pact takes effect.

Ambassador Wilhelm Hausenstein delivered a note to the French foreign office angrily protesting its announcement Friday night that France will continue to insist that the Saar be divorced from Germany in any final German peace treaty.

Czechs Claim Yank 'Turncoat'

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—A Czechoslovak newspaper reaching Vienna Saturday claimed an American army officer has asked for political asylum in Czechoslovakia.

The newspaper Jihoceska Pravda of Ceska Budejovice identified the officer as Marton Nadler. It did not say when he asked asylum but said Nadler recently addressed an agricultural conference in Kaplice and criticized the conditions of American farmers.

The Army in Washington and headquarters of the U. S. Army in Europe at Heidelberg, Germany, said they had no Marton Nadler on its rolls.

Fuller Firm in Denial He Shot Lawyer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Albert Fuller climaxed his murder defense Saturday with a firm denial that he killed A. L. Patterson, but he got crossed up three times on major points in his testimony.

The defense rested its case after the former chief deputy at Phenix City ended a stay of 4½ hours on the stand, but announced it would call the state's star witness for further cross-examination Monday.

Chief Prosecutor Cecil Deason then began presentation of rebuttal testimony aimed at counteracting the stories of Fuller and six other witnesses who said the defendant was in the county jail at the time the anti-vice-crusading Patterson was slain last June 18.

Fuller's testimony included these seeming contradictions: That he worked for Patterson in the vice foe's successful campaign for attorney general of Alabama last spring but didn't vote for him.

That he suffered from a severe leg injury and couldn't run from the murder scene as prosecution witnesses said he did, but that he ran out of the jail when he heard about the shooting and ran across the street when he arrived at the murder scene.

That he didn't remember being sentenced to seven years in prison for bribery several weeks ago but he did remember parts of the trial, especially that he didn't have a lawyer until just after he was called into court.

Slain Killer's Identity a Mystery

GREEN RIVER, Wyo. (AP) — "I'm dead, dammit—come and get me."

A young killer yelled the words at armed officers who trapped him Friday night in a house in this southwestern Wyoming railroad town.

Then he staggered into another room and collapsed, lifeless, on a bed with a shotgun charge in his chest.

The blast from Railroad Agent W. G. Sherman's gun, fired through a window, ended the 16-hour shooting spree of the man who had killed two men, wounded two others, held a 17-year-old boy hostage for eight hours and terrorized a woman and her two children in the house where his crime trail ended.

The gunman's identity was undetermined. Officers at first thought he was Melvin H. Gray, 27, a former Wyoming prison convict. He wore a wristwatch and belt buckle identified as Gray's and a car abandoned by the gunman was listed in Gray's name.

But Sheriff George Nimmo said the killer's fingerprints do not match those on file at the prison. The prints were sent to the FBI at Washington in an effort to clear up the identity.

Nimmo said officers now are looking for Gray, fearful he might also have fallen victim to the killer.

The gunman killed Albert Maffei, 35, a garage owner at Kemmerer, northwest of here, as Maffei ran for his life down a snowy road early Friday.

Friday night, as officers closed in on him, he shot Deputy Sheriff Ed Phillips in the chest and the officer died Saturday in a Rock Springs hospital.

In the shooting scrape at Frontier, Wyo., near the Idaho-Wyoming border, Frank Kulinsky, town marshal, was seriously wounded in the stomach and Don Wagner, 35, was wounded in the cheek by the gunman.

The killer had been surprised in a burglary at Kemmerer and chased to Frontier, three miles away.

Officers said 17-year-old Bob Durrant was lucky he escaped unharmed from his eight-hour stretch as the gunman's unwilling companion in a wild drive over Wyoming and Utah roads. But Durrant said he "was a real nice guy. I can't imagine him shooting anybody."

White House Reporters Honor Ike at Banquet

WASHINGTON (UP) — The White House Correspondents' Association held its 30th annual dinner Saturday night with President Eisenhower as honored guest and the subject of a mild ribbing.

Among the guests were members of the President's cabinet, Supreme Court justices, diplomats, Senators and Representatives, and Dr. Milton Eisenhower, president of Pennsylvania State University and Mr. Eisenhower's brother.

A skit satirizing the recent announcement that President Eisenhower will limit his travels for the next several weeks to two hours flying time from Washington opened the show.

It showed three White House correspondents trying to keep up with the President on a trip to the "Burning Crater" golf course on Mars.

The three reporters in the skit were Frank Holeman of the New York Daily News; William H. Lawrence of the New York Times, and Edward T. Folliard of the Washington Post and Times-Herald.

A record number of more than 900 members of the White House Correspondents' Association and their guests attended the dinner in the Statler Hotel.

Conference Seen for Ike and Churchill

LONDON (U.P.)—Highly placed British sources said Saturday night that Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Dwight D. Eisenhower probably will have to meet again shortly to patch up the rift in the Atlantic Alliance revealed in Churchill's H-bomb speech of last Tuesday.

These sources suggested that the 80-year-old Prime Minister may even now be contemplating "another pilgrimage to Washington" in an attempt to bring American and British policy back into line.

Churchill, on Tuesday, said bluntly that Britain must build its own H-bombs because American H-bombers might not give adequate priority to the targets Britain would want bombed in event of a war.

British sources accepted this shock-speech as a clear indication that the Anglo-American alliance is in a "bad state."

They blamed the allegedly dangerous rift in relations between the Atlantic partners on the current state of disjointed planning.

Churchill told the House of Commons that he doubted Britain could exercise adequate influence on American thinking and actions until Britain had some nuclear power of its own to reinforce its position.

The high-ranking British authority for the report that Churchill and Mr. Eisenhower may meet soon to try to iron out such irritations is an eminent Briton who long has been a Churchill confidant.

He said the Prime Minister's speech should have made it "abundantly clear on both sides of the Atlantic" that the alliance, so closely-bound in war, has reached "a sad state" in peace.

This British authority said it "appears inevitable" that Churchill and President Eisenhower will have to meet again to restore the Anglo-American alliance.

"It may be that the old man will make another pilgrimage to Washington," he said.

"The dangers of America and Britain drifting apart cannot be over-publicized."

In addition to the 1946 parting of the ways on the sharing of nuclear secrets, he said Anglo-American policy now is in need of synchronizing all the way from Europe to the Far East. He said some particularly close planning is indicated in the strife-torn Middle East.

"It is no use for NATO (the North Atlantic Treaty Organization) to build a broad band of defense right across Europe and the Balkans to Turkey when there is a wide-open crack in the Levant," he said.

"It is like building another Maginot Line with Turkey on the flank. Russia could strike down through the Levant and turn this line just as the Germans turned the Maginot Line at Sedan."

The source said Churchill was making it plain to Commons that there have been Anglo-American differences when he said:

"I cannot feel that we would have much influence over their (the Americans') policy or actions, wise or unwise, when we are largely dependent, as we are today, on their protection. We too must possess a substantial deterrent power of our own . . ."

Fire Drives 60 Airmen Out, 25 Bitten by Frost

RAPID CITY, S. D. (AP)—Fire swept through the flight line maintenance and engineering building at Ellsworth Air Force Base here Saturday night before being halted by 60 airmen, 25 of whom were later treated for frostbite.

Damage to radar, radio and electronic equipment, aircraft supply parts and engineering records was estimated at $125,000. Firefighters battled in zero weather and driving snow for four hours, preventing the flames from spreading to adjacent buildings.

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

Top Officials Favor Wider A-Data Trade With Britain

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top U. S. officials believe a greater exchange of atomic information with Britain would be profitable to both countries. But they are a long way from swapping secrets about how to manufacture hydrogen bombs or other weapons.

Informants said Saturday that if trading of hydrogen-bomb information is what the British are aiming for now, they are heading for disappointment.

The fact is that the United States, Britain and Canada slowly have been rebuilding a solid but limited cooperation on atomic matters since the low point of several years ago, when one of Britain's top atomic scientists, Klaus Fuchs, proved to be a spy for Russia and another, Dr. Bruno Pontecorvo, disappeared behind the Iron Curtain.

In keeping with this cooperation, a British military team has been invited here to witness test explosions of atomic weapons at the Nevada proving grounds. A Canadian team of army, navy and air force atomic experts also will attend the firings, which are known as military evaluation tests.

JAPAN'S GIRLS BIGGER THAN PREWAR TYPE

TOKYO (Sunday) (AP)—Japanese girls are taller, plumper and quite a bit more bosomy than were girls prior to World War II, says a white paper just put out by the Education Ministry.

The report said educators believe this has something to do with "postwar emancipation of women." But they weren't quite sure just how.

Sen. Jackson Urges 'Peaceful Atom' Rush as AEC Offers Fission Power for Sale

NEW YORK (U.P.)—Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash) called Saturday night for a "crash" program to develop peaceful use of atomic power. He said the United States is able to outdistance Russia in this field.

He discussed atoms-for-peace in a speech at a dinner honoring Rep. Abraham J. Multer (D-NY).

"While there is little doubt that our military atomic race with the Russians is a neck-and-neck affair," Jackson said, "I firmly believe we have the present capability of instituting an overwhelming lead in the development and exploitation of the peaceful atom."

"If we give this effort the all-out crash priority we gave the hydrogen bomb, we will give the lie to the charge that we have given lip-service to the peaceful atom. Not only would such a program prove our peaceful intentions, it would provide a great economic shot-in-the-arm for the peoples of the world."

Jackson's plea came as the Atomic Energy Commission announced that the nation's first commercial supply of electricity from an atomic reactor will be ready for sale late this summer.

AEC officials confirmed that they are looking for a buyer for the power, to be produced at West Milton, N. Y. The generators which produce it will be powered by a land-based experimental copy of an atomic engine designed for the submarine Sea Wolf.

The quantity will be comparatively small, perhaps enough to supply a city of 20,000.

The AEC announced also that scientists and engineers from 19 foreign nations will start, this month, a seven-month study of peaceful uses of atomic energy.

The AEC is conducting the school at its Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago, in cooperation with the State Department and the Foreign Operations Administration. The course will involve highly technical but nonsecret study of atomic reactors for research and for power generation.

250-Ton House Gets Big Boost

By BEN MARTIN

WHITTIER — A 16-room mansion which weighs in at about 250 tons has taken its first "step" in a 200-foot walk up the side of a hill.

The house, which measures 52x83 feet and has two stories and a penthouse, is being raised 22 feet in two separate steps and being moved back to a new location leveled out of the side of a hill at Alta Ave., north of Beverly Blvd.

Object? — Better view and more parking for house guests.

A 15-man crew has been working on the move since Feb. 2, and the house won't be brought to rest on its new foundation for another 30 days.

Owner of the house is J. B. Riley, prominent oil-field-equipment manufacturer, who, 25 years ago, bought the old Los Nietos school as a plant site, then used many of the heavy construction timbers to build his house.

Because of the heavy timbers—2x16-inch floor joists and 2x12 wall studs—and the three-inch coating of concrete stucco, several contractors have estimated the weight at between 200 and 250 tons.

First step — which required a month — was to jack the house 10 feet into the air so it could be rolled back 60 feet on three huge "tracks" to a levelled spot behind the house.

Next step will raise the house another 12 feet.

Then it will be rolled back another 140 feet, with 12 steel "shoes" utilizing nearly 100 rollers, rolling along the huge timber tracks.

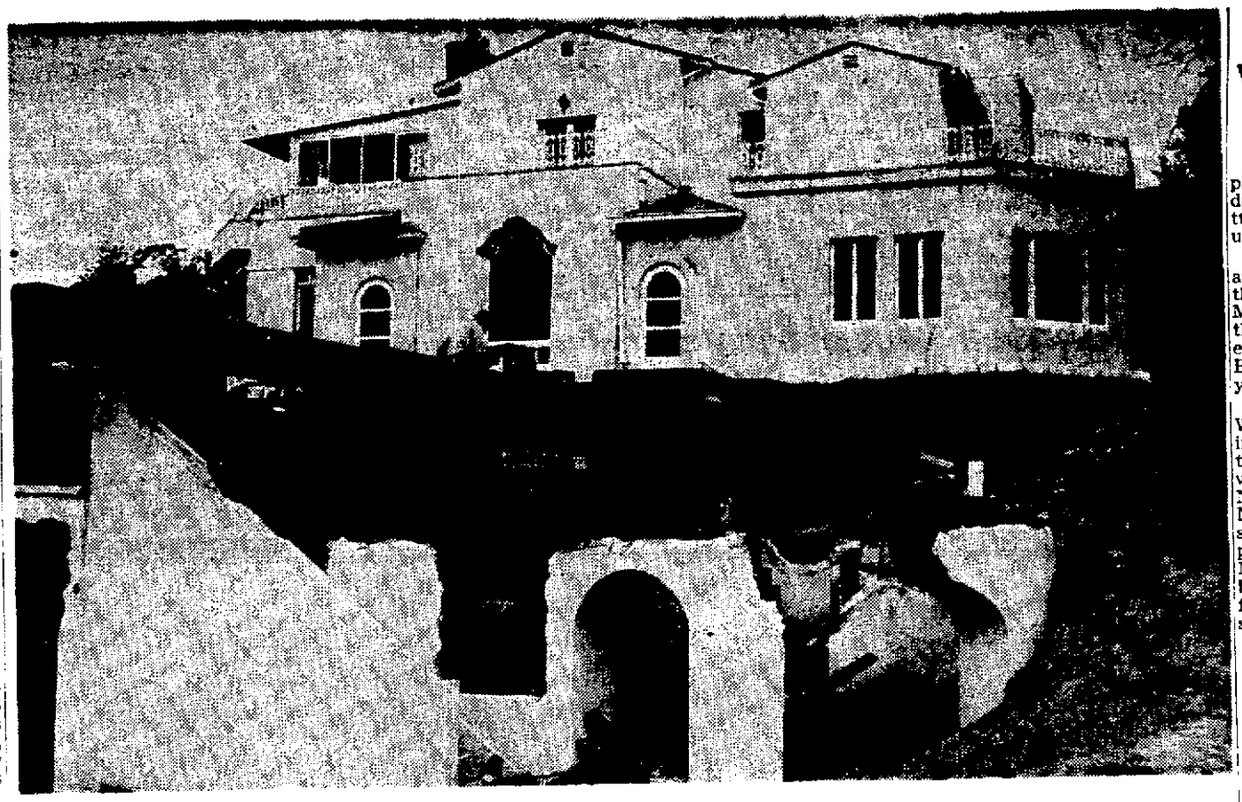

O. P. Boutcher and C. M. Palmer, partners in the Triangle House Moving Co., of Whittier, said their crews employed fourteen 25-ton hydraulic jacks and 20 screw-type jacks to raise the house.

Both are oldtimers in the business and are agreed that this is the largest project of its kind ever undertaken in the Whittier area.

After the movers have completed their project, bulldozers will be called in to demolish the foundation and basement, which formerly provided space for servants quarters, a laundry and a five-car garage.

The space then will be levelled and paved for parking.

New and separate quarters are being built for domestic help.

Why New Atom Boss for Russ?

By TOM WHITNEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The Kremlin picked a new man this week to drive Soviet atom plants. He turns out to be a top expert on use of slave labor in Siberia.

It could be the Soviet leaders are unhappy about the output of their nuclear weapon factories. Maybe that's why, last week, they named a onetime deputy of executed Police Chief Lavrenty Beria, Avrami Pavlovich Zavenyagin, to boss them.

Intelligence analysts in all Western capitals — particularly in Washington—are breaking their heads over the puzzle of why Communist Party Boss Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin found it necessary to make this highly important change at a time when Moscow broadcasts almost daily boast that the U.S.S.R. is out in front in the H-bomb sweepstakes.

It could be only one more complicated maneuver in Kremlin factional politics—intended by Khrushchev and Bulganin to end any influence Ex-Premier Georgi Malenkov had in the atomic field. It also could mean the former atom boss, Vyacheslav Malyshev, failed to get into high gear on A-bomb production.

The official announcement from Moscow March 1, merely said Zavenyagin was named a deputy premier of the U.S.S.R. and "minister of the medium machinery industry," replacing Malyshev.

But the American students of Soviet affairs identify the Soviet "ministry of medium machinery industry" as a cover designation for the Russian equivalent of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. This ministry was formed the night Lavrenty Beria was arrested. It apparently took over functions of the highly secret "First Administration of the Council of Ministers" which, under Beria, had charge of secret weapons output and controlled uranium production in east Germany.

Zavenyagin has a combination of experience which gave him unique qualifications for the atomic task. He is well versed in science and engineering. He spent seven years at the Moscow Academy of Mining in the late 20s.

He also has had extensive experience as an industrial executive. He was a member of a commission in the early 30s to draft instructions for industrial and electrical construction under the first five-year plan. In May, 1931, he was named deputy chief of the main administration of the Soviet metallurgical industry. This was a responsible post for one so young (he was born in 1901). Its equivalent nowadays in Russia would carry the title of deputy minister for the steel industry.

Where There Is Smoke--- There's Vapor

Loading of the British freighter Lord Gladstone was resumed at Berth 28, Long Beach Harbor, Saturday afternoon following a two-hour interruption while the origin of smoke arising from Hold No. 3 was investigated.

The ship is loading 9600 tons of metal sweepings for delivery to Rotterdam, Capt. T. J. Williamson, skipper, summoned firemen and insurance underwriters.

After insurance experts were satisfied that no fire existed and that the "smoke" was oil vapor arising from the 1150 tons of metal sweepings in Hold No. 3, longshoremen resumed bulk-loading operations.

Russ Warn U.S. on List of A-Targets

LONDON (U.P.)—Soviet Russia said Saturday the United States is on the list of targets that it could and would strike with atom bombs if the need arises for "military retaliation."

Friday Moscow warned Britain that the British isles are particularly exposed.

A Moscow radio broadcast, monitored here, said:

"Under modern conditions the United States ruling circles have no ground for hope that, should they commit aggression, U. S. territory would remain outside military retaliation.

"And as regards the production of hydrogen weapons, the Soviet Union is well ahead of the U.S.A." The broadcast said.

Israeli-Egyptian Tension Increases

GAZA, Egyptian-Israeli Frontier (U.P.)—Arab-Israeli tension which has threatened the peace of the Middle East, erupted Saturday in new violence on the Israeli-Jordanian frontier.

Israel charged Syria with a less serious frontier violation near the Hagovrim settlement where, it said, shots were fired from Syrian positions wounding one of two workmen on a waterworks project in upper Galilee. Israeli reinforcements returned and silenced the Syrian fire, the Israeli complaint said.

Jordan charged before the mixed armistice commission in Jerusalem, that five Jordanian Bedouins were murdered by Israeli troops Friday night.

The commission already is considering Egypt's charges that an Israeli army unit on last Monday night staged a sneak attack on an Egyptian military post in this Egyptian frontier area, killing 42 Egyptians and wounding 29.

The situation here was so danger-packed that families of the United Nations truce team—including one American woman—were evacuated from the Gaza area.

Egypt charged that Israeli artillery opened fire during the night on a second Egyptian military outpost, but inflicted no casualties.

The evacuation of U. N. families was ordered as a precaution against their becoming involved and possibly being wounded or killed in such clashes.

U. N. officials identified the American who was evacuated as Mrs. Pierre Duhet, formerly of Geneva, Ill. She is the wife of a Belgian civilian radio operator.

Blood Donors Asked, Offers Tie Up Phones

NEW YORK (U.P.) — Comedian Jackie Gleason made an appeal for blood donors on his television show Saturday night and thousands replied, tieing up a hospital's switchboard.

"We've had so many calls we can't transact any hospital business," Charles Niess, night superintendent of Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital said. "We had to bring in extra switchboard operators, and had trouble getting emergency calls through."

More thousands telephoned the Columbia Broadcasting System offices here, swamping its switchboard.

Niess said he had asked CBS to stop the flow of calls and a spokesman said all persons who telephoned the network were told not to call the hospital now. The CBS spokesman said the network and Gleason certainly had no intention to jam the hospital's lines.

Gleason made the appeal at the end of his program on behalf of Garry Moore, another TV performer, who had sent Gleason a message that a close friend of his was in need of O-negative blood.

The patient was reported to be an 11-year-old girl.

O-negative blood is rare, but Niess said the hospital had enough on hand to last until today. He said the hospital took the names of volunteer donors who telephoned.

Cat Points Out Drowning Child, Aid Revives Him

HOUSTON, Texas (A.P.)—Tiny, a tomcat, today was credited with saving a 21-month-old Ohio tot from drowning in a fish pond.

The boy, Karam Habib, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Habib of Zanesville, Ohio, fell into a fish pond at the home of Fred H. Noomie Friday night. The Habibs were visiting there.

When Mrs. Habib missed her son, she started searching. Noticing the cat peering into the fish pond, she curiously investigated and saw her son's body.

The child was revived by artificial respiration.

Plane Door Blows Off, But 16 Land Safely

ATLANTA (U.P.) — A twin-engined Delta-C&S Convair crash-landed at the Atlanta Municipal Airport late Saturday when a door blew off and wrapped around the tail assembly, but none of the 13 passengers and three crewmen was injured.

A Delta-C&S spokesman said the pilot, Capt. Ray Crocker, 36, of Atlanta, elected to bring the plane in on its belly rather than let the wheels down and take a chance of it nosing over with the tail assembly partially disabled.

119th Anniversary of the Alamo

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (A.P.)— Freedom found a new symbol 119 years ago today when Davy Crockett, Jim Bowie and a gallant handful of men chose certain death to defend an old adobe mission chapel, the Alamo.

"Remember the Alamo" became a rallying cry for the cause of freedom in Texas' struggle for independence and the cry passed into legend as a heritage for all men who fight for freedom.

It was on March 6, 1836, that Mexican Gen. Santa Anna mounted a final siege against the Alamo, held by the Texans since Dec. 9, 1835. His 3,000 troops battered it into submission and took no prisoners from the 187 men who were its defenders.

The woodsmen, clerks and farmers at the Alamo knew what to expect.

Col. William B. Travis, their commander, had drawn a line in the dirt and asked that every man who wanted to fight to the death to cross it.

All did, and the famed frontiersman, Jim Bowie, who earlier added to the world's arsenal by developing the Bowie knife, is supposed to have said:

"I can't walk, boys, but please somebody carry me over." He had been ill of typhoid-pneumonia.

Somebody did.

Today, the Alamo is mostly restored, a shrine of Texas and a symbol of freedom for everyone who yearns for it.

Sen. Johnson Out of Mayo's

WASHINGTON (A.P.) — Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Senate Democratic leader, returned Saturday from treatments at the Mayo Brothers Clinic at Rochester, Minn.

He is under orders to "take it easy for a while" but reportedly is recovering rapidly from an illness.

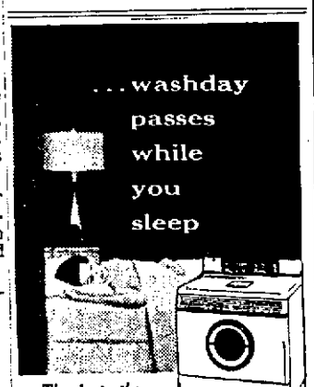

Johnson had been treated at the clinic for a kidney stone and an infection.

Members of his staff said he planned no heavy duties about his office for the time being "but will keep in touch with his staff."

Orange Market Strong; Lemon Prices Steady

LOS ANGELES (U.P.) — The California navel orange market was boosted by active demand and light arrivals 70 cents to $4.50 a box F.O.B. during the past week, Sunkist Growers reported.

Compared with 775 of the week before, approximately 725 car loads were sold, the cooperative said, leaving 1,600 cars for shipment in fresh channels from Central California.

This week's prorate was set at 750 cars from Southern California and 400 cars from Central California.

The California lemon market held steady with 200 cars traded at $5.50 a box F.O.B. This week's prorate was set at 275 cars.

Greater — More thrilling than ever!

The Most Beautiful Cars In The World

The most complete showing ever assembled of the new 1955 General Motors cars—Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac. Together with exhibits and demonstration units displaying their various features—from high-compression engines to upholstery.

And Out Of This World

Seven daringly designed Dream Cars—and the equally amazing Dream Truck. All exciting expressions of the automotive designer's art—revealing features which, as in previous Motorama "dream cars," may well someday find their way into production cars and trucks.

Wonders Of The Scientific World

Exhibits of General Motors Research and Engineering—designed to explain how GM scientists work to improve the performance, safety, driving ease and riding comfort of a General Motors car. Many of these are made so the viewer can operate them himself. Together they form one of the outstanding educational displays of modern industrial science available for public inspection.

And The Culinary World

Frigidaire's designers have transformed the Kitchen of Tomorrow—popular feature of the '54 Motorama—into what might be called the Kitchen of Day-After-Tomorrow—so filled is it with experimental devices to make a housewife's life a bed of electronic roses. A "must see" for everyone interested in scientific domesticity.

And The Fashion World

The Motorama again presents a group of the most glamorous Park Avenue Fashion Models in creations especially designed for the Motorama—this year by Sophie of Saks Fifth Avenue. This "fashion show" is a part of the Motorama stage show.

And The World of Entertainment!

MORE exciting motorcars—the beautiful 1955 Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Oldsmobiles, Buicks and Cadillacs—in all their glory of contour and color. Dream Cars—setting the pace of automotive progress. Fascinating demonstrations of research and engineering. And—for frosting on the cake—entertainment featuring names known to fame on Broadway—in Hollywood—and on the stages of Europe. Yes—it's greater—more thrilling than ever. And you're cordially invited to be our guest—at the biggest and best show on wheels—the General Motors Motorama of 1955.

Drive Starts to Forestall Annual Wage

WASHINGTON (AP)—Businessmen are being asked to contribute to a "hard-hitting" public relations campaign sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers against the guaranteed annual wage and other labor union aims.

Letters soliciting funds for the campaign say business conditions look good for 1955, "but we will have to fight to make it so." The guaranteed annual wage is described as a "disturbing threat to 1955 prospects."

"Your past support," business leaders are told, "has been of great help in creating the improved economic climate in which we now operate. We must not let it disappear."

An account of the fund-raising letter appears in the current issue of the railroad union newspaper, Labor. The NAM, queried about it, made a copy available to a reporter. Labor said the letter revealed formation of "a gigantic propaganda fund" to defeat union labor's chief 1955 goals.

CAN'T MATCH FUNDS

The letter, signed by Ira Mosher, a Massachusetts manufacturer who is former president of the NAM and chairman of the United Business Committee, allied with the NAM, says:

"Presently the most disturbing threat to 1955 prospects are CIO President Walter Reuther's announced intentions to (1) press for repeal of the Taft-Hartley waiver which specifically leaves to the states the authority to outlaw compulsory unionism; and (2) win a guaranteed annual wage for his members."

Mosher said Reuther is raising a 25-million-dollar strike fund in the CIO United Auto Workers to back up the wage demand. He said his business group can't match the budget which "the opposition plans for the fight, but we will make every dollar we do have count."

"Our committee will cooperate to the hilt with the NAM in a hard-hitting campaign to get the facts to the people," Mosher wrote.

WIDE APPEAL

Contribution cards enclosed with the letters say "the size of your gift is optional." They suggest that "many firms are subscribing at the rate of 50 cents per $1,000 of gross annual payroll, or $1.50 per employe, including executives."

The paper Labor said that with manufacturing payrolls running about 64 billion dollars a year, if all manufacturers contributed the suggested amount the total would be as high as 32 million. It said the fund appeal is not limited solely to manufacturers but is directed to all "business leadership."

A NAM spokesman said the United Business Committee has been part of the NAM for years and has been raising money all along, not only from NAM members, but from other businessmen "who like to support our objectives."

ARMY WAITS

He 'Misses Boat' to Ride Big Race

LONDON (AP) — The colonel's wife, children and all his 499 men sailed for Hong Kong today, but the coloned stayed behind to ride a long-shot race horse.

Col. William Holman, 42, was to have accompanied his 15th Medium Regiment of Royal Artillery which sailed from Southampton aboard the troop ship Empire Fowey.

The war office, however, gave him a "reprive" so he could ride Wild Wisdom, a 100-to-1 longshot in the Grand National March 26.

Holman, an amateur jockey, said that "a lot of horses will have to fall if I win."

(Ed. Note—Columnist Epley has been at Sacramento the past week observing the Legislature in action.)

SACRAMENTO — Two names you see over newspaper dispatches from Sacramento almost every day are Morrie Landsberg and James C. Anderson.

They are, respectively, the bureau chiefs of the Associated Press and the United Press in this hectic center of our state government. Their duty is to keep the flow of news running to the readers of newspapers in all parts of the state who supposedly are vitally interested in what their state government is doing.

As bureau chiefs, Landsberg and Anderson are technically executives. But don't let that mislead you into thinking they simply direct the activities of gangs of newsgathering lackeys. Not by a danged sight. These two crew-cutted veterans of the journalistic wars do a lot of the leg work themselves, and the stories that appear under their by-lines are actually written by them.

Each has several staffers working under him. California's state government is a sprawling layout, and quick coverage of news here for the use of whole strings of newspapers requires the work of crews of hardworking people.

There are several lone wolf journalists here, but ordinarilly they represent just one paper and can specialize. Landsberg and Anderson must see to it that the field is covered.

MORRIE LANDSBERG is a 41-year-old native of San Francisco who grew up in the Bay City, graduated from the University of California in 1935 and has been with the Associated Press for nearly 16 years.

He spent 20 months as an overseas correspondent for the Associated Press. Otherwise, most of his work has been in the bay area and at Sacramento. He knows the ins and outs of state government about as well as anybody, he has a taut news sense and can hammer out a good story, fast.

Landsberg has his dark hair cut in flat top crew cut style. He peers through horn-rimmed glasses from behind the AP room desk that is farthest from the door, and he smokes a pipe most of the time.

Pipes have kept Landsberg completely off cigarettes, which he forewent reluctantly some time back. He keeps four pipes in operation. The three that aren't in his mouth rest stem downward in holes which Morrie has bored in a broad shelf or sill just behind his desk.

Married and the father of three sons, Landsberg doesn't have many recreation hobbies. He's rated as a dedicated newsman, whose work is pretty much his fun.

JIM ANDERSON is a one-time sports editor who now specializes in political science as the top United Press man here. He did his sports editing for a year or so at a Santa Barbara paper before he went off to spend three and one-half years in Uncle Sam's infantry.

Anderson was born in North Dakota, moved to Arizona, attended Arizona State and went to work for the UP at Phoenix. Then came the sports stint at Santa Barbara, the war, a return to UP and assignment to Sacramento in 1951.

Jim is lean, rather thin-faced, has an aquiline nose which is sharply sensitive to news. He is married, has two children, and is crazy about golf.

THERE'S a big corps of newsmen here, ranging through the capital and other government buildings in quest of information. As watchdogs for the people, they have the run of offices and the floors of the Senate and Assembly, and occupy paper-strewn offices on the third floor near the two chambers.

Loudspeakers carry the procedure of Assembly or Senate into some of the news rooms. Except when there's something big in the air, few newsmen are in the chambers when the houses are in session.

Newsmen are regular participants in the bull sessions that go on steadily in the lobby of the Senator Hotel, across the street from the capitol, and to a lesser extent in the nearby Sacramento Hotel. A lot of legislative business, and a lot of news, are generated there.

'Move Over, Vampira!'

Rehearsing for Beaux Arts Ball next Saturday night at Lafayette Hotel roof garden are these capering collegians of Long Beach State College Art Club. Above, Doug Davis smiles fiendishly in a tableau with Mary Ann Kunz entitled "When Nightie Was in Flower." Right: Doug skips a rope held by Mary Ann and Derek Jacobs while Bob Gronendyk lounges in the foreground. Prizes will be awarded for the most unusual costumes at the ball. Miss Welcome Contest Entries Start Monday

The time approaches to select Miss Welcome to Long Beach for 1955.

She will be official city hostess for the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant July 14-24, and will reign for a year welcoming visitors and conventions to Long Beach.

Entries may be made, beginning Monday, at the Junior Chamber of Commerce office in the Wilton Hotel arcade or the Miss Universe Beauty Pageant office in Municipal Auditorium, according to Bill Muntz, contest chairman for the Junior Chamber of Commerce which sponsors the event.

In order to qualify, a girl must be a resident of Long Beach and must be between the ages of 18 and 28. She may be either married or single.

The contest is held in connection with the "Do It Yourself" show in the Municipal Auditorium. Preliminaries will be May 10, 11 and 12, and the finals May 13. Ten girls also will be chosen to participate in the stage productions of the Miss Universe pageant.

Previous Miss Welcome titleholders are now respectively, a happy housewife; an entertainer; a purchasing agent.

Jeri Miller, the brownette beauty who was the first Miss Welcome, greeting other lovelies in the first Miss Universe pageant in 1952, and her husband, Lt. Ronald Paul Hight, Army Air Force, are in West Palm Beach, Fla., for two months while Ronald takes special training. Normally they are at McGuire Air Force Base, part of Fort Dix, N. J. Climaxing a romance which began in Poly High School, they were married in Long Beach last September.

Joan Kelly, Miss Welcome of 1953, redhead whose tresses now are the popular silver gray, for seven months has danced at the Moulin Rouge, Sunset and Vine, Hollywood.

Before that, for 10 months she was a specialty dancer at the Sands Hotel, Las Vegas. Joan also sings, and she hopes to get in a Broadway show. She announces that she will be married next month to Sid Bulkin, road manager for Vic Damone, singer.

Now for Marlene Becker, Miss Welcome for 1954, who as a matter of fact continues as Miss Welcome until the 1955 girl is chosen.

Brown-haired, brown-eyed Marlene, who used to be information secretary at the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, now is a "special buy girl" at the North American plant, Downey. That means she is a purchasing agent for the photo laboratory.

She has been there six months, and likes it. She is not engaged, she reports.

Two Leaders Meet Quotas in RC Drive

Two Lakewood colonels in the home gifts division of the 1955 Red Cross campaign were the first to meet their quotas, Mrs. Malcolm Epley, vice chairman of the home gifts division announced at a recent report luncheon.

She presented 100 per cent pins to Mrs. J. A. Woods and Mrs. W. L. Rasmussen. For Mrs. Woods, this was not a new experience. This is the fourth straight year that her team has made its quota in the opening phase of the drive. Mrs. Eugene Hamilton, vice chairman of the home gifts division, said $20,808.46 had been raised in the first week of the door-to-door solicitation for Red Cross members and funds. The division, with Mrs. A. A. Carrey, chairman, expects to raise $85,000 in March.

George McMillin, postmaster, said that he has reached 97.3 per cent of his quota for the federal employes division, which includes the VA Hospital, Naval Shipyards, postoffice, FBI and Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Paul E. Lehr, chairman of the petroleum service and supply division, announced appointment of the following team captains for his division, which has a quota of $5,700; C. A. Wonnell, John Schrader, H. H. Horsch, R. R. House, Bob Collier, Clifford Beyers, Bill Hart, Bill Albers, R. L. Jackson and Ralph G. Hand Jr.

Entertainers will include Kathryn Lujan, Diane Killian, Linda Sue Marks, Mary Ann Buls, Marian Ciarmoli, Marjorie and Ginger Thompson, Dianne Robb, Johnny Allen, Gaby Wiles and Miqui, a Spanish dancer. A coffee hour will follow the show.

Mary Abbott Murray, 2846 Vista St., will be general chairman.

JUST PEANUTS

Camp Fire Drive Slated

Long Beach Council of Camp Fire Girls will start its annual peanut sale Friday and it will continue through March 26, Mary Schellenberg, executive director, said Saturday.

The peanuts in one-half pound vacuum tins will be on sale for 50 cents at stands throughout the area and Camp Fire Girls will be selling them from door to door.

Profits from the sale of the nuts will be used by the council to supplement funds given by the Community Chest.

CITY COLLEGE FORUM

Psychology, Law Series Slated for Adult School

Opening this week of two new lecture series in psychology and law was announced Saturday by the Forums Office of the City College School for Adults.

Dr. Arthur L. Bietz, clinical psychologist and author-lecturer, will speak on "What Is Escape From Reality?" Monday at 7:30 p. m. in Poly High auditorium, in the first of four weekly lectures.

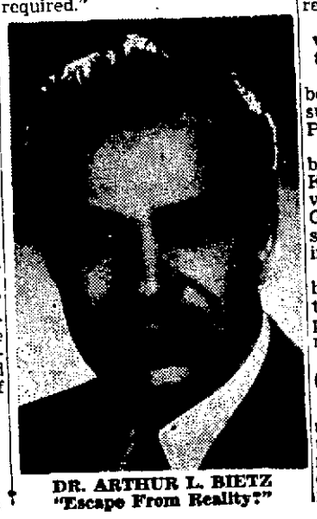

Elizabeth Cochran, Long Beach attorney, will open a series of talks on "Legal Aspects of Family Living" Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in Room 502 of the City College art building, Faculty Ave. and Harvey Way.

Dr. Bietz, professor and psychologist at the White Memorial Hospital and School of Medicine, is a member of several national professional societies and the author of such books as "Conquering Personal Problems," "In Quest of Life" and "The Knowhow of Living."

Other lectures in Dr. Bietz' Monday evening series will include "Making Tomorrow More Valuable Than Today," "Appreciate Your Mature Years" and "How to Face the Real Issues of Life."

First lecture in Mrs. Cochran's Tuesday evening series will be on "'Love' and the Law," a discussion of marriage, divorce and related problems. Other lectures in the series will cover "The Law and Installment Buying," "Property Law" and "After You've Gone."

Purpose of the Law Forum series, Mrs. Cochran says, is "legal hygiene," or the prevention of legal disaster. "We hope to help families to know what situation requires a lawyer and to suggest to them how to handle everyday situations in which the services of a lawyer are not required."

Got any ideas for a bright new name for the Municipal Auditorium Annex?

City officials are beginning to knit their brows on the subject—and have decided to seek help from the public.

Suggestions should be directed to the City Planning Commission, which has been asked by City Mgr. Sam E. Vickers to come up with a name for recommendation to the City Council. Civic groups along with individuals are invited to send in their choices.

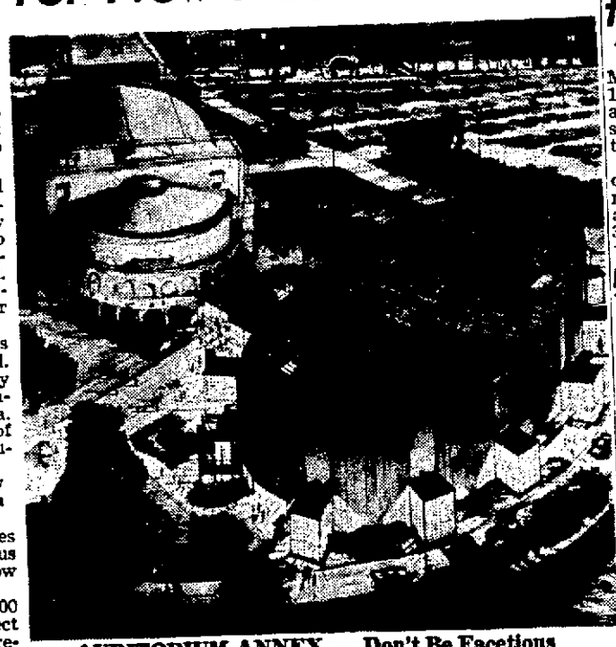

A couple of sample suggestions are already on hand at city hall. Asst. City Mgr. J. R. McHenry proposed "Palarena," a combination of Palladium and Arena. And Howard Jones, manager of the Convention and Visitors Bureau, offered "Aud-Arena."

Both acknowledged they were not too impressed with their own ideas."

Planners suggested that names be kept short—and no facetious suggestions, please. ("Sea Cow Palace" won't do!)

Final plans for the $3,700,000 building, prepared by Architect Kenneth Wing, are being reviewed in City Engineer Jess D. Gilkerson's office. They will be submitted to the Council early in April.

But the name doesn't have to be chosen that early. Construction of the ocean-front meeting place is expected to require 13 months.

AUDITORIUM ANNEX . . . Don't Be Facetious

Canada Populace Up

OTTAWA (AP)—Canada's population totaled 15,439,000 Jan. 1, the Bureau of Statistics estimates. This is a rise of 2.7 per cent from 15,035,000 on the corresponding date last year.

20 L.B. Ships Join Month-Long Exercise

Twenty Long Beach-based ships and an explosive demolition team are taking part in a month-long, joint Army-Navy training exercise which gets under way today.

A total of 50 Navy ships and 18,000 men are taking part in the exercise. It will be climaxed by an amphibious landing March 21 at Hunter-Liggett military reservation near King City.

Today ships of the Amphibious Force, Pacific Fleet, are loading 6,000 troops of the 38th Regimental Combat Team from Fort Lewis, Wash.

They are scheduled to arrive at Coronado March 18. On the following day naval units will stage a firing exercise off San Clemente Island.

Long Beach-based ships participating in the overall exercise are the heavy cruiser St. Paul, the LSMR 527 of Amphibious Squadron 7 and 18 Mine Force ships. These are the Shea, Dextrous, Red Start, Surfbird, Waxwing, Sybol, Murrelet, Impecable, Cormorant, LST 799 and the MSBs 16, 30, 31, 32, 45, 52, 53 and 54.

The explosives team is from Explosive Ordnance Demolition Unit No. 1, a unit assigned to the Mine Force.

In addition, the Navy participation includes the aircraft carriers Philippine Sea and Badoeng Strait, eight San Diego-based destroyers, four submarines and 26 other Amphibious Force ships.

Vice Adm. W. K. Phillips, commander of the First Fleet, and Lt. Gen. W. G. Wyman, commanding general of the Sixth Army, are joint maneuver directors.

After the March 19 firing exercise the Navy ships will take the Army men, all from the 2nd Infantry Division, to San Simeon Bay. Rear Adm. A. E. Jarrell, commander of the Amphibious Training Comand, is amphibious task force commander.

Brig. Gen. W. E. Dunkelberg, assistant commander of the Sixth Infantry Division, Fort Ord, will lead the invasion force onto Hunter-Liggett military reservation.

Navy exercises during this phase will include advance intertype anti-submarine warfare training and air defense and mine warfare exercises.

The 30th Regimental Combat Team will be re-embarked March 30, returning to Fort Lewis by April 5.

Library Week Exhibit Opens

Observing California Library Week, beginning today, an exhibition of contemporary German handmade bookbindings has been installed in the art department lobby of the main library, where it will remain through March 27.

Sixty-six volumes are included in the show. Besides artistically created bindings in parchment, morocco and other customary leathers, there are distinctive paper-bound and plastic-bound books.

The exhibition has been on view in universities and public libraries in the United States. It will be sent from Long Beach to the University of Washington at Seattle, and then will be returned to Germany.

Crowd Flocks to Motorama

LOS ANGELES (U.P.)—General Motors opened the doors on its 1955 motorama at Pan-Pacific auditorium Saturday, and thousands of spectators took advantage of the free admission.

The 10-day spectacle will include displays of current automobile models, cars of the future, a kitchen of tomorrow and a 35-minute stage show.

EYE-OPENER?

Save Vision Week Opens

It may not come as an eye-opener to everybody but this week, in Long Beach as through the rest of California, will be Save Your Vision Week, according to an edict proclaimed by Gov Goodwin J. Knight.

In Long Beach the week will be sponsored by the local Optometric Association headed by Dr. Paul Wilkins. The group emphasizes the necessity of regular eye examinations to protect vision.

L.B. Gaining in Legislative Tide Oil Fight

By MALCOLM EPLEY

SACRAMENTO — End of the first week of the post-recess session of the Legislature finds Long Beach forces cautiously optimistic over prospects of turning back the attempted state seizure of the city's tidelands oil money.

Contributing to their growing confidence was evidence of an uprising among friends of the Feather River project against plans of the authors of the tidelands grab bill to hook it to the water development program. Fears were expressed that this would arouse antagonisms that would further divide sentiment over the water schemes, already a topic of controversial discussion here.

Sounding the keynote of the "oil and water don't mix" philosophy was Publisher Dan Beebe of the Oroville Mercury, whose home town is at the site of the proposed giant Feather River dam. His newspaper predicted editorially that opponents of the grab bill would form a bloc that would "endanger the great project."

Another newspaper editorial circulated here described the water program tie-in as a bludgeon to force Long Beach to give up its oil revenues.

Despite these developments, Assemblyman Bruce Allen (R-San Jose), author of AB 3762, the tidelands grab measure, said he intended to press for amendment of the bill to provide for use of the Long Beach oil money to finance the Feather River project and other water development programs.

As originally written, the bill

Vote Today on Contract at Douglas

Terms of a proposed new contract covering 17,000 workers at Douglas Aircraft Company's Long Beach division will be presented to union members at a mass meeting today at 4 p.m. in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

Agreement on the contract was announced jointly Saturday by the company and UAW-CIO Local 148.

Final agreement was reached in the office of Commissioner Harry Nalcom of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, the announcement said.

Details of the new contract, which also covers employes of the Tucson facilities, will be explained by John Allard, UAW aircraft department representative, and Alec Groulx, chairman of the union bargaining committee, preceding a ratification vote.

Tucson workers also will meet today to ratify the agreement. They are represented by UAW-CIO Local 1291.

Poulson Guarded

LOS ANGELES (U.P.) — Mayor Norris Poulson is under police guard again following a new threat against his life. An anonymous telephone caller Friday night told the operator of a local newspaper, "Mayor Poulson will be killed tonight."

S. Lakewood Voters Face Annex Issue

Voters in a 49-acre South Lakewood area will decide Thursday whether to annex to Long Beach.

A polling place will be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. at 7119 Peabody St. for the first of this year's series of annexation elections.

Pro-annexationists predicted a big affirmative majority. They pointed out that the petition for an election was signed by 146 registered voters. At the time the request was filed, Nov. 23, there were 209 registered voters in the area. The number since increased to 217. Latest population estimate is 692.

Boundaries of the increment—identified as No. 133 by the city—are Brittain St., Karen Ave. and Harco St. on the north, San Gabriel River on the east, a line midway between Peabody and Keynote Sts. on the south and Studebaker Rd. on the west.

Three other South Lakewood elections have already been scheduled by the City Council—for March 17, May 5 and May 19. Others are in prospect later in the year.

Words and Music

By JOHN B. CALLAGHAN

Because of the wide acclaim actress Thelma Ritter won for her TV appearance opposite Jackie Gleason in the video drama, "The Show Off," Gleason is mulling plans for expanding his cast of "The Honeymooners" to include the veteran movie actress. Jackie figures her addition to the cast will provide new story material for the half-hour "Honeymooners" series which starts in the fall. The role designed for Miss Ritter is that of . . . Ralph Kramden's mother-in-law!

One of the "Spectaculars" scheduled for an hour-and-a-half showing in the Spring will feature Roy Rogers and Dale Evans. The show will originate outdoors from the cowboy star's rodeo headquarters in Fort Worth, Texas. June 21st is the date.

Television comedian George Gobel has made such a big hit that things are different Saturday nights in many places where his show appears. He seems to have a large following among the fair sex . . . and up at the University of Minnesota an unwritten law prevails in one of the sororities: no dating until after the Gobel show. Gobel calls himself "Lonesome George" . . . but it's the "Big Men on Campus" who are lonesome Saturday nights!

There's never a dull night with TV in the home . . . especially when a bright CBS TV picture adds to your viewing pleasure. CBS is just one of the fine sets on display at PENNY-OWSLEY MUSIC CO. OF LONG BEACH, 4334 Atlantic Blvd., Phone L. B. 40-7406.

Puller Pulls Wrong Leg

MINEOLA, N. Y. (U.P.) — An auto repairman was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge for pulling a woman's leg.

The difficulty, police said, was that the woman was in bed with her husband at the time her leg was pulled.

The man who pulled her leg was not her husband, police said. He was a neighbor, Charles Kuhn, 28.

Mrs. Margie Slavomec, 30, and her husband, Fred, told police they met Kuhn and his wife at a bar owned by Slavomec at about 1 a.m. Saturday, and had a few drinks together.

They parted at about 3 a.m., the Slavomecs said, and went to their respective homes to retire.

At about 5 a.m., Mrs. Slavomec said, Kuhn entered her home through a window, crawled to her bedside, slipped his hand under the covers, grabbed her right leg and said, "Come on, honey, let's go."

Mrs. Slavomec said she screamed, turned on the light and there was Charlie Kuhn. Her husband threw him out and called police.

Kuhn, the father of four children, pleaded innocent and was paroled until March 15.

Miss Universe Conquered Brazil, Beauty's Weary Chaperone States

Mrs. Jean Solomon, 30-year-old housewife of 9241 Stanford Ave., Garden Grove, is back from an expense-paid trip to South America, and an exhausting trip it was, too.

Mrs. Solomon was chaperone for Miriam Stevenson, 22, winner of the Miss Universe contest last summer.

The curvaceous Greenwood, S. C., beauty made a three-week personal appearance tour through Brazil. It happens that the tour coincided with pre-Lenten festivities and the beginning of the contests to choose a Miss Brazil for 1955.

Mrs. Solomon said on her return here this week that Miriam must have given "50,000 autographs if she gave one" and, all in all, scored a big publicity coup for the Long Beach Miss Universe Pageant.

The Garden Grove housewife also was official chaperone here last summer for Miss Brazil, Maria Martha Rocha, 21, the runner-up.

Miss Universe, Miss Brazil and Mrs. Solomon had a delightful get-together in Rio de Janeiro. In fact, Miss Brazil appeared with Miss Stevenson before many crowds in Rio.

Mrs. Solomon said she encountered no difficulties being chaperone for Miriam, partly because Miriam is so charming and also because the Latins are used to chaperones. Nobody tried to circumvent the system.

Many of the personal appearances were at dances which attracted thousands in Rio and in Sao Paulo.

Latins are enthusiastic and so there was plenty of police protection for Miss Universe, according to Mrs. Solomon.

"The people loved Miriam deeply," said Mrs. Solomon, who speaks both Spanish and Portuguese. Miriam's southern drawl went over big even though the Brazilians couldn't understand it.

One of the big social events was a reception for Miss Universe at the American embassy in Rio. About 250 persons attended, including Dr. Herbert Moses, head of the Brazilian orgafization which will select the Miss Brazil contestant for 1955.

Since Latins are unpredictable at times, Mrs. Solomon noted that the daily schedule was generally "unscheduled, hectic, interesting and conducted on a moment to moment basis."

Miss Universe's appearances were sponsored by Brazilian Film Distributors and Brazilian Air Lines.

Mrs. Solomon was selected as chaperone by Miss Universe pageant officials here.

Mrs. Solomon, whose husband stayed at home tending to his restaurant business, admitted the "beach in Rio is prettier than ours."

"This is summer down there and people swim day and evening. It stays warm all night," she said.

The two travelers departed from Miami and stopped in Trinidad and Venezuela on the way to Brazil.

At every stop they were met by reporters and photographers. Miss Universe was "page one" copy everywhere.

Mrs. Solomon reported that Miss Rocha is "doing well" in Brazil and plans to visit the United States this summer.

As for Miss Universe herself, Mrs. Solomon noted, she plans to graduate from Lander College in Greenwood, S. C.

Miriam's majoring in home economics, of course.

Contractors Due Check in Stock Boom

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Senate investigators asked the Defense Department Saturday for a list of its 100 top defense contractors to determine whether its procurement policies have contributed to the stock market boom.

Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) said his Senate banking committee wants to find out what effect defense business has had on the stocks of companies concerned. Financial data of the contractors will be analyzed.

The committee is making a "friendly" investigation of the surging market.

The request was sent to the Pentagon after Fulbright disclosed the committee is checking about 20 instances in which "tips and rumors" produced market fluctuations. The activity could have resulted in market killings for a few insiders.

For the past two generations, the offices of Dr. Chan, D.C., located at 928 American Avenue, have had outstanding results in treating chronic ailments such as ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, ARTHRITIS, NEURITIS, RHEUMATISM, HIGH OR LOW BLOOD PRESSURE, HEART TROUBLE, STOMACH OR LIVER DISORDERS, KIDNEY OR BLADDER AILMENTS OR A GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION. Men and women from all walks of life come to take these treatments because other methods of healing have failed to help them. Many have spent a fortune in seeking cure before they try this simple, effective natural method of Dr. Chan. Our patients tell us that they wish they had known of our wonderful treatments sooner so that their suffering could have been avoided.

READ THESE AMAZING TESTIMONIALS!

Dear Mr. Chan: "The day I came to your office with my mother and brother I was about to give up hope of getting rid of my asthma attacks. I spent hundreds of dollars for shots and pills but yet found no results. After reading your advertisement, I tried you for my last resort and was thrilled to find that I responded wonderfully. After the first treatment I was able to breathe normally and could sleep better for the first time in months. Now I am feeling fine and hoping others will benefit from my experience with Dr. Chan's Natural Method." Signed, Mrs. Vivian Murray.

To Whom It May Concern: "Five years ago I was badly stricken with neuritis in my shoulders and extremities. My hands and knees were so badly swollen that I could hardly use them. I wasn't able to raise my arms above the shoulders. I was told by several doctors that they have done all they could for me and that I no longer will be able to work again. Finally a friend referred me to try Dr. Chan's Herbal Therapy. After the first week I felt much improved and the fourth week found me walking much easier with the pains in my shoulders disappearing; my hands returned to normal and I had use of them once more. I cannot too highly recommend Dr. Chan to anyone who is ill." Signed, E. H. Irving.

Fighting Loose Talk Big Job in Tide Tilt

A GROUNDLESS implication that Long Beach is using tidelands oil money to make itself a taxless city has been added to the loose talk emanating from advocates of a scheme to seize the Long Beach money for a state water plan.

Assemblyman Bruce Allen (R.-San Jose) has been quoted in newspapers throughout the state in a United Press story as follows:

"It's a question of whether you want a big convention center, fancy restaurant and a city operating without taxes or if you want to solve the state's water problems and irrigate a million acres of dry land."

Allen is author of AB-3762, the bill to seize Long Beach's tidelands money. He and co-Author Francis Lindsay (R.-Loomis) have been challenged already on one statement about Long Beach—their claim that they couldn't find out what had happened to several million dollars of tideland oil money. Long Beach officials told them every cent is accounted for and to have a look at the books.

The clear implication in the UP quotation from Allen is that Long Beach is using or intends to use tidelands oil money for the ordinary costs of government, thus relieving its citizens from paying taxes. Such an assertion would be certain to touch off an unfavorable reaction among taxpaying citizens of other cities.

The Allen remark will be news in Long Beach, whose citizens dug up $5,700,000 in taxes last year and pay property levies on a rate of $1.28. (Some other rates: Pasadena $1.08, San Diego $1.76, Los Angeles $1.83, Glendale $1.10, Sacramento $2.04, South Gate $1.16.)

The Long Beach City Charter precludes use of tidelands oil money to pay the ordinary expenses of government. So do the provisions of the state tidelands grant. And it has long been accepted community policy that the oil money should be spent only on enduring capital projects.

The 1911 state tidelands grant gave the land to the city for certain purposes, notably harbor development. When oil was discovered, the Supreme Court held Long Beach could drill for it, but that oil income was covered by the same restrictions as the land. Thus oil money was used on the tidelands only for purposes permitted in the original grant and in later amendments by the Legislature.

In 1951, the Legislature unanimously approved a bill which relieved 50 per cent of the tidelands money from the grant restrictions. At the time the then Gov. Earl Warren signed the bill, he was assured by Long Beach representatives that the purpose was to use the released money for capital projects, rather than for general city expenses.

Thereafter, the people of Long Beach voted a charter amendment which specifically limits spending the released half of the tidelands money to construction and operation of capital improvements. Moreover, a vote of the people is required on each specific project.

When the 1951 Legislature Act, (AB 3400) was challenged in the courts, Long Beach held up all expenditures out of the released money pending settlement of the case. It is now before the Supreme Court.

So Long Beach has never used tidelands oil money off the tidelands, either to run the general city government or to construct major improvements.

This episode illustrates the difficulties facing Long Beach's representatives and friends in Sacramento. A catchy, but irresponsible statement is made, and can be properly answered only by a long legal dissertation. Thus one of this city's major tasks in this fight is to correct distorted impressions inspired by the opposition.

Great Britain will detonate an atomic bomb in Australia near Woomera which, if you put in a couple more O's, is pretty much the noise that an atomic bomb makes when it goes off.

An expert in such matters predicts passenger-carrying rockets traveling at 13,000 miles an hour. It will be expensive, but the airlines will be able to save quite a bit on coat hooks, of course, since there won't be time, even on trans-Atlantic flights, to hang up the coat and hat.

The American coed who went to see the Prince of Monaco says he told her that his chaplain, Father Tucker, had informed him Notre Dame had the best football team in America. She replied, "second only to Illinois," and "we both laughed." Father Tucker, no doubt, was falling on the floor.

While everyone is talking about the necessity for dispersal as a Civil Defense move, no thought is given to the fact that one bomb on Florida in the springtime could wipe out baseball.

Several congressmen have announced they personally have plenty of dough, but would like for their colleagues to have raises. Tired of always picking up the luncheon checks, eh?

Washington, which has long been stumped by the fact that Communists don't display a "spy" sign on their hats, is even further bewildered by the way some witnesses have failed to wear an armband reading "liar" while lying.

Ike Doesn't Want to Run Again

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower really doesn't want to be renominated in 1956. There's nothing artful or deceptive about his reluctance. It is genuine.

For many months, however, his closest friends and the members of his official family and the political leaders of the Republican party have been talking to him about their hopes that he would consent to renomination. They take it for granted that he will finally accede to their wishes.

IKE

But the position of Mr. Eisenhower as outlined in his latest press conference is revealing. He was asked how he felt about the view of Republican leaders that he was indispensable to a party victory. The reply by the President was as follows:

"Did you ever think what a fate civilization would suffer if there was such a thing as an indispensable man? When he went the way of all flesh, what would happen? It would be a calamity, wouldn't it? I don't think we need fear that."

Now Mr. Eisenhower is absolutely logical about it, but he overlooked one important fact—namely, as long as there is an "indispensable man" around, he will be kept in high office. It doesn't always matter, either, whether he is in full physical vigor or beyond 65 years of age, as witness the fact that Winston Churchill at 80 is still the most popular and politically the strongest leader the Conservative party in Britain can get at the moment to keep the Labor party out of power.

The words "indispensable man" have a familiar ring to some of us who covered the three-cornered Presidential campaign of 1912. It was Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic nominee, who was using the phrase then against Theodore Roosevelt. The latter had served two terms in the Presidency — one when as Vice President he succeeded McKinley in 1901 after the assassination of McKinley, and the other after his own election in 1904. But nevertheless Mr. Roosevelt was being called a "third termer" in the 1912 campaign and was being offered as an "indispensable man" by the "progressive" faction of the Republican party as against the regular nominee, President Taft. Here is what Mr. Wilson said about it in his formal speech accepting the Democratic nomination in August, 1912:

"A Presidential campaign may easily degenerate into a mere personal contest and so lose its real dignity and significance. There is no indispensable man. The government will not collapse and go to pieces if any one of the gentlemen who are seeking to be entrusted with its guidance should be left at home. But men are instruments. We are as important as the cause we represent, and in order to be important must really represent a cause."

Mr. Eisenhower can agree with that argument and find himself accepting the nomination of his own party in 1956. For the President today does represent a great cause—the nation's mandate that he find the way to an honorable peace.

Mr. Eisenhower probably is convinced at the moment that, if his party had to turn elsewhere, it could find a good man who would make an effective campaign based on the Republican record. But this is something to which the party leaders cannot turn their minds as long as Dwight Eisenhower doesn't say the fateful words—that he would not accept if nominated.

Those are words which, on the other hand, Mr. Eisenhower is never likely to say. They run counter to his high sense of duty. As a military man, he has been accustomed to receiving assignments not geared to his personal convenience or desire. He has learned to recognize instantly a call to duty. He, to be sure, had achieved eminence as the Commander-in-Chief of Allied Forces in Europe in the biggest war in history, and he had made a great record. He needed no more honors.

Gen. Eisenhower made it clear in 1948 and in 1951 that he didn't want a political career. But he succumbed eventually to the argument that it was his duty to serve if the people so desired. And when the people of the country—not just the Republican leaders—say he is needed at the helm in perhaps one of the most dangerous periods in all history, it seems certain that Mr. Eisenhower will put aside his desire for a private life in retirement and continue to serve in the Presidency.

Has Kremlin Lost Grip on China Reds?

WASHINGTON—It has been ignored in the Congressional hoopla over pay raises and tax cuts, but the nation's rubber tycoons are quietly waiting for another type of windfall from Uncle Sam—all wrapped up and ready for delivery in exactly 21 days.

The prize is 11 synthetic rubber plants, built by the government at tremendous expense during World War II, but now about to be sold for a song.

For some time the rubber companies have cast a covetous eye on these profitable plants owned by the taxpayers. But now they won't have to wait much longer—due to a quirk of law and the anxiety of the Eisenhower administration to "get the government out of business."

In exactly three weeks—on March 27—the synthetic plants will be sold at bargain prices to a group of private companies unless Congress intervenes to stop the transaction in the next 21 days. Strangest aspect of the deal is that a great majority of Senators and Representatives, busily occupied with the tax and pay-raise battles, are completely unaware of what is going on.

PEARSON

However, here are the facts:

The Rubber Producing Facilities Disposal Commission, appointed by President Eisenhower to sell the government's synthetic rubber plants, sent a letter to Congress on Jan. 27 outlining the bill of sale to Firestone, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber Co. (subsidiary of General Motors), Goodrich, Shell Oil, Phillips Petroleum, and others.

PROFITS FOR USA

Under the law, the deal goes through 50 days later, or on March 27, unless either house of Congress adopts a disapproving resolution before the deadline. The proposed sale price for the 11 synthetic plants—about $260,000,000—is far out of line with either their original cost or their current worth.

These factories made a profit of $73,000,000 for Uncle Sam a year ago. And with the Communists now in virtual control of Indochina and inching rapidly down toward the vital rubber areas of Southern Asia, many military men feel this is no time for the government to abandon its rubber factories.

Incidentally, not one single small business concern is among the preferred purchasers selected by the rubber producing facilities disposal commission to take over these plants. Besides the big rubber companies, the list includes Sears, Roebuck, Texas Oil, Armstrong Rubber, Anaconda Copper, Endicott Johnson and the American subsidiary of Dunlop Tires, Ltd., of Great Britain.

NOTE — Congressman Sid Yates of Illinois, a member of the House Small Business Committee, is making last-minute moves to stop the sale.

BEHIND THE CURTAIN—

The Swedish government, which has an embassy in Peiping, believes Russia has lost nearly all control over Red China's policies. Dictator Mao Tse-tung, an old-line Communist revolutionary, is even reported to view the new Russian government headed by Marshal Bulganin as something of a joke.

The Swedes have come to the conclusion that a behind-the-scenes crisis over Russian-Chinese relations was a tremendous factor in the dramatic purge of Malenkov. They believe this split is now so bad that the Russians will take extraordinary measures to solve it.

Watch out, therefore, for another personal visit by Nikita Khrushchev to Peiping to talk with Mao Tse-tung. Furthermore, regardless of the tremendous shortage of goods in Russia, it's likely that Khrushchev will promise large quantities of arms and machinery to Red China.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Irvin Rankin, Baltimore, addressed a letter as follows: "Mr. 83-85 Per Cent Accurate Predictions, USA." That was all there was on the envelope, but it reached yours truly in Washington, D. C. . . . Astute Belgian Ambassador Count Robert Silvercruys is the brother of Suzanne Silvercruys Stevenson, who founded the Pro-McCarthy Minute Women. The ambassador isn't happy about his sister's activities but can't do much to stop her. After all, it's a free country. . . . Ex-Senator Benton of Connecticut told the Harvard Law School the other day that something ought to be done to give recognition to the "Congressman who knocks himself out trying to master tax measures,, appropriation bills, tariff problems, water resources, etc., only to find his lazy colleague grabbing the headlines by ranting about communism."

TOWN MEETING

Driver's Duty

TO THE EDITOR:

Let's put some common sense before the dollar sign! With reference to auto insurance and Mr. Marshall's letter—he seems to think he is protecting the rights and property of others by buying insurance. The best way I know for protecting others rights and property on the highway is to put responsible drivers behind the wheel instead of a dollar sign. The dollar responsibility does not take effect until after the damage is done.

Not until each and every driver develops a "willingness to accept the responsibility to avoid collision" with another, will there be any improvement in the present situation. A driver's primary duty and responsibility towards others on the road is to keep from colliding with them. I don't believe a liability and property damage policy was ever intended to be a driver's "certificate of responsible driver." At best, it can only take effect after a driver has failed in his primary duty.

Today with the heavy traffic flow, the right of way becomes quite debatable and should not precede the primary duty and responsibility of every driver, mainly, to prevent collision at all times regardless of who is right or wrong according to law.

Brotherhood

TO THE EDITOR:

The week after Brotherhood Week reminds me of the night after Christmas. The pretty phrases are tucked away for use a year later. The flowery, warm-blooded speeches extolling the brotherhood of all men are carefully wrapped and lovingly packed out of sight lest some fool start to ask what happens to brotherhood the remaining 51 weeks of the year.

A very simple demonstration of brotherhood would be the appearance of even a few signs, or ads, proclaiming that property for sale or rent will be sold, or rented, to any American citizen able to pay. Another very simple but concrete demonstration by those who lament, "But what can I do?" would be evidence that people were being hired for jobs in Long Beach on the basis of their ability alone, and not on the basis of the color of their skin.

Questions

TO THE EDITOR:

Why it is that the gentlemen in Washington want pay hikes and then want an investigation of the disabled veteran because he may be getting too much money at around $150?

Why was it such a blunder because the Democrats wanted to stop communism in Korea, but it is the right thing for the Republicans to want to stop it on Formosa?

Why did some local people think it was wrong for the U. S. to claim tideland ownership and said the states should have claim to such, but now say it is wrong when the state puts in a claim for tideland oil?

Why is it the Republicans always shout too many taxes, but call it stupid when the Democrats put up a bill to reduce the small man's tax bill, but never say stupid when the big corporation's tax bills are reduced?

Bus Woes

TO THE EDITOR:

I read an article in your paper about the woes of the bus transportation system.

The bus system is not public but a private enterprise. Any other private enterprise has to give value and keep up with its competitors. Not so the public transportation system. It is a monopoly and is growing stagnant.

The company shouldn't have any gripe about losing business when it isn't trying to keep the business it has.

I think someone should study the public transportation problem, diagnose its ills, then do something about it. It's hard to compete with the pleasure most people get out of driving a nice car. Most cars on the street have only one person in them.

A transportation company has only one thing to sell, and that is service, good service. A person would soon stop trading at a store whose woes were always brought forward. The company cannot succeed when it asks to curtail service because of losing revenue, then turns around and asks an increase fare on a service that is not there.

My proposals: a courtesy program, an extension rather than curtailment of service, publicity and promotion, better public relations.

You can't ask the public to patronize something that isn't worth patronizing.

Teachers

TO THE EDITOR:

This is in reference to Mr. F. G. Nelson's letter to the editor in the Feb. 27 issue concerning the bad conditions under which teachers serve.

If the teacher's value is determined by his ability to do busy work instead of transmit knowledge . . . isn't it time to establish a new set of values?

Civil Defense Proposal Is Truly a 'Pipe Dream'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Val Peterson, Civil Defense boss, seems to be having new ideas all the time on how people can escape the radioactive fall-out of a hydrogen bomb.

MARLOW

Here are some of them:

Last July he said the government was planning a device that could sound an advance warning in each home in the target area, something that could be installed in a bedroom set off by a change in the electric current.

On Feb. 20 he expressed the thought the problem of radioactivity could be licked if every person was willing to build shelters in the back yard, like a simple cyclone shelter for $180 or a concrete one for perhaps $1,000.

Last week he offered three brand new ideas to a Senate Armed Services Subcommittee which is holding a series of hearings on civil defense problems:

Evacuees could hide in miles of concrete pipe—four feet in diameter and covered with three feet of dirt—built along the highways.

Or—machines could run along the highways digging beside them miles of trenches two feet wide and six feet deep for persons fleeing the blast area.

Or—a series of concrete buildings could be set up as shelters along the highways.

While Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass), a committee member, didn't say Peterson was having pipe dreams, he did express distaste for the thought of people lying end to end in pipes and called the trench plan "unrealistic."

One of Peterson's greatest handicaps is lack of enough public interest in civil defense. It was an interest which probably perked up in mid-February when the Atomic Energy Commission issued its now famous report.

It said the deadly radioactive fall-out from a hydrogen bomb like the one exploded in the Pacific last year could contaminate an area of roughly 7,000 square miles, or about the size of New Jersey.

But people may have relaxed again last week when Sir Winston Churchill said the Soviet Union could not match this country in H-bombs for three or four years, spoke of present American superiority, and warned the Russians not to try tricks.

Peterson apparently gives up on people who happen to be where an H-bomb hits. His advice is "not to be there." His task is to get people out of a target area before the bomb arrives, if there's enough warning, or into shelters from the radioactive fall-out.

There is no doubt the country's civil defense is not prepared for an all-out H-bomb attack now. On Jan. 28 Peterson said most cities would have one-hour warning, some might not have any and it would be at least two years before most cities would have four to six hours to brace for an attack and clear out their people.

Some Democrats in Congress have been critical of the administration's Civil Defense program. And Defense Mobilizer Arthur S. Flemming, speaking for the administration, has suggested creation of a special group like the Hoover Commission to study all aspects of civil defense.

Democrats Short on Real Issues

In looking for what Stewart Alsop calls a "gut issue," the Democrats seem to have decided—as pointed out here last Sunday—that their best bet for '56 is to label the Republicans as the party of the rich while they protect the "little guy."

This battle plan is about as original as a Dior copy but it has a familiar look, is extremely durable and the Democrats have grown fond of it.

KNIGHT

In Miami last Wednesday night, Democratic Chairman Paul Butler and Senator George A. Smathers (D.-Fla.) blistered the Republicans for failing to approve the $20 cut in income taxes.

According to Butler and Smathers, who are real nice guys but a little short on economics, the $20 cut is needed to give our economy "a shot in the arm."

I guess we haven't been reading the same financial pages. Somehow, I had the impression that people were buying millions of new autobiles; that the housing boom is still on and that 1955 may be our top year.

While there has been a gradual rise in unemployment, it is also true that more people are holding jobs than before. The population has increased by 5½ million since Eisenhower took office and 750,000 new job-seekers are coming on the market every year.

INFLATIONARY

No one doubts the desirability of increasing the individual's purchasing power. The question is whether the $20 "shot in the arm" approach sponsored by the Democrats is sound public policy at this time.

Its effect would be inflationary. Four million persons would be removed from the federal tax rolls. The government's deficit would jump sharply. Less money becomes available for defense.

The Democrats know all this. Two of their soundest leaders, Sens. Harry Byrd (D.-Va.) and Walter George (D.-Ga.) voted against the $20 tax cut in committee.

In his Miami speech, Chairman Butler assailed the Eisenhower administration as falsely "hiding behind a mask of sanctity, piety and world peace."

He also predicted a smashing Democratic victory in 1956.

Mr. Butler could be right, but barring war or depression, the Democrats will have to find a better "gut issue" than portraying the Republicans as oppressors of the poor.

The shrewdest Democrats I know privately agree that the people still like Ike.

RANDOM NOTES

President Eisenhower told his press conference that he is glad the Republican convention is to be held in San Francisco instead of Chicago. . . . Ike, it seems, prefers San Francisco climate . . . no editorial criticism to keep him hot and bothered.

Ninety-two per cent of the firms replying to Mill & Factory's survey of the practibility of a guaranteed annual wage replied they could guarantee no specific annual wage to workers. . . . Reasons given included fluctuating markets, seasonal sales and varying prices.

Wire-tapping was widely practiced during World War II. . . . The suspicion is held that some of these wartime phone taps still exist in Washington. . . . A number of government officials are reluctant to discuss anything of a confidential nature over the telephone. . . . Wiretapping is an evil practice which has no place in a free society.

L.B. Gaining in Legislative Tide Oil Fight

would take all of the Long Beach tidelands oil money "not now state general fund. Assemblyman Francis Lindsay (R-Loomis), co-author of the bill, has been chief spokesman for the water program financing idea.

SEE PUBLIC OPINION

Allen and Lindsay reiterated at week's end their opinion that public sentiment would swing behind their plan.

They said the big advantage would be that use of the Long Beach money would make possible financing the $1,500,000,000 water program without issuing interest bearing bonds. They estimate the Long Beach tidelands oil will yield at least that much over the long period required to complete the project.

There are sharp differences of opinion here and over the state about the various water development proposals as well as over the legal and moral propriety of the scheme to seize the funds of Long Beach to pay for a statewide water program or for any other state purpose.

Assemblymen W. S. Grant and Herbert R. Klocksiem of Long Beach said they felt good progress has been made in the last week in informing legislators about the Long Beach tidelands oil situation.

"More and more people here are learning of the dangers and improprieties of this proposal," Grant said. "We must guard against overconfidence but I can say definitely we are making headway. It has been a little stormy but there are signs of clearing weather ahead."

Klocksiem agreed. He said: "We know our side is the right side. It will prevail."

TITLE TRANSFERRED

Assemblymen Allen and Lindsay contend the tidelands money at Long Beach, over and above what is spent on harbor development, belongs to the state because the land is held in trust by the city for harbor purposes. Long Beach spokesmen and their friends challenge this theory, asserting the state transferred firm title to Long Beach. They add that passage of the seizure bill would lead to new litigation and that no money would be available to the state for a long time, if ever.

Some other arguments advanced against the bill during the week:

1. It is improper because pertinent questions are involved in the Mallon-Swart case now before the Supreme Court. (The court may rule on the title question.)

2. Passage of the bill would jeopardize every grant made by the state since 1850.

3. The proposed seizure is a breach of good faith, and is particularly deplorable in view of Long Beach's leadership in the successful fight to prevent the federal government from seizing the state's tidelands.

4. Long Beach has developed a harbor and other facilities in accordance with the terms of the grant and has withheld expenditures during periods of litigation.

5. The Allen bill is unrealistic in that it completely ignores the necessities of maintaining, operating, expanding, repairing and protecting the harbor facilities at Long Beach.

The Allen bill went unmentioned at the first meeting of the committee on conservation, planning and public works, to which it has been assigned. Assemblyman Lindsay is chairman of that committee and Allen is a member. They said it will be some time before their amendment to tie the Allen bill to the water program is presented.

LEGAL OPINION ASKED

At his two press conferences during the week, Gov. Knight was asked if he would comment on the attempted grab. He declined to do so, except to say the issues were before the courts and before the Legislature.

Awaited with interest is an attorney general's opinion on the Allen bill questions. Allen said he had asked for such an opinion. The legislative counsel also is studying the bill's legal angles.

Meanwhile, various official and unofficial groups were rallying to Long Beach's support. Action opposing the seizure was taken by the Los Angeles City Council, the San Diego Harbor Board and the southern section of the League of California cities, among others.

North American Aviation of Downey had the third best safety record among the nation's aircraft factories during 1954, Ned H. Dearborn, National Safety Council president, announced Saturday.

Northrop Aircraft, of Hawthorne, was second with .75 and North American third with .79.

Big Year for Busy Little Man

John Seabern is a 14-year-old artist who SELLS his paintings.

John, who has painted since he was 5, and has sold pictures since he was 8, now has 15 commissions for paintings, which he hopes to get done this year.

The lad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Seabern, 89 Rivo Alto Canal, and grandson of Arthur Beaumont, celebrated marine painter, recently had a one-man show at the Catholic Woman's clubhouse, Los Angeles. He sold seven paintings from that show.

HE PAINTS along with adults at the class taught by Beaumont, whom he calls "Pop," every Wednesday night at the Municipal Art Center, and he goes along with the class of physicians and surgeons Beaumont takes painting every Sunday morning in the harbor.

John and Pop were painting a yacht—they were painting pictures of the yacht—one time when John was 8 years old. The young fellow who owned the yacht offered to buy John's picture.

Pop said it would be ok for him sell it.

How much did he want for it?

"Make up your mind," prompted Pop. "A dollar . . . five dollars . . . five hundred dollars. Whatever you want, speak up."

"A dollar," said John.

* * * *

THE YACHT OWNER handed him $2. "One dollar," he said, "is for the painting, the other dollar is for your signature on it."

That was John's lowest price. His prices have ranged upward to $25.

By Pop's rule, John can spend half of everything he makes on his paintings. The other half has to go into his educational fund.

Humphrey Calls for Demo Political Revival in California to Offset GOP Convention

(Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON — A top Democratic leader, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, wants his party to stage a giant political revival in California next year to counter the Republican National Convention in San Francisco.

Humphrey, just back from a round of speechmaking in San Francisco and Los Angeles, will outline his West Coast Democratic conference idea shortly in a letter to Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler of Indiana.

The tremendous economic and political importance of California, in Humphrey's opinion, makes the golden State a prize worthy of supreme effort.

MORE THAN CLIMATE

In an exclusive interview, the Minnesotan told the Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau.

"Democrats must face the fact that the Republicans did not choose to hold their nominating convention in San Francisco just because of the fine climate and the generous hospitality of those fine people. California is one of the most important states in the union both politically and economically."

At the moment Democrats hold only 11 of the state's 30 seats in the House of Representatives and neither of the two Senate posts. The state administration is Republican with one exception, Atty. Gen. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

Paradoxically, voter registration in California is predominately democratic.

"It's a major challenge," Humphrey observed, "both to the national committee and the party leadership in the state."

Humphrey would have the national committee act to strengthen party leadership in California by sponsoring a major political conference there in the early summer months just preceding the GOP national convention.

WANTS TOP MEN

"The national committee," says Humphrey, "should plan and carry out a conference which would have as its objective the bringing to California voices and personalities of national stature.

"It (the conference) should bring together all the forces in California and other western states to outline and study issues of major importance to that part of the country."

By "personalities of national stature," Humphrey said he meant men such as Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic Party's titular head, Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, whose state has many problems common to the California pattern of a mixed industrial and agricultural economy, House Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson, both of Texas.

Humphrey said he would be glad to attend "and join in the deliberations" of such a conference.

California, Humphrey believes, is an excellent example of the American trend toward suburban living—and of the problem this poses for the practicing politician.

"If you want to win," the Minnesotan asserted, "you've got to go into the suburbs and work. California is almost all suburbs, especially the area from San Francisco to San Jose." He might well have included most of metropolitan Los Angeles County, too.

One California Democrat who doesn't believe the GOP convention in San Francisco will necessarily affect Democratic political fortunes in his state is Rep. James Roosevelt of Los Angeles.

Roosevelt, a former state chairman of his party, recalled instances where both the Democrats and Republicans lost the state in which they held their conventions.

Bellwood Hospital Heads Order Addition

BELLFLOWER — Directors of Bellwood General Hospital have given signal for immediate construction of a quarter million dollar addition to the institution scheduled to open in early spring, Eugene De Koven, administrator, announced.

Bids for the 41-bed wing will be sought just as soon as plans, now with the State Department of Health, Bureau of Hospitals in San Francisco, are approved, De Koven said.

The new section will add 10,000 square feet of floor space to the 18,000 initial unit and increase bed capacity to 80.

It will include a 1,200 square foot auditorium to be used for Red Cross pre-natal and home nursing courses as well as a doctors' conference room.

Facilities included in the unit now under construction and nearing the completion stage are two major surgeries, one emergency room, clinical and pathological laboratories, radiology department, delivery room and nursery with outside viewing for visitors.

The new plans call for construction of private, semi-private rooms for 40 additional beds. Ultra-modern accommodations offered through streamlined facilities being installed in the initial units will be carried out in the new wing.

Each bed in the hospital will be equipped with pillow radio and the institution's communication system will enable each patient to communicate with a central nursing station.

Latin Reds Topic of Masonic Talk

Dr. Ryland R. Madison, professor of social sciences at Long Beach State College, will speak on "Communism in Latin America" at a meeting of Long Beach Masonic Club at noon Thursday in the Wilton Hotel.

Dr. Madison is former consultant to the federal government on inter-American affairs. Kenneth Hemphill will be chairman of the day.

St. Vincent Wins 'Blanket Finish' Thriller

Beats Record by 5 Seconds

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

SANTA ANITA PARK — The best things usually are saved for last and that certainly proved true of Santa Anita's stakes program here Saturday when the meeting was brought to a thunderous climax as St. Vincent outcharged Determine and Gigantic to the wire in a sensational "blanket finish" to capture the $100,000-added San Juan Capistrano Handicap before 58,000 wild-eyed fans.

It was one of the greatest stakes races in the history of Santa Anita and can be compared favorably in excitement with the spectacular Noor-Citation duel in the same stake in 1950.

St. Vincent, ridden by Johnny Longden, who scored his ninth stakes win of the season, smashed the track record for the Camino Real grass course by five and two-fifths seconds in covering the approximate mile and three-quarters in 2:46 4/5.

St. Vincent's winning margin was a half-length while Determine finished another half-length in front of the third-place Gigantic.

Alidon was fourth another three and one-quarter lengths to the rear. Then, strung out several lengths behind, came Great Captain, Rejected, Ole Travis, Nearque II, Salmon Peter, Impulsivo, Poona II, The Driller and Arctic Way.

POONA 11TH

Poona II, winner of last week's $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, finished a miserable 11th some 21½ lengths behind the winner.

Poona went out on the pace with Determine, but when Gigantic moved into the picture and challenged for the lead at the head of the backstretch, he and Determine ran the Big 'Cap victor right into the ground. Poona finally chucked it as they started around the final turn.

Poona beat only the cheap plater, The Driller, and Arctic Way, the Irish horse which was flown 6,000 miles from Eire earlier in the week to take a crack at the rich stakes on the turf.

Willie Shoemaker, who rode Poona, said he had "no excuses. He was just loping during the first part of the race, but when Gigantic moved up and I tried to go with him, Poona just didn't have it."

Arctic Way, incidentally, was well placed for a fleeting few seconds in the early going as they raced down the hill, but began dropping back as the field crossed the main track and headed into the infield.

He finally finished 46 lengths behind St. Vincent!

Rejected, forced to come from far back as usual, did not have his usual potent lick in the stretch when the chips were down. It was obvious with still a half-mile to go that he'd never be able to make it. He was second in last year's Capistrano.

TREMENDOUS RACE

It was a tremendous horse race from start to finish . . . the kind true racing fans dream about. It certainly was much more thrilling than last week's Big 'Cap, which Poona captured by 2½ lengths.

Determine and Poona went to the front at the start pressed by Ole Travis and Alidon.

And the manner in which they took command forewarned observers that it was going to be a great race.

They set a blistering pace that stopped the watches at 22 seconds for the quarter, a blazing 45 4/5 for the half, 1:10 for three-quarters, 1:35 2/5 for the mile, 2:00 1/5 for the mile and a quarter and Determine and Gigantic went on to hit the mile and one-half in 2:25 4/5.

Determine and Poona quickly shook off Alidon and Ole Travis as they pressed their "personal battle" for the lead as the field swept down the hill and across the main track into the infield.

They pulled two lengths out in front as they pounded past the stands for the first time with Gigantic moving into position from which to launch a challenge . . . and St. Vincent beginning to roll from his early eighth-place position back in the pack.

Gigantic, winner of the San Antonio Handicap at box-car odds but a mild disappointment in the Big 'Cap a week ago, suddenly made a bold move as the field thundered around the clubhouse turn and headed into the backstretch.

He came up on the outside to challenge Determine and Poona for the lead and the three of them roared down the backstretch in a furious scramble that was destined to leave Poona a badly-beaten colt.

Poona galloped into the backstretch holding the lead by a nose, lost it momentarily to Determine, regained it for a fleeting few seconds, then lost it again to Determine.

Suddenly Gigantic loomed up on the outside to stick his nose in front. The lead continued to see-saw back and forth with every stride and never more than a few inches separated the three of them in their all-out charge down the backside.

CLOSING IN

As they charged pell-mell down the backside at their strength-sapping pace, Longden was closing in with St. Vincent.

Coming down the inside route along the rail, he zipped by Great Captain and then Nearque II, and finally pulled up alongside Alidon just behind the leaders approaching the far turn. That's where he ran into a blind switch.

He got between the stubborn Alidon and the tiring Poona and was forced to steady St. Vincent for several strides until almost halfway around the turn before being able to get by Alidon and work himself to the outside and into the clear.

Poona, of course, was through when they hit the far turn and faded out of the picture quickly . . . but Determine and Gigantic kept up their running battle almost to the end.

First Determine would pull ahead by a nose, then Gigantic would come on again.

That's the way they fought it out down to mid-stretch when Determine finally pulled ahead of Gigantic for the last time even though the latter was a factor right up to the wire.

IN HIGH GEAR

Longden had St. Vincent rolling in high gear at the top of the stretch and the English-bred flyer who loves the grass course came bearing down on the leaders with his not-to-be-denied victory charge.

First he pulled even with Gigantic, then moved on to nail Determine with less than 100 yards to go.

The two of them, with Gigantic hanging on in between them just a neck back, ran head and head for four . . . five . . . six strides before Longden, slashing away with his whip to get the last ounce of energy out of his mount, drove St. Vincent into the lead and then pulled out to his half-length margin in the final five jumps.

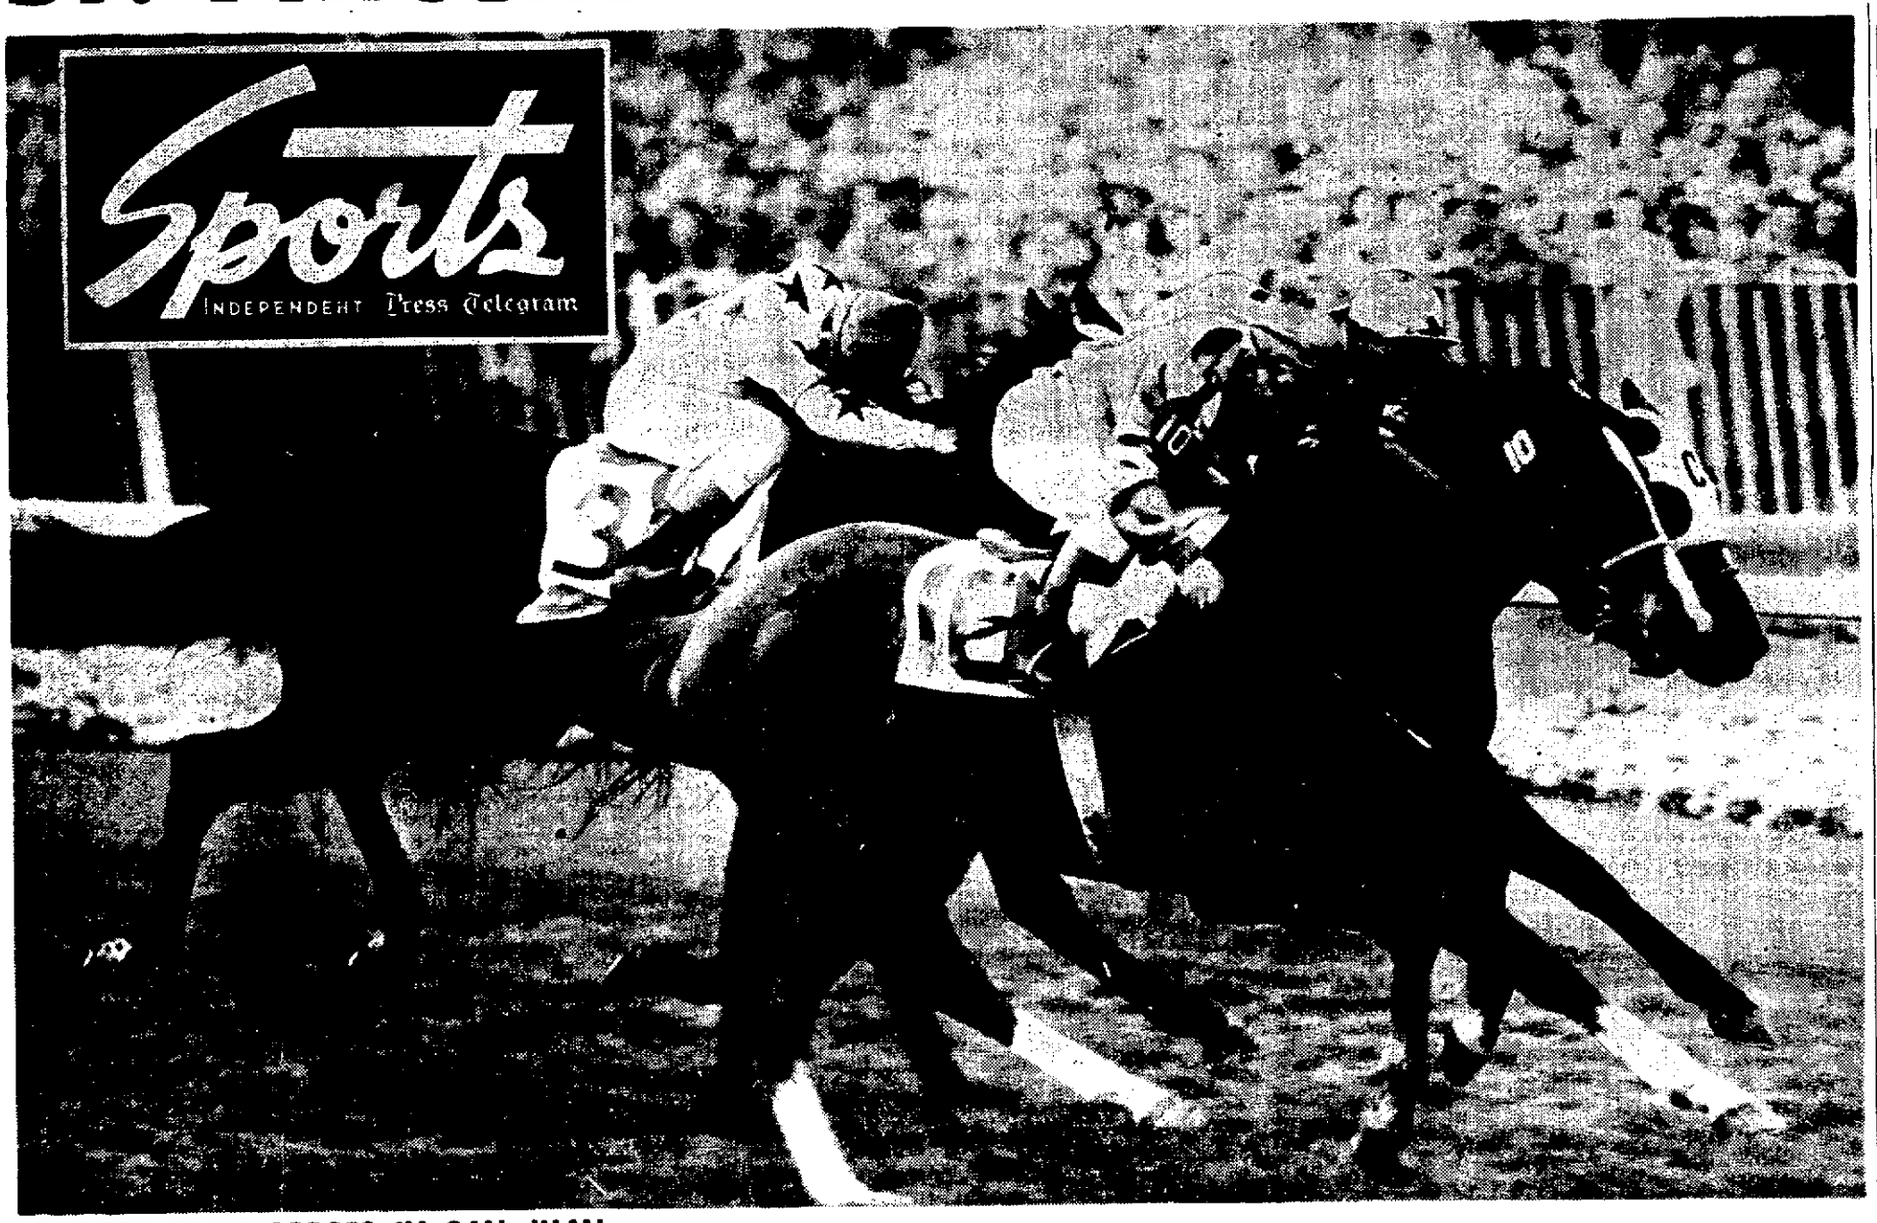

Longden admitted that "I was in a switch on the backside. I couldn't go anywhere—just had to sit there a while. But St. Vincent is a game little horse and he really went to running when we got loose."

Ray York, who has been constantly amazed at the tremendous efforts turned in by the tiny Determine, thought the Andy Crevolin standardbearer, the highweight in the race with 126 pounds, registered one of his finest performances . . . despite the fact it was the first time he ever has run on grass.

"I don't know how he does it," York said admiringly. "He sure is a rough little rascal to beat, though. I had a good hold on him most of the way, but when Gigantic came up and went by us I had to let him go . . . and he never stopped. I thought we were going to make it for awhile."

Roy Lumm said Gigantic ran the gamest race of any horse he's ever ridden. "He stumbled leaving the gate, was pretty

Alberta Ranches' St. Vincent (outside), ridden by Johnny Longden and trained by his son Vance, beats Determine, Ray York up, to the wire to capture the $100,000 San Juan Capistrano Handicap over Santa Anita's Camino Real turf course Saturday. Gigantic, with Roy Lumm in the saddle, was third.

Santee-4:10.4; Richards-15-4

NEW YORK (UP)—Wes Santee, the cocky Kansan who runs some of his best races when his competition is weakest, wound up Madison Square Garden's indoor track season Saturday night with a 40-yard victory in the Columbia Mile before 10,000 quiet spectators.

Santee, America's fastest outdoor miler, was clocked in a lazy 4:10.4 as he won with ease.

Santee took charge with six laps to go and gradually increased his margin the rest of the way.

Joe LaPierre of Baltimore was closest to the Kansan at the finish. Lowell Zellers of Indiana was third and Lewis Olive of Army completed the small field of four. There was so little competition for Santee that the crowd never raised a cheer throughout the running of the event.

Santee had run between 4:00.6 and 4:03.7 outdoors against poor competition five times. But Saturday he never came close to the indoor mark of 4:03.6, which Denmark's Gunnar Nielsen set last month.

Santee hit the quarter-mile mark in 65.9 seconds, the half in 2:07.5 and the three-quarters in 3:08.0.

Joe Gaffney, former Villanova star, pulled the evening's biggest upset when he defeated defending champion Mal Whitfield of Los Angeles by one yard in the KC 600. Reggie Pearman was third and Charles Jenkins, the Villanova sophomore star, fourth.

Gaffney took the lead at the start and never was headed as he won in 1:12.1. Whitfield came out of the hospital three days ago following a bout with the flu.

Bob Richards, of Long Beach, Calif., world's top pole vaulter, set a new meet and Garden record by clearing 15 feet, 4½ inches.

Richards, who had to withdraw from the event last year when he pulled a tendon warming up, scored his eighth straight victory of the season. He won with ease as he cleared 15 feet for the 69th and 70th times in his career.

Jerry Welbourn of Columbus, O., finished second by clearing 14 feet, 10 inches. Don Bragg of Villanova and Don Laz of Champaign, Ill., tied for third at 14 feet, six inches.

Harrison Dillard won the 60-yard high hurdles for the seventh time, beating Joel Shankle of Duke by two yards. Time was 7.2.

Ron Delaney, the Irish champion who is a freshman at Villanova, came from behind in the final lap and defeated Tom Courtney of Fordham by one yard in the 1,000-yard run. Delaney was timed in 2:10.1.

Art Bragg of Baltimore won the 60-yard dash in 6.3 seconds.

DE VICENZO, HOLGUIN TIED IN MEXICO TEE

MEXICO CITY (UP)—Robert De Vicenzo of Argentina, firing a five-under-par 31 on the front nine, carded a 67 Saturday in the $5,000 Mexican Open to tie Tony Holguin of Midlothian, Ill., after 54 holes.

Holguin, who held a two-stroke lead going into Saturday's round, shot a 69. Each has a total of 207.

The Argentine star made an eagle-3 on the 503-yard fifth hole.

Four strokes behind the leaders came Ernie Vossler of Ft. Worth, Tex. Vossler shot a 69 Saturday.

Beavers Explode in Second Half

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UP)—Oregon State came from behind in the second half to defeat UCLA for the second consecutive time and win the Pacific Coast Conference basketball championship Saturday night, 83-64. The win sends Oregon State into the Western regional NCAA basketball playoffs here next week end.

Once again it was 7-foot 3-inch Wade (Swede) Halbrook, Oregon State center, who broke open the game. He scored 25 points before going out on fouls late in the game after Oregon State was safely ahead.

In the slow starting first half, UCLA took a 5-0 lead before Oregon State's Tony Vlastelica dropped in the first Beaver basket.

Oregon State moved up, but the Uclans went ahead seven points, 13-6, on a lay-in by forward Ron Bane. With some hot shooting, the Bruins piled up nine point leads a total of four times in the first half.

Toward the end of the frame, the Beavers put on a spurt that put them to within two points of the Bruins and giant Wade (Swede) Halbrook tied it at 33 all. Both teams fought hard for the wire and the half ended with a 36-35 edge for the Bruins.

STATERS NAB LEAD

UCLA was still hot starting the second half, but Oregon State put on a tremendous shooting show and moved ahead for the first time 49-47 when Reggie Halligan sank a 20-footer.

That was the turning point. From there on out there was no stopping the Beavers. They went into a semi-stall with about nine minutes left.

Halbrook fouled out with two minutes left and saw but 25 seconds of play in the final 10 minutes.

Tex Whiteman of Oregon State sank two free throws in the last five seconds to wind up the playoffs. Friday night the Beavers downed UCLA, 82-75.

Once again the Staters played a fast-moving game and showed a surprising offense, instead of their usual emphasis on defense. Defense wasn't lacking, though, and the Uclans were pressed on their shots. Oregon State scored 48 points in the second half.

UCLA had a poor night from the floor, hitting only 18 baskets in 65 attempts for a 27.7 percentage. Oregon State was much hotter, getting 29 baskets in 61 shots for a 47.5 percentage.

Morrie Taft, who sank nine straight free throws without a miss, was the second high Bruin scorer with 15. Center Willie Naulls was high man with 17. Johnny Moore also had 15 for UCLA.

FREE THROWS HELP

Free throws kept UCLA ahead in the first half, for the team got only nine field goals to Oregon State's 16 in that period, but the Californians made 18 out of 21 free throws while OSC made only 3 of 10.

Whiteman was Oregon State's runnerup point maker with 19.

Oregon State Coach Slats Gill credited good rebounding for the team's showing and said, "These were two of our greatest nights. It was a great UCLA team we beat."

Johnny Wooden, UCLA coach, said his team played about as well in the first half as any time this season, but not in the second half and "therein lies the tale."

Halbrook led the winners in rebounding with 20, and his team snared a total of 50, to 31 for UCLA.

Oregon State will meet the winner of the Seattle University-Idaho State game here next Friday in the NCAA Western regional playoff.

Furgol Leads Barber, Clark By 1 Stroke at Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE, La. (UP)—Marty Furgol, who has won only two major tournaments in eight years, pulled through under pressure Saturday despite a double bogey for a one-under-par 71 to keep a shaky lead in the $12,500 Baton Rouge Open with a 54-hole total of 205.

The hefty 38-year-old Lemont, Ill., pro, who has been up and down in his tournament play, shot a 34-37 to forge to a one-stroke lead over little Jerry Barber of Los Angeles, who was in a tie with Furgol at the start of Saturday's round, and Jimmy Clark of Laguna Beach, Calif.

Barber's precision game was off and he had to settle for a par 35-37—72 Saturday. Had he been able to sink one of two short putts he would have remained tied with Furgol for the lead.

Clark turned in the lowest score of the day, a brilliant 65, to zoom up to a second-place tie from his sixth position of Friday.

Furgol shot a two-under-par 34 going out Saturday, and it appeared that he would again burn up the rolling 6,540-yard Country Club course. But his tee shot went out of bounds on the 370-yard 11th and he was penalized two strokes.

The double bogey six wiped out his earlier birdies, and marked the first time that Furgol has gone over par on a hole during the tournament.

Furgol picked up a birdie on the 465-yard 15th with a 15-foot putt, but missed a similar shot on the 18th and had to settle for a par.

Barber birdied the eighth and ninth holes, but took bogies on the seventh and 13th after missing putts of seven and four feet.

SEIXAS, TONY WIN IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UP) — Davis Cup stars Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas turned in straight set triumphs Saturday to advance to the second round of the Buffalo Tennis & Squash Club's mid-winter invitation tennis tournament.

Trabert turned back Davis Cup captain Billy Talbert with ease, winning, 6-3, 6-1. But Seixas had a tougher time before eliminating young Ron Holmberg, 7-5, 6-4.

In other first-round matches, Eddie Moylan downed host club player Bill Dugan, 6-2, 6-4, and Irv Dorfman conquered Canadian Davis Cupper Lorne Main in the best battle of the day, 7-5, 2-6, 7-5.

MORE COLLEGE SCANDALS?

Gamblers Try to 'Fix' Star Niagara Cager

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UP) — The long-slumbering college basketball scandal broke out into the open again when Erie County District Attorney John Dwyer revealed that an attempt had been made to "fix" Saturday night's Canisius-Niagara game.

The district attorney revealed that Charlie Hoxie, 22-year-old senior from New York City and a star forward for Niagara, had been contacted last Wednesday by an unknown caller. Dwyer said Hoxie reported the call immediately to Coach John J. (Taps) Gallagher, who notified authorities.

Dwyer said an investigation was begun "at once and is continuing" to learn the identity of the caller for arrest and probable prosecution.

The announcement of the "bribe" attempt was held up until the halftime of Saturday's contest, played before a record crowd of 12,363, because the district attorney hoped the unknown caller would attempt to contact Hoxie personally just before game time.

Dwyer also revealed that Hoxie has been under surveillance by police since last Wednesday in case further contacts were attempted.

The new revelation of scandal within the college basketball structure was made by the district attorney at a press conference while the crowd was gathering in Memorial Auditorium to see the two tournament-bound teams battle it out for the "Little Three" conference title.

Niagara went into the game with an 18-5 record and a bid to compete in the National Invitation Tournament at New York City. Canisius already has accepted a bid to compete in the NCAA Tournament.

Dwyer told reporters that the original contact was made last Wednesday when a telephone call for Hoxie came into the Niagara University switchboard at 3 p.m. (EST). The call, later determined to have originated in Erie, Pa., was switched to the basketball star's residence.

"You don't know who I am," Dwyer said the caller told Hoxie. "But do you want to make some money?"

Dwyer said Hoxie broke off the conversation, hung up the phone and immediately reported the call to Gallagher. The veteran coach informed the Very Rev. Francis L. Meade, C.M., president of Niagara University.

Dwyer's announcement marked the most sensational development involving gambling and college basketball since 1951 when revelations of widespread "point shaving" rocked the sport across the nation.

The scandal began on Jan. 17, 1951 when Hank Poppe and Jack Byrnes ex-Manhattan College co-captains, were arrested for offering Junius Kellogg of Manhattan a $1,000 bribe to adjust a game with DePaul. Kellogg reported the offer to authorities who arrested Poppe, Byrnes and three gamblers.

Easy Victory for Niagara

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UP)—Niagara University, unruffled by an apparent bribe offer to star forward Charley Hoxie, moved smoothly to a commanding first half lead Saturday night and coasted to a 80-63 victory over Canisius.

Canisius never had a chance after the first few minutes when the Griffins led, 6-2. Niagara quickly moved into a 10-8 lead at the seven-minute mark and sped beyond reach as lanky Tom Hemans and Jim McConnell led the way with 22 and 19 points. Hoxie scored nine points.

Once Over Lightly

by DAVE LEWIS

After officials of the new Air Force Academy announced the school would field a football team next fall, it was suddenly discovered they had no money with which to finance the project.

Athletic programs for the most part—with few exceptions—are financed by student body funds and gate receipts from sports events.

It is the same at Uncle Sam's military schools. The government does not appropriate the taxpayers' money for intercollegiate sports at West Point and Annapolis, nor will it divert any money to the Air Force Academy for athletic purposes.

Therefore, with no money to go ahead with announced plans, Academy officials were obliged to come up with an idea of raising some cash.

Lieutenant Colonel Robert Whitlow, the Academy's athletic director sent out letters questioning fellow Air Force officers if they would be interested in creating an association for the purpose of establishing sports at the school.

After all, Air Force personnel does give the school a "ready-made alumni."

The answers were encouraging, thus the Air Force Academy Athletic Association was established.

Air Force officers all over the world are contributing $10 apiece to join the association. Applications, according to latest word, are coming in at the rate of several hundred per day. The money will be used to finance the Academy's athletic program until it becomes self sufficient.

THERE WILL be another future use for the association, too.

No school—not even the military schools—can become an athletic power in this day and age without strong outside help from enthusiastic alumni or booster clubs.

Thus, in addition to its great contribution of establishing the sports program at the Academy, the AFAAA will be in a perfect position in the future to help "recruit" topflight athletes.

The Academy, of course, has an attractive inducement to supplement the sales talks of its recruiting staff.

A cadet will receive $81.12 a month plus $1.42 a day rations . . . and the equivalent of a $33,000 educational scholarship at a private university.

Does all this mean that athletes will be given preference over youths who are not particularly interested in competing in sports?

Definitely not. However, if an athlete—particularly a football player—measures up to the qualifications, he no doubt will stand a better chance of being accepted. But, it is emphasized, only if he qualifies.

FOOTBALL definitely will play a major role at the Academy.

In frankly stating they plan to emphasize sports, especially football and other contact sports, Air Force officers point out that it was vividly demonstrated in Korea how much contact sports mean to the military.

A little known fact is that of the more than 800 MIG's shot down over Korea, over one-third were the "kills" of exactly 32 pilots.

And of these 32 pilots, all but one had played football. However, he did participate in equally-rugged contact sports, boxing and lacrosse.

"Such statistics prove we need contact-sport athletes in our airplanes," Lt. Col. Whitlow declares.

The beloved Buck Shaw, of course, will direct the school's first football team.

He has been hired as a civilian consultant for a period of three months, but it is pretty well agreed that he will become the permanent head football coach if he wants to stick around.

It will be a tremendous building job and the first two or three years in particular will be mighty rough.

The school will not even play a true "varsity" schedule until 1958 when the first group of cadets will be seniors.

Competition for the next three years will be confined to junior colleges and small colleges.

But in 1958, the Air Force Academy will blossom into a full-fledged gridiron power with one of the nation's finest collegiate schedules.

The '58 schedule will include a team from the Pacific Coast, one from the Southwest, one from the Deep South, one from the Central area, two from the local area (Rocky Mountains-Big Seven) and, of course, Army and Navy.

THE AIR FORCE Academy will represent a "modern day miracle."

As Lt. Col. Whitlow points out, "It required the Army 153 years to develop West Point and the Navy 110 years for Annapolis.

"Our goal is to provide comparable grounds, buildings, educational training and athletic program in four years!"

The first class of cadets, numbering 300, will start training in July. They'll be stationed at Lowrey Field in Colorado . . . a few miles northwest of the academy's permanent site at Colorado Springs.

Permanent buildings on the $150,000,000 campus will be ready for occupancy in 1957. When the school finally becomes a four-year institution in 1958 with the first class of seniors, the academy will accommodate 2,496 cadets.

More than 10,000 youths already have applied for entrance in the first class. Some 4,000 will receive nominations from their congressmen and out of this group the ultimate 300 cadets will be appointed.

The academy's athletic plant itself will be the most modern and complete setup in the world . . . with plans including a 60,000-seat football stadium.

These Air Force boys mean business!

Pan American Games Begin

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Pan American Games — the Olympics of the Western Hemisphere — get underway this week with pomp and ceremony, and this Mexican capital is as excited as a child looking forward to Christmas.

Over 1,000 athletes already have arrived, have been installed in University City dormitories, and have started training for the March 12-26 games.

About 2,000 contestants from 22 — maybe 23 — countries are expected and all will arrive before Saturday, when President Ruiz Cortines touches off the games with a speech at University Stadium, built on a lava bed.

Playing fields, courts, canals —sports centers all over this sprawling Aztec capital of three million population — are crowded with the hemisphere's greatest men and women athletes priming themselves for the 15-day contests.

Sports experts predict several world records will topple, despite the handicap of the 7,500-foot altitude of Mexico City.

Countries definitely expected are Argentina, the Bahamas, Brazil, Colombia, Canada, Costa Rica, Cuba, Chile, Dominican Republic, Dutch Antilles, El Salvador, Guatemala, Haiti, Jamaica, Mexico, Panama, Puerto Rico, Paraguay, Trinidad, Uruguay, United States and Venezuela. Ecuador may enter.

The 18 events scheduled are track and field March 13-19, baseball 13-23, basketball 13-24, boxing 17-24, cycling 21-25, equestrian 20-24, fencing 15-25, football 13-26, gymnastics 20-23, weight lifting 13-17, wrestling 16-20, swimming 16-25, modern pentathlon 14-18, rowing 17-20, tennis 13-20, shooting 17-22, volleyball 16-25, and water polo 17-25.

Several U.S. performers will be able to compete through a revised plan where they will not fly to Mexico City until March 15.

The list includes Wes Santee, 1500 meters; Arnold Sowell, middle distances; Jesse Mashburn, 400 meters; Rafer Johnson, decathlon entrant from UCLA; Held, javelin, and Charlie Thomas and Dean Smith, sprints.

IOWA BACKS INTO TITLE

Wisconsin Stuns Minnesota Quint

(Compiled from AP and UP)

MINNEAPOLIS—Iowa's Hawkeyes, enjoying a day off from the cage wars, backed into the Big 10 basketball championship Saturday night as Wisconsin upset Minnesota, 78-72, giving the Gophers a 10-4 final record. Iowa has lost only two games and can lose its final game with Michigan Monday and still come off with the coveted crown.

Except for the last seven minutes of the first half, Minnesota trailed the hot-shooting Badgers. A basket in the last seven seconds of the first half by Chuck Mencel gave the Gophers a 32-31 lead at halftime, the last time they led.

Wisconsin, sparked by its two scoring aces, Dick Miller and Dick Cable, dashed to a 45-36 lead in the opening minutes of the second half. Miller scored 27 points, 16 of them in the last half. Cable hit 18, 10 of them coming in the final 20 minutes.

Meanwhile, at Evanston, Ill., a scrappy Illinois quint overcame Northwestern's 12-point lead in the first half Saturday night to beat the Wildcats, 81-69, before 9,765 fans and closed the season in a tie with Minnesota for second place.

Paul Judson sparked the Illini with 25 points, while Harold Grant scored 19 for Northwestern.

Illinois tied the score twice in the opening minutes of the second half, and then the lead seesawed until less than 10 minutes remained when the Illini went ahead to stay at 55-54.

Indiana's Don Schlundt set a new Big 10 free throw record and scored 47 points to tie his own conference record in leading the Hoosiers to an 83-66 win over Ohio State before the home folks at Bloomington, Indiana. Schlundt scored 25 points on free throws.

In the nationally-televised contest Saturday Michigan State tightened its defense in the second half to hold Michigan scoreless for eight minutes and defeat the Wolverines, 83-68, before 8,500 in-the-flesh fans.

Coach Fordy Anderson's Spartans finished their season with an 8-6 record and in fourth place in the final standings. Al Ferrari, Julius McCoy and Duane Peterson scored 15 points each to lead the MSC attack. Ron Kramer of Michigan topped all scorers with 20 points.

Canadians Pick for Puck Title

DUSSELDORF, Germany (AP) —Canada was picked to defeat defending champion Russia today in the decisive game of the World Ice Hockey Championship by a poll of coaches Saturday as the United States wound up its tourney play with a 1-1 tie against Sweden.

The result almost certainly cost the U. S. a chance to tie Czechoslovakia for third place behind Canada and Russia in the round-robin competition. The Czechs walloped Poland 17-2 Saturday and now have 9 points on a 4-2-1 record compared to 10 points for the U. S. on its final 4-2-2 mark. Canada and Russia are tied for the lead at 7-0.

Czechoslovakia still has a game today against Finland, which won its first game of the tournament Saturday by upsetting Switzerland 7-2. Czechoslovakia could win third place outright by defeating Finland, or gain a tie in points by playing a tie with Finland.

The Americans were lucky to get a tie Saturday, for Sweden's Tumba Johansson rifled a shot into the American goal just a fraction of a second after the final whistle sounded.

The game was scoreless until the 9th minute of the final period, when Stig Tvilling scored for Sweden. Dick Dougherty of International Falls, Minn., tied it up with 5 minutes to play.

Russia scored one "victory" Saturday when the congress of the International Ice Hockey Federation awarded the 1957 tournament to Moscow. The meet will be the second major winter sports world event to be held in the Soviet capital, coming two years after the recent World Speed Skating Championships there.

The Olympic Ice Hockey tournament will produce next year's world champion.

Big Ten Track to Michigan

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UP)—Michigan's powerful track team, paced by its brilliant distance runners, rolled up 67½ points to win the Big Ten indoor track and field championships Saturday.

Individual honors, however, went to Michigan State's versatile Ed Brabham, who won the 60-yard dash in 6-2 and broad jump at 23-8 and placed second in the 300-yard dash to pile up 14 points.

The Wolverines dethroned defending champion Illinois by winning seven events, including all of the distance contests except the mile relay, where Michigan placed second behind Indiana which won in 3:19.20.

Michigan State won four events to finish a surprising second with 46½ points.

Kevan Gosper, the Spartans' Australian speedster, set a conference record of 1:11.3 in the 600-yard run with a brilliant finishing kick to overtake Michigan's Grant Scruggs in the last 100 yards.

He clipped one-tenth of a second off the old mark set last year by Leroy Ebert of Iowa.

Gosper also captured the 440-yard run, beating Leon Robinson of Indiana by an eyelash in 48.2.

Illinois, which had dominated Big Ten track for four years, placed fourth with 24 points behind Indiana, which scored 38½ points.

Other team scores were Wisconsin 21, Ohio State 15, Iowa 11½, Northwestern 6, Minnesota one and Purdue zero.

Michigan's Pete Gray helped the Wolverine cause by winning the 1,000-yard run in 3:18.7 and the 880-yard run in 1:54.7. Teammate John Moule captured the one-mile event in 4:21.3 and finished second behind Gray in the 880.

The Wolverines' Ron Wallingsford came through to win the two-mile in 9:26.4, while Jim Love grabbed a victory in the 70-yard low hurdles, where he defeated defending champion Abe Woodson of Illinois, in 8.00.

Dave Owen gave Michigan a first in the shotput with a toss of 58 feet, ¼ inch, and teammate Mark Booth tied Calvin Boyd of Indiana for first in the high jump at 6-5¾.

Illinois' Willard Thomson won the 70-yard high hurdles in 8.5, however, making him the only returning champion to successfully defend his title.

Pole vaulter Dale Foster cleared 14 feet, 1¾ inches to give the Illini a first place in that event.

WOLVERINES SECOND

Six Records Shattered as Buckeyes Win Swim Title

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State won the Western Conference swimming championship for the seventh straight year Saturday night, piling up 123 points to second-place Michigan's 105½. Six new records went into the books.

Ohio set four new marks, with Hawaiian Yoshi Oyakawa breaking the record in both the 100 and 200-yard backstroke events; Ford Konno cracking the 440-yard freestyle record, and sophomore Al Wiggins the individual medley.

Michigan's Jack Wardrop broke the 220-yard freestyle record, and the Wolverine medley relay team also went in record time.

Konno and Oyakawa, Ohio State's Hawaiian-born stars, each won two victories, Konno the 440-yard and 1,500-meter freestyles, and Oyakawa both backstroke events. Burwell (Bumpy) Jones was Michigan's big gun as he won the 200-yard butterfly and orthodox breaststroke races and also appeared on the Wolverines' winning 440-yard freestyle relay team.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Keeny Teran, 116, San Jose, won a unanimous decision over Buddy Baggett, 115, Dallas, Tex., in the 10-round main event at Legion Stadium Saturday night.

Baggett took the first round but it was Teran the rest of the fight. He scored repeatedly with a combination right hand hook and left hand jabs.

Referee Frankie Van scored the fight 64-46 for Teran. Judge Charley Randolph saw it 60-40 and George Latka judged the bout 64-46, also for Teran.

Robinson Pleads Sick; Cancel Fight

BOSTON (UP) — Sugar Ray Robinson pleaded "sick" Saturday night and a scheduled 10-round bout with George Small of Brooklyn at Boston Garden was called off by matchmaker Sam Silverman, who said he would seek to have the former middleweight and welterweight champion suspended.

Joe Reardon, a member of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, said he would meet with commissioner Henry Lamar and chairman Gen. Otis Whitney to discuss Robinson's sudden illness and Silverman's suspension request.

Silverman said the entire card was called off.

According to Silverman, Robinson made no complaints of illness at the pre-fight physical Saturday afternoon.

However, the 33-year-old Robinson called Silverman from his hotel room at 5:30 p.m. to say that he was sick and unable to go on with the match.

Dr. Edward H. Hommell, commission physician, said he examined Robinson and "found no evidence of sickness or injury which would warrant me to postpone the fight tonight."

Dr. Robert F. Moore, hotel physician, said he agreed with the results of Hommell's examination.

The bout was to be Sugar Ray's third in his comeback attempt. He knocked out Joe Rindone in December after a 31-month layoff, but a month later dropped a one-sided decision to Ralph (Tiger) Jones in a televised 10-rounder.

Ernie Braca, who identified himself as Robinson's booking agent, said Robinson was in bed after "falling apart on us" because he disobeyed Moore's orders not to leave his hotel room for three days.

Braca described Robinson's illness as a cold "bordering on influenza" which he said was Moore's diagnosis.

"Moore told Ray not to go outside Saturday because the temperature change might affect him," Braca said, "but he went to the commission examination and when he came back, he didn't feel well and fell apart on us."

"I'll get up out of this bed if you want me to fight but remember, you will be responsible if anything happens to me," Braca quoted Robinson.

"I'm not accepting any responsibility. You might drop dead before you leave the room," Braca quoted Reardon as saying.

The Massachusetts State Boxing Commission decided late Saturday to wait until Monday to consider possible suspension of Robinson.

Vols Rapped by Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky combined a torrid shooting attack and a terrific job on the boards by Bob Burrow and Jerry Bird to crush Tennessee, 104-61, Saturday night and take its 16th Southeastern Conference championship and clinch a bid to the NCAA tournament.

The victory, Kentucky's 22nd in 24 games, was much easier than expected.

Sacramento Team Posts Bowling Win

The ninth annual National Japanese-American Citizens League bowling tournament reaches its climax today with the rolling of the singles event this afternoon at the Virginia Recreation lanes and a dinner-dance tonight at the Wilton Hotel.

Coffee's Strawberries team of Sacramento Saturday won the team event with a total of 2,848 pins to edge Electrical Contractor's Supply of Pocatello, Idaho, which finished with a 2,810 count.

Members of the winning team are Jim Matsui, Joe Hom, Gil Ishisaka, Tsuto Hironaka and Dubby Psugawa. Following the top two teams in order were Times Wholesale Florists of Los Angeles, 2768; Capitol Meat of Sacramento, 2756; W. Fay Co. of Los Angeles, 2753; and Gardena Sporting Goods, 2731.

Prime favorites in today's singles play are Fuzzy Shimado of San Francisco, Joe Sato of Pocatello and Hank Aragaki of Los Angeles.

Doubles events were still being rolled late Saturday night.

Irish Halt Marquette Skein at 22

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—Five fighting men of Notre Dame destroyed the nation's longest undefeated basketball string Saturday night with an 83-64 victory over Marquette, which had won 22 straight games.

The fighting Irish, led by Jack Stephens, who scored 35 points, outplayed the Warriors in every phase.

They outshot them, outdefended them, outrebounded them and outfought them. The fight alone was enough to win the game as players from each team spent a good portion of the time backdown on the floor.

Even the officials got into the rough stuff unintentionally, when referee Norm Kies collided with Bob Walczak late in the game. Walczak went out with a sore head and Kies received treatment for a badly bleeding cut near the eye.

Irish coach Johnny Jordan did not use a substitute until John Fannon fouled out with 3:45 left in the game.

Terry Rand's 13 points was the best the Warriors could muster as they shot poorly and rebounded even worse.

BASEBALL?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pepperdine walloped Whittier in a college baseball game Saturday 33-2. The contest was halted after 4½ innings by "mutual agreement."

The first inning took an hour to play and the second took almost the same time. The teams finally called a halt to save Whittier from what might have been the worst defeat in college history.

Title Crack for DeMarco

BOSTON (AP) — Welterweight champion Johnny Saxton Saturday signed to defend his title against Boston's hard-punching Tony DeMarco, unbeaten in his last 15 fights.

Sam Silverman booked the 15-round match for Boston Garden April 1 and said it will not be televised or broadcast.

Stout Sam smiled away questions about Saxton's purse. It has been reported the titlist from New York would receive $50,000. Saxton hinted he would receive in the vicinity of $40,000.

This will be Saxton's first defense of the title he won from Kid Gavilan, the Cuban Keed, Oct. 20, 1954, in Philadelphia. The decision drew much adverse criticism.

Saxton, 24, has won all but two of his 51 professional fights. De Marco, about a year younger, has won 46 of his 50 fights as a professional and has knocked out 30 opponents.

Webb Cracks 4th JC Mark

BERKELEY (AP) — Jack Webb, Fullerton Junior College swimmer from Long Beach, set a new national junior college record of 2:15.6 for the 200-yard backstroke Saturday.

Webb was swimming in a dual meet which the University of California won 49½-33½.

In breaking the old record of 2:16.9 set last year by Walter Reeves of Los Angeles City College, the 20-year-old Webb set his fourth jaysec record this year.

At Stanford he set a new 120-yard individual medley record Friday of 1:08.9 and a 200-yard backstroke record of 2:14.9, both in 20-yard pools. The old records were 1:14 and 2:19.3, respectively. Earlier this year Webb was timed at 1:32.2 in the 150-yard individual medley in a 25-yard pool. The old record was 1:36.7.

PITY THOSE AL BATTERS!

Lemon Feels Just as Good as When He Joined Tribe

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—It will be no consolation to American League batters to hear that Bob Lemon feels just as good today as when he started pitching for the Cleveland Indians.

Since then, he's been a 20-game winner or better in six seasons.

One reason why Lemon shows no signs of wearing out at 34 may be because he's been pitching less than half his baseball career.

"I'm having no more trouble getting in shape now than in any other year," he said Saturday after a few innings on the mound in the Tribe's first intra-squad game.

The 185-pound righthander has been the biggest winner in baseball since he first won 20 games, in 1948.

As an infielder with Cleveland in 1946, Lemon made only a so-so showing in 55 games. He was given a chance on the mound.

Before the season was over he had a 4-5 record, which earned him a contract as a full-time pitcher in 1947.

"I have no idea how long I can keep it up. I hope it will be quite a while," Lemon said.

"No one can say that he is going to win 20 games in a season, or any other number.

"It's as Bob Feller says, 'it isn't how you pitch but when you pitch that counts.'

"You can throw fine ball and get beaten 1-0. Another day you don't have much stuff but your team gets a lot of runs and you win.

"To win 20 in a season, you have to get the breaks. Sure, I've won 20 games or more in six of the last seven seasons. I've been lucky.

"You also have to get the breaks physically. You can't win 20 if you are laid up any length of time because of injuries. I've never been out for long."

Lemon is not quite two years younger than Feller of the Indians, the only other active player in baseball who has won 20 games in six different seasons.

IN THIS CORNER with DICK ZEHMS

New evidence that home court advantages in basketball make strong teams stronger and are of little assistance to weak teams has been unearthed by Don Drury, the Long Beach City College publicist who dabbles in sports statistics when he isn't in hot pursuit of new superlatives to describe the doings of his Vikings.

In an idle moment the other day Don asked himself this question:

"How good is the home court advantage?"

Since there was nobody around to give him the answer, he set to work compiling an Eiffel Tower of statistics using the Metropolitan Conference, of which LBCC is a member, as the guinea pig.

Don found, after reviewing 112 games played by the eight teams in the Metro Conference, that the "home court advantage" theory doesn't provide a convincing answer when all eight teams in the circuit are considered. His figures showed that home teams won 31 games and lost 25, operating at a .554 proficiency figure. Conversely, visiting teams won 25 and lost 31 for a .446 showing.

Not satisfied with this answer, Don decided to see how the advantage theory worked out when the first and second division clubs were reviewed. And in this effort came the revelation he was seeking out.

First division teams—Valley JC, Bakersfield, San Diego and Long Beach—won 23 home games and lost only five. That gave them an .821 batting average. On the road, they won 18 and lost 10 for a .643 b.a. Now contrast these figures with the showings of the weaker set, the second division quintets, and the advantage is established for good.

Second divisioners — Harbor, Santa Monica, East L. A. and El Camino—won eight home games and lost 20. Their percentage was only .286. On the road, they won seven and lost 21 for a .250 figure.

The conclusion off 112 games then, is simply this: Weaker teams do not seem to gain much by the home court advantage. Stronger teams profit the most.

And to cinch the argument, Drury reviewed the recent season in this fashion: Valley, the champion, had a 12-2 record. The two losses came on the road, Bakersfield, 11-3, lost two of them away from home. San Diego, 10-4, split its losses—two at home and two away. Long Beach, 8-6, lost four away, two at home.

Three upsets might have been inspired by the home court advantage. Drury suggests, Harbor, then in seventh place, surprised Valley on the Harbor court. Santa Monica exploited familiar surroundings to dump the Vikings. So did El Camino.

Don came to these conclusions. Home court advantages make strong teams stronger; do very little for the weaker ones. Therefore, the home court advantage is no myth. It's something no coach or team can ignore. And like television, it's here to stay . . . monster or no!

ANOTHER RUSSELL? There may be another Russell, kin of USF's All-American Bill, to haunt Pacific Coast basketball teams next season.

Bill's older brother, Charles, Jr., is due for release from military service in Korea next month. He intends to carve out a college basketball career for himself, too.

Charlie played two years at Santa Rosa JC before entering the service. He'll hit the books in order to become eligible. Good bet as his future alma mater—University of San Francisco.

Don Woolpert may throw two Russells at his USF opponents in 1956. Horrors! I'll bet the Pacific Coast Conference schools shy away from the Dons!

UCLA-BOUND. Norman Brinker, "Little Mo" Connolly's intended, may wind up as a student at Westwood next fall. Currently he's a sophomore in business administration at San Diego State.

However, Norm, one of America's leading horsemen, is thinking of transferring to UCLA. If he does, he'll bring his new bride, who has temporarily relinquished her royal robes of netdom in favor of the career of a housewife, with him to the Uclan campus.

"Little Mo" isn't through with tennis for good. Perish the thought.

"I'll be back into tournament play in two or three years," she said recently. "I might even turn pro if I get the right offer after we've settled down in our married life."

SMALL TALK. Proof of the Pacific Coast League's new youth movement are the announcements by Sam Chapman, Oakland outfielder, and Dick Sisler, San Diego Padres, that they have hung 'em up for good . . . From the rosters I've seen, the personnel turnover this year may be the greatest in PCL history . . . Charlie Justice, Washington Redskins flash, thinks Sammy Baugh will make Hardin-Simmons a great coach since the "old pro" is a perfectionist all the way.

Giant Yannigans Tie Regulars, 1-1

PHOENIX, Ariz. (U.P.)—The New York Giants regulars and the Yannigans tied 1-1 in six innings here Saturday before a crowd of 5,000 that turned out to see the first intra-squad game of the season staged by the World Champions.

Doubles by catcher Wes Westrum and first baseman Whitey Lockman got the varsity tally. Errors by Al Dark, Willie Mays and Lockman led to the second stringers' run. Each side poled six hits.

Six pitchers, Jim Hearn, Al Worthington, George Spencer, Paul Giel and rookies Pete Burnside and Pete Margoneri saw action.

Spencer gave up the scoring hits by Westrum and Lockman in the fifth inning. The Yannigans tied it up in the sixth while Giel was on the mound. Batting stars of the workout were Monte Irvin of the regulars and third baseman Joe Amalfitano of Long Beach, playing with the Yannigans. Both got two hits.

CUBS: Dee Fondy, showing no trace of trouble from the hand injury that hampered him most of last season, sparkled Saturday as manager Stan Hack drove the Windy City club through another four-hour drill.

REDLEGS: Bob Borkowski hit a grand slam homer and rookies Bob Thurman and Glen Gorbus homered with the bases empty Saturday to give Gus Bell's team a 7-1 triumph over Ted Kluszewski's crew in a Cincinnati squad game at Tampa, Fla.

PHILS: Manager Mayo Smith praised his rookie pitchers Saturday as "the finest and hardest throwing bunch of kids I ever saw on one ball club." The youngsters Smith liked most were Tom Casagrande, Jim Owens, Jack Meyer and Thornton Kipper.

DODGERS: Karl Spooner, late 1954 season pitching sensation, took the mound for the first time since his winter cartilage operation Saturday at the Bums' camp at Vero Beach, Fla. and gave a highly impressive exhibition.

BRAVES: Manager Charley Grimm named ace lefty Warren Spahn, Gene Conley and Chet Nichols to pitch for the "scrubs" in a Sunday camp game.

PIRATES: The Fitzpatricks whipped the Sukeforths in a Pirate camp game, 10-4, Saturday at Fort Myers, Fla. The winners made four errors including four by rookie second baseman Gene Freese. Jerry Lynch was the most potent batter in the workout, crashing two doubles and a single.

CARDS: Ken Boyer, the rookie third baseman who is being counted on to fill Ray Jablonski's spot as a regular, has recovered completely from a beaning he suffered playing winter ball, the club revealed Saturday.

ORIOLES' OLD-TIMERS

Only five men from last year's Baltimore Orioles team were among the infielders and outfielders that reported Saturday at the Daytona Beach drill camp. Johnny Pesky attempts to push old-timers onto field for first workout. From left, Pesky, Bob Kennedy, Vern Stephens of Long Beach, Eddie Waitkus, Bobby Young and Chuck Diering. Doby, Kiner Rap Long Homeruns

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Larry Doby and Ralph Kiner hit homeruns Saturday as the Cleveland Indians held their first intra-squad game of the season.

Doby, American League homer king last season, connected with a pitch by Bob Lemon for a 350-foot blow. He doubled an inning earlier and drove in a total of five runs off the ace righthander.

Kiner, National League homerun leader a few seasons back, got a 360-foot hit while Mike Garcia was pitching. There were two men on base at the time.

All that helped to add up a 15-3 victory for the squad made up primarily of regulars.

Al Rosen failed to hit out of the infield in three chances. Vic Wertz, the other Indians slugger, did not play because of sore feet.

SENATORS: Manager Charley Dressen of the Nats probably wished that he was back in the minors with Oakland today following Saturday's first intra-squad test for his club at Orlando, Fla. A team captained by Joe Haynes defeated a team coached by Ellis Clary, 4-3, and in the five innings stint there were eight errors.

It was an informal contest and very sloppily played. Dressen moved all over the field correcting mistakes.

RED SOX: After displaying mid-season form in pitching batting practice Saturday at the Bosox' Sarasota, Fla., camp, 6-7 Frank Sullivan was named to take a turn on the mound in the first of the two intra-squad games Monday and Tuesday.

WHITE SOX: Manager Marty Marion named seven pitchers of the rookie variety Saturday to handle the mound chores in the Chisox' first intra-squad game today, Minnie Minoso, the recently signed Sox ace, will be in action in left field for the Don Gutteridge squad. On the George Myatt squad, Bob Nieman, obtained from the Detroit Tigers, will play left. If Nieman proves he can play left and hit, Minoso may be shifted to right.

YANKEES: Casey Stengel stated at St. Petersburg, Fla., Saturday that this year's squad was "the best conditioned of my seven years as manager of the Yankees." Whitey Ford is in the best shape I've ever seen him and he'll open against the Cards Thursday," Stengel said.

ORIOLES: The development of Gus Triandos as a first baseman brought a smile to the face of manager Paul Richards Saturday during the fifth day of spring training at Miami Beach, Fla. Richards is hoping Triandos will develop into a "righthanded Ted Kluszewski."

Twinks Sign Lohrke, Return Babe

The Hollywood Stars, who open spring training at Anaheim Monday, Saturday announced the signing of veteran infielder Jack Lohrke, two rookie outfielders and the return of infielder Loren Babe's contract to Toronto of the International League.

Lohrke, the Stars' No. 1 utility infielder, batted .263 last year while performing at second, third and short. He also did some pitching.

Rookie outfielders coming to terms were Reginald Grenald, up from Hutchinson, Kan., and George Prescott, formerly with Denver.

Babe, who hit 20 homers and had 75 RBIs for Toronto last year, did not want to play on the Coast. The Stars purchased him during the winter.

At Palm Springs, the San Francisco Seals beat the Seattle Rainiers, 6-3, Saturday in an exhibition opener for both clubs.

San Francisco picked up 11 hits, while two Seal pitchers held Seattle to seven. Ralph Burns went the first six innings and Marshall Epperson went the rest.

Dave Melton, Seals centerfielder, hit for three.

At Glendale, Portland manager Clay Hooper was impressed with the potential of 21-year-old right-handed pitcher Leroy Han as the Beaver batterymen romped through another light drill.

Hopper reported that catcher Joe Rossi was still a holdout.

Rookies Don Stanford, shortstop turned pitcher, and first baseman Dick Ananias earned contracts with the champion San Diego Padres at Ontario.

Stanford's fast ball caught manager Bob Elliot's eye the first time he toiled and in his first test in an intra-squad game Saturday. Ananias hit 37 homers for Bakersfield last year.

REPEATER

Lesser Cops Amateur

ORMOND BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Blowing hot and cold with the changing weather, Pat Lesser of Seattle defeated Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore 3 and 2 Saturday for her second successive women's South Atlantic amateur golf championship.

Miss Lesser's sharp iron play and chipping finesse in the afternoon round of the 36-hole match offset a cantankerous putter.

Miss Downey, also the runner-up here in 1953, conceded the match on the 34th hole after flubbing her pitch shot and watching Miss Lesser plop one down 12 inches from the cup.

The HOT CORNER by VERN STEPHENS

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—Well, folks, I'm hard at it again preparing for my 18th year in baseball and my 15th season in the majors. And while many people would give their eyeteeth to "winter in Florida," I wish I was back in California right now.

I would much rather train in Southern California than anywhere else.

I've spent spring training in Florida, Missouri, California and Arizona . . . and still say Southern California is the best place to get into condition.

VERN STEPHENS

It is a popular misconception that the major league teams train in Florida because of (1) the climate, and (2) the wonderful ball parks and facilities.

However, despite the fact that California does not have a ball park considered adequate for major league ball, it nevertheless has more and better parks than any other state I can think of offhand. And that includes Florida!

All of the parks in Florida and Arizona, which are accommodating all 16 major league teams between them this spring, are much too sandy to be real good for running. And they haven't good backgrounds for hitting.

By backgrounds, I mean trees or a high board fence behind the pitcher so you can see the ball better. In Florida and Arizona, you have to hit against the sky and it is very difficult to pick up the ball as it leaves the pitcher's hand.

The best park in Arizona is at Tucson where the Cleveland Indians train. The infield is the best in both Florida and Arizona and all the facilities are good.

Mesa, where the Chicago Cubs condition, has one of the worst infields I have ever played on. That is pretty much true at Phoenix, too, where the New York Giants hold forth.

Here in Florida, the new Miami park, headquarters for the Washington Senators, is now the best of the lot.

The Detroit Tigers' training site at Lakeland is about second best followed by the Sarasota park where the Boston Red Sox work out.

The rest aren't much to talk about.

West Palm Beach, where the Kansas City Athletics are training, is worse than many kid playgrounds.

And at St. Petersburg, which is called the baseball capital of Florida, the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals play in no more than a poor Class D park.

The stands hold only about 1800 fans; there is only one locker room and it is no larger than a living room in an average home, while there are only three showers for sometimes as many as 90 ballplayers.

Clearwater, where the Phils are stationed, is just like a small band box.

The White Sox and Cincinnati Reds play in a converted race track at Tampa and all of us believe that Abner Doubleday himself had a hand in laying out the ancient park at Bradenton, which houses the Milwaukee Braves.

The Daytona Beach park in which I am training with the Baltimore Orioles is built on a sort of island out in the ocean.

It's not a bad park compared to the others, except that a strong wind starts blowing every afternoon about 1:30.

The Brooklyn Dodgers finally gave up training at Daytona because Wyatt, Higby and their other pitchers usually came up with sore arms every spring due greatly to the fact the wind is very hard on hurlers.

Baltimore chose Daytona Beach as its training site just as the other clubs select their sites—for financial reasons.

Baltimore was considering three Florida sites this spring—Hollywood, Fort Pierce and Daytona Beach.

Fort Pierce actually would have been the best of the three from the standpoint of facilities and travel. However, Daytona Beach won out by guaranteeing the Orioles 24,000 attendance for eight games here, which will help cut down training expenses.

It is my opinion that Anaheim, Fullerton, Pasadena, Palm Springs, etc., in Southern California have much better spring training facilities than any offered in either Florida or Arizona.

However, the attitude of the PCL has been greatly responsible for driving the teams to Florida and Arizona.

I still maintain that our own Recreation Park field is one of the most beautiful settings for a ballpark in the country. Adequate stands and locker rooms and a grass field would give Long Beach the finest spring training camp in the country.

However, in recent years major league teams have refused to play there because of the condition of the field. It is too hard and too dangerous.

Spring training has certainly changed—for the better—since I broke into baseball.

The veterans were really rough on rookies during the spring up until the last few years. In fact, rarely did a regular even talk to a recruit.

Now the veterans introduce themselves to the rookies and try to help them in every way they can.

The rookies, however, are still targets for a certain amount of horseplay. They have to go through sort of a "hazing" similar to that received by pledges in fraternities.

The veterans love to see a gullible kid walk into camp. And you'd be surprise how many fall for such obvious routines as being told to ask the clubhouse attendant for the foul line stretcher, or the key to the pitcher's box, etc.

No matter how many times you've been to spring training, it's still a great thrill and experience to be on hand when the major league clubs lift the lid on their annual conditioning grind!

Red Lynn Hurls for Locals in Exhibition

The Long Beach Rockets, one of the Southland's top semipro nines, step up a few notches this afternoon when they face the rejuvenated Los Angeles Angels in an exhibition game at Amerige Park in Fullerton. Game time is 2 p.m.

It will be a novel experiment for the Rockets, composed mostly of local ex-high school and City College products. All of the Rocket players have had minor league experience and first baseman Jack Graham was a major league regular with the old St. Louis Browns.

At any rate, promoter Bill Feistner and field manager Walt Carson of the Rockets have promised to make an appearance. In fact, the Rockets have enough talent to give the Angels a real battle.

Feistner has signed veteran Red Lynn, former Angel and Hollywood favorite, as his starting pitcher for today. Lynn was a member of the semipro L. A. All-Stars, who temporarily disbanded last week. He will be out to make a good showing against his former Angel mates in hopes of getting another shot in the PCL.

The Rockets will have three pitchers in the bullpen to back Lynn. Larry Jones and Chuck Adams, both ex-Poly boys, have had experience in the Class C California League and Don Tisnerata, a Jordan grad, pitched for Edmonton of the Class A Western International League last year.

Al Zigleman and Tim Knorzer will divide the Rocket catching, Graham will be at first base, Chuck Winslow at second, Red Mealrs at short and Dave Rush and Joe Cochran will share the third base job. The Rockets have five outfielders available, led by hard-hitting Harry Minor of Columbus in the International League. The others are George Selfridge, Bob Carter, Don Taylor and Ev Pearson.

Angel manager Bill Sweeney announced that at least three of his 1954 holdovers will see action. Scrappy Gene Mauch will open at second base. Bob Usher will be in rightfield and Tommy Brown will be in left. Rookies will fill the rest of the L. A. lineup.

Blast U.S. Hospitality

COPENHAGEN (AP) — World indoor mile champion Gunnar Nielsen of Denmark has returned home from the United States complaining of the lack of American hospitality and vowing never again to take part in an indoor track meet.

Nielsen said that he was refused permission to run in Milwaukee where he has friends, that promoters provided no entertainment of any sort and that "indoor meets are shows — not sport."

Norwegian star Audun Boysen left New York for Oslo Saturday and told newsmen that running on boards hurt his legs, there was little U. S. hospitality and indoor meets were circuses.

Speedboat Season Starts Soon

By BOB RUSKAUFF

The season begins today for the speedboaters, who look toward 1955 as their greatest race year, with the greatest racemeets at the West's most colorful course, Long Beach Marine Stadium.

Hanson Dam, five miles past Sunland, is the spot today, however, and stock outboard drivers will draw first blood.

A 16-heat program for eight stock classes of runabouts and hydroplanes is slated to start at 11 a.m., according to Race Chairman Bud Vanderbush of the United Speedboat Association.

Ed Lindberg of Long Beach, who is USA pit manager for the year, expects he'll be wrangling upward of 75 boats in and out of the water, in what is billed as the "Fur Coat Regatta."

For the third year Don Thompson has been named as chairman of the traditional Memorial Day inboard classic, which the Belmont Shore Lions Club will again sponsor May 30 at Marine Stadium.

Thompson met Saturday evening with officials of Southern California Speedboat Club to lay plans for the meet, which will lead off three national holiday regattas at Long Beach for the potent inboards.

West Long Beach Lions Club will conduct action July 4 and the SCSC on Sept. 5.

A petite sailing lass, Nancy Corkett, will hold a 5½-point lead over Saint Cicero, with Jim Linderman hugging third spot this afternoon, as trim little Lehman dinghies conclude the Phelps-Terkel series off Newport Harbor Yacht Club, on the bay.

4 Marks Fall in SC Spike Win

LOS ANGELES (U.P.) — Four meet records fell Saturday as the always strong University of Southern California track team defeated UCLA in their second annual relay carnival at UCLA.

The Trojans won on the basis of aggregate scoring in the field events, meaning an event was won by the team having the three best performers. No scoring was kept in the track events.

The new meet records were in the distance medley relay, won by SC in 10:12.09; in the 440 relay, won by UCLA in 41.9; in the mile relay, won by SC in 3:18.2; and in the two-mile relay, won by SC in 7.54.8.

Mike Larrabee's 48.3 anchor paced SC's four-man mile team and Phil White's 1:57.1 was speediest in the two-mile event.

Ray Martin scored his third victory over Bruin Don Vick in four starts this spring by putting the shot 54 ft. 4¾ in. Vick did 53-6¼.

In other events, SC's Floyd Jeter and Ernie Shelton tied for first in the high jump at 6 ft. 7¾ in., UCLA's Jim Ball won the 120-yard high hurdles in 15 flat; UCLA's Ron Drummond won the discus throw with a toss of 165 ft. 3 in.; and SC's Ronnie Morris won the pole vault at 13 ft. 9 in.

Lions Open Play in NAIA Monday

Coach Billy Donovan's Loyola Lions and 31 other teams will open fire beginning Monday in the week-long NAIA basketball tourney in Kansas City's Municipal Auditorium. The Lions will oppose Southwestern of Winfield, Kansas at 9 p. m. Monday night.

The tourney will open at 9 a. m. (PST) Monday when Alderson-Broaddus of Philippi, W. Va., meets Minot (N.C.) Teachers College. Seven games will follow Monday with eight games scheduled in first-round completion Tuesday.

Finals will be played Saturday, March 12, and a new champion is assured, since the defending titleholder, St. Benedict's of Atchison, Kan., failed to qualify this year.

Honors for Sooners

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Oklahoma won the 1955 Big Seven Conference swimming championships Saturday in a rivalry with Iowa State that produced new records in 10 of the 12 swimming events.

BLUE RULER 5-1

Nashua Derby Future Book Favorite; Summer Tan 2nd

TIJUANA, Mexico (U.P.)—Nashua was listed the favorite at 5-2 Saturday in the first issue of the Caliente Future Book on the Kentucky Derby, which is run May 10.

The Belair Stud's thoroughbred was even money to place and 1-2 to show. Summer Tan, placed above Nashua in the Experimental handicap by one pound at 128, was rated second choice at 4-1.

Blue Ruler, listed at 5-1, was put well ahead of the horses that beat him in the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby in which he was third. Jean's Joe, second in the Derby, was 8-1, while the winner of the race, Swaps, was listed 10-1.

Undefeated Boston Doge was fourth at 6-1. Royal Coinage was listed at 10-1, Saratoga 12-1, and Summer Solstice, Prince Noor, Munchausen and Flying Fury followed at 15-1.

Nashua Heads 125 Derby Nominees

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (U.P.)—A total of 125 nominations, the smallest in six years, was announced Saturday for the 81st and richest running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, May 7, with $100,000 guaranteed to the winner.

The guaranteed figure should be easy to meet. The value of the blue ribbon classic has been increased to $125,000 in added money and the total cost to start a horse raised from $1,050 to $1,600.

Thus with only 10 starters the Kentucky Derby for 1955 would be worth a total of $152,500 with a net purse of $108,400 going to the winner, topping the record of $102,050 earned by Andrew J. Crevolin's Determine a year ago. The second horse gets $25,000, the third $12,500 and the fourth $5,000 as these prizes also were increased.

The list set the number of potential triple crown winners at 79, for that many colts also appeared among both the record 152 Preakness nominations and the 118 Belmont Stakes eligibles.

Heading the list was Nashua, Belair Stud's champion who recently won the $100,000 added Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah Park, along with Montpelier's Saratoga, the colt who trailed him home. The West Coast had the $100,000 added Santa Anita Derby winner on the roster in Rex C. Ellsworth's Swaps, as well as Jean's Joe and Blue Ruler, the Murcain Stable colts who finished second and third behind him.

In addition, Paul Andolino's unbeaten Boston Doge, winner of the Hibiscus and Bahamas Stakes, and Hasty House Farm's Prince Noor, winner of the Everglades at Hialeah Park, graced the star-studded list.

Other stakes winners from Santa Anita's winter meeting were Battle Dance, winner of the Los Feliz for Taylor Crest Farm, and In Reserve, one of two fillies nominated, who won the Santa Ynez Stakes for the Alberta Ranches of Calgary, Ont. Claiborne Farm named the other filly in Delta, one of the best of her age and sex a year ago.

Leading the outstanding juveniles of 1954 who have yet to race this season was Mrs. John W. Galbreath's Summer Tan, winner of the $269,965 Garden State Stakes last fall. Summer Tan was rated one pound higher than Nashua at 128 pounds in the Experimental Handicap ratings.

Other promising young thoroughbreds nominated include Royal Coinage, Flying Fury, Trentonian, Bunny's Babe, Roman Patrol, Georgian, Our Prince, Simmy, Beau Busher, Chuck Thompson, Door Prize, Fleet Path, Gold Box, Munchausen, Right Down, and Traffic Judge.

It was a belated Homecoming for George Kerrigan at Virginia CC last week.

Kerrigan took over the teaching pro chores at the club in the absence of head pro Joe Robinson, who began a temporary leave of absence to recover from recent illness.

As a 23-year-old in 1923, Kerrigan received a big boost in his young career with appointment at Virginia, one that lasted a year. Thirty-two years wiser and an established success as a teaching pro in the East, he's returned.

Asked if he noticed any marked change in the Virginia course, Kerrigan replied:

"There have been many alterations in the layout, but it still plays about as tough as it did thirty years ago. I held the course record of 65 when I was pro and they're not shooting much better these days."

Kerrigan recalled Ed Jones, Gene Stanley and Fred Hicks as being exceptionally fine players at Virginia then and remarked that he was pleased to find Jones and Stanley still active in the club.

GEORGE KERRIGAN
Teaching at Virginia CC

Although very active, himself, during all of the three decade interval of his absence from Virginia, it was Kerrigan's experiences in the "Roaring Twenties," golf's first boom days in this country, that are particularly captivating.

"Golf was almost exclusively a rich man's sport in the Twenties. Among my pupils were such financiers as Charles Schwab and Eugene Grace of Bethlehem Steel and E. B. McLean, the billionaire owner of the famous Hope Diamond."

Kerrigan's story of McLean's entrance into golf is a good illustration of those times — when little was thought impossible if one possessed the money and incentive.

"McLean was a good friend of President Warren Harding, who was an enthusiastic golfer. One day, Harding was telling McLean of the difficulty of breaking 80. McLean scoffed at the remark and bet the President $500 that he would break 80 in his first official round of play.

"The bet became all-consuming to McLean, who promptly built his own private course and hired his own personal pro. After almost a year of constant practice, McLean informed the President he was ready.

"He shot a 78 and won the bet!"

(Kerrigan interjected, in good-old teaching pro fashion, that the story is also a good example of what practice can mean.)

"My biggest playing victory during those days came in an exhibition match with Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood at Bar Harbor, Maine. My game wasn't going well at the time and I realized how important a good showing in such company would mean.

"Much to my amazement and to that of the gallery of some 3,000, I shot a 65 to win.

"My most disappointing experience came in the 1924 S C - P G A championships at Brentwood CC.

"I was playing Dick Linares of Recreation Park in the finals and we were even going into the 18th hole. My approach was a dandy and I was lying in two about five feet from the pin. But Linares delivered his approach a few feet closer and in a direct stymie between my ball and the cup. Attempting to chip over it, I hit his ball like a billiard shot and it went right into the cup for the title."

Kerrigan came back the following year to beat Hutt Martin in the finals.

Long Beach welcomes back George Kerrigan!

TWO MAJOR women's club tournaments begin this week.

Play starts Monday in the annual Lakewood 54-hole medal Vic Baker tournament with Dorothy Clarke defending her name on the perpetual trophy in honor of the club's veteran head pro.

The Recreation Park ladies will open the first annual Maurice Carl 54-hole medal tourney on Tuesday. Carl, long-time supporter and promoter of Park junior golf, will donate a perpetual trophy, to be won by the low net victor over the field.

Among those who will be in contention for the title are Kay Beemer, Ura Seares, Adele Lahmann and Dorothy King — all who broke 100 for the first time last week.

HOLE-IN-ONE happy were Bill Elgin, Jr., Ronald Hargreaves and Harold French.

Elgin of 909 Newport Ave. aced the 128-yard eighth hole at the South Course with an 8-iron in a foursome with Tut Hall, Shelby Sampson and Lance Harner.

Hargreaves of 775 Junipero Ave., chose the 180-yard sixth at the South Course while playing with William Owen, Tony Kopp and Lenny Freidberg.

French of 4409 Stanbridge Ave. connected on Lakewood's 175-yard 17th with a 5-iron. It was French's first in 20 years and was witnessed by Claud Ward, Bob Robertson and club professional Bob Neill.

DICK LAWSON, JR., 70-8, fired a sensational 62 to win the Virginia Men's Club Saturday Sweepstakes and highlight competition that saw 20 players break 70 net.

Ralph Irwin, 72-9, was a stroke behind in second place followed by Bob Reid, 74-9—65, and Stewart Small, 74-8—66. Tied at 67 were W. W. Schooling, 78-11; Alan Hess, 79-12; and Milt Arthur, 77-10. Don Schorovsky, 75-7; Bud Hamilton, 78-10; J. V. Evans, 77-9; Del Walker, 70-2; Jess Shackelton, 81-13; Dennis Scifres, 78-10, and Dr. Cliff Easley were grouped at 68.

Blind Bogey (77) victors were Don Berry, Harry Bouchier, William Kinley, Hal Leedy, W. W. Bradley, Bert Galleher and D. S. Perkins.

Service Fives in L.B. Play

Five of the leading service teams in the area open fire in the LBCC gym Monday night in the first annual Long Beach Armed Forces Invitational basketball tournament.

The El Toro Marines, sparked by Dick Rawlings of St. John's (Minn.), are favored to win the three-day local tourney. Doubleheaders are scheduled Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Other teams entered are Long Beach Navy, Coast Guard, Fort MacArthur and the Long Beach Jets (Air Force). L. B. Navy is considered the tourney darkhorse, but draws the rugged El Toro quintet in Monday night's opener at 7:15.

Rawlings captained the St. John's team in two of his four letterman years. He stands 6-3 and has a variety of fine shots. Teaming with Rawlings to form El Toro's potent 1-2 punch is Bob (Stretch) Caraway, 6-4 center from Illinois, who is considered one of the top college prospects playing service ball.

L. B. Navy will field an all-star team composed of members from the high scoring T. I. Navy base, directed by Frank Kirkland. The team includes two former all-state prep stars, J. J. Blechman from Tennessee and Bud Beckett from Indiana; Russ Nystad, center from University of New Mexico; Steve Narracci from the University of Connecticut, and Don Reed from Oklahoma A&M.

Major Gustav A. Kraft coaches the L. B. Jets, who meet the Ft. MacArthur Eagles in Monday night's second game at 9:15. Tom Burford coaches the Eagles. El Toro is coached by T/S J. B. Moore and the Coast Guard quint is managed by Lt. James Frost.

Tuesday night's games will find Monday night's losers battling at 7:15 and the El Toro-L. B. Navy winner meeting the Coast Guard at 9:15. Finals are scheduled Thursday.

Tournament director Richard W. Barnes announced that all games will be open to the public free of charge. The L. B. Armed Forces Service Commission is sponsoring the affair as part of its athletic program for local servicemen.

rank going down the hill, but once we got in the clear he ran a powerful race."

St. Vincent, the public choice, paid $7.20, 4.30 and 3.30 across the board. Determine, the sentimental favorite with the crowd, and coupled with Alidon, returned $4.70 and 4.00, while Gigantic's show price was $8.40.

It was St. Vincent's third stakes victory over the grass course this winter and was accomplished under the burden of 123 pounds, third highest in the race.

He was purchased by Max Bell, Calgary publisher and one of the partners in the Alberta Ranches stable, for 5,100 British pounds after seeing him run a swift mile in almost as fast time as the feature stakes race on the same card in England. George Gardiner, Toronto stock broker, is a joint owner of the horse along with the Alberta Ranches.

St. Vincent's victory is another feather in the cap of Vance Longden, Johnny's son, who is chief trainer for the Alberta Ranches string.

19-Day Harness Meet Opens Saturday

Harness racing follows the thoroughbreds into Santa Anita this week with two stakes highlighting the opening of the 19-day WHRA spring meeting Saturday.

The $4,000-added Riverside Trot and the $4,000-added Arcadia Pace are the opening day co-features.

Some of the nation's top sulky stars have been training for the meeting at Del Mar and at the Bay Meadows combination harness-quarterhorse meet, which closed Saturday.

Leon Boring, readying a large public stable at Del Mar, appears to have a strong hand in the Riverside with J. G. McNamara's R. K. Giers and Mrs. Al Eastin's Song of Scotland, both of whom have turned in sparkling drills lately. Veteran Jake Rodman also will have Herman Graham's Joan's Victor in peak form and he is a stout contender.

In the north, driver-trainer Ken Cartnal apparently has a top trotter in William Lachenmaier's Style Prince. The horse has been away from competition for two years but showed he is back in sound condition recently by finishing a strong second to Diana Volo.

The Arcadia also will draw top contenders from both the north and south. Charles Henry's Black Andy tops the band which will journey to Santa Anita from the San Mateo meet. The five-year-old gelding has scored three straight wins in the north for Driver-Trainer Jack Williams Jr.

Little Ralph was also a good winner recently for his owner Ralph Finney, who sent his charge against the leading free-for-all competition at the WHRA meet last fall at Hollywood Park.

At Del Mar, Larry Masterton has Walton Stable's Hank W. ready for a shot at the Arcadia. Fourth in the Western Pace last fall, Hank W.'s best victory at Hollypark was a 2:04 win against class B competition.

It is reported from the Del Mar training quarters that Stan Adams, leading driver last fall with 14 wins, will have one of the most powerful stables at the spring meeting. The Indiana veteran has C. W. Clark's Express Hal in good form to defend his title in the $15,000-added Californian Pace April 7, and he will have one of the top trotters on the grounds in Clark's Sharp Note, the 1952 Hambletonian winner.

BOWLING ALONG

Japanese-American Citizens League bowlers wind up their ninth annual national tournament today at the Virginia and Ken Mar alleys with an awards dinner and dance tonight at the Wilton.

It climaxes a four-day pin binge for over 500 Nisei men and women. Teams participated from as far East as Chicago and west as Hawaii.

Kenny Martinson, of the Ken Mar, reveals he bid for the tourney two years ago. The overflow entries allowed him to share facilities with the Virginia.

UNUSUAL incidents were the rule rather than exception in last week's league play. For instance:

Nelda Jenkins in the Tuesday Housewife Foursome at Lakewood fired a 178 triplicate for a 534. . . . Helm's Tires, in the Monday 865 Scratch at the Blvd., blasted a new team high series of 2,852. . . . Two men on the same team in the 925 Classic at the Blvd. twirled 269 games for new season high marks. They were Slim Troost and Chuck Newey. . . . Bill Vance in the Monday Pacific Valve at North Long Beach, clicked off a 252. He owns a 144 book. . . .

Also in Monday's activity at North Long Beach, the "800" scratch. Bill McGaffey who owns a 127 book, twirled a 201-201-566. It was his first 200 game and initial 500 series. Vic Hodge came up with an all spare game of 179. . . . Ethel Staton, 120 book, fired a 168 in the Monday Mixed Trio at the Belmont. Another low average pinsman coming up with a top effort was D. Solomon in the Blvd. 800 handicap. He managed a 202-530. . . .

Fire Dept. "B" fired a game total of 1,012 in the City Employes wheel at the Major. Their average is 841.

Mrs. Lou Galaz licked all the men in the North Long Beach Mixed Wednesday with a 201-573. Gloria Woods, 117 book, rolled her highest game ever, a 186. . . .

Lowell Beckman deserves a paragraph all his own. Lowell cut loose with 11 strikes in a row in the 875 at Va. He sheared off eight on his final ball for a 298. He'll receive a special award from the ABC.

HITHER AND YON:

The thrill of bowling on opening night of the ABC tournament every year more than compensates for the odds against his team's ever winning any prizes, is the way George Lazzaroni looks at it. Lazzaroni, who operates the Hotel Clair bowling lanes at Lake Geneva, Wis., will again have his team, which had reservation No. 1 for the 1955 tournament, on this year's opening night squad at Fort Wayne, March 26.

The ABC is attempting to find the national average of bowlers. In the March mailing of award kits to some 42,000 leagues will be included a questionnaire relative to averages in each league.

Wrestling Switched to Tuesday

Wrestling's big switch to Tuesdays takes effect here this week as the professional grunt and grimace artists check into the Municipal Auditorium two days earlier than usual and the local promoter, Louie Miller, renewed his pledge to provide better programs because of the change.

Starting the series this Tuesday will be Tom Rice and Juan Humberto in a tag team match with Sandor Szabo and Don Arnold.

Miller sprinkled some new faces through the preliminary card, topping it with Bill Malby against Juan Sepeda in the semi-main. Johnny Venas collides with Johnny Demcheck in the opener. Neither Malby or Venas has appeared here.

Vic Christy meets Nicky Bockwinkle in a half-hour special event. The show starts at 8:30.

Wrestling for years has been held here on Thursday nights, but Miller decided on the switch of days because he was assured of fewer interruptions in his weekly series. He previously has been caught by various week end conventions and exhibitions that forced cancellation of the matmen.

In Rice and Humberto, Szabo and Arnold will be up against a pair of the roughest men in the business. In addition, many critics are of the opinion that Humberto and Rice are unethical and practice illegal tactics. This is categorically denied by both.

The same reserved seat ticket setup is in effect, with the ducats available at the Union Cigar Store, Ocean and Pine, on Monday. Prices start at 75 cents for general admission.

Add Destruction Derby to CJA Gardena Program

Motorized "A" (for auto) bombs roar into action today at Gardena Stadium as the track's first "Destruction Derby" involving eight stock cars is staged in conjunction with the regular CJA jalopy speedfest. Trials start at 1 p. m., racing at 2:30.

The demolition event features two four-car teams—the Allied Wrecking "Whites" vs. Eddie Pack's "Blacks," cars being painted those colors for team identification. When one group has battered the other out of action, survivors then turn upon teammates to determine who'll be the only one able to steer one lap around the track.

A 30-lap feature crowns the regular racing program. Danny Letner, Fred Russell of Long Beach, Ed Van Eyk, Rex Schendley, Dick Elliott, Bill Mitchell, Don Noel, Paul Norman, Termite Snyder, Frank Kephart, Andy Anderson, Peck Markota, Clyde Smith, Fuzzy Anderson, Al Mason and Bob Ross loom top threats.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Ron Howarth, 1841 Chatwin Ave., a student at Long Beach State College, has done what few anglers can ever hope to duplicate. Ron caught two 22-inch rainbow trout while fishing off the landing at Boulder Bay, Lake Mead.

To catch a trout in Lake Mead is rare, but to hook two such fish while fishing off the dock is almost unbelievable. Lake Mead is populated mostly by bass, crappie and catfish.

Ron and a friend, Mike Callan, 178 Pomona Ave., also a LBSC student, took a trip to Lake Mead recently, fully intending to fish for bass and crappie. But their outboard broke down shortly after they left the dock and they rowed back. There they were stranded for the rest of the day.

They bought some shiners for bait and started fishing off the landing. Ron caught both trout, using a spinning outfit. Oldtimers around the dock told the youths that there hadn't been two dozen trout caught there in 10 years.

Two other Long Beach fishermen, Park Hagan, 1126 Amelia Dr., and Roy Garrett, 1125 Andrews Dr., went to a different

RON HOWARTH
That's Real Fishing

spot on the Colorado — Cottonwood Cove on Lake Mojave—and they, too, had a field day. They returned here with full limits of fish, and what fish! Their largest was an 8¼-pounder. They also had three 7-pounders, four others that weighed 6¼ pounds each, one 4½-pounder and the rest in the 2-pound classification.

They used waterdogs for bait and fished deep. They found the weather windy and cold, but here were plenty of other anglers there for the weekend.

Cottonwood Cove is developing into one of the hottest spots along the Colorado River string of lakes for bass fishing. R. D. Cole, one of the camp operators, and Lester Burke of Garden Grove fished together a few days ago and came in with limits of fish ranging from 6 to 9 pounds.

MICKEY SHOWS 'EM

Perhaps this story is a little out of date, but it hasn't been printed here and it is a good one. It concerns the adventures of Mickey Gastwirth, a member of the Long Beach Recreation Dept. staff, who last month attended a convention of recreation officials in Santa Cruz.

Mickey showed up one rainy morning at the mouth of the San Lorenzo River, wearing ordinary street clothes, plus a raincoat, plus a hotel towel wrapped around his head for protection from the rain. There were dozens of natives, all clad in rain gear, and fishing for steelhead.

Mickey watched them for a few minutes and saw an angler cast toward a spot in the boiling river mouth where a steelie had swirled. The angler connected, but instantly lost the fish. Mickey uncoiled his spinning outfit and made a cast toward the same spot. WHAM! He had one on and, for the next few minutes, waded in and out of the surf battling his fish. He finally landed a six-pounder while the natives cheered.

Mickey had bought a spinning lure on a nearby pier just prior to the expedition. He didn't linger for another cast, but took his fish, returned to the hotel and changed clothes just in time to make the morning conference.

The word got around the conference hall and Mickey received a lot of congratulations. No angler in my opinion ever deserved praise more than Mickey. He spends a great part of each summer arranging trips for boys to fish at various places near Long Beach.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS

The Corona Rod and Gun Club has a benefit trapshoot scheduled today at its lakeside clubhouse on Cota St., Corona, with the proceeds to go to the Girl Scouts. The club will give the usual array of chickens and grocery baskets to the winners of the various events. Shooting starts at 9 a. m.

Alamitos Bay Sportsmen will install officers at a dinner-dance at the Lafayette Hotel Friday night, with Steve DaCosta, popular "daddy" of the ABS driving down from Las Vegas to perform the installation duties.

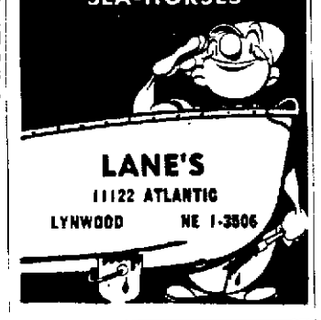

Just because you have heard that halibut have been caught in Santa Monica Bay, don't expect them to turn up here immediately. It's still early and the successes out of Malibu are just occasional, not every-day events. Mostly the ocean boats are sticking to rockfishing and trying for others when the signs indicate fish are there.

The Fisherman Press, Oxford, Ohio, which publishes the monthly magazine, The Fisherman, has really gone all-out this year with its latest edition of the Fishermans Handbook ($1.25). If you are looking for anything pertaining to the outdoors, you'll find it in the 512 pages of this book. There are charts of where to fish in each state, maps of coastal waters and a list of the 32 best fresh-water fishing spots in the U. S., as determined by a nationwide survey.

BOOSTERS POLL

Smith Top Feb. Athlete

Jimmy Ralph Smith, scrappy Poly High guard, is the "athlete of the month" for February, the Long Beach Sports Boosters announced Saturday.

Smith, a fine playmaker, was one of the big sparkplugs in the Rabbits' drive to the Coast League title. He averaged 10.7 points per game in 12 league games.

Fritz Krauth of the Long Beach Flying Wheels was runner-up in the February balloting. Third place went to Ronnie Robertson, who finished second in the World Amateur at Vienna. Wilson High guard Roger Gurich was fourth in the poll.

AAA Adds Three to Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Automobile Assn. (AAA) Saturday added three of the world's greatest racing names to the automobile racing hall of fame, bringing the total to 17.

The only living member of the trio is Tommy Milton, now a consultant engineer at Detroit. One of the racing giants of the 20's, Milton ranks second in all-time national championship points.

Selected posthumously were Dario Resta, British star who won the Indianapolis "500" in 1916 and set a single season total point record, and Bob Burman, onetime holder of the mile record and the "king of speed" in pre-World War I days.

Two National Events Top Nitehawks' Softball Slate

The Long Beach Nitehawks, the "Yankees of softball" and somewhat of an institution in this city, will field one of their strongest teams in many years and will represent the city in two International Softball League tourneys this summer, field manager Joe Rodgers revealed Saturday.

In the most ambitious season ever undertaken by the local club, Rodgers and his players will travel to Ft. Madison, Iowa, July 2-6 for an international tourney sponsored by the VFW, and then after a short home stand will return to the Midwest for the ISL tourney at New Bedford, Ill., from Aug. 28 to Sept. 5.

Most of the old Nitehawk regulars will return this year. Exceptions are outfielders Lou Novikoff and Les Worden, who have decided to retire. For Novikoff it marks the end of a fabulous diamond career that included a long march down the softball trail with Rodgers and a few years of major and minor league baseball. Usually above .350 in the minors and in softball, the "Mad Russian" had his troubles with major league pitching.

Regulars back for another year include first sacker Larry Silvas, second baseman Cleo Goyette, shortstop Jimmy Jones and third baseman Clint Herron. Stan White will again be behind the plate, while Ted Carlsgaard and Jack Randall will share the mound chores with a sensational newcomer still to be named.

The outfield this year will place the accent on speed. Bill Hull will be back from the 1954 team, while Paul (Lucky) Humiston, Chuck King of Fresno State and Bob Pollock, former Compton College great, will fight it out for the other two spots.

The veteran Red Meairs will again handle coaching and reserve catching duties for the locals.

The ISL tourney at New Bedford will mark the fifth straight year in which the Hawks have played in the National Softball event. All the teams entered in the tourney, with the exception of the Hawks and the defending champions, will be state championship clubs.

The Ft. Madison Invitational will feature the top 12 teams in all of softball. Carrol Forbes, executive secretary of the ISL, has already notified Rodgers that the Nitehawks are officially eligible for both events.

The Hawks will play their home games on Friday night at Park Ave. Field and will open training on April 10.

Big Field Set for Sprint Car Inaugural

A flood of entries has assured California Racing Association officials of a brilliant field of chauffeurs for the season's first program of sprint car and hot road roadster races at the new Gardena Stadium next Sunday.

Upwards of 50 CRA automotive jockeys will be on hand for time trials, with the 21 fastest cars going to the post later in the day's 100-lap windup.

All proceeds from the program will be given to the Southern California Chapter, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation.

'Stalag 17' So Realistic Audience Forgets Applause

By JEAN MOORE

Call it a comedy if you insist, "Stalag 17" nevertheless brings stark realism of behind the scenes of war. It exposes brutality, treachery, distrust and eventual heroism realistically enough to numb an audience into forgetting to applaud the first curtain.

Such happened on Friday night at the opening of The Theatre's vivid presentation of Donald Bevan and Edmund Trzcinski's play which takes place in a German prisoner of war barracks during World War II.

With assistance of Gerald Brown, Pat Brown directed the centrally staged play with canny know-how and a well chosen all male cast.

For their sublime comedy, top honors go to Chris Soltys and Roy Malmberg, not so much for their lines, which would bring a chuckle from the Sphinx, but for their never once dropping character. The authors gave them ribald American humor, and they made the most of it, to the guffaws of the first-nighters.

As the unpopular GI who barters with his German guards and who is suspected of being an informer, Dene Hilyard does a commendable job, although he seemed years too young for the role. Rather than arousing a feeling of dislike on the part of the audience, he aroused sympathy.

Outstanding in the brief parts were Dick Fullmer as the German captain, Art Zahler as the betrayed flyer and refreshing, breezy Jerry Milleville as the little mail sergeant.

In his straight role, Roy Peterson deserves special mention for his sincerity. Robert Sorrells plays his particularly difficult role with finesse.

Credit for the impressive German spoken by the enemy side no doubt goes to Robert Faircloth, the German corporal, who developed the accent while overseas.

Others commendable in their roles were Paul Lorenz, Warren Taylor, Robert Milner, Lloyd Martin, Tom Rauscher, Ivan Marco and Travis Bryan.

"Stalag 17" continues nightly, excepting Mondays, through March 19 at The Theatre, 2400 Magnolia Ave.

Anita Ekberg Gets Film Role but Her Curves Will Be Hidden

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Anita Ekberg has the kind of figure Marilyn Monroe could envy but you'll never see it in "Blood Alley," her first movie.

By that peculiar twist of Hollywood logic, the onetime "Miss Sweden" winds up looking more like a man than a woman in this picture.

The blonde, blue-eyed Swedish Venus is cast in the picture as a young Chinese girl fleeing the Reds. Her lovely skin was darkened with grease paint, her blonde hair covered with an ugly black wig and her famed figure (39-inch bust) completely hidden with ill-fitting rags.

And if that wasn't enough, director Bill Wellman made her carry a baby, papoose-style, on her back and a machine gun on her chest throughout most of the picture.

Her first day on the set, a crewman accidentally pushed her. He took one look at her and said "pardon me, Mac." He probably still thinks he brushed against a man.

It's hard to believe that it was the same girl who almost melted the Polar icecap when Bob Hope took her along with his troupe to entertain airmen at the remote Thule Base in Greenland.

William Holden, who also went along on that New Year's eve junket, recalls that he had never seen any girl get the reception this one did.

"I have heard GI's whistle and stomp their feet at curvy starlets but nothing like this," Holden recalls. "When Anita walked out on the stage in a tight-fitting sweater, these men didn't whistle, they just moaned. It took six minutes for the commotion to die down.

"Finally one airman yelled out 'what's her name?' but another voice from the other end of the hall yelled back 'who the hell cares?' and the moaning was on again."

The onetime model from Malmo, Sweden, isn't the least bit perturbed about her de-glamorization for "Blood Alley."

"I prefer that my first movie role give me a chance to prove I can act. If I can do that, I'll let the physical assets take care of themselves.

"Beauty," she expounds, "is not enough for success as an actress."

Her most pressing problem at the moment is language.

"I am just learning to speak good English with a Swedish accent and now Mr. Wellman wants me to speak it with a Chinese accent.

HIDDEN BEAUTY

LEFT: Anita's well-endowed figure, complete with 39-inch bust and a laced, leopard swimsuit to accent the curves.

RIGHT: Anita's well-endowed figure well-hidden for her movie role—so well-hidden that the first day on the set one of the crewmen yelled "Hey, Mac!" at her.

'Three Angels' Will Open at Community Playhouse

"My Three Angels," the comedy which scored a big hit on Broadway under the direction of Jose Ferrer, and with Walter Slezak in the top role, opens next Friday evening on the center stage of Long Beach Community Playhouse, 5021 E. Anaheim St.

The play, set in a region of French Guinca where on Christmas Day the temperature graciously drops to 104 degrees, tells how three convicts with sunny natures, one heart, clever hands and sleepless brains, become the good angels of a sadly harassed household where thefamily's out of food and with no roof over their heads, and where the father's about to lose his job and the daughter practically jilted for an heiress.

Pat Spencer will play the part of Joseph, which Slezak took in the Broadway version, it was announced by Director Larry Johns. The roles of Jules and Alfred, the other two convicts, will be enacted by Bob Hanrahan and Terrence Doyle.

Others in the cast will be Clara Sharon, Dave Taylor, Gloria Martin, Given Piercy, Jim Doherty, Gary Thomas and Bill Keith.

A second performance is scheduled on the Saturday evening following the opening, and the play will continue each Thursday, Friday and Saturday thereafter until mid-April. The curtain rises at 8:30 o'clock.

THE CREW CUT KICK

NEW YORK—I took my crew cut to call on Garry Moore's crew cut. Garry had a crew cut before the crew had it.

Noticing that he was wearing one of his famous bow ties as he sat with his feet on his desk at CBS, I asked if he had another one around the joint.

"One thing we've got around here is bow ties!" He brought out a whole boxful. I clipped one on.

"Now we do look alike," Garry said. "Anybody ever tell you that you looked like Buster Keaton?"

"All the time. Especially when I was younger. And sadder."

"Me, too," he said. "I suspect we both look more like buster Keaton than we look like us!"

Compared to Garry, George Gobel's a Johnny-Come-Lately with the crew cut.

"When I was a kid in Baltimore, everybody wore crew cuts," Garry told me. "But I'd always let mine grow in the winter. When I was working in radio in Chicago in the early 1940s, I wore a crew cut in the winter. Everybody fell down laughing.

"I felt it was my personal answer to Cantor's eyes and Durante's nose. Later I got sick of it, got rid of it, and got complaints, so we took a vote.

"The crew cut won. Perry Como, a good friend of mine, gave me a haircut on the show. As for the bow tie, when I get a little fed, I switch over to a long tie, and THAT gets complaints, too."

Garry's millions of women TV fans — including my gorgeous mother-in-law — don't want him to change, as that would be a blemish on perfection.

His brilliant success—he has 19 sponsors, and CBS doesn't bother him from one year to the next—is partly explained by the fact that he's been doing the same show, with different titles and different casts, for 20 years—with five out to be on radio with Jimmy Durante.

"I got the feeling that I was being carried by Durante and that if anything ever happened to him, I'd be Abbott without Costello," Garry says.

So Garry, who'd worked in St. Louis, Chicago and Hollywood, went back on his own in N. Y.—and now he works a tight 9-to-5 day, refusing lunches and cocktail parties, and declining to work Saturdays and Sundays. He weekends with his wife and two sons, Mason, 14, and Garry Jr., 11, and Red Wing, his 35-foot yawl.

THE WEEK END WINDUP

"DON'T PRINT THAT!": Did Jackie Gleason ask Billy Rose to invest $100,000 for him?. . . . What happened to that red leather wallet Serge Rubinstein seemed to have considerable money in that fatal night? (Could robbery have been the motive, after all?)

Mrs. Mario Lanza suffered a collapse. . . . Comic Dick Shawn, who had to sleep on the floor two years ago 'cause he couldn't afford furniture, is a 10 G-a-week hit at the Sahara. . . . The musical, "Fanny," pays off its entire $300,000 cost next month.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: "After a year's engagement, if a man isn't fit to be roped, the girl's fit to be tied."—Mel Allen.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A WNEW disk jockey opened his program with the line, "This show needs no introduction—what it needs is some material."

It's H. G. Hutcheson's description of bores: "Some people can visit you longer in 15 minutes than other people can in hours." . . . That's earl, brother.

New Record at City Library

This week's list of unusual recordings added to the Public Library collection is rich in historical and cultural values.

One of the most talked about is the quasi-cantata by Bales. Called "The Confederacy." It gives a moving picture of an era, as seen through its music. Folk music is represented by "Africa: Music of the Malinke, and Music of the Baoule" (recorded in Africa) and "Ballads of Long Ago" (sung by Marais and Miranda, and accompanied by the Pardo Ancient Instrument Ensemble).

Fete for Hero

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—The parents of 14 kindergarten children who were rescued from a blazing school bus by driver Ambrose Murphy have decided to chip in and buy him a gift. They also decided to hold a party for Murphy on St. Patrick's Day because "we thought it would be appropriate."

Vesuvius Victims Still Clutch Gold

POMPEI, Italy (AP)—The woman wore a bracelet, rings and earrings of gold. The man's hands held a small treasure in silver coins. With seven others of their family, they died huddled at a door of their fine home.

"They waited too long," said archaeologist Amendeo Maiuri.

The skeletons have just been uncovered from the ashes which Mt. Vesuvius spewed on Pompei in 79 A. D. It was the first such find in nearly a century amid the ruins where about 2,000 of the town's 20,000 people were trapped.

Books Reveal Art of Skiing, Skate Tricks

Skates are sharp these days and skis waxed down. The winter sports season is still here.

At Long Beach Public Library are many books that will help novices get a clear idea of fundamentals in winter sports and from which old pros may pick up a trick or two.

Written especially for children who want to learn how to ski, "Skiing for Beginners," by Conrad Brown, sticks to the basic maneuvers and has plenty of pictures. Frank Harper's "Skiing Naturally" is a new easy way to better skiing by Olympic championship method, illustrated by an expert skier-artist, Hilde Mills.

Robert Bourdon, another foremost ski expert, shows his style in the instructive "Modern Skiing," and Eddie Hubber's "Complete Ski Manual" shows how to "begin, how to improve, how to excel." In more than 150 action photographs, Hans Georg describes the leading "Modern Ski Systems." Otto Hollau shows you "How to Make Yourself Fit to Ski," with conditioning exercises for skiers.

From Dartmouth Winter Sports Library is the volume, Walter Prager's, "Skiing."

Besides ski technique, you can learn all about a famous ski playground from Indian days to the present time in Tyler Nicoleau's, "Story of Squaw Valley." The history of the sport can be traced in "Story of Skiing," by Arnold Lunn, father of the "Downhill Slalom" and the only living man who invented a sport to take its place in the Olympic Games programs.

To find out the best places to ski in the United States and Canada, Joan and David Landman will tell you "Where to Ski." And also there is John Jay's "Skiing the Americas."

Turning to skating: Olympic champion figure skater Dick Button's instructor, Gustave Lussi, tells everyone who wants to enjoy figure skating how, in his "Championship Figure Skating," ideal either for beginners or advanced competitors.

Barbara Anne Scott, champion skater, shows how she got there in her "Skate With Me," and Sonja Henie does likewise with "Wings on My Feet." Experienced enthusiasts will like Maribet Vinson's "Advanced Figure Skating."

Dies at Age 104

HUDSON, Iowa (U.P.)—Mrs. Ellen Cranny, oldest resident of Black Hawk County, died Thursday. She was 104 years old.

Ike's Conference Seeks to Boost Latin Commerce

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — President Eisenhower Saturday discussed improved trade and economic relations with Latin America with some of his top advisers in the field.

The White House conference on the subject was attended by presidential assistant Nelson A. Rockefeller, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, brother of the President, and Sen. Homer Capehart of Indiana, ranking Republican on the Senate banking committee.

Capehart said they talked about putting more imagination into the administration of the Export-Import Bank and into economic co-operation with Latin American countries.

Demos Seeking Reuther's Aid on Farm Supports

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Democratic farm leaders said Saturday they are counting on CIO President Walter Reuther to help win House passage of a bill to restore rigid high price supports for farmers.

The bill would repeal the administration's program of flexible supports for five basic crops and would restore the rigid support program that until this year had prevailed for a decade.

It is expected to clear the House agriculture committee by a lopsided vote Tuesday. The committee has many farm congressmen who favor high price guarantees.

Hero, Heroine Selections Asked

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Attorney General Herbert Brownell Saturday asked state governors to nominate boys and girls for awards of Young American medals for bravery and service in 1954.

The medals, created by Congress in 1950, give recognition each year to boys and girls 18 years of age and younger who had performed an outstanding act of bravery or had achieved an outstanding record of endeavor, service or recognition of character.

Official Bans Doomed Men's Writings

SAN FRANCISCO (U.P.)—Publication posthumously—if at all—is to be the fate of any future writings by persons awaiting execution in California.

That ruling was applied this week when Caryl Chessman was denied the right to offer his new book, "Trial by Ordeal," for publication. Chessman, in San Quentin Prison's condemned row, is the author of "Cell 2455-Death Row," which enjoyed a good sale.

After Chessman's first volume was published, some other men under death sentence tried to get permission to market their writings. They were turned down.

An aide to Richard McGee, director of corrections, commented Saturday that McGee's decision to impose the ban was based on a ruling last Dec. 31 by the California attorney general, which said:

"Prison authorities may forbid prisoners to send out manuscripts or any other class of material—other than legal documents—but the ability of a prisoner to submit a manuscript to a publisher is not dependent on the existence of civil rights."

Pope to Attend Rite Celebrating 16th Anniversary

VATICAN CITY (U.P.) — Pope Pius XII will attend a ceremony in the Sistine Chapel March 12, marking his 16th anniversary as head of the Catholic Church, the Vatican announced today.

It will be the first time in three years the Pontiff has attended the ceremony. Illness forced him to cancel attendance in 1953 and 1954.

Vatican sources said the health of the 79-year-old Pope has steadily improved since the illness that raised fears for his life three months ago.

Falls 15 Floors, Dies Hour Later

OAKLAND —Window washer Mario Vlahov, about 50, fell from a 15th floor window ledge Saturday and smashed through a skylight to the marble floor of a downtown bank. He was alive and conscious when rescuers reached him but died an hour later in a hospital.

Police said Vlahov was at work on the top floor of the Central Bank Building when his safety belt apparently broke.

SMOKE LEADS POLICEMEN TO STILL; 3 HELD

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police became curious when they noticed smoke curling up from the chimney of a supposedly vacant house, Friday.

The local gendarmes investigated and found:

One 400-gallon liquor still in operation.

Three men.

The still was confiscated. The men were arrested. The smoke stopped curling up from the chimney of the now vacant house.

French Premier Picks Defense Plan Chief

PARIS (U.P.)—Premier Edgar Faure gave Gaston Palewski sweeping powers over defense planning and nuclear research Saturday in what may be a first step toward French production of atomic and hydrogen bombs.

Palewski, a conservative supporter of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and an outspoken foe of West German rearmament, will be responsible for co-ordinating all defense plans and activities, including the work of France's atomic energy commission.

Tests Bare No Clue in Coed Death

NEW YORK (AP) — Published reports Saturday quoted police sources as saying laboratory tests of the clothing of William Patrick Farrell have failed to disclose any evidence linking him with the slaying of coed Ann Yarrow.

Farrell, 25, allegedly signed a statement to police admitting responsibility for the brutal sex slaying of Miss Yarrow in her dingy walkup apartment on the fringe of Greenwich Village.

Her body was discovered Feb. 6 by a friend. An autopsy showed Miss Yarrow was raped, strangled and mutilated with 37 stab wounds.

Farrell made his alleged confession after he was arrested on charges of raping his 20-year-old sister-in-law, Irene Miller.

Stokowski to Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Leopold Stokowski Saturday was named permanent conductor of the Houston Symphony Orchestra. Miss Ima Hogg, president of the Houston Symphony Society, and Harmon Whittington, chairman of the board, said the world famed conductor has agreed to a three-year contract, effective next fall.

It's 30 Below, but Fairbanks Mermaids Splash

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (U.P.) — Fairbanks' annual winter carnival opened today with rivers frozen solid in 30-below weather, and Fairbanks clothing stores reporting sellouts on bathing suits.

What do bathing suits have to do with a winter carnival? More than 60 women bought them to try out for the water ballet, today's carnival feature.

But no ice was broken and no cold dips were taken during a month of rehearsals. The water ballet is being staged in the huge Baker Fieldhouse at Eielson Air Force Base, where the aqua girls shed their furfringed parkas and felt-lined overshoes to perform in the big green pool, well heated against the Arctic cold.

Besides the opening day parade and the water ballet, the carnival also includes selection of Miss Alaska to represent the territory in the Miss Universe contest at Long Beach.

The idea for an aquacade in the middle of an Arctic winter came from "Blitz" Griffin, a wandering Texan, who came to Alaska four years ago.

Actually, Griffin had planned the aquacade for an outdoor show last summer. When plans didn't materialize before the end of summer, Griffin saved his ideas for the winter carnival.

The first call for women who could swim went out in January. Housewives, high school girls, Alaska University co-eds and businesswomen answered the call. Thirty swimmers were selected from the original 60.

Came rehearsal time. Griffin still had problems. For one thing, he had never seen a water ballet before. But he had an idea of how one ought to look, because he had seen some pictures. Griffin and two assistants, Mildred Scanlon and Gina Baker, worked out swimming routines to represent the 12 months of the year.

For the participants the water ballet is an opportunity to swim in a land where such opportunities are few, especially at 30-below. For the carnival, the ballet is a new wrinkle added to the usual winter sports.

Last Bid Given Oratorio Singers

Final chance to join the Long Beach Civic Chorus for its Easter Oratorio will be 7:30 p. m. Monday in John Dewey School auditorium, 8th St. and Locust Ave., according to Rolla Alford, who will conduct the rehearsal.

The oratorio, "Seven Last Words," will be sung Tuesday April 5, in Municipal Auditorium. Accompaniment will be played by the Long Beach Philharmonic Orchestra.

Sponsoring the admission-free performance are the Long Beach Council of Churches and the Recreation Department.

A $5,000,000 CRACKER

Marking a big expansion, the Hancock Oil Co. is installing a $5,000,000 addition to the refinery on Junipero in Signal Hill. This big cracking unit will enable faster production of high octane gasoline.

HOUSES FIRST, STORES FOLLOW

For several years Long Beach has seen construction of new homes breaking all records. Now, commercial development is pacing the construction industry, bringing new stores and industries into the area. The Pacific Air Industries Photo at the top shows work under way on the L. S. Whaley Co., Los Altos Shopping Center at Bellflower Blvd. and Stearns St. The lower photo shows the new Walker's Store in the background while piling have been driven in the foreground for the new J. C. Penney Co. store and other stores along the mall extending from Walker's.

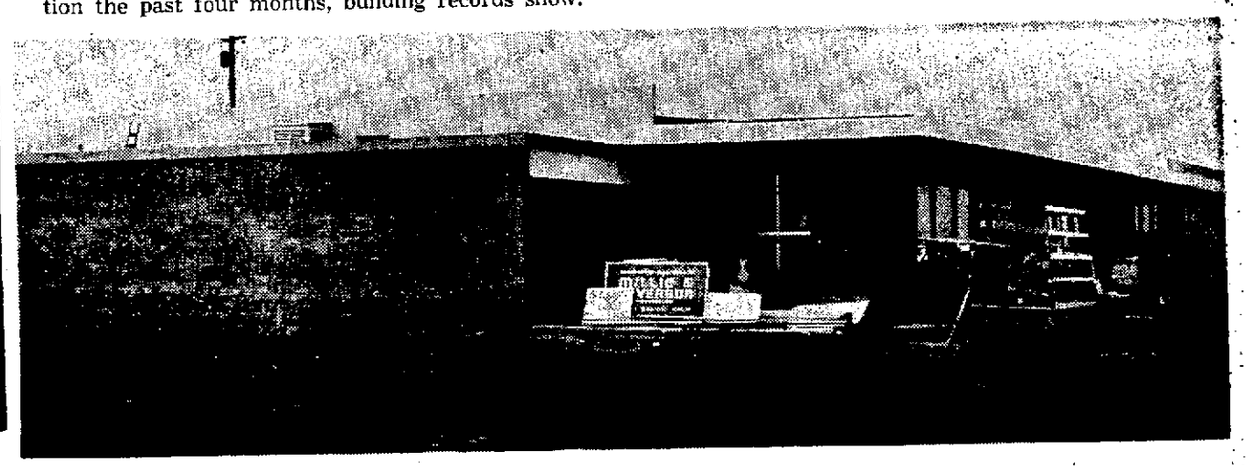

LAKEWOOD CENTER STILL GROWING

Construction of another mall section running from the May Co. south is well under way in Lakewood Center. The big new mall will house several major stores in the fast-growing center. This development is part of the overall plan announced at the birth of the big shopping center.

HUNDREDS OF NEW APARTMENTS

In every section of the city new apartments are springing up rapidly. This is a 26-unit apartment which soon will be completed at 231 Belmont Ave. There has been a big increase in own-your-own apartment construction the past four months, building records show.

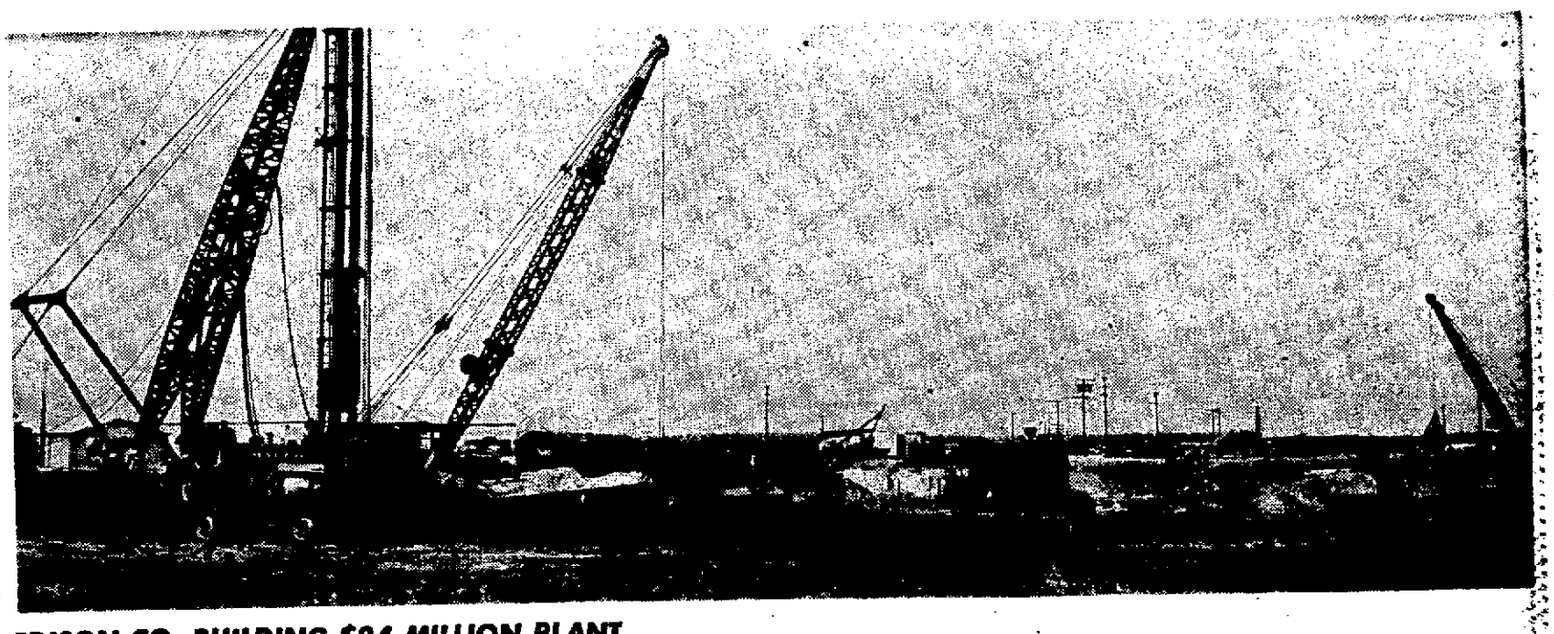

IOWA PORK ADDS ANOTHER

Ready to open shortly will be this new Iowa Pork Shops market at Stearns St. and Palos Verde Ave. It will serve a section of Los Altos and Lakewood Plaza and is another L. S. Whaley development.

MUCH WORK DOWNTOWN

Millions of dollars in construction will be done in downtown Long Beach this year including a big new J. C. Penney store at Fifth and Pine. Other stores are remodeling like Van Dell's, 400 American Ave., shown here with a $50,000 improvement program under way.

EDISON CO. BUILDING $24 MILLION PLANT

Work is well under way on the foundation of the big new Southern California Edison Co. $24,000,000 unit of its Alamitos steam-electric generating station on East 7th St. at the San Gabriel River. Completion is scheduled for late 1956. The new plant will serve the fast-growing area of East Long Beach and adjacent Orange County areas where homes and industries have been constructed at a rapid rate the past three years. When fully completed the plant will have four huge generating units.

WORK UNDER WAY

Architectural rendering shows the new $600,000 Blue Seal Service Laundry, dry cleaning, linen supply and Fluff-n-Fold plant now being erected on Carson Blvd., just east of Cherry Ave. Peter Ficker, A.I.A., and William P. Ficker, associate, are the architects, Atkins & Wiggins, Inc., are the general engineering contractors. Completion is scheduled for about Sept. 1.

Work Under Way on $600,000 Laundry

Ground was broken last week for the building of the new Long Beach Laundry, said to be one of the most modern of its kind. The huge facility, on a plot nearly 300 feet square, is located just east of Cherry Ave., on the north side of Carson Blvd., in Long Beach.

The plant will combine four major operations: general laundry, dry cleaning, linen supply and Fluff-n-Fold, a 4-hour drive-in laundry service.

The Carson Blvd., location will produce nearly double the capacity of the old Long Beach plant located at 1187 W. 1st St., which will soon be demolished as part of the harbor improvement plan.

Grenville Whyte, president of Southern Service Co., Ltd., which operates Blue Seal laundry services from San Diego to Los Angeles, said this is the largest single-plant expansion yet undertaken by the 35-year-old firm. "Our plant here has been a part of the Long Beach development scene since the early 1920s. We are pledged to keep pace with this new expansion of Long Beach and contingent areas to the north, east and west," Whyte said.

Primary construction of the 45,000 square feet structure is of reinforced groutlock brick. The Carson Blvd., facade is to be of natural Bouquet Canyon stone, enameled metal and especially designed terra-cotta.

Huge plate glass panels, trimmed with aluminum, will feature the Fluff-n-Fold and call offices.

Laundry equipment to be installed will be the very latest design, according to Vincent Amalfitano, production executive for the firm. "With the trend to faster and more economical service," Amalfitano pointed out, "special stress will be put on Fluff-n-Fold service in which our company pioneered. Both in equipment and methods, this will be the most modern installation of its kind," he added.

More than 110 people will be employed in the new plant when it opens about Sept. 1, according to Richard Martin, district manager and plant supervisor.

Architects who planned the building are Peter Ficker, A. I. A. and William P. Ficker, associate. The building is being done by Atkins & Wiggins, general engineering contractors of Long Beach. Cost for the completed project will total in excess of $600,000.

Plans to Close Outmoded Plant

LOS ANGELES—The National Biscuit Co. will close its Los Angeles biscuit and cracker bakery at 673 Mateo St. on Apr. 29. The announcement was made by T. W. Bugler, general manager of Nabisco's Los Angeles bakeries.

Outmoded building and equipment brought about the decision to close the plant, which was built in 1925 and has been remodeled several times.

The bakery employs approximately 300 persons. Those employes not pensioned or transferred to other Nabisco operations will receive a liberal severance allowance, based on length of service, Bugler said.

Nabisco will continue to operate its second Los Angeles bakery at 652 Imperial St. for the manufacture of the special products line.

W. H. Cripps, divisional sales manager in charge of distribution and sales of all Nabisco crackers and cookies in Southern California, states that closing of the cracker bakery will in no way affect Nabisco store service or delivery in the Southern California area.

Hold Preview Again Today

Home buyers today are quality conscious, states Bruce Bartleson, sales director for the Pembrook Co., developers of Pembrook Park, whose third unit is having its second "preview" week in Garden Grove.

"The public has enthusiastically responded to our invitation to "look under the hood" and inspect Pembrook Park Homes while under construction. In this way they see for themselves what fine quality and high grade materials go into these homes."

The popular rustic Early American architecture of previous Pembrook units is being repeated in the third unit, with shake roofs, batten and board, used brick, and diamond-paned windows being used to create this architectural theme.

Other features of the dwellings include hardwood floors, snack bars, forced-air heat and brick fireplaces. Interiors are as contemporary as the modern homemaker's demands for an efficient, well-integrated home, Bartleson said.

Homeseekers interested in seeing the dwellings under construction are invited to attend the preview of the unit. From Los Angeles and points north, drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Highway 39, turn south on Garden Grove Blvd. to Josephine St. and turn north to Pembrook Park, Unit No. 3.

Siris Store Birthday Fete Opening Today

Celebrating the 30th anniversary of the founding of the store, Siris Modern Trends, 1252 American Ave., today launches a big open house and special birthday sales event.

From the original store at Third and American Ave., founded by the late J. H. Siris, the same ideals and selling policies have prevailed through three generations. Irving Siris succeeded his father as owner of the business and now Irving's son, Richard Siris, is co-owner and manager.

"We always have strived to offer the public high type of merchandise but on prices they can afford," said Richard Siris in announcing the birthday plans.

"Our firm places more emphasis on buying, I believe, than on selling. This has been the key to our success for in buying high-grade merchandise at low prices we can pass the savings on to the customers.

"Now on our 30th anniversary we have been watching for months for real special bargains to offer our customers and many of the leading manufacturers are co-operating with us."

The store offers complete interior designing service free to customers and the stores staffed by interior design authorities. Siris pointed out. A full line of carpeting and draperies is offered and one entire floor of the store is devoted to bedroom furniture and furnishings.

A large new maple shop is being opened and the area is being carpeted in the modern "rag" rugs.

The store is open every Sunday to accommodate customers who are unable to shop on week days.

STORE ANNIVERSARY

Richard Siris and his father, Irving Siris, owners and operators of Siris Modern Trends, 1252 American Ave., will be hosts starting today at a big 30th anniversary sales event in the store.

Alpha Beta Enlarging Wintersburg Plant

Alpha Beta Markets, Inc., has called for bids for a 5000 square foot addition to the packing plant it operates at Wintersburg. It will be a one-story and basement structure. Closing date for bids is Friday.

Rejoins Hodges

Ann Littlefield, 9241 Judy Lane Garden Grove, will be associated with Rex L. Hodges Real Estate Co. in the Garden Grove office as of March 1. She was with Hodges from 1946 to 1949, went to Santa Barbara to teach school and is now back with Hodges as a salesman.

Vickers to Speak to Realty Board

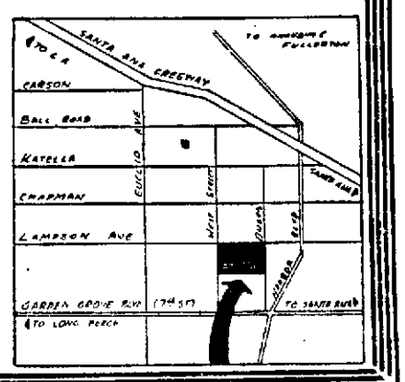

Sam Vickers, city manager, will speak on "Your Community—Its Rapid Development" at the Breakfast Forum of the Board of Realtors Tuesday, according to Max Livoni, chairman of the day. E. T. Moore, president, will preside. The meeting is at the Lafayette Hotel.

State Real Estate Leaders to Be Here

Outstanding farm lands brokerage leaders and industrial development experts will participate in an all-day Farm Lands—Industrial Development Conference, opening a three-day meeting of the board of directors of the California Real Estate Association in Long Beach March 10, 11, and 12, Floyd Lowe, Palo Alto, president of the association, announced.

More than 700 directors and members of the statewide trade group are expected to attend the three-day session, he reported. The opening day will be entirely devoted to discussion of the steadily mounting transition in California of land from agricultural to industrial use, he added, and the resulting need for residential subdivision lands.

During the morning meeting a farm brokers "workshop" will hear discussion on subjects pertinent to ethical practices and new ways to improve service. Alex McCluskey, Santa Rosa, president of the Institute of Farm Brokers, California Chapter, will preside.

Participants will include R. D. Boggs, Bellflower, regional vice president of the group; Mark Lee, Visalia; Stephen Dorcich, San Jose; Harry Ward, Perris, and Ralph H. Roussey, Oxnard.

In the afternoon session H. R. Hudsen, Los Angeles, chairman of the industrial development division, will lead off discussion with a talk on the subject "Division Activity and Statewide Industrial Survey." Ernest Mohler, manager of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce, will follow with "Why Industry Came to Orange County," and L. J. LeRoy, Los Angeles, industrial agent for the Atchison, Topeka and Sante Fe Railway Company will discuss "The Community, The Railroad and Industrial Development."

A panel "question and answer period" will close the session with participants including the speakers and Ed. J. J. McKeegan, Richmond; Philip Anewalt, San Diego; Richard Robbins, Stockton; Earle Eastham, Culver City; R. D. Boggs, Bellflower; Stanley Goode Jr., Santa Ana, and Mark Lee, Visalia.

Important committees of the association will meet Friday. Proposals now before the legislature which will affect real property will be summaried and reviewed for policy recommendation by the state association.

PRICED FROM $10,400

Shamrock Village homes in Garden Grove are priced from $10,400 to $11,700 and veterans may buy without down payment. This is one of the models offered.

Shamrock Buyers Include Appliances in Purchases

Buyers of Shamrock Village homes have the advantage of choosing their preference of major home appliances at the same time they select their house plan and exterior treatment, and the majority are doing so, reveals Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the second unit of the popular subdivision in Garden Grove.

Inclusion of the cost of appliances in their home loan enables many young families to buy ranges, automatic washers and refrigerators and still maintain a steady balance over their home furnishing budgets, Hart said.

The three and four-bedroom, one or two-bath dwellings feature a host of attractive high lights, including thermostat-controlled heat, rock wool insulation, television jacks and outlets, weatherstripping, decorator-planned color harmony on both interiors and exteriors, and oak, hardwood,, or cork floors.

Ceramic tile brightens kitchen work surfaces, and garbage disposals are installed. Mahogany slab doors, 40-50-gallon water heaters, and pullman-type baths are more attractions. Marlite over the tubs, colored fixtures, stall showers and electric heaters in some models, are other bathroom features.

Built on king-size lots, with landscaped front and side yards, the homes are priced from $10,400 to $11,700. Veterans may buy with absolutely no down payment, it was revealed.

Within walking distance of churches and schools, the new neighborhood is convenient to transportation and shopping, recreation and industrial centers.

Models are open daily, with visitors requested to drive out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) and turn left on Harbor Blvd. to Shamrock Village.

1954 Output Top Claimed by Both Ford, Chevrolet

DETROIT (AP)—Chevrolet and Ford both claim to have finished in the top place in the number of passenger cars delivered at retail last year.

Chevrolet reported figures tabulated by R. L. Polk & Co., industry statisticians, showed Chevrolet dealers delivered 1,417,453. It did not mention the Ford total.

Ford simultaneously reported that "net" figures showed its dealers sold 1,387,344 Ford cars last year against 1,362,087 for its "nearest competitor."

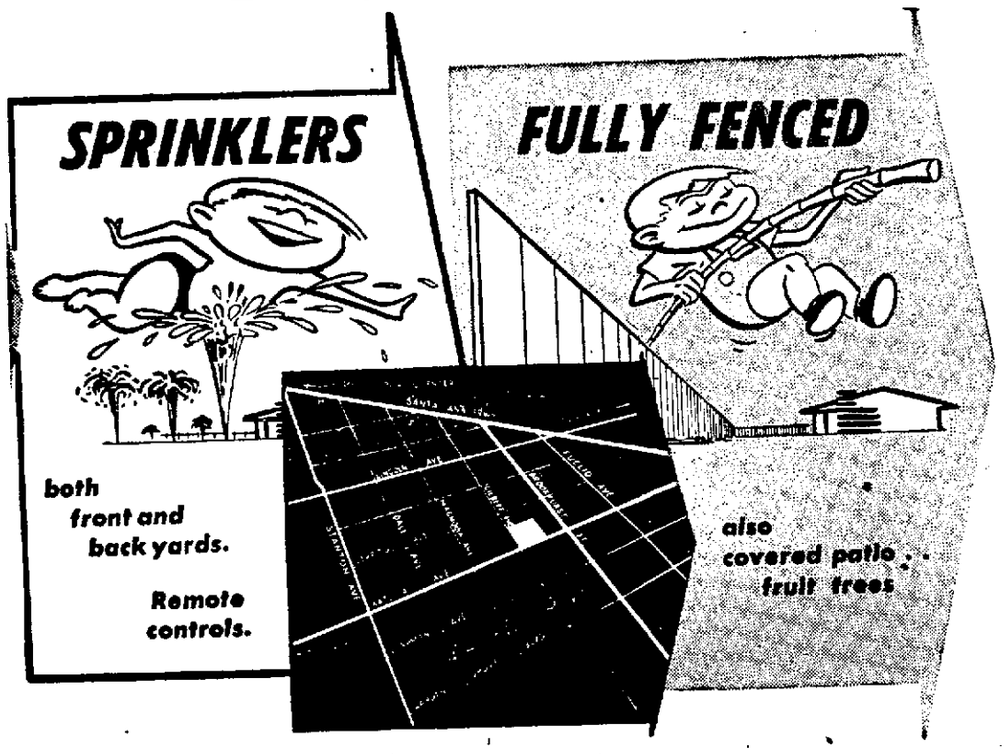

The Ford figures also were attributed to Polk & Co. However, the Ford announcement said Polk had deducted units registered in dealers' and manufacturers' names in December of 1954 for both Ford and "the nearest competitor."

The deductions from the Ford total were 14,838 and from "the nearest competitor" 56,802. Ford also added 1,742 to its total and 1,436 to its competitor's total after these deductions.

It explained that while the units added were registered in dealers' and manufacturers' names in December, 1953, they had to be added to the 1954 total because they were sold in that year.

In what it termed "raw" (unadjusted) registration figures, Ford listed its total at 1,400,440 and its "nearest competitor's" at 1,417,453.

QUALITY STRESSED

Buyers of Casas Lindas Estates are attracted by many luxury features such as Touch-plate wiring and landscaped lots, the developers report. This is one of the homes offered.

Luxury Features Drawing Buyers to Casas Lindas

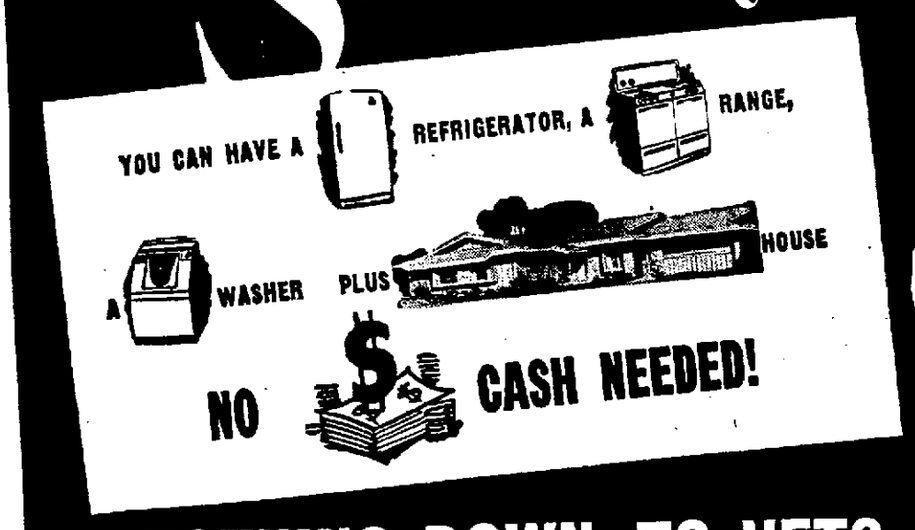

The luxury of Casas Lindas Estates have been a determining factor among the "shop and compare" buyers of the Garden Grove three and four-bedroom dwellings, reveals a spokesman for Eastern Builders Co., builders and developers of the subdivision.

High quality construction with superior materials and workmanship sets the pace for the "custom" quality of the home as a whole, it was noted. Touch-plate wiring with master control panel, paper walls, forced air heat with thermostat control, landscaped lots, walk-in closets, and decorator-planned interiors and exteriors are some highlights of the dwellings.

Efficiency kitchens with natural birch cabinetry, breakfast nook areas, garbage disposals, stove exhaust fans, and ceramic tile work surfaces are more attractions creating the custom variety. Floor plans and exterior elevations give a wide selection to buyers, who may also choose their preference of front or rear double garages.

Models are open for inspection, with visitors driving out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Ninth, turning left. From Los Angeles, home-seekers are requested to drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Chapman, turn right (west) on Chapman to Ninth, then left (south) to Casas Lindas Estates.

Dexter Store Opens Soon on Pine Ave.

Bringing to Long Beach a full line of clothing for women, men and children, Dexter's will open March 18 at 630 Pine Ave. A long-term lease has been signed on the big store building just north of the Independent, Press-Telegram and extensive changes are being made on the interior. This is another of the recent major developments on downtown Pine Ave.

Operator of stores in this area for 25 years, Albert A. Dexter now has a store in Hawthorne and one in Burbank. With the opening of the Long Beach store he will move his offices here from Hawthore, but will continue the other stores.

Featuring manufacturers' overstocks and import close outs, Dexter said the store will bring to Long Beach an outlet for quality goods. Every item sold will be a brand-name product, he added. He is associated with the largest jobber in 11 western states in merchandising the store, Dexter added.

The interior of the store has been made into various separate departments which give the shoppers seclusion as they buy. Women's sportwear and beachwear will be two main departments.

Extensive newspaper advertising will be used to launch the store and each day a special will be offered.

M. Strohl, who has been associated with a major eastern store for years, is being brought here to manage the establishment.

For the opening big kleig lights will be used and some special events are planned.

The store will be open from 9:30 to 6 Monday through Thursday and on Saturday. Friday the hours will be from 9:30 to 9:30.

No Down for Vets on 'Futura' Homes

Young moderns in Southern California are finding their homes of the future in Brookhurst Plaza where Futura Homes, "designed today for tomorrow's contemporary living" are rapidly being sold, according to Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the three- and four-bedroom, two-bath homes. Another strong influence in the sale of these homes, believes Hart, is the Anaheim location, in fast-growing Orange County where Disneyland, Walt Disney's famous amusement center, has already gained wide publicity.

Extraordinary features of the homes include such luxuries as built-in de luxe Western-Holly oven and gas range, full size woodburning fireplaces, natural birch cabinetry and electric exhaust fans in the kitchens, which also are equipped with GE garbage disposals and have double compartment sinks.

The large master bedroom suite in each home has a double sliding wardrobe, it was noted, and bathrooms are equipped with colored fixtures, Pullman lavatories, fully tiled showers with glass enclosures and Terraza bases. There are electric bath heaters.

Visitors are inspecting two completely furnished and landscaped models of the dwellings, which blend contemporary with conventional architecture. Veterans can buy in the development for no down payment, and new FHA 30-year financing is available to non-vets.

An R & W Construction Co. subdivision, Brookhurst Plaza Futura Homes are on Brookhurst Ave., just north of La Palma. Visitors drive out Santa Ana Freeway to La Palma, east to Brookhurst and north to the models. From Long Beach, drive out Carson (Lincoln Highway) to Euclid, turn north, cross to Freeway to La Palma, west to Brookhurst and north to the models.

'Do-It-at-Home' Exhibit Space Nearing Sell Out

More than 80 per cent of the exhibit space for the second annual "Do-It-At-Home" show to be held at the Municipal Auditorium for nine days, commencing May 6, has already been sold, according to Fred Taylor, president of Civic Productions, Inc., sponsoring the event.

Manufacturers from all over the United States will exhibit their products at the show, and at the rate applications for space are now being received, all of the available 133 booths will have been reserved at least 30 days ahead of the opening date, Taylor declared.

Last year's show attracted 64,300 visitors, necessitating holding the attraction open an extra day in order to accommodate the crowds. And this year, Taylor predicted, the attendence would approach the 100,000 mark.

Combining all the better features of a "do-it-yourself" show, the attraction will actually be two big shows in one, with dozens of exhibits featuring all types of the very latest home furnishings and appliances, Taylor announced.

The show will be devoted to everything for the home, whether it be a one-room apartment or a 20-room mansion, Taylor declared.

One of the features will be the awarding of approximately 100 door prizes, including a new automatic gas range, bicycles, an electrically-controlled garage door, a beautiful posture lounge chair, all kinds of tools, paint and do-it-yourself gadgets.

Drawings for the prizes will be held daily at 4 p. m. and 10 p. m., and the first 100 women purchasing tickets to the show each day also will be awarded a box of chocolates.

Women in Realty Dinner Thursday

The women's activities committee of the Long Beach Board of Realtors will meet at Linden Hall March 10 for dinner at 6:30 p. m. Ruth Lindquist Sanders, chairman, urged all members to be present. There will be music and speaking, the latter stressing safety.

Increases Dividend

At the quarterly meeting of the board of directors of The Morris Plan Company of California a dividend of 37½c per share was declared payable March 15 to stock of record March 1, according to Ralph N. Larson, president. This represents an increase from a regular dividend of 35c a share paid during each quarter of 1954. The volume of business and earnings for the first two months of 1955 are above the same period for last year.

Windsor Village Can Provide Occupancy at Once

Immediate occupancy is offered buyers of Windsor Village homes, reveals George Petrow, spokesman for McCarthy Co., sales agents of the California Contemporary dwellings in Garden Grove. The dwellings, priced from $10,650 to $12,775, are available to veterans for no down payment. Monthly payments of principal and interest are from $60.55.

Front and side yards of the oversize lots are landscaped, it was noted, and interiors and exteriors are decorator-planned to harmonize with any decor. Spacious living rooms feature real fireplaces and sliding walls of glass. Among other outstanding features of the homes are the ceramic-tiled kitchens, equipped with built-in range and oven, garbage disposers, and highlighted by popular louvered windows.

The homes are 3- and 4-bedroom with one and two baths.

Although Ball Road, the most convenient street to the subdivision, is now under repair, visitors are welcome to visit the models of the homes, open daily and Sundays, by driving out Seventh St. (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Gilbert St., and north to Windsor Village. From Los Angeles and northern points, visitors should take the Santa Ana Freeway to Highway 39, south to Cerritos and then east to Gilbert and watch for signs.

OUTDOOR-INDOOR "PACKAGE"
Nearly everything shown in this picture is included in the purchase price of the new Gilbert House & Garden homes, opening today in Garden Grove. Each home has full six-foot redwood fence, complete profesisonal landscaping, sprinkler system front and back, covered patio and paved walks. Vets may move in free. Three and four-bedroom homes sell for $59.00 to $66.00 per month.

'Gardens With Built-in Homes' Opening Today in Garden Grove

"Gardens with built-in homes"—a new approach to complete home design—opens to the public today in Garden Grove.

Known as Gilbert House & Gardens, the 172 unusual homes located at Gilbert and Katella Avenue include as part of their low purchase price a complete outdoor package.

Included with every home is full professional landscaping, outdoor sprinkler system front and back with remote controls, six-foot redwood fences around the entire backyard, paved walks and covered patio.

"Californians live outdoors as much—or more—than they do indoors," a representative of the Tobin Co. builders, said. "It seems to us that full provision for outdoor living is a responsibility of the builder . . . not something to be left for the new home owner to buy as costly 'extra'."

Despite their "outdoor-indoor package," the new homes are well within G. I. budgets. Vets may move in absolutely free, with no escrows or impounds to pay. Three-bedroom, 1½ baths, are $59.00 per month including principal and interest; total price: $11,105. Four bedrooms, 2 baths, are only $66.00, same terms, with total price $12,565.

In addition to the outdoor features, Gilbert House & Gardens have all the top features which new home buyers have come to expect in luxury homes; among them are sliding glass walls, towering brick fireplaces, nine-foot ceilings in the living room.

Unusually bright and airy in design, the work-saving home area includes two places for eating: a modern kitchen informal area and a spacious dining space. Columbia steel kitchen cabinets have sliding glass doors, the sinks feature Dishmaster dishwashing aid, Westinghouse automatic food waste disposer, 50-gallon heavy duty water heaters and other nationally famous brand names.

Four completely landscaped model homes with interiors by Aaron Schultz and colors by Libby are open both day and night, with a play area to occupy youngsters while their parents inspect the houses.

Gilbert House & Gardens, at the intersection of Gilbert & Katella Aves., has all the advantages of smog-free Garden Grove, with immediate, rapid-transportation to downtown Los Angeles via the freeway to Long Beach, Santa Ana and Anaheim. From the freeway turn right on Magnolia or Brookhurst and follow the signs. From Stanton Ave. turn east on Katella.

Pioneer Land Co. are sales agents for the new development.

HARMONY MANOR Homes

Few Homes Unsold in Vermont Terrace

With only 12 homes unsold, Gene Mahaffey, sales head at Vermont Terrace in Anaheim, urges prospective buyers to act quickly for the best selection of what has been termed one of Orange County's outstanding home values.

Veterans can move in without any charge and pay as little as $57.78 a month for both principal and interest; non-veterans can buy a home for only $700, Mahaffey explained, making the terms for non-veterans to be, what he believes, the lowest in the area.

Along with the ideal financing, the Vermont Terrace homes offer built-in range and oven, refrigerator, patio fencing, all without charge. Forced air heat, fireplace, kitchen cabinets in a natural finish, and disposal are features in all of the modern styled ranch homes, Mahaffey pointed out.

Vermont Terrace is located on E. Vermont St., just off S. Los Angeles St., in Anaheim. Santa Ana buyers should drive straight into Anaheim and turn off Vermont a few blocks before the center of Anaheim.

Long Beach visitors should turn off the Santa Ana Freeway to Center St. in Anaheim and drive to the center of town to Los Angeles St. and turn south. Vermont is ten blocks from the Los Angeles and Center St. junction.

Rent, Then Buy Plan Draws Many to Banner Park Unit

Grateful for the opportunity to rent a new home with option to buy, many prospective homeowners are making plans to move into new Banner Park dwellings in Garden Grove where they may enjoy all the advantages of a new dwelling in a new neighborhood while waiting for the permanency of their status to be decided. This was revealed by Frank Hart, sales manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents for the three-bedroom, two-bath development, who noted that the rent-with-option-to-buy plan has found special popularity with servicemen not yet eligible for GI loans.

The quality features of Banner Park dwellings are another strong influence in the heavy sales recorded at the subdivision, Hart said. He noted the following: Built-in Western-Holly range and ovens, Stanthony stove hoods with electric light and fan, garbage disposals, open beam, celotex insulated ceilings, asphalt tile kitchen and bath floors.

Veterans are buying the homes for no down payment, while non-veterans take advantage of FHA financing.

MODEL SHOWN

Smog-free Garden Grove is the location of the new community of Glen Dell Park, represented by above 3-bedroom, 2-bath exterior, on West St., between Katella and Chapman Aves., with models on view.

Sales in Glen Dell Park New Unit Reported Heavy

Large crowds pushed total sales near the $2,000,000 mark last week as Glen Dell Park's new unit of 137 large three-bedroom, two-bath homes continued to attract buyers to Garden Grove from all sections of Los Angeles and Orange Counties, it was announced yesterday by William P. Bowman, vice president in charge of sales for D. & E. Corp., the developers.

Bowman said construction is being rushed and that first move-ins could be expected within 30 days at the new residential community located on West St., between Katella and Chapman Aves.

Adding to the appeal of the homes, which are offered to vets for no down payment with no cash needed for costs and impounds, it was noted, is the development's mortgage payment insurance plan, insuring monthly payments, and now offered buyers without added costs.

Officials of the Pioneer Land Co., sales agent for the property, said that many veterans are able to qualify on earnings as low as $350 per month and that this advantage is stimulating sales. Monthly payments, it was pointed out, are exceptionally low and are spread over a long term.

Among the many features noted in a display of three wholly furnished model homes, which are open to the public daily from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. are: large 60-foot wide lots, redwood trimmed exteriors, brick planters, pot shelves and covered terraces.

All homes, it was stated, have oak floors, separate service porches, natural finish kitchen cabinets with hammered copper hardware, garbage disposers, hood and exhaust fan over range, 65,000 BTU heating, sliding glass doors, walls of glass, lath and plaster construction, and deep, double kitchen sinks with colorful ceramic tile.

The developers report that many buyers have shown an interest in the proximity of the homes to "Disneyland," which is within walking distance of Glen Dell Park.

Social Galaxy

News From Los Cerritos Crosstown to Peninsula

By BETTY WENTWORTH
Independent Women's Editor

Wonderful plans are afoot out at Ruby and Les Callahans' Country Club Dr. domicile for the cocktail and buffet supper party for 300 they're giving on Friday eve. In the honor spot will be young Les Callahan and his petite and lovely new bride, Darrell, whose wedding was a recent social event in Phoenix.

Arriving the day before the party from the Arizona city to spend the weekend will be the Jack McWilliamses, Darrell's parents, and her young eight-year-old brother, Russell, or Rusty as he is better known. Also from Phoenix will be Darrell's uncle and aunt, the Fred Polaceks.

Flowers in a pastel motif, pink, white and lavender blue hyacinths, will provide effective color accents throughout the house, and a striped canopy awning will extend out over the veranda into the garden where a three-piece orchestra will provide background music and play for dancing in the lanai.

Invited to assist are Ruby's sister, Mrs. James Melleck, and her niece, Betty Lee Duffy, as well as Messrs. and Mmes. Douglas Graham, Warren Ten Eyck, Elmer Decker, Frank Reagan, Joseph Ball, Harry H. Newton of Miraleste, William Sample, Paul Holley Jr. and Mr. William Yeager of Los Angeles, who served as Les' best man.

Crowded out of their Anaheim rancho by the advent of Disneyland Georgia and Frende Combs bought a new home at 4282 Pacific Ave. last month and moved back into Long Beach. Last weekend on Saturday night they had a dinner engagement with Nan and Joe Bogdanovich and after picking them up swung by their new abode to show it to Joe who's just back from a South American trip.

Said Georgia, and we quote, "There must be a party going on at the Balls" as she surveyed the cars lining the avenue in front of their house. We've probably telegrapher the point of our story by now, so we'll hasten to tell you that it was a surprise housewarming for the Combses, complete with a delicious supper and a group gift of handsome card table and chairs. Ringleaders of the fun event were Phyllis and Joe Madden and Dorothy and Art Morgan with the connivance, of course, of the Bogdanovichs.

Then to really round out the weekend, the Combses entertained at a dinner party last Sunday in honor of the recently wed William Bryants, Mrs. Bryant being the former Thelma Combs.

Toasting the new bride and groom were Drs. and Mmes. Walter Smallwood, Grant Beckstrand of Palos Verdes; Messrs. and Mmes. Nelson McCook (Mrs. McCook is the honoree's sister), Joseph Madden, Richard Browning, Lester Callahan Sr., George Craig II, Douglas H. Graham, Joseph A. Ball, Fox Boswell, C. Standlee Martin and Jack V. Evans of Santa Ana.

This afternoon at Peggy and Dr. Houston Fairleys' home at 4219 California Ave. a contingent of 80 guests will be dropping in from 5 to 7 p.m. for cocktails. Incentive for the event is the departure for abroad later in the spring of the Albert Stevensons and their daughter, Mrs. Ethel Severson as well as the Walter Groshongs.

The Stephensons sail May 4 for four months in Europe and we mustn't forget that their cute little grandson, Corky Severson, is going along, too. Two days later, on May 6, the second duo of travelers takes off, first for a 37-day cruise through the Mediterranean stopping at such fascinating waypoints as Alexandria, Cairo, Beirut, Damascus and Athens; thence to Europe where they'll tour for two months. They sound like wonderfully bon voyages, n'est-ce pas?

We write about party series from time to time but would like to tell you about a succession of parties that tops them all, a veritable apogee of all series.

Out on the peninsula we'd noticed some remodeling and painting going on apace at Pat and Dr. Walter Gilkey's ocean front home. We love this home filled with its books and treasures and imbued with the personality of its owners. Pat, however, the least stuffy of persons anywhere in the world, dubbed the house with, shall we say, a fanciful, even dubious, title due to the completely individual hue of the exterior paint job which somehow makes the dwelling appear as though it had sprung up out of the soil.

This manorial title shall be nameless in our column, but delighted everyone so much that Pat decided to do great things to the interior as well. Seizures of closet cleaning ensued, followed by seizures of window washing. When everything sparkled and shone, Pat felt she should share it and sent out invitations for a series of nine parties, beginning last Monday and ending next Wednesday with today alone unscheduled. Guests, eight each day, include former neighbors from Palos Verdes, friends from Lido Isle and many from Long Beach. There, say we, is a SERIES!

On Tuesday at Elizabeth Sullivan's Elm Ave. home she is gathering a group of friends, some of them Europe bound, for luncheon and comparing of itineraries. Then on Thursday eve she and Emmett will pour cocktails for 40 guests.

The Wild Waves Are Saying

One Big Secret Kept; but Some Told!

By IOLA MASTERSON

Sometimes we have secrets we tell. Then sometimes, you rascals, you have secrets you don't tell us so how can we. And now comes the snapper. This week we have a secret we promised not to tell. So what kind of a third rate snoop does that make us?

Here's how much we can tell and just don't think we won't! There was a meeting of the St. Mary's Hospital Guild at Georgia Combs Monday morning. Enthusiasm bubbled over with such force we could hear it fizzing clear down here at 6th and Pine as they talked a blue streak and made plans for THE EVENT. Thurlyne Waite presided during the plan making and had a hard time maintaining order at times when ideas (wonderful ones) tumbled into the thought cauldron from women like Corinne Faye, over from Rolling Hills with masses of papers bearing blueprints of future fun.

Others busy with the Guild's first big ways and means project were Norma Craig, Nona Lantz and Suzanne Mingers, who would go into a sudden huddle that would do credit to a "Red" Sanders first string team and then come up for time out to beam.

Matching verve for dash and thought for idea with all of them were Ponnie Ridder and Joan Bescos, whose sharp minds will never produce any moss on their north sides!

All told, there were about 55 women present and after they had exhausted themselves with mental outpourings, good hostess Georgia refueled them with as delightful a brunch as cuisine can produce. On the buffet table, where a heavenly bouquet of giant white tulips stood guard, were such gourmet delicacies as a chilled bowl of fresh sliced fruits, cheese souffle, country sausage, hot, fresh blueberry muffins and cruellers, spread with marmalade and crisp, chopped bacon and heated to steaming perfection.

There's only one thing to do now. Wait for the word and save April 22!

Purring like a Cheshire cat with an Oldsmobile motor was Dick Browning Friday night up there at the swank preview of the General Motors Motorama at Pan Pacific as he viewed those heavenly hunks of metal on wheels and listened to his brain click like a cash register! The Motorama opened yesterday for the great G. P., Friday was strictly for the dealers and special guests.

Red Cross stands for more than aid to humanity in Long Beach this week since Tuesday night, when the merchants of town put on their annual and lavish fashion show. The Auditorium was packed to the rafters and every woman present made it a special point to make faces at her own wardrobe first thing Wednesday morning.

Thoughts and memories left over in our mind include:

Chairman Tess Heusel, sophisticated and lovely as she was introduced from the stage in a luscious be-sequined white tulle gown; Walt Jordan, the old scene stealer, serving as the most popular model there (and there were some mighty fetching ones!); Carmen Sykes, her attractive blond head seen a crowd's-length away and wearing a chic beige sheath dress and pretty furs; Wilma Hastings, so suave and pretty as she commentated the show in a lovely pink bouffant cocktail dress; Dorothy and "Nellie" McCook Jr., Dorothy smart in her pink hat and "Nellie" enjoying himself as much as all the other men (they do, you know); Virginia Artman smart in black; Thelma and Bill Bryant, Thelma striking in a grey wool ensemble; Jimmie Carrey, chairman of the home gifts division, in jet black chiffon and being stopped every foot or two by friends from her wide circle of acquaintances; Cassieta Walker, all honey-beige and brown, Margaret Davis, Winifred Morris, Carol Scott (not together but turning heads wherever they went); Norma and Bill Becker, Clarence and Evelyn Miller, Helen Kral, "Vi" Dovey —the list and the memories go on and on—so pleasantly.

Betsy and George Taubman were among those who held reservations for yesterday's Santa Anita $100,000 classic, the San Juan Capistrano Handicap.

Grinning like a kid with a new toy was John Munholland when he buzzed by this week tucked carefully but neatly inside a new model of a Nash Healey sport car.

The scene changeth and nostalgia gripped an elite section of the feminine section of town Monday with the realization that luncheon dates at the Circus Room would be no more. Saying goodbye to their "salad days" at C. R. were, among others, Ginny Palsgrove, Flossie Rene and Elizabethe Tucker. However, they brightened with the thought of all the dinner steaks they'll enjoy at this now strictly evening cafe.

Maggi and "Beck" Beckley stood in silent amazement Friday night but that didn't last long. Then they really burst out laughing. It was over at Edna and Bill Abrams home where they were guests of honor at a dinner party preceding their departure tomorrow by train to New Orleans and thence on a Caribbean cruise. The amazement and then the guffaws were created with hostess Edna's surprise—she asked all the guests to come dressed as primitively as the natives in the back alleys of Trinidad and for a fitting background Edna and Bill really hoaxed-up their big sun room with plants, gee-gaws, and stuff looking like the living room of a calypso singer!

The third annual Variety Show at Rogers Junior High, performed, produced and written by the teachers and parents of the PTA themselves, turned out to be as funny a show as has been seen in these parts for quite a spell. It happened (or should we say exploded) Wednesday night. Bill Goggin, instigator of the show when he was Rogers' principal, was responsible for mirth-shaking that about brought the timbers down in his rendition of Liberace at the ivories.

Then there was Pearl Dundon, who oughta know how the teen agers look and act and really did herself, flying petticoats et al. The current principal, young, good lookin' Richard Manson, acted like a man with a secret desire as he put his heart into the role of a youthful prankster.

Mary Sprague was mistress of ceremonies and the way the audience loved her is only half what show chairman Ruth Lundell felt for her herculean efforts. There was a riotous "Jam Session Judges" skit directed by Marge Demler and featuring such "characters" as Jean Norris, Marge Davis and Ruth Lundell, herself. In the "hot seat" was that quartette of MD's (who have dubbed themselves the "Sad Quacks") Art Buell, Lewis Seapy, Phil Voigt and Don King.

The Kiwanis German Band, bare knees and all, hootled and tootled to the crowd's delight and raising mirth to the skies was the sketch done by Henrietta Tallant, Betty Estes and Texas Fraser.

Lots more fun, too, when such gals as Gladys Lane, Mary Jean Durnin, Dorothea Miller, Gusta Price, May Metzger and Kay Bixler, to name a few, whizzed through some chorus numbers under the direction of Jean Plimpton. More went on but space runs out.

SURPRISES must have been in the air this week because others who were given a whopping big one were Mayor George and Hazel Vermillion. Here's how it was. Last Saturday night the Lowell Taylors toted the Vermillions off to Ocean Park to see the Lawrence Welk orchestra in action. Threatening weather and the Vermillions' always heavy schedule almost made the popular V's back out of the date at the last minute but somehow or another they didn't. In this mood they arrived at the Aragon Ballroom and—Wow! Huge banners were strung across the entrance of the place saying "Welcome Vermillions" and the evening was in honor of the first man and his lady of Long Beach. Lawrence even coaxed George into giving the baton a couple of waves before the orchestra (to the crowd's obvious delight) and then the band leader asked George for the privilege of dancing with petite Hazel. It was quite a night.

Combined business and pleasure took Helen and Bill Harrington back to New York and with them went Helen's mother, Mrs. August Thorbeche, who is now in her 80th year and who proved to be the best traveler of the lot! Bill found the weather so cold he could hardly wait to get back to the sunshine warmth that surrounds home at 660 Santiago Ave. One of the real pleasures of the journey was visiting the Harrington's daughter and her family, Marian and Les Wittenberg of Cambridge, Mass.

Incidentally, Bill and Helen went to see the Community Player's "January Thaw" production Friday night and Bill almost turned blue again! (P. S. He did enjoy the play!)

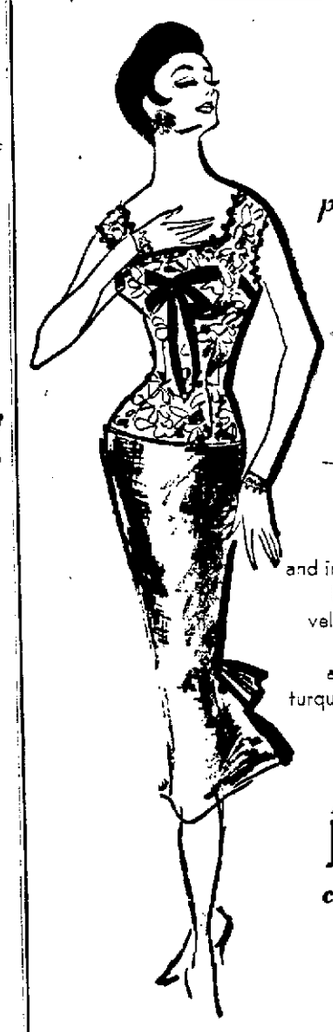

It isn't election year but Don and Virginia Muchmore marked their ballot in favor of a candidate they think is the best for the office. The office is that of their youngest daughter, Marcia Alyce (Marcy) Muchmore who arrived Wednesday at Harriman Jones and joins the firm of Muchmore-Muchmore-Muchmore and Muchmore.

Among Career Women

Quota Club Had 36 Candles on Its Birthday Cake

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Well in excess of 100 members and guests of Quota Club gathered in the Lafayette Hotel Monday night to pay tribute to the 36th international birthday of this women's service organization. The founder, Wanda Frey Joiner of Los Angeles, was welcomed by Mayor George Vermillion, who, with Mrs. Vermillion, was also a special guest of the evening. The honor of cutting the traditional birthday cake with its 36 flickering candles went to Mrs. Joiner.

To commemorate the occasion, Quota members invited many outstanding community leaders to share the evening with them. Of these, Postmaster George J. McMillin, Dr. Emil Lange, Claude Duncan and Sebring R. Smith spoke briefly to the assemblage, telling of the progress being made in their particular career fields as well as of community service performed through their own club affiliations.

Edith M. Glaze, a past international president, and Tray LeRoque, district governor of Quota, spoke on Quota's progress during its 36 years. The women also explained how the many new clubs formed in California had necessitated dividing the state into two districts.

Marguerite Wood, who served as charter president for the Long Beach Quota Club, welcomed the out-of-town guests. Fanny MacEnroe made the formal introductions of guests and members alike.

Kathryn Wiand, president, was in charge of the impressive evening and it was she who explained that the club's constant project is intensive aid to hard-of-hearing children.

One of the major highlights of the evening was the presentation of the "Woman of the Year" award to Mrs. Louise Huffman by program chairman Connie Brown in recognition of her outstanding community service in 1954. The award is made annually to a business woman of town who does an exceptional job for her community.

Executives' Secretaries

Apple Valley Steak House was the scene for the last meeting of the chic women of Executives' Secretaries Club. President Dorothy Kane (Petroleum Maintenance) was in charge of the evening's business discussion. A patriotic theme was carried out and the 75th anniversary of the founding of electric light was commemorated.

Compliments were in order for program chairman Doris Mitchell (Mottell's and Peek) who arranged for a delightful evening's entertainment. Anne Barrows (Independent-Press Telegram) charming and talented contralto, was soloist. R. C. Alexander of the Southern California Edison Co. was evening's speaker and, with his talk, showed a motion picture entitled, "Magic Link." Dean Davisson of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce also showed an interesting film, "It's Everybody's Business."

Two new members introduced and welcomed were Mary Kay Kelly (Western Air Lines) and Ollie Richards (Inman Co.)

Women Accountants

The important annual public relations meeting of the Long Beach chapter of the American Society of Women Accountants was an affair of Wednesday evening and occured in the Ballerina Room of the Lafayette Hotel.

Moore Supply Co.), Cathy Turner (J. B. Nelson Co.) and Betty Tracy, vice president of the Los Angeles Women Accountants' Club.

Altrusa Club

During a week of unusual and fashionable activity among the business women's clubs of town, Altrusa Club was hostess at one of the most enjoyable affairs, when it entertained at an informal reception in the Wilton Hotel in honor of Lawrence Welk and his orchestra following the group's appearance at the huge Red Cross fashion show.

Helen Smith, club president, received the many guests and was assisted by Louise Dixon, Carmel Tyo, Marie Wood and Elizabeth Deutsch.

Another guest of honor was Wilma Hastings, producer and commentator of the show, who is also a member of Altrusa. Those invited to attend were members of other service clubs, city officials and Red Cross officials and volunteers. Proceeds from the affair were donated to the Red Cross.

Desk and Derrick

A busy, instructive and thoroughly successful day was fare yesterday for a major number of the members of Desk and Derrick Club. The Union Pacific Railroad Co. was host to the Long Beach and Los Angeles clubs for a tour of their tank farms and oil wells, giving the business girls of the oil industry further insight into the actual field operations of production. Following the tour the group gathered at Marineland in Palos Verdes for lunch and a trip through the Aquarium.

Dental Assistants

A patriotic theme was used for the evening's table decorations which were aranged by Mary Ellen Doyle. He gave an interesting and authoritative talk on its history and facts about its use. In addition, Dr. Apfel talked in a lighter vein about a tour of Europe he and his family made last year and showed colored slides of many places visited.

Mildred Dunken, ways and means chairman, announced plans for the major fund raising project of the year.

Next meeting of Dental Assistants will be March 21 and guest speaker at that time will be Dr. Joseph P. Lunn who will discuss Oral Surgery.

Fashion'wise Cotton Is for Spring

ANYTIME IS TIME FOR COTTON this spring and no one knows it better than Miss De Lois Faulkner, 1955 Maid of Cotton from Sallisaw, Okla. She will make a personal apeparance in Long Beach Friday noon, March 11, at Lafayette Supper Room to show fashion-conscious women the many ensembles which are all made of cotton. Pictured above, left, Miss Faulkner wears a brand-new play outfit designed by Stanley Wyllins for Korday. A one-piece coverall is topped by a Bermuda-length skirt. For an evening out she wears an Anne Fogarty charmer, center. It is styled with petite bodice, doll waist and bouffant skirt. Worn over multiple petticoats and crinolines, it is embroidered in a ribbon-like design. For day or date, she wraps up in a luxurious black cotton coat by Aintree. Lines are free and flowing, the wide stand-up collar frames her pretty face. It is made of textured cotton jacquard by Hafner. Reservations for the luncheon and style show may be made by calling the Lafayette Hotel.

Brunch to Fete Wives of Navy Chaplains

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

Starring on the Service Set social calendar this week will be the delightful spring brunch to be given Wednesday at 11 a. m. by Mrs. W. D. McCabe at her home in Belmont Shore to honor all wives of Navy chaplains ashore or afloat in this area. Assisting will be Mrs. Barbara Fields and Mrs. Mary Thompson.

All chaplains wives are invited to attend and meet the other chaplains' wives who now reside here.

Another charming party in the home of Chaplain and Mrs. McCabe was the supper party last Wednesday night feting Miss Myrle James from Washington, D.C. Guests were Chaplain and Mrs. Edward Kickleighter, Mrs. Laura Walters, Mrs. Paul Raynor, Mrs. Alfred Gould, and Chaplains John Keany and W. Sullivan.

Recent house guests of the McCabes' have been their old friends from Delavan, Ill., Major Gen. Albert Ludlum Culbertson, USA (ret) and Mrs. Culbertson.

On Thursday at 12:30 p.m. the Wives of Navy Doctors Club will gather at Officers Club at the Corona Naval Hospital where they will be the guests at a spring luncheon party of the Corona Wives of Navy Doctors' Club.

All members should call Mrs. Daniel La Mothe of 616 Park Ave. as soon as possible for reservations.

Comdr. and Mrs. F. P. Brown journeyed to San Diego last Wednesday to enjoy the birthday dinner party of their daughter, Mrs. Ann Maches.

Now it can be told—the judges at the funny and gay Mad Hatter luncheon event given last Tuesday by the Officers Wives Club of Long Beach at Allen Center were Capts. M. C. Heine, Leo May, and J. C. Woelfel. Mrs. G. W. Davis who looked stunning in a tall hat made of cards, won first prize, and Mrs. George Foote, who was attractive but a shade shaky with a live hat—a singing bird in a gilded cage, won second honors. The judges very tactfully awarded the rest of the members honorable mention.

Lt. Gordon Talmage of NAS, Los Alamitos, and Mrs. Talmage, who will leave with their son, Paul, shortly for new duty and residence on Okinawa, have been feted at several farewell events in their honor.

House guests of Capt. and Mrs. J. B. Paschal at their quarters at NAS, Los Alamitos, have been Mrs. Paschal's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Dukette of San Diego.

Comdr. and Mrs. William Dellman have returned from a wonderful vacation in Palm Springs.

Mrs. Jack Berro

Miss Spellens Says Lines With Jack Berro in Temple

Residing at 2215 E. Second St. following a wedding trip to Palm Springs and Las Vegas, are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Berro. The former Binnie Sue Spellens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Spellens of 4342 Lime Ave., and her bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Berro, 1839 Atlantic Ave., recited their vows in Temple Sinai recently with Rabbi I. Shalom Ravetch officiating.

For her wedding, the bride chose a candlelight wedding gown of lace over pure silk fashioned with cathedral-length train. A Juliet cap of lace held her veil and she carried an orchid bouquet tied with streamers of ribbon on which were attached butterfly orchids.

The couple's only attendants were Madge Rose, in pink taffeta, and Earl Berro.

A reception followed the double ring service at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Phillips, 1136 Tehachapi Dr.

Both young persons are graduates of Polytechnic High, where the bride was a member of Tajma and her bridegroom was student body president. She attended UC at Berkeley and he attended UCLA where he was affiliated with Zeta Beta Tau. Her sorority affiliation is Alpha Epsilon Phi.

Mrs. James Richardson

Mary Rich New Bride

Now residing in San Bernardino after their recent wedding in the First Christian Church, North Hollywood, are Mr. and Mrs. James E. Richardson. The bride, the former Miss Mary Rich, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rich of 2880 Albred Ave. Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. Richardson of 3812 Pine Ave. are the parents of the bridegroom.

The bride was attired in a pastel blue suit trimmed with seed pearls, wore a matching hat and carried a white crescent-shaped bouquet. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Logan, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, attended he couple. Rev. John Fisher officiated at the double ring afternoon ceremony.

After the service, a reception for the immediate families was held in the North Hollywood home of Mr. and Mrs. Logan.

Both young persons are graduates of Poly High School where the bride was a member of Phi Gamma Chi. While attending City College she belonged to Entre Nous. Her husband was affiliated with Sphinx Club and is now a student at the University of Redlands.

Brent Home Party Scene

A bridal shower honoring Miss Rowene Preston was given a few days ago in the home of Mrs. Barbara Brent, 4823 Snowden Ave., Lakewood. Cohostess were Mmmes. Betty Mitchell, Charlotte Kluss and Jeanette Brinkerhoff.

Centering the table was a large white organdy heart surrounded by pink and white sweet peas and carnations. Names of the bridal couple were inscribed on white and silver streamers which fell from a silver wedding bell.

Invited were Misses Lois Ward, Elinore Knox, Mmes. Betty Geschelder, Louise Laswell, Ernestine Donaldson, Dora Mae Place, Marty Kamuz, Agnes Ward, Lois Irvin, Berdine Greenig, Avis Rawlings, Penny McCaron and Pearl Preston.

Mrs. Shipley to End Career as Chief of Passport Office

By VIRGINIA WELDON KELLY

A daintily pretty Maryland gentlewoman of monumental good health, paprika personality, stainless steel backbone and jet pilot courage will retire, April 30, from one of the most important governmental posts ever held by a woman. She is Mrs. Ruth Bielaski Shipley, chief of the U. S. State Department's passport office since 1928.

Daughter, granddaughter and great-granddaughter of Methodist ministers, her life has been bounded by the Ten Commandments, Christian Doctrine, the Constitution and United States law.

This has not endeared her to a few politicians and bureaucrats—nor to Reds and fellow travelers. Most of the Congress are her admirers but one senator termed her capricious and tyrannical.

Undaunted she held that those with Communist affiliations should not receive passports.

In the past some Presidential advisers tried to compel Mrs. Shipley to issue passports to persons she deemed unfit. When she retorted, "Put it in writing"—that was generally the end of the pressure.

In one widely publicized case she was overruled by the then State Undersecretary David Bruce and a passport was issued to a certain scientist. Only a few months ago, over her objections, the scientist received another passport. Oregon Sen. Morse loudly berated Mrs. Shipley for her stand in the matter.

Mrs. Shipley is now fighting an important and final battle for the appointment as her successor of her associate, Miss Frances Knight.

Many leading Republicans favor Miss Knight's appointment. However, there is strong opposition to the appointment of a woman from the Public Information branch of the State Department.

Assistant State Secretary McCardle, a former newspaperman, heads the Public Relations division.

Ruth Shipley has long believed that women must give more to their jobs than men. She also thinks that women must be more resourceful, more humane, more tender, without being wooly witted. She follows this course.

Several years ago, on a week end, when governmental Washington was closed tight, a Long Beach, Calif., couple received word that their son was very ill in England. When Mrs. Shipley received this life and death message she worked nearly all night on the complex arrangements. At dawn a young man in the New York passport office rushed the passports to the airfield and handed them to the anguished parents. Mrs. Shipley promoted the young man and he now heads the downtown N. Y. passport office.

Again at dawn, a few days ago, the White House told Mrs. Shipley that an American lay critically ill in Brazil. In 12 hours, she and her associates located a famed specialist, and prepared him with inoculations, photographs and passport for the mercy flight.

The State Department has no biographical data on Ruth Shipley except that she entered the patent office in 1903 and the State Department in 1914. She believes in keeping quiet and doing her job. She has adamantly refused magazine offers for articles. She is one official who will keep silent. But she will not be idle. After a trip she will probably enter personnel work.

Not long ago, President Eisenhower discussed with the Chairman of the JCS, Adm. Radford, the vitriolic attacks on Radford being made by some columnists. The President advised Adm. Radford not to read or bother with the columnists. Mr. Eisenhower explained that he follows that course himself.

At the recent White House Radio and TV Correspondents dinner for the President, Mr. Eisenhower sat beside TV commentator Dick Harkness.

The President admired the resplendent gold brocade vest Dick was wearing with his sober dinner jacket. Dick jokingly offered to swap with the President if the President was willing to do so at the banquet. The President declined.

Third program in the current Studio Concert series by the City College Symphony and the opening of a new Spring Concert Series featuring visiting artists are announced for this week by the City College music department.

Members of the City College Symphony, directed by Dr. Gerald Daniel, will present their third concert of the year Monday, beginning at 8 p. m., in Studio D of the Lakewood campus music building, Clark Ave. at Harvey Way.

Special feature of the program will be the first Long Beach performance of Hindemith's "Music of Mourning" with Jerry Horner, viola, as soloist. Charles Farmer will be soloist in a performance of Mendelssohn's Piano Concerto No. 1 in G Minor.

Other selections on the Monday evening program include Handel-Harty's "Suite From the Water Music," Gillis' "Short Overture to an Unwritten Opera" and Schubert's Symphony No. 5.

new, safe ALL-IN-ONE capsule discovery for easy reducing

science now helps you take off your fat while you eat the foods you choose

Do you like sweets, candy, cake, butter, gravy, potatoes? Have you tried one thing after another to reduce, spent dollar after dollar for pills and tablets and in spite of everything you've tried you're still too fat? Well, be as skeptical as you like, but now, right now, there's a wonderful new kind of capsule that helps you take off pounds and inches of ugly fat safely, quickly and so much easier you hardly know what's happening. You don't suffer starvation dieting hunger, you take no drugs, you don't exercise. In fact, you don't even diet one bit more than you want to, because you automatically eat less and here's why . . .

COUNTERACTS HUNGER

Just recently a well known scientist perfected a new tiny capsule that combines not one but all the recognized proven aids to reducing. It combines the vitamins and minerals often lost when cutting off fattening foods containing these needed vitamins and minerals. It combines the vegetable cellulose that has no calories, yet expands when it absorbs water, thereby helping give the feeling of a full contented stomach. In fact, these tiny capsules are so packed with vitamins and minerals, protein and non-caloric filling food, they actually equal and exceed many a meal.

FAT GOES FAST

You'll be surprised at the fat you lose the first week, the inches that disappear the first month. No hunger, no strict dieting, no drugs, no exercises. And the cost is absolutely nothing unless you grow slim, more youthful looking, more active and enjoy better health.

. . . something to talk about!

Hello! You probably don't know me, but I'll bet you know many other young women like me. I'm part of one of the biggest groups of women in the United States—the career girl! Most of us are in the same boat always seeking to look our smartest, . . . on a budget! So with this in mind, I'd like to take a few minutes of your time to tell you about new accessories, new items to let you look better groomed, smarter (and yet that your budget can afford)!

One of the newest items for better grooming I've found is LIP-TEX. It gives you a lasting lip-line and your lipstick (under LIP-TEX) looks better, feels better, lasts longer and absolutely will not smear (you can take my word for that, I've tried it)! Movie stars and models use LIP-TEX because they can use creamy, moist lipsticks which prevent their lips from drying and cracking, yet LIP-TEX gives them a stay-on glaze, and doesn't dry lips. (P. S. you can use LIP-TEX for your eyebrows, too—it lets you work all day and dance all night and not have to worry about your eyebrows leaving you! You can swim with LIP-TEX, too)! Best of all, it's only 50c in Walker's Cosmetics, Street Floor.

Attention: all busy, budget-wise white collar girls! This season you are really, really a white collar girl—for many of our new-look fashions need the crisp, fresh, light touch of a white collar, cuffs and gloves. I call them "Personality Accessories," because they're personally styled for you and no matter what your size you can wear them. The big, bold cape collars and the mid-arm gloves are for the tall girls, and the small, petite Peter Pan collars and wrist-hi shorties are for the shorter girl. And if you're an extrovert—we can please you with our smart black and white, or red and white check collar and matching glove set . . . and for the very demure . . . sheer embroidered nylon collar and matching glove set (white, of course)! Be real dramatic—add a brightly colored flower, or a sparkling pin to your collar . . . pick up the color in earrings, a scarf, and wow! you have the new-spring you!

Have you dreamed of a nylon stocking with never a wrinkle . . . never a twisted seam—an all new stocking that fits you perfectly, not approximately . . . that smooths over you when you stoop, sit or stretch (there's no popping holes in these nylons)—if you have, listen to this—because Walker's has them! These "stretch" sheer stockings are the new wonder of the fashion world . . . And remember, they fit all! The tiny slender leg, the short plump leg, the long stemmed legs and even the "ample" legs.

You'll find all these things in Walker's accessory department, street floor.

When the new $6 million Los Angeles Police Facilities Building in the Los Angeles Civic Center is opened for public view in May, one of the focal points of interest will be the world's largest glass mosaic mural ever executed by an American artist.

The mural, which "hangs in space" in the lobby of the building, was designed and made by Joseph L. Young, American artist who received his training in Europe from famous muralists.

The monumental mosaic mural, 36 feet long and 6 feet high, is the first major work of this type in the world to depart from conventional installation in the wall or floor. The mural is comprised of more than a quarter million tiny glass stones (called "tesserae"), each piece set by hand. More than 50 diverse colors were used. The mural, cantilevered from two supporting columns in the main lobby, weighs six tons.

The artist has created a design that reveals the history of Los Angeles as seen on a sunny day. Interlocking images that move down the panel show a technique of crisp black outlines superimposed over a background of abstract shapes.

Among the landmarks included in the works are the Los Angeles City Hall, Grauman's Chinese theater, oil wells on Baldwin Hills, Los Angeles-Long Beach harbor and the industrial area. The growth of Los Angeles is symbolized by the freeway cloverleaf near Civic Center. Old street cars contrasted with modern trackless trolleys.

Business is spotlighted by Miracle Mile with the Prudential Life Insurance Co. building against the skyline. History is reflected in the Alameda St. mission church while science is recognized with the Griffith Park Observatory. Angel's Flight, UCLA's Royce Hall, traditional and modern homes also are part of the mural's story.

Jean Coults of Palm Springs and John Hilton of 29 Palms will be honored with an art tea from 2 to 4:30 p.m. today, opening a dual exhibition of oil paintings at the Addington Gallery in Desert Hot Springs. The public is invited to attend the tea and view the paintings which will be displayed through March. There is no charge at any time. The daily showing will be from 2 to 5 p.m.

Why Grow Old?

Proper Exercise Aids Figure

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I am dipping into the mail bag this week. It is a temptation to do this too often because the mail I receive from readers is so fascinating and highlights practically every human problem.

After writing for 18 years I often think, "Now I have been asked everything," and then along comes a brand new question. I suppose this can go on forever.

The letter from which I am quoting today is not unusual in the problem it poses but is rather so universal in the experience of women that it will be helpful to many of you.

"I am not one of those women who need to lose weight. I am even a bit on the slim side but I need badly to redistribute the weight I have. I am way out of proportion. All of my weight seems to land on my legs and hips and around my waist. Will you please discuss this in one of your columns?"

I have often said in this column that we cannot lose weight by exercise alone, that we have to diet for that, but that we can distribute our weight more attractively with exercise, whether we do or do not need calorie counting.

We can recognize the pattern of our weight distribution by the late teens or certainly in early womanhood. This is inherited in that our glandular and general physical makeup is inherited. You have often noticed that in certain families all the women tend to have large hips, or a short waistline, or thick ankles, or big fatty deposits over the abdomen. You can see this pattern even in women who are the correct weight.

So, one must recognize these inherited tendencies and use the type exercise indicated. Even in the case of overweight, when dieting is essential, exercise will help make the figure more symmetrical.

As in the case of the reader from whose letter I quote, over and over again, I have seen very slim women who had lovely figures except for out-of-proportion hips, or abdomen or legs. I have seen them bring the offending measurement into line through exercise alone.

This is especially important at middle age when women find weight landing on them in new and annoying ways. Many slim women suddenly find that they have a roll over the girdle. This will not be as large as the one the overweight woman has, but it is there just the same. This can be managed through selected exercise.

If you would like to have my reducing exercises for the hips, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 3 "Hip Exercises," to Josephine Lowman in care of the Press-Telegram.

This feature appears daily in the Press-Telegram.

Interesting Speaker Must Dramatize His Message

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Case N-366: Harry R., 31, is a clergyman with a college diploma and three years of seminary training.

"Yet I am an abject failure in the pulpit," he spoke sadly, "and I am considering quitting the ministry.

"I thought I had a call to preach and all my life I have struggled to prepare myself for this responsibility, but why keep on?

"Parishioners fall asleep if they do show up, and the pews keep getting emptier and emptier. Yet I try my hardest. But it doesn't seem to do any good.

"My wife cried last night when I suggested I better call it quits, for she insists I can be a fine minister, so out of deference to her wishes I promised I'd have an interview with you."

"If at first you don't succeed," paraphrased Sir William Lever, "try another method."

Every normally intelligent person can learn how to make an interesting speech, sermon or oration. But it requires the right recipe.

Harry's homiletics professor in theological seminary simply taught his students the wrong method.

Jesus gave us the best formula for public speaking that anybody has ever evolved, and it is the "narrative" or anecdotal method.

Start out with your main point or text. Then document it with concrete cases told in narrative style, which bear out that text. Christ thus used parables, which were simply relevant stories.

Harry's professor, however, had urged his divinity students to make sermons that were almost wholly expositional or "essay" type of addresses.

Those are very boring to audiences. Even erudite college professors grow sleepy or their minds wander when listening to a recital of ethical statements that aren't dramatized with interesting cases and narration.

Go to the Bible, for instance, and read chapter after chapter from Leviticus or Proverbs and you'll find your audience asleep in 5 to 10 minutes.

Or, read the Declaration of Independence aloud and then shift over to the Constitution, with its 22 Amendments.

Can you imagine any modern audience listening to that kind of oratory for 20 to 30 minutes without being sleepy?

And I say this with no thought of being sacrilegious or unpatriotic, but such expositional material just is not interesting to audiences of average people.

So I told Harry to pick his text for the following week and I'd help him map out his sermon outline.

I urged him to name at least three parishioners in his address so he would thus tie them into his sermon (as well as waken them if they were nodding).

He was also to use stories and try to employ the modern baseball pitcher's change of pace by walking out from behind the podium and growing confidential when he narrated one or two of the stories.

I've heard our topnotch American bishops tell as many as 12 to 15 illustrative stories in a 20-minute sermon, so you young clergymen should imitate their successful formula.

For further specific advice, send for my booklet "Public Platform Strategy," enclosing a stamped return envelope, plus a dime.

Its advice is for musicians, as well as speakers, and changed Harry into a popular sermonizer inside of 90 days, for all he lacked was the proper recipe.

House Guests, Showers Fill Lakewood Calendar

By BERNICE AHRENDES

Lakewood hostesses have been busy with spring housecleaning along with preparing something extra special for their special guests. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis had Mrs. Davis' (Ruth) brother, Pvt. Roy Arnold, who is stationed at Ft. Ord for their weekend guest. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Wallace of Torrance joined the group for dinner.

Mrs. Clyde (Marie) Shamburg of 6142 Amos Ave. was the honoree of a stork shower held at the home of Miss Barbara Hewitt. Dainty things in pink and blue were brought to the party by Joan Owens, Pat Saunders, Shirley Saunders, Ima Sykes, Delores Modlin, Doris Mulder, Nancy Downs, Margie Warnick, Mmes. Frances Bigham and Mrs. Grace Shamburg.

Delores Buell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Auburn Buell of 5732 Whitewood, celebrated her 15th birthday Friday evening with a slumber party. Her guests, dressed in their prettiest P-J's, danced to records, sang songs and then in the wee hours one by one went to sleep. Up bright and early for breakfast though were Marlene Laird, Sue Musselman, Karen Suckla, Mildred Allenbaugh, Sandy Woldsberger, Joan Correll, Tess Cleaver, Judy Spaseff and Barbara Hermes.

Tuesday evening Miss Claire Cullen of 5725 Del Amo St. had as her guests for dinner, Mmes. Bernice Merrill, Dorothy Tidwell, Adele Clouse, Ronicka Harn, Charlotte Maynard, Alma Thyrgerson, Helen Groscolos, Myrtle Bunt, Mildred Canfield, Mildred Hoover, Jo Stocks, Ella Hay, Kay Rake, Cleo Lamb, Lucille Davis and Miss Delores Dyer.

A centerpiece of blue iris and pink carnations with a stork was the decor to suggest the dinner given to honor Mrs. Merrill.

Jody Lynn Haislett of 6042 Lorelie celebrated her first birthday Monday with a party given by her mother, Mrs. Bob Haislett. Her young guests were Mark and Linda Powers, Gary Bockman, Debi Rose, Niles Seyler. Older guests were her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Haislett of Long Beach, Mmes. Loman Murray, Archie Morisson, Maurice Winet, Pete Black, Joyce Rose, Morley Bockman and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Powers.

An unusual shower was attended by a group of Lakewood ladies. The shower was given for Mrs. Omer (Louise) Carson of Alma, Ark. Mrs. Carson was feted by her former neighbors at the home of Mrs. Andy (Elizabeth) Teigen. All the guests brought their gifts unwrapped so they could see each other's, then wrapped them after their arrival to send in one large box to Mrs. Carson. Each guest wrote Mrs. Carson a note to accompany her present.

Attending were Mmes. Opal Crabtree, Bessie Riggs, Elaine Bridwell, Val Kent, Pauline Anderson, Dorothy Ogan, Doris McCoy, Jewell Beard, Margarite Elam, Mae Johnson, Mabel Neville, Gladys Eagon, Virginia Priddy, J. Hatsfield, Regina Steadman and Nellie Stewart.

Oliver J. Speraw

Chef of the Week

Tasty Ham Omelet Tops Speraw's Culinary Efforts

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

"Let Speraw (sparrow) build your nest"—that's the business slogan of Chef of the Week and "Young Man of the Year," Oliver J. Speraw.

Speraw has another slogan, too — perhaps even he isn't aware of it, but it reads like this: "building a community civicly is as important as stacking bricks." That attitude accounts for his having been recently declared the "Young Man of the Year," an honor bestowed upon him by the Jr. Chamber of Commerce.

Though born in Minneapolis, Minn., he received his education in Long Beach, having come here with his family in '29.

Aspiring as a child to become an architect, Speraw is a living example of American Democracy — he started his career by carrying the paint bucket as a painter's helper. He now heads his own construction company.

His business career was interrupted by three years spent in India and Burma as a member of the walking air force. Since his return to Long Beach, however, his extracurricular Long Beach activities include, serving as a water commissioner and as president of Jr. Chamber of Commerce. Statewise, he has acted as general chairman of both the California State Jr. Chamber board meeting and of the Far West Institute, U. S. Jr. Chamber. Treasurer of the Walfare Bureau, he holds membership in the Knights of Columbus, the Newman Club, and is a director of the Miss Universe Pageant.

Versatile, and known as one of the busiest men in town, he carries on his profession at home each weekend, practically changing the contour of the house on each occasion. He's known for his retentive memory, too, which stands him well, for he's joined the Speakers' Forum, that he may learn to think on his feet.

Mrs. Speraw says our "chef" will eat most anything—but when he cooks, it's invariably a Ham Omelet.

FLUFFY HAM OMELET
(Serves 4)

6 eggs
1 tbl. cold water
¼ tsp. onion salt and pepper
4 tbl. chopped ham
1 tbl. butter

Separate eggs—beat whites until fluffy. Add water and seasonings, continue beating until stiff. Beat the yolks and fold into whites. Heat butter in pan and pour egg mixture into it. Cover and cook over low heat until omelet has set. Uncover, add ham and bake in slow oven 325 degrees for 20 minutes. Omelet should spring back when it is done. Fold over and serve on warm platter.

Never Remember Failure More Than Half an Hour

By ANGELO PATRI

Boys and Girls, you are discouraged every once in a while. You say, "I give up. It can't be done." This because you have failed to reach the mark you set for yourself. Maybe you didn't make the team. Maybe you lost out in getting a part in the play. Something happened that you felt was a failure on your part and so you sat down by the willows to weep.

Don't. You're allowed a half hour or so to groan over your hard lot and then you'd better get up and go to it again. You've gotten your second wind and are ready to try again. That's what everybody else does.

If you think the fellow that won the place on the team that you wanted and didn't get did not have times of discouragement and said to himself, "I give up," you're mistaken. Everybody who ever tried to do anything worth while sat down halfway up the hill and mourned softly to himself just as you did. They rested there until they felt better all over and then they started on again, renewed in body and spirit. They'd gotten their second wind.

That's what you must do. Sit tight. Rest. Take a long breath and soon you'll be taking heart again. Take stock of mistakes, plan for a new attack and go ahead. You may as well for you will never get anywhere by sitting down to cry and saying, "I give up."

Look about you. Your teacher doesn't give up although he has to tell you the same thing over and over, do the same work over and over no matter how wearisome the task. Your father does not give up, nor does your mother. They get tired too, and they fail to win everything they set out to get but they're in there still trying. You will have to do the same thing.

There is no easy way to success in any undertaking whether it is winning a war or working an algebraic equation, making a camp fire or winning an election. Any worthwhile job demands everything you've got and it calls for the second wind every time.

In any work you begin you will find that the first stages are easy. You haven't reached the hard places yet. The way grows harder. You begin to tire, to say, "Oh what's the use"—Better not think that way. It's time to take thought and to catch your second wind. It is that call on reserve power that carries the worker over the top.

You store reserve power by doing a little bit more than your daily best. Store it. You're going to need it.

Oswald Jacoby

Lead Is This Hand's Key

When East bid four hearts in today's hand it was clear that he considered his suit to be quite powerful. A sensible player doesn't bid for ten tricks in an unsupported suit without considerable length and strength in that suit.

	NORTH 5 ♠ J 10 7 5 3 ♥ 3 ♦ 10 2 ♣ 9 8 7 5 3
WEST (D) ♠ Q 8 6 ♥ J 8 2 ♦ K Q J 7 5 3 ♣ 10		EAST ♠ A K 9 2 ♥ K Q 10 9 6 4 ♦ 6 ♣ Q 2
	SOUTH ♠ 4 ♥ A 7 5 ♦ A 9 8 4 ♣ A K J 6 4

East-West vul.

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	3 ♣
3 ♦	4 ♣	4 ♥	Double
Pass	5 ♣	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♦ K

For this reason, West should have regarded a heart opening lead as the safest possible opening. The lead of the king of diamonds from a suit headed by K-Q-J may have looked equally safe, but it turned out to be disastrous.

South won the first trick with the ace of diamonds, drew two rounds of trumps, and led a low diamond. West had to win with the jack, and East showed out, thus revealing the complete diamond situation.

Later on, South could lead the nine of diamonds through West towards dummy's trumps. West had to cover with the queen of diamonds, and dummy could ruff and thus establish the eight of diamonds. If West failed to cover with the queen of diamonds, dummy could discard instead of ruffing.

The point was, of course, that declarer needed to ruff only one diamond in the dummy. This was important, since after two rounds of trumps dummy had only three trumps to take care of declarer's two losing hearts and two losing diamonds. South gave up only one spade and one diamond, thus making his doubled contract.

There would have been a very different story to tell if West had led a heart to begin with. South would have had no favorite diamond situation to help him. He would have three trumps in dummy to ruff two hearts and one diamond.

Hence he would eventually lose two diamond tricks in addition to the inevitable spade loser. Thus South would be down one trick instead of making his contract.

DUV Tent Events Noted

A number of forthcoming events are being announced by Emily R. Jewell Tent No. 15, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War.

The tent also will honor Mrs. Bernice Hamble, in recognition of her many years of active service which includes 19 consecutive years as the tent treasurer. A social hour and refreshments will follow the furling of the flags.

Granddaughters Club of Tent No. 15 will meet Friday in the home of Mrs. Stella Noble, 646 Chestnut Ave. Mrs. Laura Collins will preside. The day will be spent in sewing for the children's ward of the tubercular hospital. Luncheon will be served by the hostess.

Molly Mayfield

This Boy Needs Discipline

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

This problem has to do with my mother, my brother, Joe, and myself.

Let's just sum it up by saying that Joe has been the boss of the house ever since I could remember. I thought he would outgrow it but it seems he hasn't. Of course, he is worse when Dad isn't here, but he is bad enough all the time.

He tells mother to do this, do that. And if he says he is going to do such and such a thing, and mother says no, that he mustn't, he simply says to her, "oh, yes I am" — and he does as he darn pleases.

Here's a typical scene in our house:

JOE: Mother, fix my lunch now! (He never says please.)

MOTHER: Just a minute, Joe, I'm very busy.

JOE: Right now, Mother! Don't make me mad! (Then Mother fixes Joey's lunch.)

Or, he is in bed with a cold, and it's mother this, and mother that. Seems like it would drive her crazy. (It would anybody else.) She's really a wonderful mother and I've tried talking to her about letting Joe boss her around but it doesn't do any good. She says he is "just a baby."

She wanted to take him to the doctor for a checkup. Joe said he wouldn't go, and of course that was that. Just yesterday he told her to get off the phone so he could use it, and she did!

Daddy can make him behave if he tries to, but usually he's too tired to try by the time he gets home.

Well, Molly, you've heard my story. Please give me some advice.—B. G.

P. S. Joe is 9 years old. I am 14.

DEAR B. G.:

If you're a good husky 14 why don't you take Joey across your knee sometimes and give him the old one-two-three!

That's exactly what your mother ought to do when he refuses to obey, or sasses her, or tries to boss her around. Only a baby, my eye! A child of nine should certainly be taught to mind — or he is going to end up a child of 12 who refuses to, a youth of 16 who is out of control, and a young man of 21 who will have to learn discipline the very hard way.

Maybe, if you showed your dad your letter to me he'd realize that, tired or not tired when he gets home, he's got to tell the little dear precisely where to get off. — M. M.

Camp Fire Girls Ready for Birthday

Camp Fire Girls, the oldest youth organization for girls, will celebrate the 45th anniversary of the founding of the organization March 13 through 19.

Camp Fire has proved through its leisure-time program for girls 7 to 18 that there is nothing whatsoever the matter with youth today if it is provided with constructive activities to fill the gap between home and school. More than 4,000,000 girls have enjoyed a program combining fun, friendship and high ideals in the 45 years Camp Fire has been in existence, and they have enjoyed it the American way: for girls of every race, religion and economic background are welcome in Camp Fire.

A Community Chest Agency, Camp Fire serves three age groups: Blue Birds, 7 to 10; Camp Fire Girls 10 to 15, and Horizon Club, girls high school age. Homemaking skills, community service and development of new interests are emphasized in the program.

In these chaotic times, it is heartening to note that Camp Fire continues to present practical leisure-time training in citizenship, helping girls practice it while they are growing up. In line with this policy, it has adopted as its birthday theme this year, "Let Freedom Ring!" Camp Fire Girls will concentrate throughout the year on gaining a fuller understanding and appreciation of the Bill of Rights and the freedom it guarantees.

At a time when it is more important than it has ever been for each individual to assume personal responsibility for keeping freedom strong, Camp Fire is to be commended for its birthday program. Happy Birthday, Camp Fire Girls, "Let Freedom Ring!"

Royal Neighbors

Long Beach Camp No. 3822, Royal Neighbors of America, will meet at 8 p. m. Tuesday in Machinists Hall, with Valeria Popp as chairman. A social hour will follow the business session.

Child Care

Asks Help With Boy Who Steals

By BEULAH FRANCE, R.N.

(Q.) "My 8-year-old boy takes change from my purse. He has also taken utterly useless things from department stores. He's lovable and loved; we're a very affectionate family. I know there must be a reason for his one form of naughtiness, but he says he himself doesn't know why he does it. I hope you can help me help him.—MRS. S. T.

(A.) You are right in recognizing that your boy needs help. To tell him "Thou shalt not steal" and expect that commandment to cure might prove worse than useless. Doing that is like applying a healing lotion to a sore without discovering and treating the infection's cause.

No child steals without some reason. Your boy says he doesn't know why he does it. Perhaps that's true. A child's mind can conceal even from the child himself inner feelings which he doesn't dare admit.

Only skilled psychiatrists can delve deeply enough to find the sources of such troubles. Often children tell such specialists what they can't discuss with their dearly loved fathers and mothers.

It may be, however, that you and your husband can find the cause without professional aid. Talk with your son sympathetically. Does he get a thrill taking things from the store? Does he like to see what he can get away with? Does he help himself to money from your purse in order to buy what his allowance won't permit? If so, what does he purchase? What unfulfilled need does the money meet?

Explain to him that throughout life there will always be others who have more than he has, just as he has more than less privileged children. Teach him that stealing is sinful. Make him see that in life no one has everything he wants and that by stealing we lose our earthly friends as well as favor with God.

Ask Beulah France to help you with your child care problems. Write her in care of the Press-Telegram, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope for her reply.

This feature appears in the daily Press-Telegram.

An old-fashioned Sunday Walk

by SANDO BOLOGNA

DURING WALK, Mr. and Mrs. Bologna pause to let daughters Sandra, Anita and Flavia feed pigeons on Waterbury Green. Other stops: railroad station, newsstand.

WATERBURY, CONN.

When I was a small boy, it was the custom for a family to take a Sunday walk after church, during which you would greet friends, visit the local places of interest and discuss the events of the week.

With the increasing popularity of the automobile, the old Sunday walk has become almost a forgotten institution. Instead, people rush home, get into the car and race around trying to find some way to fill up their "free" day.

In our family, we have never given up the Sunday walk. Before the children came, my wife and I would take the walks alone. After Flavia, now 13, was born, I would proudly push the baby carriage as we walked downtown to buy the Sunday paper, say hello to the paperman, then head home for Sunday dinner. Now that we have three daughters instead of one, we think the walks are more important than ever.

We try to take them all together, but that doesn't always work. If there is a large meal to get, my wife prefers to go home directly, taking one of the girls to help her. Those days, after Mass, we stand outside and settle whose turn it is to go home with Mother. If Flavia has walked the previous week, I walk with Sandra, 9, and Anita, 7.

Why Walking Is Good

What's so exciting about a Sunday walk? First of all, my daughters review their past week's activities to me at a leisurely pace. They open up discussions of their plans for the next few days at school, in Girl Scouting, in church functions and in their social life.

Usually, our first visit is at the railroad station, about half a mile from our home, where we say hello to John Honan, the station master, who's been with the railroad 53 years. We talk to the ticket agents, Richard Woosley and Michael Gabriel, and to Anthony Coviello, who checks mechanical parts of coaches and freight cars. In this way, the children learn a great deal about railroading and points beyond Waterbury.

Leaving the station, we cross the street and stroll awhile in the quiet Library Park, noting whether the plants are in good health and whether our friends, the birds, seem well.

Then we may drop around to radio station WATR to watch disk jockey Anthony Pagliari preparing his program. Or we may go to the newspaper building to talk to our friends of the press, or to police headquarters to meet the officers at their work, or to the fire station to admire the brightly polished engines.

At Bauby's newsstand we chat with Joseph Falzone, who always has several stories to tell. Sometimes we buy peanuts from him to give to the pigeons, if we have not carried bread or cookies in a bag from home.

In winter, when there is enough snow, the girls often bring their sleds and we slide in Fulton Park. In spring we watch to see how much the flowers have grown since the preceding Sunday, how the trees are coming along and which new birds have arrived from the South.

Going home, we feel refreshed and very much alive. As we sit down to Sunday dinner, we thank God for His goodness.

HOSPITAL-BOUND? PERK UP!

● Statisticians, who like to figure out such things, have discovered that the average American can expect to be hospitalized four times during his lifetime. Years ago, this added up to a frightening prospect. But things have changed. New drugs, new operating techniques and new concepts of patient care have made hospital stays 1) shorter, 2) more pleasant and 3) proportionately less costly.

All this has come about in the last generation, and particularly in the past 10 years. It amounts to a "quiet revolution" in hospital care. That revolution, in fact, is in many ways today's biggest medical news, more important to more people than most of the stories that make one-day headlines.

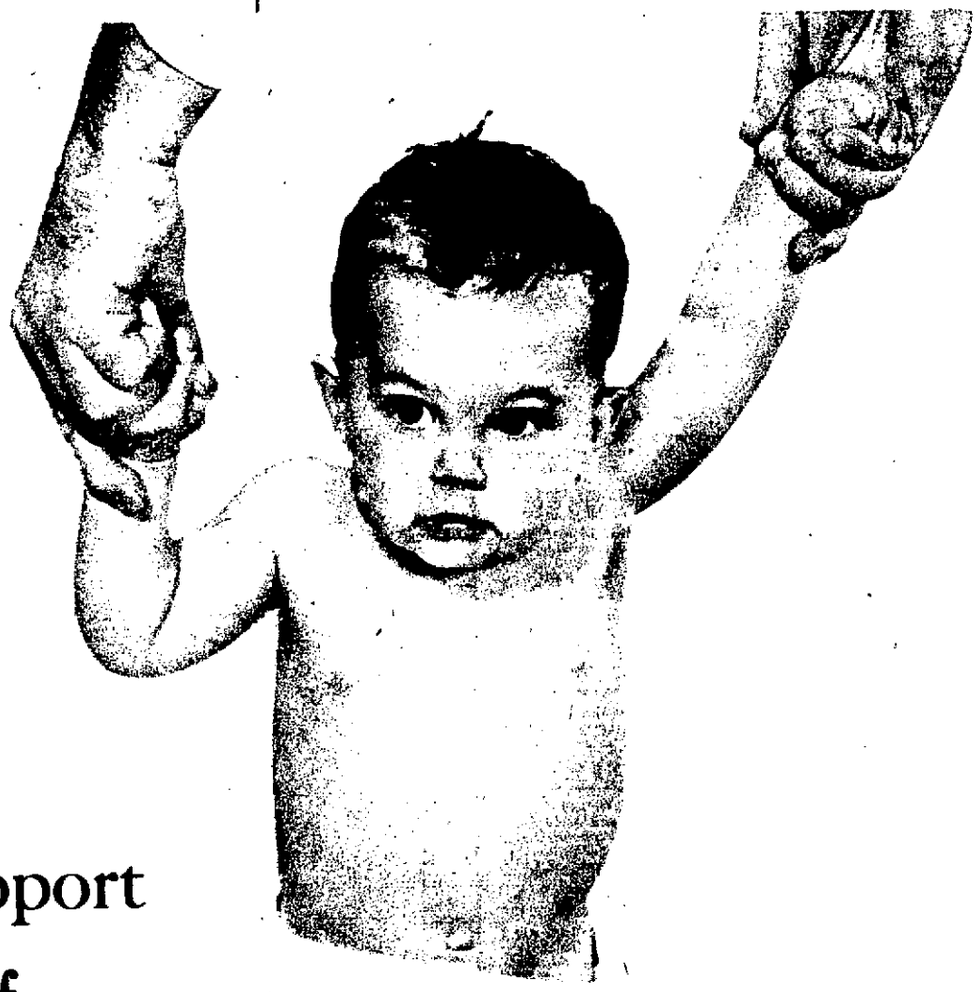

For more about this greatly encouraging news, turn to page 6.

STORY TIME: Somehow, the one about the octopus suddenly didn't seem such a good idea.

Notes I've Been Taken By

The man had a perfect system for remembering people—he thought

by DICK EMMONS

If you see me at a party scribbling busily in one corner of the room, I will not be jotting down an idea for the next charade. I will be transcribing on note paper the name, sex, outstanding physical characteristics, visible scars and general impression made on me by the last person I-met.

This is my own, homemade system for jogging the old memory and avoiding the embarrassment that otherwise would surely visit me when I was again introduced to the same individual at a subsequent party.

I've been doing this for months now and my wife, Helen, and I have come to lean heavily on my notes. Before any social affair we conduct a briefing session in the ready room.

"The Darrows are going to be there tonight," Helen said crisply during a recent pre-party skull practice. "What's his first name?"

"One minute," I replied, thumbing briskly to the D's in my little book. "Here we are. George. Insurance. Fire, automobile, house, accident. No life."

"He seemed pretty lively to me, the way he kept dancing under the mistletoe last Christmas."

"The note means he doesn't handle life insurance," I explained kindly. "Here's some more background. Favorite subject: himself. Easily encouraged to tell more anecdotes by occasional snicker. Has habit of clapping listener on back at punch-line."

"His wife's name is Clara, right?" my wife asked.

"Check," I said, reading aloud. "Clara Darrow. Not bad. Not bad at all. In fact, very good. A lissome creature with a smile that invites tenderness and . . ." My voice trailed off and I snapped the book shut. "All set, dear? We better get going."

"Wait a minute!" my wife roared. "Let me have that book!" I underestimated the girl's footwork: in a trice she had caught me fleeing down the hall and was sitting on my stomach reading more of my notes about Clara, with expression.

"Five-feet-three in her stocking feet. Likes to be tickled behind the ears. Enjoyed story about the five foolish fishermen and the island of the mermaids. Try the one about the over-eager octopus—with gestures—at next opportunity."

I saw then that my biographies were all too complete.

That night my wife quickly found Clara, walked up, tickled her behind the ears and said, "My husband has a story about an octopus he thought you'd like to hear. All right," she rasped at me, squaring her feet and placing her fists on her hips, "tell it. With gestures."

Forced to modify the account considerably, I found it didn't come off very well. The only one who laughed was George Darrow, who came up at the end and thumped my back.

"That's a great one, old man," he thundered, "but did I ever tell you about the fellow who—"

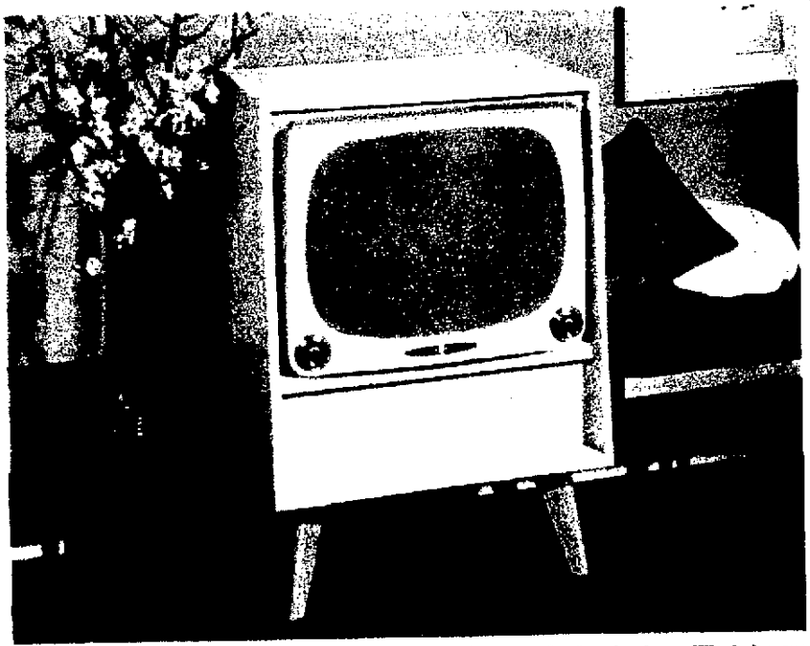

"Yes," I said over and over again, nodding vigorously and backing away.

"Well, he couldn't sleep, see, so—"

When I finally broke away, I made some hurried corrections in my notebook. In the D section it now reads:

"Darrow, George. Avoid."

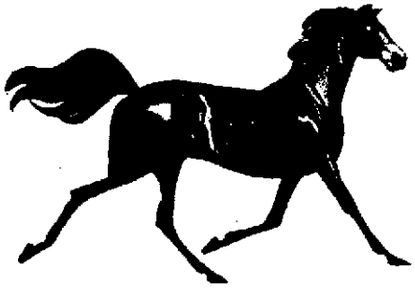

"Darrow, Clara. Avoid at all costs." ■

Today's big medical news:

Shorter Hospital Stays Than Ever

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN and SID ROSS

The middle-aged man smiled as he left the University of Chicago Clinics. Suffering from a form of arthritis, he had been resigned to a long and costly stay in the hospital.

But new methods of treatment made possible his release in just a few days. From then on he was an outpatient, receiving necessary care but living at home and working a normal five-day week.

That man was one of a vast army of Americans hospitalized each year, an army which is taking part in a quiet revolution. It's the biggest news in medicine today—the revolution in hospital care that spells better treatment, shorter stays and steadily greater chances of survival in complicated cases.

This year, well over 20,000,000 Americans will be hospitalized, about three times as many as 20 years ago. Statistically speaking, you, a member of your family or a friend will, at some point in 1955, require hospital care. Most likely you will have any one of a hundred or more "acute" conditions.

Shorter Hospital Stays Than Ever CONTINUED

EARLY AMBULATION: Patient is helped out of bed shortly after operation. This reduces chance of complications and speeds recovery.

DIET: Using new knowledge of nutrition, a hospital dietician plans meals for patient to keep her strong during recovery period.

Here's the kind of treatment you get for specific illnesses when you are hospitalized

Acute illnesses are those that flare up, need quick attention and can be cured. They include everything from an infection to a broken bone or—though it is hardly an illness—childbirth. A recent Maryland study shows that seven out of eight hospital cases fall into the acute category.

The eighth case (about 12 per cent of the total) involves a "chronic" disease, such as heart trouble, cancer or tuberculosis.

Now, suppose you are an "acute" patient some time this year. What can you expect in the way of care, as contrasted to a generation ago?

Because of today's improved diagnostic devices—electrocardiograph and ballistocardiograph for the heart, electroencephalograph for the brain and others—doctors can determine better than ever what's wrong with you. One physician points out: "Thirty years ago, we often had to operate on a patient to find out what was wrong. Now, in most cases, we know what's wrong before you reach the operating room."

Before the operation, too, you now get a physical "build-up" if you need it. Vitamins, minerals, glucose will fortify your system for what lies ahead. In 1930, no patient received such thorough care.

Then take anesthesia. Virtually unknown 25 years ago, pre-anesthetic medications now make the operation easier and safer for patient and doctor. Demerol may be given to calm you. Atropine prevents complications in the lung during surgery.

In addition, one of the new, safer anesthetics—sodium pentothal, for instance—can put you to sleep in your room before the operation and let you wake up there after it is over. The patient of 25 years ago often was wheeled to the operating room in a state of emotional upheaval and had to be held down while ether or chloroform was given.

Is your heart strong enough to withstand surgery? Today, the electrocardiograph and X rays give a clear answer. Formerly, the doctor relied largely on his stethoscope.

HOW LONG WILL YOU STAY IN A HOSPITAL?

One out of two patients is confined to the hospital for less than one week, according to a recent study conducted by the Commission for Chronic Illness, Baltimore. Chart shows percentage of patients who stay longer than a week. Only about 12 per cent still stay longer than a month.

CHECKUP: Doctor takes a heart patient's blood pressure to see if he can continue to be treated — not in hospital but at home.

DIAGNOSIS: Technician uses recently developed time-saving device, a "flame photometer," to check body fluids of patient.

"WONDER DRUGS": Patient is about to receive an injection of one of a wide variety of antibiotics which destroy infection and shorten hospital stay. Improved antibiotics are developed "almost daily."

And if your heart rate indicates that you are in trouble on the operating table, the doctor now can turn to new drugs and treatment techniques. Intravenous quinidine can help; so can the present-day purer form of digitalis. Blood from blood banks is available. The really critical patient can be put in an oxygen tent.

Those two old time post-operative killers, pneumonia and blood clots, have been eliminated to a large extent, the former by antibiotics, the latter by early ambulation (walking). Thirty years ago, long periods in bed could actually prolong or complicate your illness. When doctors discovered that, early ambulation became a hospital routine. Today you walk earlier, go home earlier, recuperate faster and more safely.

The Experts Tell Why

The revolution in hospital care affects both the acute patient and the chronic patient. PARADE asked experts from coast to coast two questions: Why are hospital stays shorter today? How long can patients with specific ailments expect to be hospitalized?

The answers were provided by the University of Chicago Clinics, the Los Angeles County Hospital, the Crawford Long Hospital (Atlanta), Georgetown University Medical School (Washington, D. C.) and the Ochsner Foundation Hospital (New Orleans). Here are their basic reasons for shorter hospital stays:

1) Antibiotic drugs (penicillin, terramycin, etc.). New derivatives of these "wonder" drugs are being developed almost daily.

2) Early ambulation.

3) Better diagnosis and pre- and post-operative care.

4) Improved medical and surgical techniques and better hospital personnel to apply them.

5) Increased emphasis on home care for patients because of high hospital costs and because many patients can do as well at home as in a hospital.

As a result of these factors, anyone needing an operation in 1955 will probably spend up to 50 per cent fewer days in the hospital than he would have 20 years ago. If he has a leg fracture or a serious infection, his stay may be cut up to 70 per cent. On chronic diseases there are few statistics available, but here too there is evidence that some hospital stays have been cut up to 50 per cent.

As for PARADE's second question, on length of hospital stays in specific illnesses, the University of Chicago Clinics provided a concrete breakdown which, on the average, may be taken as representative of most hospitals. Here it is:

Fractures: Many years ago, fracture cases stayed in the hospital for weeks if not months. Today, even many severe fracture cases are discharged in about two weeks. New techniques for "pinning" parts of broken bones together are partly responsible; one of these techniques permits the patient to walk on crutches almost immediately.

Burns: Antibiotics have performed near-miracles in preventing infection and cutting down hospital stays. Complicated cases which once required skin grafting and a six-month hospital stay may be discharged today in three to six weeks. Many of today's burn patients leave the hospital without scars or other signs of injury.

Appendectomy: Hospital stays have been cut in half in the past few years—from eight to 10 days to four to five days.

Childbirth: More than 90 per cent of all babies are born in hospitals. As late as 1940, new mothers were hospitalized 10, 12 or even 14 days. Today, some hospitals send mothers and their babies home after a day or two, though the average stay is three to five days.

Tonsillectomy: As a rule, children still remain in the hospital a day or two. But an important advance has been made in ailments relating to the tonsils and adenoids. Years ago, many patients were hospitalized for long periods because of infections associated with the tonsils. These infections, together with the need for hospitalization, virtually have been wiped out.

Gall-bladder disease: Formerly hospitalized three weeks or longer, these cases, involving surgery, now remain in the hospital about six to 10 days.

Hernia: Years ago, cases were bed-ridden about two weeks and kept in the hospital up to four weeks. Today, they sometimes leave the hospital in three to seven days.

Anemia: This term includes a large class of diseases. Years ago, every anemia sufferer died. Today, with liver extract and Vitamin B-12, few cases even have to be hospitalized—and those briefly.

The diseases classified as leukemias offer a different picture. Some forms are fatal. Others used to require hospital stays of several weeks, but now can be treated in a few days.

As for five main types of chronic disease, these "informed guesses" were made by Chicago Clinics authorities:

Great Progress—in Some Cases

Arthritis: The largest single group are the rheumatoid arthritics. For them, the average hospital stay has been cut up to 50 per cent or more in the past generation. A significant number of arthritics can be treated in outpatient departments—without hospitalization.

Cancer: Surgery involving the breast or colon once called for hospital stays of several weeks. Now, as little as one week suffices in some cases. Surgeons are operating on—and saving—patients who would have been considered "hopeless" 20 years ago. The same holds true for cancer of the cervix and prostate gland. Fifty years ago, prostate-cancer operations carried a 25 to 30 per cent death rate; today, that rate is down to 1 or 2 per cent. But progress has been much less marked against cancer of the stomach and lung.

Heart disease: In certain types, the patient remains in the hospital four weeks as opposed to eight or more weeks 20 years ago. Because high blood pressure is treated in earlier stages today than before, hospitalization time has been reduced.

Tuberculosis: In the past decade, TB sanatorium stays have been cut up to 50 per cent. TB still is important, but great advances against it have caused some TB facilities to close for lack of patients.

Ulcers: In some cases, stays for ulcer surgery have been cut from three to four weeks to 10 days to two weeks.

To this remarkable record, one researcher at the University of Chicago adds:

"Great strides have been made in hospital care. Today we don't even see cases of those old-time killers, typhoid, diptheria, scarlet fever."

However, he points out, a new field has opened in hospital care. This is the field of long-term degenerative disease associated with aging—senility, stroke, certain types of heart disease, etc. Knowledge in this area is sketchy.

"Those illnesses of aging provide a big part of the hospital problem of the future," he says. "Come talk to us in a few years—you'll really get a story." ■

Scale-Model Jet Fighter Aces

HAMMOND, IND.

The kids from the Carmelite Orphanage near here may not all grow up to be jet pilots, but they know how it feels after flying the Super Sabre Red Ball Jet—an exact scale model of the F-100—in a local shoe store. Climbing into the cockpit, they heard a recorded whoosh as the plane pointed up, saw themselves "flying" on a movie screen, heard "tower to pilot" instructions via headphones, "landed" safely. The plane, now on tour, advertises shoes for just plain walking.

WOULD-BE PILOTS crowd around model jet. U.S. Air Force and builders of real F-100 have approved this type of activity.

The two helpers you want most . . . in ONE machine

An automatic washer . . . an automatic dryer! Now for the first time in anybody's lifetime, you can have both in one handsome, wonderfully compact machine.

You'll set the dials just once to wash, rinse and thoroughly dry your clothes. Or, you can use the Duomatic as a washer only . . . or a dryer only . . . whenever you like. No washday appliance has ever been so versatile . . . so completely ready to do exactly what you want when you want it.

Clothes are lifted and tumbled 500 times every ten minutes

The Duomatic washes clothes whiter . . . brighter . . . cleaner than you've ever seen them.

That's because its tumble-action is unlike other machines.

Your clothes plunge deeper into the suds . . . they're lifted higher . . . turned and tumbled (ever so gently) 500 times in 10 minutes.

Two wonderful tumble rinses plunge your clothes in and out of clear, warm water until they're immaculately clean. And they stay that way because they're lifted out of the water as it drains away.

Atomic tests show the Bendix Duomatic washes three ways cleaner than other leading automatic washers.

But you won't need tests to tell you.

A special heater keeps wash water hot

Women who have the Duomatic say the built-in Magic Heater is almost as wonderful as the machine itself. Other washers let the wash water cool off, but the Bendix Magic Heater keeps it hot and hard working all through wash cycle . . . keeps it extra hot for extra-dirty things.

You're a beautiful housekeeper

. . . you'll have the crispest curtains, the fluffiest blankets . . . and you'll do them with your eyes shut. None of the lugging and tugging that made "heavy cleaning" a thing to be dreaded. Now, thanks to the Duomatic, it's as easy as setting a dial.

Balmy breezes dry your clothes

After your clothes are washed and rinsed, the Duomatic blinks its bright green eye and automatically turns into a dryer.

Now soft, warm air blows through your clothes while the Duomatic fluffs and tumbles them lovingly dry.

And consider this: Duomatic drying is so gentle, manufacturers recommend it for Fabulous Fabrics like Orlon, Dacron, Nylon. Fabrics you'd hesitate to trust to other dryers.

Space is no problem, neither is installation

The Bendix Duomatic gives you a washer and dryer in just 36 inches of wall space. Fits neatly into the kitchen, the pantry, even the bathroom. And it's now available in both gas and electric models so your husband can't bring up that old bugaboo about installation costs. Would it be a good idea to mark this paragraph—for him?

You're A Brand New You

. . . take a look at yourself, all smiles, no worries, all kinds of pep. With the Bendix Duomatic there are no washday chores to wash you out. As a matter of fact there are no washdays.

Proved in 2 full years of home use

The Duomatic is no "experiment"—it's been an everyday blessing in thousands of homes for two years now. And—if you think we lavish praise on the Duomatic, you should see the hundreds and hundreds of letters we've had from grateful owners. You'd read comments like these . . .

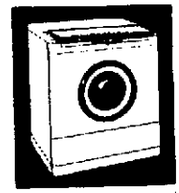

"The best surprise is the way it washes. I've never had clothes come out so clean" . . .
Mrs. John Sell, Chicago, Illinois

"I love the way our Duomatic dries, too. It never steams up my kitchen or overheats the house" . . .
Mrs. Rollo Christopher, Beaumont, Texas

"With two small children, it's a life saver. Like having full time laundry help" . . .
Mrs. E. C. Gutknecht, Milwaukee, Wis.

Shouldn't you take your husband by the hand and look into the BENDIX DUOMATIC tomorrow?

Do you want a separate washer or dryer?

The new Bendix Tumble-Action Washer washes just like the Duomatic does. Same superior cleansing action . . . same rinses. Bendix Tumble-Action is the only washer with Tip-Top Laundry Guide. Closed, it hides the dials, gives you extra work space. It opens to reveal convenient, up-front controls and a complete laundry guide.

And the new Bendix Fluff 'N' Tumble Dryers dry like the Duomatic does . . . gently, with safe low temperatures and a high flow of clean warm air. What's more, they're very low priced . . . as little as $158.88!

Thrifty Bendix Tumble-Action uses less water . . . so, of course, it uses less detergent, too!

Bendix prescribes ALL, the modern "controlled suds" detergent, for best washing results. ALL never chokes up your washer with suds that slow down washing action. That's why a free box of ALL is packed in every new Bendix.

Why do they always kick the tires of a used car?

You've seen them do it in lots of used car places. You've done it yourself, haven't you?

The salesman quotes a price. Or says "What do you think? Doesn't that sound like a good buy?" That's when the used car shopper kicks the tire . . . reflectively.

The tire-kicker is wondering: Has the car been thoroughly inspected? Reconditioned for safety, performance and value? Has it been honestly described? Is the dealer reputable? Does he stand back of the cars he sells—in writing? When a fellow has the answers to those important questions he has the assurance he needs. He stops kicking and starts clicking.

You'll be sitting pretty with the right answers the minute you ease into a clean, well-groomed OK Used Car at your Chevrolet dealer's. Drive it, and experience what "reconditioned for performance and safety" means. Buy it, when you hear the down-to-earth price that means more value, more pleasure per dollar. That's right, mister, look for the "OK Used Car" sign displayed by Chevrolet dealers, get a warranted OK Used Car—and you'll be money and miles ahead!

EXPERT: As firm's employe since 1872, James Rearden gives useful tips to newcomer, Mrs. C. M. Lowe.

83 YEARS ON ONE JOB

South Carolina mill clerk sets world's record

by GEORGE ROBINSON

GRANITEVILLE, S. C.

This will be quite a year for James Wesley Rearden, a leading citizen of this little mill community nestled in the rolling hills of Upper Horse Creek Valley near Aiken. On June 6 he'll celebrate his 94th birthday. On May 10, he'll round out 83 years of work with the Graniteville Company, a group of modern cotton mills.

And that makes Mr. Rearden the holder of the longest continuous industrial work record in the world. In the office of the president of the Graniteville Company hang five portraits. Four are those of presidents of the firm. The fifth is that of the shipping clerk to whom the firm long has paid tribute for "always doing a little more than is expected of him."

The remarkable Mr. Rearden has a standing offer from the Graniteville Company to retire any time he wants to or report for work any hour of the day he chooses. But he's regularly among the first on the job, walking the short distance from his white frame home (not far from the plant gates) to his office. He treats himself to a short rest period after lunch every day, but otherwise puts in full time.

A retirement system was adopted by Graniteville in 1949 for employes reaching 65, but Mr. Rearden—then 88—had been told long before that he could work as long as he cared to. So he's doing just that. "As long as they'll let me," he says, "I'm going to show up for work each morning. I like the people I work for and I'd feel lost without something to do."

That "something to do" for the past 35 years has included teaching the Young Men's Bible Class at St. John's Methodist Church in Graniteville, where he has been a member 70 years and has sung in the choir almost that long.

Mr. Rearden won his longest-work-record title fair and square. In 1950, the Thomas De La Rue Company, Ltd., printers and engravers, of London, challenged the U.S. to produce a man with a longer continuous work record than their Harry Adkins, a 75-year man. The Rearden record, supplied through the National Association of Manufacturers, showed that he topped Adkins by three years.

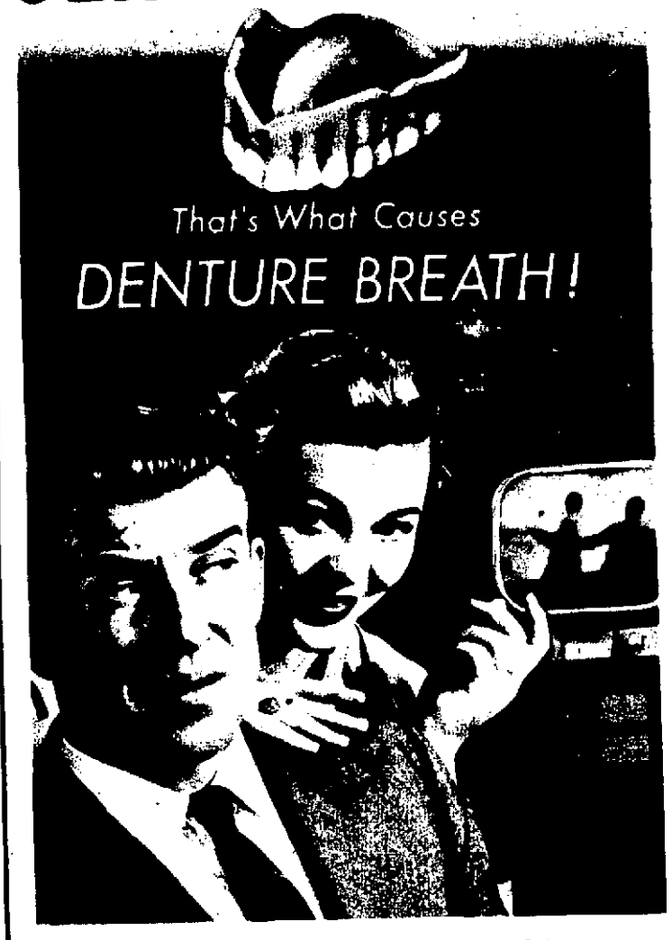

He Started at 10

He began work for Graniteville on May 10, 1872. He was nearly 11 then, but—as he recalls—"big for his age." That was the only reason he was able to get a job in the plant: every child under 13 was supposed to be in school. Mr. Rearden's first job was "tack boy," his only tools a needle and thread plus a shoe knife for cutting thread to tack cloth.

Mr. Rearden still remembers the company's founder, William Gregg, who started the mill in 1845. It is the oldest cotton mill in the South operating under its original charter. As for Mr. Rearden, he feels the same about his job today as in 1947, when the company honored him on his 75th consecutive work year.

Said he then: "If I had to make the choice again, it would be the same as it was in 1872." ■

New Rinso Blue washes whiter —because it blues as it washes

Guess which girl washed her towel with RINSO BLUE? (The one on the right.)

New sky-blue detergent washes cotton, rayon, even nylon whiter—because it blues as it washes! Unless your present detergent does that—it's doing only half the job!

RINSO BLUE does so many different jobs, and does them all so brilliantly, that it honestly makes other detergents seem obsolete. Listen to this:

1. RINSO BLUE actually blues as it washes. As a result, sheets, shirts, pillowcases—yes, even rayon and nylon clothes—come out cleaner and whiter, your colored clothes brighter. And you don't need to add any bluing!

2. We developed this new RINSO formula to give you the cleaning power to get clothes really clean and white in your washer.

3. RINSO BLUE dissolves instantly, even in the hardest water—makes rich suds that float out grimiest dirt, even from soiled work clothes. Yet it's safe for your finest lingerie.

4. It's delightfully mild. That's why so many gals also use RINSO BLUE for doing dishes. It cuts grease like crazy—leaves glasses sparkling. And you don't need to dry!

Lever Brothers unconditionally guarantees new RINSO BLUE, just as we have always guaranteed Rinso soap in the green box.

If you don't agree that RINSO BLUE is a big improvement on the detergent you are now using, we'll gladly refund your money.

▶ Above all, remember this: RINSO BLUE gets your clothes extra white because it blues as it washes. Unless your present detergent does that—it's doing only half the job!

Here's Mitzi Gaynor, the little ballerina they said was "through" in show business—and so she bounced right back to stardom.

The studio dropped her too soon

Mitzi Gaynor can prove it: she's doing better than ever, now

HOLLYWOOD.

When Henry Gerber of Detroit read the announcement four years ago that his dancing daughter, Mitzi Gaynor, had been signed to a "standard seven-year studio contract" by 20th Century-Fox, he glowed. For the next seven years, he felt, his talented, bouncy Mitzi would enjoy financial security, reaping a hefty salary 52 weeks a year.

Like most of the public, Mr. Gerber was laboring under a misconception. In Hollywood, when a studio signs a young actress to a "standard seven-year contract," it simply means that it is guaranteeing the girl 20 weeks of employment at a fixed salary during the first six months- nothing more. If after the first six months the studio wants to exercise its option and continue the actress' employment for another six months at increased salary, it is entitled to do so. If not, the girl is dropped. She can be released at any option period during the seven years.

There are minor variations—sometimes a player is guaranteed 40 weeks of salary in the first year—but basically the standard studio employment contract sounds much better to the aspiring hopeful than it really is.

In the case of Mitzi Gaynor, this smiling sparkplug was dropped last April by 20th Century after four years of work. At the time, her salary was $1,500 a week and she had just started dancing in There's No Business Like Show Business. Mitzi was unceremoniously released from the studio roster for one reason: the executives were convinced she lacked the indefinable magic that makes for screen stardom.

Anyone who's seen Show Business knows they were wrong. In fact, they modestly admit it themselves. But the misjudgment of talent is an inherent part of this business. Every studio has made personnel mistakes. Sam Goldwyn dropped Betty Grable. MGM let Marilyn Monroe go. Columbia showed Barbara Stanwyck the door.

Mitzi, at 23, is gushingly happy that 20th Century dropped her. Says she: "It's turned out to be the best thing that ever happened. Paramount is paying me $100,000 to work opposite Bing Crosby in Anything Goes. Donald O'Connor has had me on two of his TV shows at $5,000 each. Irving Berlin has talked to me about Sayonara. Ethel Merman wants me to do a 'spectacular' with her for Max Liebman. I'm telling you, man, things are jumping. Real crazy."

Currently Hollywood's most-in-demand young dancer, uninhibited Mitzi is a contemporary illlustration of that hoary-haired show business adage: "You're only as good as your last role." Before she "stole" Show Business from Dan Dailey, Ethel Merman, Marilyn Monroe and Donald O'Connor, Mitzi was about as much in demand in this town as a heavy snowfall. The movie moguls knew she could dance, sing, mimic and do light comedy, but she was difficult to cast because she generated more cuteness than sex appeal.

She also was plump, to put it mildly: she tipped the scales at 145, an incredible weight for a 5'6" dancer. As a result she was assigned a series of "near-nothing" roles in Take Care of My Little Girl, Down Among the Sheltering Palms, We're Not Married and Bloodhounds of Broadway. These films made her extremely popular with her family and friends, but not too much so with the public.

She Streamlined Herself

In 1953, however, Mitzi decided to diet. "I cut down on my calories," she explains, "and hired a masseuse. I also got a new hairdo and a dye job. It took a year but I came out a brand new Mitzi—112 pounds. Not only that, the fellows stopped treating me like their kid sister. I even got marriage proposals." One proposal she accepted from publicist Jack Bean last November. They were married in San Francisco.

Despite her streamlined figure and her more adult facial appearance, however, Mitzi failed to stimulate the waning enthusiasm of her employers. Last spring they decided to cast her in Show Business and drop her from their contract list.

"When I received the letter telling me they didn't want me any more," Mitzi recalls, "I was really broken up. But not for long. I've got Hungarian blood—my father was a musical director in Budapest before he came to this country—so I'm just naturally irrepressible. 'Mitzi,' I said to myself, 'you'll show them yet.'

"Right off, Donald O'Connor hired me for his TV show. Then I worked my head off in the picture. When it was released this past Christmas I got rave notices. Then one offer after another. My agent signed the Paramount deal."

A week later, a 20th Century-Fox executive phoned the Gaynor girl, his voice tinged with pain. "I can't believe," he said in fatherly fashion, "that our Mitzi has signed with another studio. Why didn't you talk to us, baby?"

Mitzi giggled and said: "You dropped me too soon."

Born in Chicago and reared in Detroit, product of a broken home, Mitzi Gaynor has been dancing for pay since she was 11. After one thousand hours of USO entertaining, she came to Hollywood with her mother, and here she was recognized as a "dancing natural" by light-opera producer Edwin Lester. In one of his operettas, The Great Waltz, 15-year-old Mitzi demonstrated her prematurely veteran stage presence. While she was dancing with Walter Slezak her petticoat came loose and slipped to the floor. Casually and nimbly the cherubic ballerina stepped out of it and continued waltzing.

George Jessel, then a producer at 20th Century-Fox, chanced to watch that particular performance.

"When I saw Morris (Jessel's name for Mitzi) carry on as if nothing had happened," he says, "I decided the kid was worth a screen test. I brought her to the studio and she sang I'm in Love with a Wonderful Guy. She was absolutely great. I changed her name from Gerber to Gaynor—after all, Gerber sounds as if she owned a delicatessen—and put her in My Blue Heaven. After that the studio signed her. The rest is history. Only I dare you to mention the name of the guy who dropped her."

It takes no daring, George. Everyone knows Darryl Zanuck runs 20th Century-Fox. ■

COMICS: Mitzi and Donald O'Connor strut in a comedy take-off in a scene from There's No Business Like Show Business. Her dancing stole the show, critics said.

AUTHOR OF "AMY VANDERBILT'S COMPLETE BOOK OF ETIQUETTE"

'BABY TALK'

Showers? Announcements? Here's useful advice

There is a whole field of etiquette of which adults rarely think until they actually get involved in it. I refer to babies and their budding, but important, social life.

One subject of general interest is baby showers. A basic rule on showers of all kinds is that they are properly given for, not by, the persons concerned. The suggestion always should come from, and be arranged by, a friend. The recipient, of course, usually knows that the shower is planned and may delicately let it be known what gifts would be welcome.

Here are some questions in the "baby" field from PARADE readers:

Q. In a few months, I expect to become a grandparent. I have been asked to give a baby shower for my daughter. I have declined, simply because I don't think it is proper to give a shower before the birth — so many unfortunate things could happen.—Mrs. W.R., Orange, N.J.

A. I agree with you only in part. Showers are usually given before the baby's birth because we do look on the coming event with optimism — which is good and normal.

However, you are right in another respect. Arrangements for the shower should come from friends of the mother-to-be, otherwise it looks as if the family itself is soliciting presents. I know you'll be able to put this tactfully to those who think you should be the sponsor. And don't be pessimistic about your coming grandchild—think how many people have been born!

Q. Is it necessary for me to send birth announcements to all the families that were present at a baby shower given for me?—Mrs. G.K.C., Augusta, Ga.

A. I would send them to the various girls who came to the shower for you. Stationery stores have very charming little birth announcements which are quite proper to send out. A more formal —and more expensive—way of announcing the new baby is to have tiny calling cards with the baby's name attached to your joint calling card with white, pink or blue ribbon. Any good stationer will show you how this is done.

Q. We are going to have a home christening for our baby. Should formal invitations be sent out? We plan to have it at 5 o'clock and follow it with a buffet supper. Should both the minister and his wife be invited, or just the minister? Isn't there some traditional punch that is served?—Mrs. I.W.R., Long Beach, Calif.

A. Formal invitations are not sent for a christening. Close friends and relatives are invited by telephone, by word of mouth and by note. The clergyman's wife is included in the invitation. The traditional drink at christenings was a "cuddle cup," but this has largely been replaced by champagne, plain or in a delicate punch. Often at afternoon christenings sherry is served.

Let me add a thought from my book, on the subject of home christenings: "It should be kept in mind that this is a celebration in honor of the baby, following a formal, religious ceremony. It has a character quite different from a cocktail party and should be kept on such a plane that even the most conservative baby could not object to the behavior and bearing of his elders."

Q. Can you suggest some suitable baby presents aside from the usual socques, bonnets, blankets, etc.?—R.R.W., Charleston, W. Va.

A. One of my own favorites is a silver dumbbell which makes a fine comfort when the baby's teeth come in. Any baby will be enchanted, too, by the wide variety of nursery mobiles now being offered; hung above the crib, they will fascinate him for hours on end. For the baby who is literally going to get "everything" there is nothing better than a savings bond or a contribution to his savings account.

THE STORY OF all—the original "controlled suds" detergent prescribed by the makers of both top-loading and front-loading washers

all is an utterly new and different kind of detergent—created at the request of automatic washer makers.

all washes with "controlled suds"—the kind that permit your clothes to slosh around in your washer free and easy, just the way the manufacturer intended. Thick suds actually hinder washing action and can ruin costly parts.

What's more, all's "controlled suds" go to work down in the water where the clothes are. all's "controlled suds" get out every single speck of dirt and flush it down the drain with the rinse water.

Millions of women bless the day they discovered the modern way to get cleaner, brighter washes with the now-famous "controlled suds" detergent, all.

But because many other women are accustomed to using a lighter weight, fluffy detergent, we now present a brand new form of all . . . EXTRA FLUFFY all. WATCHFUL TV EYE helps Mrs. Fletcher keep tab on her three children in back yard. Other cameras are in children's bedrooms. Sets are complete with intercom system.

ALWAYS A BREEZE

Patio is "air-conditioned" as air filters through butterfly door. Low-slung house surrounds patio, contains 1,900 square feet of space, is built on a ¾ acre plot.

WEST COVINA, CALIF.

How'd you like to live in a house where:

You'd be able to peep at your sleeping children without leaving your bed.

You'd always have a breeze on the patio.

You'd never trip over a lamp cord.

You'd never worry about burglars.

Your windows would close automatically when a thunderstorm blew up.

Your meals would be cooked in mid-air above a cold, ordinary-looking cabinet.

The lights would shut off automatically when you left a room.

The whole house would be heated by a gadget the size of a basketball.

Pipe dreams? Not these. Every one has been built into a house here, not far from Long Beach, and every one works.

The designer of this "House of Tomorrow" is 24-year-old Jack Fletcher, who built many of the futuristic gadgets himself. Yet Fletcher, son of an aeronautics manufacturer, didn't set out to build a dream house. It "just growed."

It started in 1951 when Jack was an Air Force corporal. He and his wife, Joan, began by outlining a home they would build some day. "It grew gradually," Jack says. "We'd think of something and I'd rough out plans on how it would work." By the time his hitch ended, they had dozens of brand-new ideas.

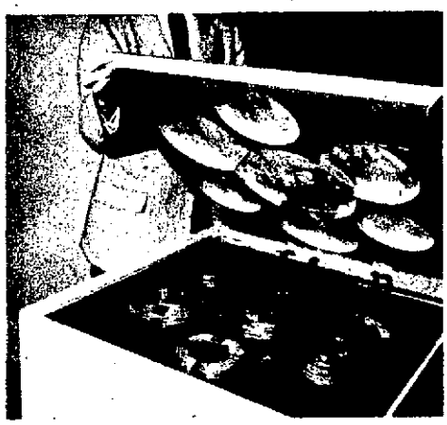

They also had three children—Janie, 3, and twins Johnny and Ricky, 2. So the house was tailored for a family of five. "People are so taken with the advanced features," Fletcher says, "that they overlook the ideas that make it comfortable." An example: the house is laid out in two sections, one a children's romping area, the other a living room and patio for entertaining.

CHIMNEYLESS fireplace is old Chinese trick. Smoke is drawn down under floor into a central flue.

AIRBORNE skillet fries eggs without touching stove. Plywood cabinet is cold to touch. Below, Fletcher displays stove interior—seven magnetic coils.

The "nerve center" is a massive electric control board. Its switches allow such features as the automatic lighting – which snaps on when you enter a room, off when you leave–to be shut off when not needed.

It also controls TV cameras which peer into the children's rooms and the play area. Receivers are in the parents' bedroom and the family room, so Mrs. Fletcher can keep an eye on the kids. The bedroom set also has an intercom hookup. A flip of a switch pipes music into any part of the house.

Floor lamps are cordless, plugless, socketless: they light up when set over electronic units in the floor. Windows include a sensitive device called a solenoid, which whisks them shut at a drop of rain or gust of wind. Burglars are foiled by an amplifier which magnifies night noises 50 times, and an electric door lock which sets off an alarm when tampered with. The telephone will automatically dial police or fire when a button is pushed.

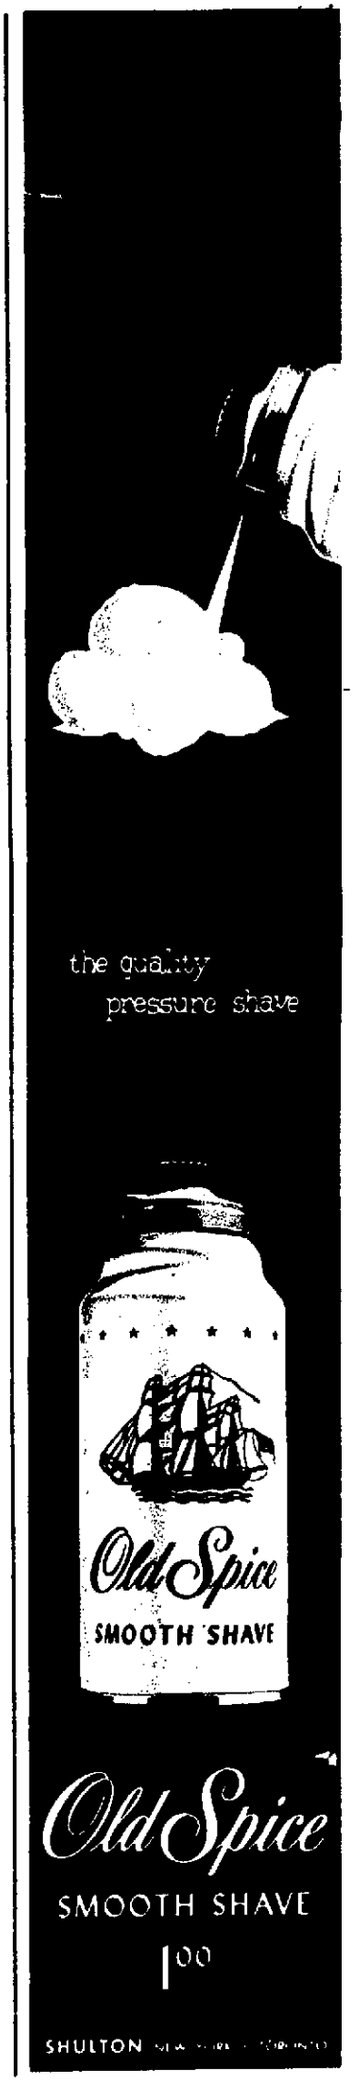

But the high light of the house seems to be the kitchen "range." A plywood cabinet, it houses magnetic coils which set up eddy currents in the pan, thus do the cooking. The cabinet remains cold–because magnetic repulsion keeps the pans two inches above the surface.

The front of the house and the front of the garage provide free air-conditioning for the patio. They funnel air through a butterfly door into the patio, wafting a breeze even on calmest days.

One idea is centuries old. Above each fireplace is a picture window, so guests can enjoy both fire and view. Where does the smoke go? It's drawn under the floor into a central flue. The Chinese thought of this a long time ago.

But the heating system is so advanced that it's completely secret. Even Fletcher doesn't know how it works; it was given him on condition he didn't investigate. Developed in Canada, it is housed in a small sealed cabinet.

Well, how would you like a house like this? Of 30,000 people who visited it, many oohed and aahed; but others thought its gadgets just too eerie. And there's the matter of cost. Fletcher estimates it at $35,000, with his work thrown in free. Builders says it's a bargain. But for most young couples, $35,000 means the "House of Tomorrow" is a long way off. ■

THE CHEWING-GUM LAXATIVE

Well, what is it NOW?

LONDON.

Monkeys, as most people know, often act more like people than people do—except, perhaps, people who act like monkeys. (Like monkeys acting like themselves, that is; not like monkeys acting like people.) Today's example is this mother and child at the London Zoo. The child wants something and the mother is expressing weary interest. But she's not really interested. It's happened 43 times in the last hour and now she just wants to be let alone. Like monkeys, like people. ■

ILLUMINATED by setting sun, rubber "freedom balloon" strains toward sky. Inside are leaflets which will spread widely after balloon bursts over Hungarian territory.

Why Red leaders keep talking about

THOSE BALLOONS

RADIO FREE EUROPE, one of whose latest exploits is described here, is not "another U.S. propaganda agency." As explained by C. D. Jackson, former special assistant for political warfare to President Eisenhower, it is a center in which Europeans themselves can keep alive the idea of freedom.

RFE merely supplies the resources the radio equipment, the wire facilities, the financing which permits patriotic Europeans to carry on a war of ideas with the Red rulers of their Russian-dominated homelands.

Privately supported, Radio Free Europe now is soliciting funds throughout the U.S. Contributions can be made at any Post Office. Address envelopes to 1955 Crusade for Freedom, % your local postmaster.

FAKE BILLS and coins, inscribed with freedom slogans, are carried by some balloons along with well-illustrated leaflets (r.).

Like a sliver slowly festering under a Red fingernail, the activities of the U.S.-sponsored Radio Free Europe (RFE) long have been the bane of Communist leaders in satellite lands.

RFE has specialized in radio broadcasts. But lately, and largely unobserved by the U.S. public, it has launched, in conjunction with the Crusade for Freedom, a new campaign with two new weapons.

Weapon No. 1 is a device: pudgy, pillow-shaped plastic balloons which carry leaflets deep into captive lands. First tried in 1951, balloons now are floating eastward from secret bases in West Germany in growing numbers.

Weapon No. 2 is an idea: how best to embarrass Communist governments without betraying free-world sympathizers to the secret police.

Recently both weapons were tested, simultaneously, in Hungary. Working under American supervision, a team of Hungarian patriots on the RFE staff came up with a list of "Twelve Demands" which were then printed in leaflet form. The Demands would serve to rally freedom-loving Hungarians and make administration difficult for the Reds.

Rights—on Paper

But the "Demands" were not a call to revolution. Instead, they were appeals for privileges which the Reds themselves agreed Hungarians should have, but which in practice are denied.

For example, the Demands called for right of free speech, of assembly, of equality before the law, of the right to elect local councils. All of these rights—familiar to every American—exist in Hungary, but only on paper.

Crusade released thousands of balloons with millions of leaflets. Radio broadcasts backed them up. Soon, through leaks in the Iron Curtain, came word that the Demands were being read, talked about—and denounced by the Reds. Late last year the Hungarian Government itself protested to the U.S. State Department against the balloons and the "inciting, slanderous" leaflets.

The U.S. answered, simply, that Radio Free Europe is a private, not a Government, organization; that what it does is its own business; that when frontiers are closed and travel cut off, balloons are about the only way left to communicate.

How Can Reds Criticize?

Besides, the State Department inquired, what is wrong with leaflets telling Hungarians to demand free local elections which the Hungarian Government itself guarantees? And equality before the law—when Hungary proclaims it, can outsiders be criticized for advocating it too?

So it went with the rest of the Demands. In fact: "The United States Government hopes that the day will come when balloons will no longer be necessary as a means by which the people of one country may freely communicate with peoples of other lands. Presumably it is within the power of the Hungarian Government to take the necessary remedial action. . . ."

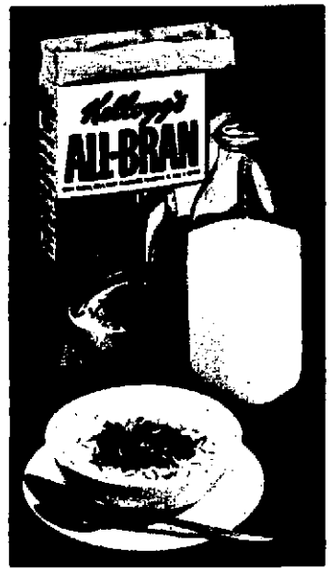

Does all this do any permanent good? Yes, reply RFE leaders like Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, president of the American Heritage Foundation. Such incidents keep alive the spirit of resistance, keep Red rulers off balance, give patriots legitimate goals to strive for.

They also make Communist leaders look just a little stupid. ■

Twin weapons, balloons and leaflets, are released into the breeze that blows over the Iron Curtain.

WHICH IS THE PHONY 50-cent piece? Actually, only the 1942 coin (2) is genuine—but it takes an expert eye to spot it.

Coin Counterfeiting: It's a Living—Sometimes

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Forrest Starling was a skilled artisan of Perry, Ia. To make ends meet, he minted phony 50-cent pieces in his own back yard, using a homemade die, a press and a rolling mill operated by three automobile transmissions.

Working alone, as most "coiners" do, Starling strove for quality. He produced better coins, in fact, than the Government. He used more silver than the U.S. Mint does. Finally arrested and asked for his occupation, he answered proudly: "I'm a counterfeiter and a damn good one."

He had anticipated the law. Only a few weeks before his capture, he took his son on a trip to Leavenworth, Kan., to see the town. Like a good tourist, he took a look at the penitentiary. "I wanted to see the place," he said later, "because I expected to wind up there." And like a good counterfeiter, he passed a few coins in Leavenworth stores during his visit.

Starling's downfall came because of another "improvement" he made in Uncle Sam's half-dollars. An Iowa bank clerk, handling a Starling product, noticed the reeding (the grooved outer edge) was too deep. Otherwise, the coin looked like the real McCoy. Secret Service agents later asked Starling why he had made the reeding so pronounced. "It was my mint," he said haughtily, "and that's the way I wanted it."

Though perhaps an exaggerated case, Starling typifies the handful of rugged individualists who still counterfeit small coins (including, incredibly, pennies). Few but dedicated, these five-and-dime swindlers are no threat to the nation's monetary structure. Many actually lose money on each coin they counterfeit. Apparently the artistic satisfaction is worth it.

"Coiners aren't a menace, but they sure are a nuisance," Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman summed it up for PARADE.

Back in the late '30s and early '40s, they actually were a menace. It was legal then to manufacture metal slugs identical in size and shape to Uncle Sam's coins. The slug business coincided unhappily with the vending-machine boom: slugs "bought" millions of dollars' worth of cigarettes, candy and soft drinks. Congress remedied the situation in 1944 by outlawing slugs. But a small counterfeiting fraternity lingered on.

Three Classes of Coiners

Its most exclusive member is the counterfeiter of rare coins. With delicate instruments, magnifying glasses, dentists' drills, acids and chemicals, he may work for two months to turn out a nearly perfect replica. Unfortunately for him, rare-coin dealers not only give the product a microscopic examination but naturally regard any "new find" with extreme suspicion. Success comes seldom to the elite of the counterfeiting dodge.

The mass manufacturer of everyday coins does better. Like any other free enterpriser, he buys equipment, keeps books, makes marginal profits. His capital investment (multi-ton presses, delicate dies, elaborate machinery) usually runs high.

by JACK ANDERSON and FRED BLUMENTHAL

Leo Gailie and William Ehlers were in this class. They made shiny nickels in the basement of an abandoned Florida, N. Y., farmhouse with heavy presses run by a gas engine. To deaden the racket, they ran the exhaust for 100 feet underground.

Their five-cent pieces, coined on a stamping press almost identical to the type used by the Government, looked so authentic the jury almost refused to believe they were counterfeit. It took the testimony of an assay expert, who had analyzed the coins' chemical contents, to convict the pair.

At the bottom of the counterfeiters' social scale is the shoestring coiner who turns out sloppy imitations. About all the equipment he needs is plaster to make molds, some cheap metal (usually babbitt, antimony or lead) and a stove to "cook" or melt the metal.

One home coiner sent his small daughter to the corner store with a bootleg quarter to buy bread. As she waited for her change, the grocer eyed the coin.

"I'm sorry, little girl," he said, "but this quarter isn't any good."

"It is, too, good," chirped the child. "My daddy just cooked it." And so he had, as Secret Servicemen discovered that afternoon when they investigated the grocer's report.

It's one thing to turn out passable counterfeit coins, but quite another to make a living at it. The margin of profit is so small that the coiners—unlike counterfeiters of paper money—must do the passing themselves.

A coiner may make the best penny in the world, but he can't pay the landlord in pennies without arousing curiosity. He might be able to stock up on peanuts and sell them at a discount, but that's all he'd end up with—peanuts.

Even if he deals in bogus quarters or 50-cent pieces, the profits are fantastically low. A homemade quarter, for example, takes at least an hour to produce. To dispose of it safely, the counterfeiter usually slips it in a vending machine and buys a pack of cigarettes. He can smoke the cigarettes or peddle them at a discount. But the most he can hope to net is something like 15 cents an hour.

This doesn't take into account the risk of arrest. There was Robert McCauley, who loved the coconut pie sold at the Automat self-service restaurants. He invested a good many of his home-cooked nickels in it. But one day, after he dropped three phony coins in a slot, the restaurant manager—accompanied by Secret Servicemen—came out along with the pie.

Another coiner, Edward Berglund, had a weakness for slot machines. He lost so much money on them that he began feeding them his own 50-cent pieces. To ease his conscience, he marked each coin plainly with the word slug, and, when arrested, claimed he had played fair. The judge ruled otherwise.

Most coin counterfeiters keep aloof from other forms of law-breaking. Police in Houston, Tex., were startled when Joe Riley came in and asked to be arrested for counterfeiting. He chose this method to rid himself of an unwanted partner, an ex-convict who had been up for murder and robbery.

But Riley had trouble convincing the cops he was a coiner. Then he had trouble with the judge: Riley pleaded guilty, but got only a suspended sentence. In desperation, he told the judge he was a sick man and needed to go to jail. He went—for 13 months.

With all their poverty, their long hours of tedious work, their inevitable stays in prison, the coiners are a proud lot. Take James Burton, who wound up in Leavenworth penitentiary six separate times. During one stay he magnanimously taught his profession to a fellow-con, Frank Marshall. When they got out, teacher and protege went their separate, counterfeiting ways. Then one week they were arrested almost simultaneously.

Burton, the old master, was anxious to see the work of his pupil. "Boys," he told the Secret Service agents, "you've always given me a square deal. Now I'd like to ask a favor. I want to see Frank Marshall's outfit." Obligingly, the agents took him to his pupil's counterfeiting plant.

Burton carefully looked over the equipment, inspected the product and shook his head. "It's too bad," he said sadly. "Frank will never make it." ■

HOW TO SPOT PHONY COINS

Some phonies are almost impossible to detect, but here are four useful tests:

- Drop the coin on a hard surface. Genuine coins have a clear ring. Counterfeits usually sound dull.
- Rub it between your fingers. If the coin feels greasy, it probably is no good.
- Look at the corrugated edge. On genuine coins the grooves are even and regular. On counterfeits they are either irregular or missing altogether.
- If you own a business, get an inexpensive acid formula which, sprinkled on a phony coin, immediately blackens it. Ask your druggist for this mixture: 10 grains silver nitrate, 1 cc. nitric acid, 30 cc. distilled water.

SAMPLES of counterfeit coins are brought regularly to Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman. Here he shows writer Blumenthal a few.

SPILL during a skiing lesson is a big joke to Jane Russell, who is one of the "regulars" at Sun Valley.

RACING down the slope is Van Johnson, rated as another of Hollywood's ace skiers. Training as a dancer helped him master sport.

By LLOYD SHEARER
PARADE'S WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

SUN VALLEY, IDA.

Not even their studios' dire warning, "stay off skis, or else," is holding back Hollywood's ever-growing coterie of ski enthusiasts this winter.

With vast contempt for possible broken limbs, the film stars have been deserting their swimming pools for the ski slopes. Had you been here one recent week, your ski colleagues would have included Gary Cooper, Van Johnson, Andy Devine, Joan Caulfield, Esther Williams, Cornel Wilde, June Allyson, William Wyler and Dick Powell.

Stay for the season – who has the money?–and you'll undoubtedly run into Ray Milland, Betty Hutton, Judy Garland, Jane Russell, Arlene Dahl, Robert Young–in fact, more screen celebrities than you'd find in any one Hollywood studio.

The stars usually bring their families with them. Consequently they're seen in a doting parental light, although in some cases their offspring ski much better than they do. This is true of Maria Cooper, Gary's beautiful 17-year-old daughter. The Coopers (see cover) have been coming to this posh winter resort since 1941. In that time Maria has been taught by the world's greatest ski experts. Her famous dad, at 53, is a fair skier himself, but as he points out: "You can't compare me to a young chicken."

"Coop" and his statuesque wife, "Rocky," Hollywood's most zealous ski fans, got Clark Gable out on a slope near here on a December day in 1945. Gable dutifully climbed 3,000 feet to the takeoff point atop Mt. Baldy, but by the time he got to the bottom the seat of his trousers was frozen stiff. "From here on in," he vowed, "my game is golf."

But Gable is an exception. Practically every other film figure who's tried skiing loves it. Joan Caulfield dubbed herself "the crybaby of Baldy Mountain" after she sat down in the snow and cried because she couldn't keep up with her husband, producer Frank Ross.

"I don't care how long it takes," Joan says. "Some day I'm going to be much better than Frank!"

This past Christmas, Esther Williams and her family slid into skis for the first time. Like any other neophyte, Esther fell occasionally, but by nature she is so graceful and by experience so well-conditioned that Sigi Engl, local ski ace, told her she could become a crack skier with an absolute minimum of practice.

"So many of the screen stars have had dance training," Sigi claims, "that they're a natural for this sport. Girls like Betty Hutton, Jane Russell, Arlene Dahl, Judy Garland – they're supple and light on their feet. They pick up skiing very easily. In some instances they're better at it than their husbands."

One case in point involves June Allyson and Dick Powell. When the Powells first came here, they brought all the chic ski clothes – identical husband-and-wife outfits–then hired ski instructors. It took June two weeks to summon up courage to ride the ski lift. When at last she did, Powell hired a cameraman to shoot movies of him and June skiing.

A Slight Misunderstanding

Back in Los Angeles he ran off the film one night. Pointing to a small figure on the screen, he said to his children: "See that girl up there? That's your mother after two weeks of expensive ski instruction. Look at her skis. They're six feet apart. You could run a tractor between them."

A few moments later, as the figure on the screen awkwardly staggered into closer camera range, it became crystal clear that it was Dick Powell, not June Allyson. Says Powell: "Until I'm in my grave, I'll never live that one down."

Of the Hollywood ski contingent, three of the most proficient are Gene Kelly, Dan Dailey and Van Johnson. Significantly, all three are dancers. Kelly in particular is an athletic "natural." Three years ago, in Switzerland, he spent a day watching and listening to the experts, then raced down a mountainside with such effortless perfection that veterans refused to believe it was his first try.

Most movie stars do not like taking sports instruction in public, especially when repeated pratfalls are involved. For skiing, though, they make an exception. Says Dick Powell: "There are a great many of us who have landed on our derrières instead of on our skis. In this sport it's the kind of fun you can't help showing–and sharing." ■

FAMILY LESSON: Swimming star Esther Williams and two of her three children listen carefully as Papa Ben Gage shows them how to "bend your knees."

Industry's Secret Agents

By Douglas Nelson Rhodes

TOWNS AND VILLAGES all over the U. S. — including those in California — are being invaded by small bands of highly trained, tight-lipped secret agents who operate in true cloak-and-dagger style — spies engaged in hush-hush missions that would do credit to fictional tales of international intrigue.

Failing in their missions, these confidential agents may face firing -- but not firing squads, for they are corporation "site teams," a new phenomenon of the great expansion and decentralization trends now sweeping industrial America. Their task is to pick locations for multi-million-dollar factory projects, and do it so quietly that competitors, land speculators and such will get no advance inkling of what's afoot.

More than 300 large firms employ site teams to roam the country seeking likely plant locations. The biggest corporations have their own industrial development departments for this work but many smaller companies hire professional site seekers who operate free lance. These specialists have reduced the problem of finding the right site for the right factory to an almost exact science. From "spy" team field reports they compile dossiers of prospective factory towns — written analyses that are detailed down to the number of pigeons roosting in the town hall belfry.

SITE TEAMS work in squads of from three to five men each. In a typical survey they arrive in the "target" town at sunup and scatter to perform their individual missions: Number One may meet the local mayor for a secret conference; Numbers Two and Three check all public utility facilities, scan railroad yards and observe highway and traffic conditions; Number Four may charter a plane to snap aerial views of the area; Number Five is likely to stroll about town to chat with townsfolk, check on schools, churches, recreational facilities and civic development. Missions accomplished, team members rendezvous at nightfall and depart quietly to submit reports to the home office.

A town's economic future and development prospects sometimes hinges on such trifles as a casual conversation between a service station attendant and a site sleuth enacting the role of a tourist. One village of 1,500 inhabitants, for instance, lost its big chance to quadruple its population and at the same time share in a $2,000,000 annual payroll when the station man remarked that he planned to move away because law enforcement under corrupt local political bosses had degenerated until it was virtually non-existent.

"It's quiet right now," he admitted, "but that's because there's a rumor that a big corporation is planning to build a factory here. It's just a temporary whitewash, though. As soon as the deal is closed things will be as bad as ever."

A CAREFUL RECHECK of the political setup by the site team revealed that the man's cynical attitude was justified — that the politicos had done a thorough job of concealing the true facts relating to civic morality. Result: the company built its plant in another part of the state where a clean local government prevailed.

Industrial development specialists seek towns which are best "tailored" to the needs of their clients and many a small community has finally awakened to the fact that the way to snare some of the current $2,000,000,000-a-month rate of American industrial expansion is to make their town conform to a particular standard that will attract the scrutiny of industry's secret agents.

Here are some of the things site sleuths look for:

Civic pride and sense of responsibility: If homes and gardens are well kept it's a good indication that their occupants are self-respecting folk who will make ideal employes and neighbors.

Local political setup and community development: Honest, efficient law enforcement, well-maintained streets and community facilities, such as municipal swimming pool, tennis courts and so on, indicate good municipal "health."

Commerce and trade conditions: An adequate shopping district with wide variety of goods at reasonable price levels. Such conditions encourage population growth and prosperous economy — hence a good labor supply of well-fed, well-clothed employes.

Housing, churches and schools: Actual or potential supply of good rental housing, churches representing major denominations and adequate schools, with up-to-date vocational training facilities, are important factors in rating prospective factory sites.

Transportation and power supply: Modern highways, conveniently located urban streets, railroad terminal facilities and plenty of cheap electric power are the prime requirements of many manufacturers.

Cultural development: A progressive local newspaper, good television and radio reception in the area, amateur music or hobby groups and a well stocked public library, are plus marks for any community hoping for new industry.

Tax structure: Most manufacturers expect to pay their fair share of local taxes but are wary of towns with high bonded indebtedness.

Local attitude toward newcomers: If merchants and townsfolk are inclined to resent an influx of strangers in their community life, many companies prefer to pass up a town. To be good workers, employes must be happy, accepted members of their new hometown.

SPECIAL TAX concessions or free factory sites are offered by some towns. Others set up industrial foundations or little corporations — capitalized by sale of stock locally — to prime the pump. Townspeople themselves build the factories for lease at attractive rates to prospective industrialists.

Such sugary bait is often spurned by large companies, however. They want not subsidies but active local support in providing necessary community facilities and services so that their new plants may operate at a high peak of efficiency and profit.

Site sleuths sometimes have to comb the country for as long as five years and make out thousands of field reports before a decision is finally made on a big plant location. Before the du Pont company selected Kinston, N. C., for the site of its multi-million-dollar Dacron factory, agents had thoroughly investigated 87 different communities as potential locations. Very few of the 86 losers ever suspected that they were under detailed scrutiny, so quietly did the industrial Sherlocks go about their work.

Every secret investigator has his own pet methods of disguising his purpose when visiting a town under consideration. Many go to such extremes to conceal their identity that they even remove labels from their clothes lest some sharp-eyed localite notice the city where they were purchased and start putting two and two together. Robert Pfenning, ace site picker for General Electric, is one of these. He doesn't want to be identified in any way — when he's nosing out prospective plant sites — with the city of Schenectady, N. Y., where GE's home office is located.

MOST TOWNS show a willingness to go all out to make new factories welcome and offer every co-operation when they learn they've been picked for a new plant location. Edmund H. Robertson, secretary of the American Industrial Development Council, an association representing 200-odd big business concerns, states that the quaint, sleepy little hamlet of song and poem has been largely transformed into a wide-awake would-be metropolis. He states that there are now more than 800 different industrial development agencies and committees — aside from chambers of commerce — in the U. S., and they're all actively engaged in trying to lure new business to their localities.

One town of 3,426 population (London, Ky.) organized a community improvement campaign that really hit the jackpot: It snagged six new industries within a few months and in the first year of its existence it sparked 115 projects, including a $63,000 health center, a new airport and a strawberry-growing industry that created a need for a new food-processing plant which is now pouring new payroll money into town at the rate of $250,000 a year.

"That's one town where a disguise would be a handicap," one veteran site sleuth remarked. "We just let the townspeople know who we are and what we're looking for and then spend the rest of the day at the movies. The industrial development committee will do all our work for us — and even type up our field reports!"

Site sleuths, hunting location for a multimillion-dollar plant, often confer secretly with town officials.

Local transportation facilities in the form of good bus or streetcar systems are always a consideration.

Good schools, with progressive programs for industrial training of students, are an important factor.

DOWN IN COACHELLA AND IMPERIAL VALLEYS

Indian Fortunes Reach Their Lowest Ebb

Forty acres of raw land like that above, the birthright of the sturdy Cahuilla Indians, is endangered by changes in white man's law.

LONG AGO, before the Spanish troopers and their patient padres passed, the talking-smoke of the Indian people stood tall on Signal Hill. From the Southland's coastal ranges and inland deserts the tribesmen came to the council fires and there was feasting and dancing, harvest and hunting, and much fine talk of the wonderful years to come.

But that was 1,000 years ago, before the white man came. The Dieguenos are few and scattered, the Pipimares are gone from California's coastal country. Even their dismal burying grounds have been trampled into the earth and forever erased. Occasionally a plow or a bulldozer turns up a broken skull or a weathered skeleton, along with a few pitiful shards of ancient pottery. That is all. The shoreline tribes are dust.

The desert Indian, the sturdy Cahuilla, still survives for he was made of tougher stuff. Also, it must be admitted, he lives today because his hunting range was on land men said was worthless and because of that he was not forced back and back to starve on sterile mountain slopes. The Cahuillas still live, a friendly, laughter-loving people, but the full-blood strain is fading fast. Today there are fewer than 300 Cahuillas in the entire Coachella and Imperial Valleys.

WHEN AMERICA MOVED westward on rolling, restless wheels, it was inevitable that a few far-sighted pioneers should settle here in the low desert. The men who made the laws did the best they could. They set aside certain lands as Indian reservations, giving each Cahuilla, or Mission Indian, 40 acres of raw land under restricted title which did not permit him to sell. Thus the Cahuilla Indian became a "ward of the government."

Neglected, untaught, unwanted, the desert Indian has been a governmental problem child.

"Do you know," said Joe Loma, a young Cahuilla, "what nation held its prisoners of war in concentration camps for the longest period of time? Well, I'll tell you, mister. The United States. And who were the prisoners? I'll answer that one, too. We, the American Indians."

UNDER PROVISIONS of House Congressional Resolution No. 108, dated June 9, 1953, and authored by Rep. Harrison of Wyoming, a degree of "freedom" would be granted the Indians.

The resolution, too lengthy to quote in full, advocates that all offices of the Bureau of Indian Affairs be abolished. This legislation was opposed by President Eisenhower, who contended that the Indian, generally, is not yet qualified by education and training to handle his own affairs where sale of tribal lands is concerned. The President's view is shared by Virgil R. Lawson, energetic young spokesman for the Indians of the Torres-Martinez reservation in the Coachella Valley. Lawson, a Cahuilla, attended high school in Indio and studied at Riverside Junior College. His position as spokesman corresponds roughly with that of chief, a title which has been virtually abolished in recent years.

By Bill Conway

"In almost every case," Lawson said, "continued government protection is needed. The Indian is not yet ready, because of neglected training, to compete with the white man in labor and agricultural occupations, the only avenues for which the Indian is congenitally fitted. Reservation people, mostly, are poverty-stricken. While a few have attended trade schools none has received the academic and business education which would equip them to handle their own affairs where large sums of money are involved."

UNDER PRESENT LAW an Indian may clear the restricted title to his 40 acres of land by proving to the Bureau of Indian Affairs that he is "competent." Adjudged competent, he is permitted to sell his land and give a clear title to the buyer. All too frequently he will sell his land for a fraction of its worth and that, precisely, is what Virgil Lawson and other straight-thinking Indians are trying to prevent.

An Indian woman walked into Latham Moore's general store at 100 Palms, near the Torres-Martinez reservation. Her man was in jail, she said. Arrested by the Highway Patrol for drunk driving after he had wrecked his new car by crashing into the rear of a truck. No money. Kids hungry. Would Moore like to buy her new refrigerator, never hooked up? Half price.

No, the storekeeper told her, he had no need for a new refrigerator. But she could go ahead and pick out the groceries she needed. He would extend credit. Couldn't let the kids go hungry.

The woman selected a sackful of groceries, signed a charge slip and walked out, carrying her supplies two miles to the dismal shack set down among a clump of catalpa trees, flanked by cactus and mesquite. Virgil Lawson watched her go.

"There you have it," said Lawson softly. "Her man sold a part of his 40 for $4,500. That was exactly a month ago. Now he is in jail, the money is gone and the kids are hungry."

"And the refrigerator?"

Bleak is the outlook of the desert Indian, almost as barren of hope as this neglected Indian graveyard deep in Coachella Valley.

Flirting Is Dangerous

Esther Williams, the movie mermaid, becomes Amytis, the Roman maiden who flirts with Hannibal, the invader, in "Jupiter's Darling," the new M-G-M CinemaScope extravaganza, and you might think it gets her exactly nowhere after a look at the accompanying pictures. But Esther, as just about everybody knows, has a way with her, so you shouldn't be too surprised that as the beautiful wife of a Roman senator, she persuades Hannibal to spare the Eternal City. And in the doing, Esther spares none of her attractions. In addition to doing a bang-up job of flirting, she swims, she extricates herself from an underwater knife attack, she faces wild beasts, she rides elephants and she sings. Howard Keel plays the singing Hannibal in the musical. And, oh yes, the part of Apollo is done by Long Beach's Johnny Olszewski of the Chicago Cardinals. And does he score when Esther tosses a dainty kiss his way!

Suspected of spying, Esther is chased deep into the Mediterranean by a savage knife-wielder, and she's silenced by Howard Keel.

A little later, she's scared stiff by a "tame" leopard, and she's slapped around by one of Hannibal's toughest generals.

An idea worked out into comfort for tired feet has developed a mushrooming business for Mrs. Edna Thornberry.

Walking on a Cloud

By Helen Johnson

EVERYBODY likes comfortable shoes. Nothing brings smiles to any person's face as quickly as foot contentment.

So thought Mrs. Edna Thornberry, of 2481 Clark Ave., when her family complained about the difficulty of finding house slippers to their liking. One day she decided to do something about it. So she designed and originated the slipper-loafers patented under the trade name of Dor-Enas of California, which right now are waiting for the nation's feet to step into them.

The footwear is simple, inexpensive, ultra-comfortable, and very easily made. A piece of sponge rubber, a bit of upholstery, plastic or leather, a "snip" here and a "tight pull" there. Then a few stitches on the machine. That's all there is to it. Except, of course, Mrs. Thornberry's secret way of cutting the sponge rubber and designing the patterns. And presto! A pair of most comfortable and attractive foot coverings sit temptingly by the favorite TV chair.

Never dreaming of commercializing on her idea, Mrs. Thornberry found her little project mushroomed overnight. From her immediate family, to neighbors, friends and church bazaars, it grew and grew until her time was so taken up that it was impossible to fill all the orders

Another of Mrs. Thornberry's ideas also is taking hold. It is a kit for use in making wardrobe-matched footwear.

Listerine Antiseptic Stops Bad Breath 4 Times Better Than Tooth Paste!

Germs—The Major Cause of Mouth Odor

Far and away the most common cause of bad breath is fermentation of proteins which are always present in the mouth. This fermentation is caused by germs and research shows that your breath stays sweeter longer, the more you reduce germs in the mouth.

Listerine Antiseptic Kills Germs by Millions

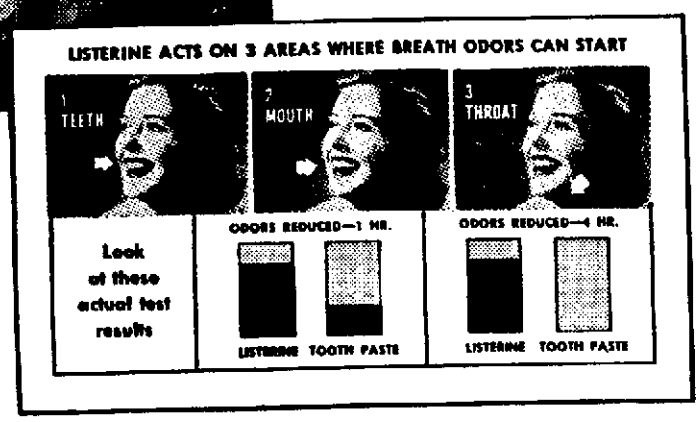

Listerine Antiseptic kills germs by millions on contact. Test after test has shown that even fifteen minutes after gargling with Listerine Antiseptic, germs on tooth, mouth, and throat surfaces were reduced up to 96.7%; one hour afterward, as much as 80%.

No Tooth Paste Kills Germs Like This ... Instantly

Tooth paste with the aid of a tooth brush is an effective method of oral hygiene. It depends largely on the mechanical and masking methods of removing unpleasant mouth odors. But no tooth paste gives you the proven Listerine Antiseptic method —banishing bad breath with instant super-efficient germ-killing action.

Listerine Antiseptic Acts on Many Surfaces

Listerine Antiseptic kills millions of germs on tooth, mouth, and throat surfaces. It kills disease-producing germs as well as many types of odor-producing germs. No tooth paste offers proof like this of killing germs that cause bad breath.

GLAMOUR GAL'S VERDICT

'Older Men Kiss Best!'

By Harry Niemeyer

A MOVIE GLAMOUR GAL who has smooched a lot of cinematic leading men thus far in her career said this week that it's the married gents who really have the know-how in kissing.

"The longer a man has been married the better his screen kiss," says petite film actress Gloria De Haven. "A married gent with a happy home life can kiss rings around Hollywood's bachelor boy actors."

Gloria, who broke up a two-year stay in the east, where she played the night club circuit to return to films as Tony Curtis' leading lady in Universal-International's music picture, "So This Is Paris," elaborates that screen bachelors are too often inclined to stuff their kisses before the cameras.

"I could name a couple of boys who are definitely known as real George material in the pages of the fan magazines," says the actress. "But I've smooched both of them in movie scenes and one of them kisses with all the feeling of a halibut, while the other one's lip pressings wouldn't send a gal as far as the corner grocery store."

Warming up on the osculatory subject, Gloria declares that the older the actor the more polished the kiss — married or unmarried.

"Men really start to learn the art of kissing when they reach middle age," she says.

Although Tony Curtis, her co-star in the new film, has definitely not reached the middle-age category, Gloria feels sure that his happy marriage to Janet Leigh has made him an above average kisser.

"Tony had to give me a sort of sisterly peck on the cheek in an early sequence," she says. "But it wasn't sisterly and definitely not a peck."

"It was the sort of appreciative kiss a wife likes to feel when hubby comes home and she's all tired out from housework."

Gloria, who has been married to John Payne and New York building contractor Martin Kimmel, concluded: "There's no make-believe in the kisses you get at home!"

After smooching some of the most handsome bachelors on movie sets, Gloria De Haven says married men kiss best.

stacked up at both doors! It was then she consulted a firm in Costa Mesa which has now taken over exclusive option of manufacturing these glamorous "cloud-walkers." Everything points to ovehwhelming success in the venture.

THE SHOES have been tried out at the VA Hospital, and all branches of the service are waiting to get them. Crippled arthritics, disabled veterans, old folks and even teen-agers, all sing their praises. Movie stars, writers, artists and people from every walk of life are among buyers.

Mrs. Thornberry has also developed another idea. She wrapped it up in a kit called Changetts. In this kit is found several patterns and a special adhesive. If a girl has a limited budget, naturally her shoe supply suffers. But with these two seemingly insignificant items, one or two pairs will prove sufficient. Because, for a few cents and a little time, any shoe can be transformed to match or accent the most sophisticated costume. Velvet, fur, metallics, prints, and even lace can be used. Should a change be desired from one day to the other, the material can be pulled off and something different pasted on.

In making this shoe-fashion transition, the entire shoe can be changed. Or, the material can be placed on the heels and toes, or over the whole shoe except the heel. Again, the heel and back of the shoe may be covered only. A plain shoe, like a step-in pump, is the best "subject" to work on.

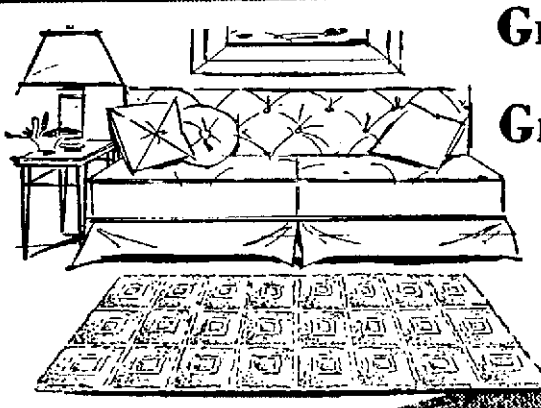

THE KIT is a real boon to travelers. One dressy pair and casuals are now sufficient for the best-dressed person. By use of this kit, wardrobe matched shoes which formerly were a luxury only a select few could afford, now are available to all.

More than 3,000 salesmen scattered through the United States, Hawaii and Central America are ready to place the kit before the public. And Edna herself has been caught in such a whirlwind of activities that no 24-hour day is half long enough. Back of it all, however, she is still "shoe-conscious." For she wants to make people happy by showing them how to have "happy feet."

Torn asunder as if struck by a Jovian bolt, Split Mountain in Borrego Valley is a geological wonder.

Where

By Mark McMillin

IN SOUTHWESTERN CALIFORNIA, the tourist traveling along State Highway 78 passes through Split Mountain in Borrego Valley, an impressive but little known geological wonder, located in the Anza Desert State Park, a huge area extending from the northern border of San Diego County south to within a few miles of the Mexican border.

Here, among the barren and rock-ribbed hills grow hundreds of species of desert plant life, such as the flame-flowering ocotillo, lavender desert verbena, cream-colored desert lily, scarlet cactus, the yucca, cholla, smoke tree and century plant, first noted by the Spanish conquerors of the early 18th Century.

Visitors also are intrigued by Split Mountain, which presents, in its towering cliffs of multi-colored sandstone, an open-book geological history of the region, which at various times has been completely inundated with salt water, subjected to violent earth tremors that ages ago lifted huge fault-block mountains up out of the earth's interior, overgrown with a vast tropical jungle, served as the bed of a wide-spreading lake, evidences of which still remain, and finally developed into the present desert area.

SEVEN MILES from Borrego post office, the tourist comes to Palm Canyon Playground, located near Palm Canyon, where today he finds concrete evidence of the former tropical jungle, still harboring forests of the Washington palm tree, California's only native palm. Scientists agree that this one surviving species of prehistoric California's jungle days is a "residual remnant of the days of the saber-toothed tiger, ancestral horse, camel and ground sloth, fossils of which have been found here." Some 500,000 years ago, Palm Canyon was a palm-lined shore of the greatly enlarged Gulf of California, before it receded to its present greatly diminished size.

By turning left on a dirt road leading off from Highway 78, the tourist enters the low hills of the Fish Creek Mountains, site of a formerly well known gypsum mine. Here a short trail leads up the canyon to a meadow, in prehistoric times a watering hole where mastodons came to drink, and where they left their fossil footprints — the size of which never fails to amaze the visitor.

WHAT'S YOUR HOBBY?

They Paint on Cloth

By Jule Armin

DECORATING for the family is truly a family affair at 2807 Harvey Way. There Papa George Couron originates designs and freehand paintings for framing; Mama Maxine paints clothing, curtains and decorative portraits, and 15-year-old daughter, Tonie, just naturally following suit by painting her wardrobe and venturing into the field of original design. Between them they have garnered 30 prizes at various fairs and hobby shows in their hobby textile painting.

The three of them form a wonderful team, have a lot of fun and make a lot of beautiful things to wear and to decorate their home as a result of their cooperative hobby.

"Any other family could do the same," says Mrs. Couron, who keeps two lively little boys content with odds and ends of paint and scraps of cloth while working on her own projects. "There's nothing like a common hobby for building family unity. Painting on textiles is an art almost anyone can master. If you hesitate to draw your own patterns, you can trace a design or buy ready-cut stencils and guide patterns at art or hobby shops. We like the free-brush technique ourselves because it allows for more individuality and we think gives more of a third dimensional effect. George draws most of our designs. We trace the basic lines but develop the idea and color scheme to suit ourselves."

For those who need a hobby that will pay for itself, painting on textiles is the answer, advises Couron, who says: "The materials to work with are inexpensive and the painted articles are all both usable and saleable, we've discovered. Whenever we wear something we've painted, people invariably ask if they can make or buy one like it. Thus we found a hobby that pays its own way. And that seems to be what the average family needs these days."

Textile painting covers a far wider field than most people realize, in the opinion of Mrs. Couron. "Tonie, our daughter likes to decorate everything in her wardrobe," she says, "from the filmyist negligee and nylon stockings, to dashing sport clothes, with sturdy play togs for her little brothers, and ties and blouses personally designed for her special friends. Even my seven-year-old boy has trimmed his T shirts by textile painting pictures I have outlined from his color book."

The Courons credit their teacher, Eldred Spears, for interesting them in their hobby and giving them their successful start. Mrs. Spears taught them a principle of flowing very thin paint into a slightly heavier painted outline, then building up the design by gradually shading in the darker colors to create a 3D quality. Basic fabric color is used as background and for highlights.

Used in this manner, textile paints are exceptionally good for portrait painting, easier to work with and less expensive than the usual canvas and oils, the Courons say. Effects can be varied widely, they say. Examples of their work include black and white studies—black paint on white nylon (these have the quality of charcoal drawings but won't rub off), and colors that appear to be oils or water colors.

At the moment, Mrs. Couron is applying colorful katcina dolls to green curtains.

Toni Couron started coloring pictures drawn on cloth by her mother, using crayons. She gradually worked into originating her own designs.

Designs are traced through thin material from the desired subjects or with graphite carbon on thick materials. Colors are then filled in. Tiny glass or jewel-like beads can be applied to give a sparkling effect.

"What we can do, others can do," the Courons say in summing up their mutual hobby.

Philanthropic Cat

By Eleanor Avery Price

THERE PROBABLY ISN'T a person in the country who loves cats more than Mrs. Sara Thomas of 524 W. 4th St., president of the Long Beach chapter of the Good Shepherd Foundation, Inc., an organization whose purpose is to try to locate the owners of lost and found cats and to encourage cat owners to curtail breeding.

Therefore, it seems only right that Mrs. Thomas should own Butch, a cat who is also a philanthropic creature.

Butch came to the Thomas residence in October, 1949, when he was about 1½ years old. He was apparently a stray and Mrs. Thomas took him in, fed him, and then set about locating his owners. It seems the owners, who had gone to the trouble of eyedropper-feeding him because his mother (and the rest of the litter) mysteriously died, and caring for him for well over a year, were not much interested in having him back, so Mrs. Thomas decided to adopt him.

There already was a Thomas household cat called Fluff who was 15 years old and frail and sickly from a wasting disease that gave it a ravenous appetite. Butch immediately recognized the condition of the old cat and so appointed himself as Fluff's protector.

At meal time, Butch would see to it that Fluff had all the food wanted even if it meant going without a meal himself.

Butch kept his ears alert, too. If he heard a dog or other suspicious noise in the alley back of the house, he would run out, look up and down the alley, then come back and sit close to his frail leashed friend, his face solicitous with his protective attitude.

FLUFF IS GONE now, and Butch reigns supreme, but his deportment is still one of agreeableness and benevolence. He accepts the leash and is as tractable a cat as cats come.

Mrs. Thomas takes excellent care of Butch for she knows that instead of a cat having the proverbial nine lives, its make-up is quite delicate. Clean drinking water, and a balanced diet with plenty of meat and some green food now and then are provided. No sour or spoiled food ever finds its way to the cat's dish.

COOKING

Accent on Spanish Food

By Mildred K. Flanary

Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

FOOD EDITORS all over the country are paying homage to a great lady, Elena Zelayeta. Because of her inspiration to them, this has been officially declared Elena's Week!

To know Elena Zelayeta is to have a favorite friend, to know a special person. Elena of the gay laugh, the nimble fingers, the quick wit — Elena, who has thousands of friends and sees none of them.

Elena's friends remember that she is blind only when she asks to have a letter read, an elusive jar of spice located. Left a widow with two young sons, she never let her handicap deter her desire to raise and to educate them. She has become a popular and able public speaker, the owner-manager of her own restaurant in San Francisco and has her own TV show. This week Elena will be heard and seen on several popular radio and television shows which emanate from Los Angeles.

A superlative cook, Elena is noted for the simplicity and subtleness of her recipes. Some are inspired by Spain, from whence her parents came, while some have the Mexican accent, the land of Elena's birth. They appear in "Elena's Famous Mexican and Spanish Recipes" and "Elena's Fiesta Recipes." From the sales of the former she purchased her first guide dog. The books are now obtainable in Long Beach stores.

We've snatched a few of our favorite recipes from her books. They follow:

Old-Fashioned Mexican Dessert

(Postre Antiguo)

¾ cup sugar
4 whole cloves
1 cup water
½ cup sherry
5 egg yolks
½ pound of pound cake
Maraschino cherries and canned figs for garnish

Boil the sugar and cloves in water for 5 minutes. Remove from fire and add sherry. Moisten the sliced pound cake with this syrup and place the slices on a platter. Add the slightly beaten egg yolks to the remaining syrup, and return to the fire, stirring the mixture constantly until it coats the spoon. Pour over the sliced cake and garnish with cherries and figs or any chosen fruit. Berries are nice, too. Serve warm or cold to six.

Small New Potatoes

1½ pounds very small new potatoes
4 tablespoons butter
3 egg yolks
1 cup broth
1 tablespoon prepared dark mustard (not yellow, please)
Salt and pepper to taste

Boil the potatoes in their jackets, peel, and fry in butter. Mix egg yolks, mustard and broth, and cook gently until it begins to thicken. Add the potatoes and let simmer for a few minutes. Season, and sprinkle with minced parsley. Serves four.

Elena Zelayeta of San Francisco, noted restaurant proprietor and cookbook author, as she appears on TV show.

Eggs With Tortilla

(Huevos con Tortilla)

1 tortilla
3 tablespoons oil
2 eggs
Salt to taste
Grated cheese, or diced Monterey Jack or Romano cheese

With scissors cut the tortilla into eighths and fry in hot oil, not too crisp. Beat eggs, add salt, and pour over tortilla, turning as you would an omelet. Add cheese at end of cooking time, just long enough to melt. Serves one or two. (Probably only one!)

Elena's Mexican Rice With Sour Cream and Green Chile

1 cup raw rice
1 can green peeled chili peppers
½ lb. Monterey Jack Cheese
2 cups sour cream
2 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper to taste

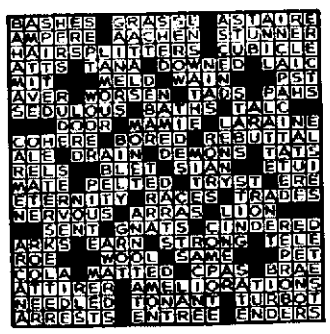

Cook the rice in boiling salted water until just tender. Cut each chili lengthwise into three strips. Cut half of the cheese into small oblongs, wrapping a chili strip around each piece. Butter a casserole and put in a layer of well-seasoned rice, then two or three stuffed chili peppers. Season with salt and pepper, cover with sour cream, then repeat until all ingredients have been used. The top should be of sour cream, the remaining cheese grated, and the butter in dots. Put in a 350° oven until browned on top, about 30 minutes. This serves six.

Kitchen Tip:

Elena's Kitchen Tip: Scalloped potatoes will have more zest if you add about one teaspoon of grated horseradish for four people.

Casual Living

Strong character is evident in the livin; room of the Robert Knox home. Fine domestic and imported contemporary pieces in furnishings provide interest.

Photos by H. S. Melvin

Charcoal and white provide dramatic background for the Knox bedroom. Steinberg print hangs over small window.

Driftwood-stained redwood, coral trim and planters of yellow give exterior typically California atmosphere.

By Eileen Ball

DEVOTEES of casual living are becoming almost as indigenous to California as its oranges. A whole new generation of homeowners — young marrieds with their heads in the clouds but with their feet very much on the ground — will have none of the stuffy protocol that was imposed on their uncomplaining grandparents.

This younger generation of homeowner has, for the most part, little use for the sort of house that puts forth a certain number of rooms designated for a certain inelastic set of uses. For example, they want — and demand — houses where the Sunday roast may be carved in front of the television set or out on the patio, free from the static limitations of a "dining room."

They want houses that can withstand children's romping without becoming obviously rumpled or ill at ease. They are looking for houses that accommodate the every-day practicalities of living and that can, at the same time, unfold for parties.

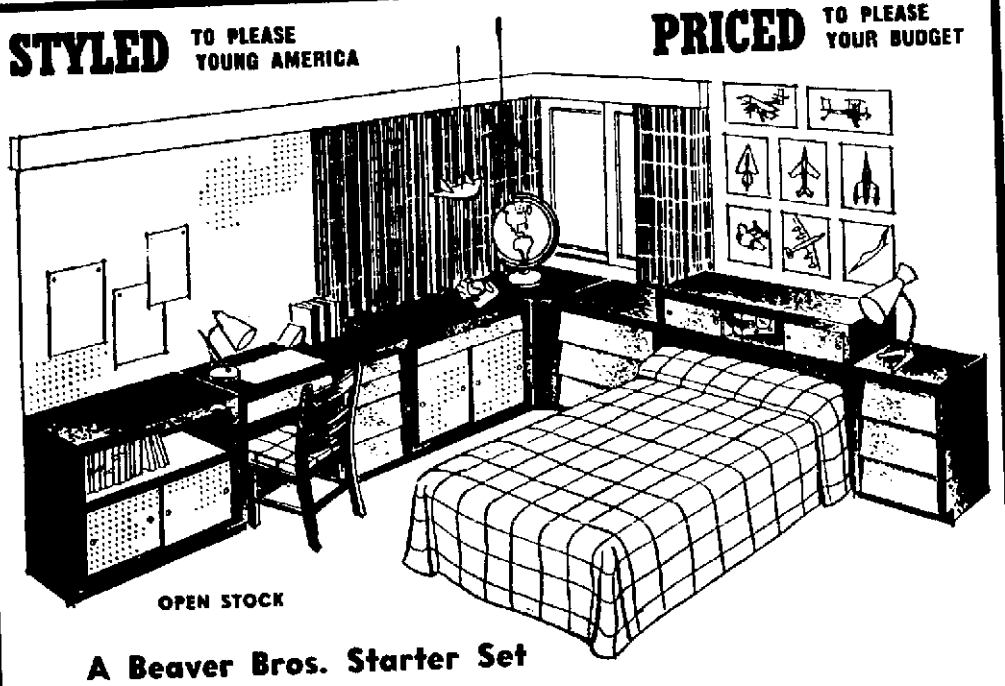

A family typical of the thousands looking for just such a dwelling are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knox who, with their little son, bought a house at 6416 Madera St. Designed by the architectural firm of Poper & Lockett, AIA, their home comes very close to fulfilling the specifications of their dream place.

The strategic placement of high grapestake fencing has drawn the yard close to the house, giving it the privacy of an outdoor living room. Redwood board-and-batten siding, painted a soft driftwood gray, is livened by trim of coral and squat planter boxes made of concrete blocks painted soft yellow.

The Knoxs' small den opens off the living area and can be partitioned off whenever desired by sliding doors.

How contemporary and provincial moods can be mingled is demonstrated in the kitchen-dining area of the Knox home. Dinette set is imported from Denmark.

point of decor is worthy of more than casual mention. Here is a house that exemplifies the possibilities that can be attained when the unbeatable forces of good taste, good furniture and youthful verve are brought to bear. In short, this little contemporary home proves beyond doubt that these youngsters who so wholeheartedly lend their support to the new esthetic are bringing about a revolution in living that makes subservience to traditional mannerisms seem a little pointless.

A DUAL FIREPLACE wall divides the living area from the kitchen-dining space. It presents its handsome wall of common red brick to both areas, adding an important decorative element.

Except for the actual chimney, the brick stops short of the ceiling in the manner of a partial roof. Over it spans a heavy wood beam that supports the low-pitched roof. Exposed natural wood rafters slope away from this main supporting member, creating an interesting sense of rhythm.

The fireplace wall, as well as the exposed ceiling members satisfy the love that advocates of contemporary architecture have for the display of structural materials.

Warm beige provides the monochromatic color scheme for

A long, low Paul McCobb bench in satiny birch spans the width of the windows overlooking the garden. It is met in the corner by a larger table, over which hangs a plastic bubble lamp — a handsome high light for this conversational area.

Much of the room's gay insouciance is dependent upon the whimsical Toulouse Lautrec posters framed in charcoal molding and mounted, in turn, on mats covered in white shantung.

A SMALL STUDY may be made part of — or separated from — the living area by means of sliding partition doors. Here, Knox revamped a wardrobe closet to serve as a built-in storage unit. The lower segment of the offset has been fitted with louvered doors, behind which is housed the television set and the phonograph. The area above is used for the display of books and art objects.

Knox's penchant for louvered doors is further evidenced in the swinging "saloon" doors which he has installed in place of the original standard doors in the hallway. It is interesting to note how even such an insignificant feature as a solid door can serve to "box in" a room. For there can be no doubt but that the little half doors substituted by Knox have served to increase the feeling of larger area living rooms.

Standing against the wall that defines the end of the living area and runs into the kitchen is a handsome case piece that expresses one of the finest features of good contemporary furniture. Although, in reality, it is part of the dinette set (an exquisite import from Denmark) it does not shout its use as china storage. So neutral is its styling, it could stand in any room and look completely right for that spot. Here, it becomes a good looking commode.

IN THE DINING AREA a small round birch table boasts a complement of simple Danish chairs, superb for their exquisite craftsmanship.

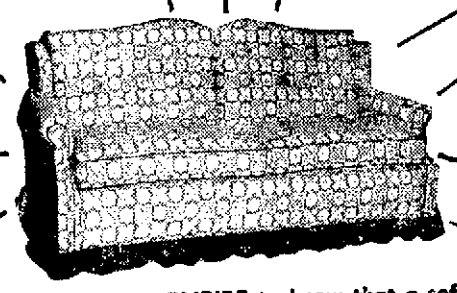

The kitchen combines the contemporary mood and shades of provincialism with a result that is doubly charming.

Stained and waxed to a finish emulating that of the birch cabinets are adjustable wood shutters that have been hung at the window. How wonderfully "at home" these antique shutters look (painstakingly sanded down to their original wood by Mrs. Knox) in their new, strictly modern setting!

TELEVISION

Rocket Flight Into Outer Space

By Ed Velarde

CAN MAN SURVIVE a rocket flight that would blast him 1,075 miles beyond the earth? This is the $4 billion question posed by Walt Disney and three of America's foremost space scientists in "Man in Space," premiere show from the Tomorrowland realm of "Disneyland" to be seen on Channel 7 from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., Wednesday, March 9.

To answer this question, a year's effort was required to produce, with the services of the three eminent scientists, a factual, realistic picturization of the first successful passenger flight into outer space. It is an event that scientists agree will not occur for at least 10 years. And when it does, a combined investment of $4 billion will be represented.

Disney's genius to entertainingly present factual material is again brought into play in "Man in Space," beginning with a pictorial history of rockets and their development through the centuries. He introduces an animated cartoon sequence depicting the probable difficulties man will encounter in outer space. And he concludes the hour-long teleshow with a graphic visualization of man's first flight beyond the space frontier, a conquest achieved by means of a four-stage rocket.

SPACE AUTHORITIES who lend authenticity to the telecast are Dr. Wernher Von Braun, ranking space scientist and rocket engineer; Willy Ley, science-factual authority and space historian; and Dr. Hans Haber, ranking high-altitude and space-flight authority.

Among the material to be presented is Ley's prediction that within 10 years rockets bound for the moon, Mars and planets even more distant will be leaving on time-table schedules from a space station 1,075 miles beyond the earth.

He scorns such intangibles as flying saucers and other "interplanatory" phenomena.

"I am quite sure there is life elsewhere in our galaxy," he says. "I consider it possible that we can get visitors from space, but I do not think flying saucers are it."

LEY CAME to the United States from his native Germany in 1935 after helping pioneer the German Society for Space Travel, an organization that included some of today's best rocket and guided missile men.

"It will cost about $4 billion," he says, "but think of the industrial possibilities. The space depot could provide an accurate weather prediction service. Its location means improved observations of sun spots and other solar manifestations affecting the earth. A whole new chemistry, biology, and physics research program would begin on that platform out there in space!"

Von Braun agrees. Like most contemporary space scientists, he believes a man-made satellite as humanity's first foothold in space could dominate the world.

A pioneer in developing liquid fuel rockets used effectively during World War II, he helped perfect the V-2 and advanced rockets at White Sands Proving Ground which are initial steps toward space travel. His work as chief of Uncle Sam's Guided Missile Development Division at Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Ala., is still top secret.

Anyone in a rocket is going to be mighty uncomfortable no matter how you look at him, Haber declares.

"The floating and feeling of weightlessness he will experience when he leaves the earth's gravitational pull will be disturbing and will affect his co-ordination," Haber explains.

A SPACE TOURIST in transit must wear pressurized and air-conditioned clothes, the doctor says. He will have to drink out of closed tubes and back away from his own breath to avoid suffocation, unless air inside the rocket is ventilated constantly. He is likely to suffer vertigo. When he finally leaves the ship to stretch, he is in danger of being incinerated by the intense heat of the sun- or frozen.

"But," assures Haber gravely, "there is no indications that basic bodily functions will be affected."

Dr. Haber narrates an animated cartoon sequence featuring Homo Sapiens Extra-Terrestrialist or "Space Man," a cartoon personification of Mr. Average Male surviving a harrowing round trip into outer space. Dr. von Braun discusses the probability of a passenger-carrying rocket expedition. After explaining some of the present approaches to such a flight, he outlines the mechanics of a four-stage rocket he has designed toward interplanatory travel. This leads into a realistic, factual animated cartoon presentation of the first successful manned-rocket journey beyond the space frontier.

Stereo camera takes two pictures, as eyes see scenes. A viewer must be used to bring the films into focus.

CAMERA ANGLE

Stereo Gives Depth

By the Shutterbug

IF SOMEONE were to ask, "What is the newest thing in photography?" we'd probably answer "stereo." Of course, actually stereo isn't new. It has been around a hundred years or so. We're sure you heard about the stereopticon slide viewers that occupied a place of honor beside the plush-covered family album in Victorian parlors. Viewing scenes of distant places through these was one of the popular pastimes of the day.

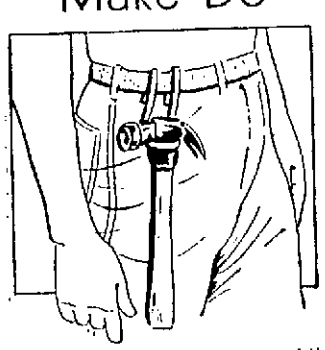

The thing that is new about stereo is that now we take our own stereo pictures. The scenes viewed through stereo viewers today are our own personally important pictures - they are the same pictures we snap with ordinary cameras for our family albums, or photograph on 35mm slides to project.

In stereo pictures, all the objects show up in their natural relationship to each other. Thus, the beautiful scenic view, which tends to come out disappointingly flat in other pictures, will have all the qualities that made us want to photograph it. This is because such scenes most always owe their charm to depth — or perspective — both very difficult to capture in our snapshots. But with stereo, the scene will be just as you saw it.

Stereo pictures are not difficult to take. You just shoot color pictures - but view your subjects in all their natural three dimensional charm when you look at them through the stereo viewer.

THE INDIANS

"Oh, that," said Lawson. "The refrigerator has never been used because their shack is not wired for electric power. And the salesman knew it."

That is a typical case. Only a few of the desert Indians who have sold their land under their new "freedom" have obtained more than a fraction of the actual value of the acreage. And almost without exception those who have sold spent their money foolishly and, in many cases, are now on state relief rolls.

OLDER TRIBESMEN, including those who have been drawing old-age pensions, will be cut off the pension lists unless they sell their lands, the Riverside County Welfare Bureau recently informed the tribe through a letter to Lawson. Aged and infirm Indians, obviously, are not able to plant and harvest even a small acreage because they are unable to borrow the money required to have the land cleared, buy machinery, pay for irrigation waters and other expenses. Should they be adjudged competent — which they certainly are not — to sell their lands, they would follow the usual pattern and spend their money unwisely in a matter of a month or two.

Younger Indians who served loyally in World War II and, more recently, in Korea, are unable to obtain loans, in most cases, to improve and stock their land because land with a restricted title is not acceptable as collateral for a loan. Even if the title is cleared and vested in an individual, lenders are chary about advancing funds secured only by raw desert acreage. And so the Indian gets a job, when he can, digging irrigation ditches, trimming date palms, picking and packing the crops his white neighbor plants on near-by watered land. Or he goes into the cities and finds work in factories and industrial plants — and he is unhappy there.

DESPITE the apparent liberty granted at long last, this is the time of low ebb in the fortunes of the desert tribes. The fires of hope, kindled briefly by Congressional action two years ago, now burn low and cool in their hearts. They hold frequent tribal meetings in abandoned schoolhouses and old churches on their reservations and listen to one speaker advocate selling lands at once, another urging them to wait and condition themselves to accept freedom. The reservation Indian hears the opposing arguments and is puzzled.

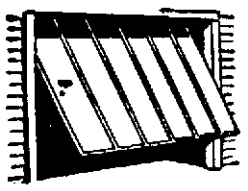

Over the ghost trails of Spaniards and Indians long since gone the roaring trucks go by, carrying their cargos of foodstuffs to cities across the mountain passes. Beyond the sharp cleavage of drab and green that marks the reservation's boundary line the white man's tractors lift their metal clamor as the white man seeds and weeds the row-crops that bring him wealth. The Indian watches and wonders what the future holds.

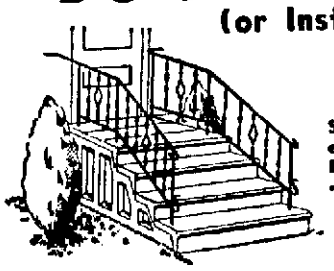

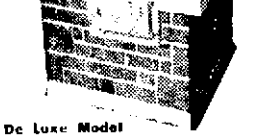

For there are no row-crops growing in the Indian's lonely fields. Only dust-devils dancing, swirling away to the sky. Only the hot wind prowling, whimpering softly like a lost and lonely gnome. Nothing fresh and green. Only mesquite and sagebrush and the tangled catalpa jungles where the coyote and the sullen rattlesnake hide from the heat of the day. And down from the clouds the wild geese fling their taunt to the men who are not yet free.

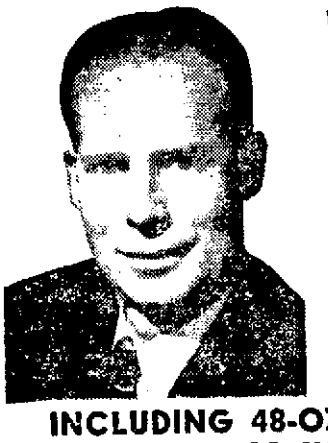

The Cahuilla listens and is sad.

Along the Old Mission Trail

By Ray Hewitt

Resort Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram

Cypress Point on the Monterey Peninsula is a stiff test of golf, as this view of the 16th hole shows, but the beauty of the surroundings more than makes up for it.

THE TIME was late fall 1947 and California was in the throes of preparing to celebrate its 100th anniversary. Civic leaders were in a dither dreaming up ideas to commemorate this notable event . . . the state legislature had appropriated money to be used for such celebrations as they approved and a commission had been appointed to supervise the events and the spending of the money.

After the pot had simmered for several months no one seemed to have come up with an idea with which to "kick off" this series of celebrations which would span three years of history. Then one group, the California Mission Trails Association, advanced the idea that if the state was going to seek the attention of the world, what better way than to go all the way back and portray the Portola expedition of 1769 which opened the coastal area of what is now California and brought civilization here.

As most persons will recall, Portola's was a semi-military expedition to establish the claim of Spain to this fabulous land. Like all of Spain's colonizing projects, it was also semi-religious. Fra Junipero Serra was selected to be the religious head and Capitan Don Gaspar de Portola as military leader.

Arriving from Mexico City in the vicinity of what is now San Diego, the expedition established a base camp, and after many delays started north in search of the bay of Monterey, which had been described in glowing terms by various sailors. The story of the travelers' hardships and adventures has been told too many times to need repeating here, but 108 days after their start they finally reached the end of their journey north and discovered the bay of San Francisco, where, in the chronicler's words, "all the navies of the world could be anchored."

Father Serra did not make the overland journey but went north by ship. However, Father Crespe, another Franciscan, did make the overland journey and he wrote a detailed diary of the trip. Using a copy of this diary as the basis of their plan, the Mission Trails Association sold its idea to the Centennial Commission and were directed to proceed.

AFTER MONTHS of preparation a crew of horsemen was as-

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

DUBLIN.

NOTES OF AN Irish traveler: Ireland is one of the less expensive and more charming countries of Europe. Hotel rooms in Class A areas won't run you more than $2 to $3 a day. The standard lunch in the same hotel runs $1 and dinner is $1.70.

It should be noted, however, that there are not too many Class A hotels. Ireland is not geared up to a tourist trade in the way France is. The Automobile Association, 23 Suffolk St., Dublin, publishes a handbook for members with all hotels listed plus the accommodations.

Usually you get one of these with the car that you rent.

Ireland's best buys are the woven goods from the cottage industries.

The wholesaler takes his yarn around to the country cottages that are equipped with looms. It comes back later, peat-smoked and handsome, in the form of Donegal tweeds and so on.

Grafton Street is the best shopping street in Dublin. It takes you about 15 minutes to walk both sides of the street in a window shopping expedition.

* * *

TOP OF THE IRISH designers is Sybil Connolly on Grafton Street. Her tweeds are the best I have ever seen. She also does some evening things using Irish linens that are very handsome.

She ought to be in the States about now, by the way. She is showing in Los Angeles on St. Patrick's Day, March 17. I am not sure of all her American outlets. But Lord & Taylor and I. Magnin's are two of them.

* * *

If you are looking for a St. Patrick's Day gift for an Irishman, send $4.50 to Shannon Airport, Ireland. Ask for one of their poplin ties with the Clan crest. They claim to have every Irish name.

The ties come in forest green, black, navy blue and maroon. The receiver pays the mailman about 35 cents duty. But his family crest is on the tie and it's an unusual gift.

* * *

SHANNON AIRPORT is a free port. No Irish duties or taxes. They are just beginning a new service on men's jackets, suits and topcoats. Women's things, too, I think.

You ask for a set of samples of various tweeds. They come with a measuring chart. Average price for a Donegal tweed jacket is $28. There will be some American duty, however, and possibly some retailoring.

A NEW MINTED SET OF ALL IRISH COINS IS ANOTHER NICE GIFT. THEY COST $1.50 AT THE AIRPORT. SO I IMAGINE $2 WOULD COVER IT, POSTAGE AND ALL.

Southland Magazine's roving correspondent will answer your questions on travel from his own experiences in making reservations, changing money, locating restaurants and battling foreign languages. Make the question specific. And don't forget the stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. Stan Delaplane, care of Southland, Independent, Press-Telegram.

HOW TO Improve Home Storage Space by Organizing, Utilizing Attic

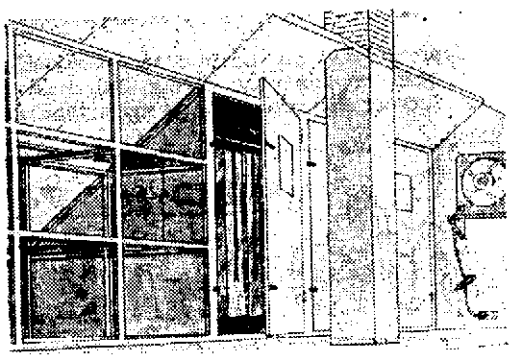

DOES YOUR ATTIC look like a run-down second-hand store? Then it's time for a change. The same kind of systematic sorting and storing that works out well in an office or warehouse can bring order to your attic. And by stacking or hanging everything in a place of its own, you'll find that you will make room for more suitcases, garment bags, and little-used sports gear.

First step is to throw or give away the piles of magazines and old clothes that are only catching dust. Next, sort the other things in the attic; divide them into groups by their size or type. Then decide on the kind of shelves and closets you need to arrange your attic efficiently.

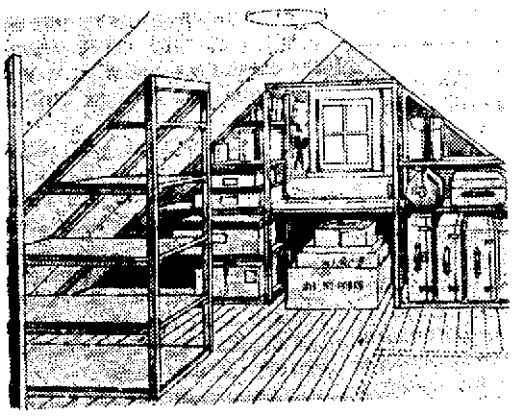

Here are some ways you could make better use of your attic space. Most of these storage aids are built from hardboard and wood. All are constructed in a way you can copy. See which item you should start with.

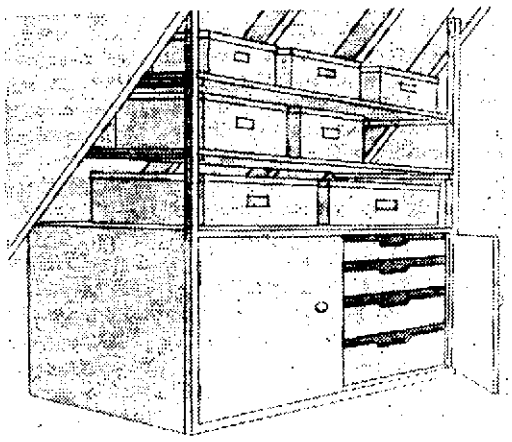

1. UNDER-THE-EAVES BINS may be filled with outgrown clothes and off-season sports gear. A turn-button on the roof joist overhead holds the lid up while you look through the bin. Paint size numbers or names on each bin.

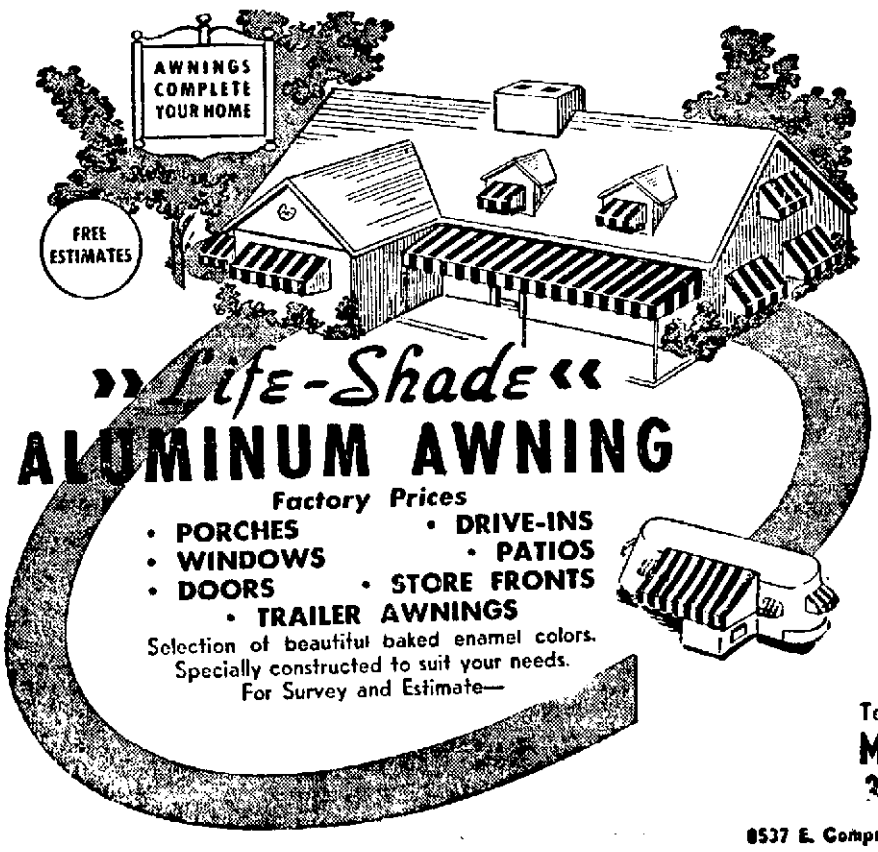

2. FREESTANDING SHELVES can be built in the center of the attic, then pushed into space under the eaves. Nail shelves to the frame, or balance them on the frames for easy removal. Keep boxes, paper, scissors and cord on a shelf under the window so you can do all of your wrapping in the attic.

3. STORAGE CLOSETS will keep garment bags in mothproof safety. Fit the doors tightly -seal them with tape. Open shelves at left store cartons. Cover mattresses and pillows with plastic so they won't get dusty.

4. READY-MADE CLOSET BOXES, bags, and drawers come in handy in the attic, too. Build a simple framework to fit the stack of prefabricated drawers, you'll have a mothproof chest for woolens. Shelves above the frame will hold boxes for linen, clothing and shoes.

GARDENS

Grow Prizewinning Pansies

By conforming to a few simple rules of culture, any home gardener should be able to grow pansies of prize-winning quality.

By Walter Finch

FEW FLOWERS come close to the pansy as the leader in popularity of modern bedding plants. Pansies continue to hold top popularity with little competition year after year. Little wonder when one views a beautiful bed of prizewinning plants at a garden competition, but the question still remains of how to develop like blooms in the regular home garden environment.

Actually, there is little that remains in the way of a secret to successful growing of exhibition quality pansy plants. Of course, quality seed must be chosen and most commercial growers are very meticulous on this point. Cost of seed is of secondary importance. The primary thing is to secure the very best seed obtainable because the flower can never be any better than the strain of seed that is planted. Secondly, rapid unchecked growth must be maintained until the plants are ready for sale in retail nurseries and this too, has become a carefully watched procedure to the point that most commercial growers today offer perfectly grown stock to their retailer trade. At this point, the home gardener takes over the care of pansy plants and here again certain procedures must be followed through for best results, according to the California Bedding Plant Advisory Board.

PANSIES LIKE a cool soil that is porous and well mixed with a good organic humus. They require abundant phosphate for good root development such as is supplied by bone meal or superphosphate. During the winter season they thrive in full sun although as the days lengthen they will tolerate more shaded conditions. Drainage should be excellent and the soil surface should be lightly cultivated at two week intervals or after each heavy rainfall. In the way of pest control, slugs and snails must be controlled otherwise the flower petals will be continually chewed before they are half open with a result that is not appealing. Also aphids must be kept well under control with regular sprayings or dustings with the proper insecticides as they tend to reach epidemic proportions before they are noticeable. In such cases the pansy plants will be severely checked and will not be capable of reaching the full potential quality that is built into the seed embryo.

Many strains of pansy are available but the two outstanding strains offered today are the Swiss Rogli and the American Mastodon Jumbo. Modifications of these two strains are offered under many labels most of which are fine mixtures. Basically the Roggli pansy is a bold rich color with a huge black face although some such as the white and one yellow are solid selfs. In the Mastodon or Jumbo strains the coloration is many-hued within the single pansy and there is a much wider color selection. Many of the blossoms have fine pencilings or whiskers that lend a distinctive touch to their appearance. This strain lacks in good blues and deep reds which are found in abundance in the Roggli Strain. In the matter of growth the Roggli Pansy is more compact and tends to get a little bunchy while the Jumbo Pansy sprawls out and will need a little trimming to keep it tidy.

An Orchid for Every Garden

By Bob Gilmore

Cymbidium orchids thrive in Southland soil if planted in a sheltered location and protected from the wind.

YOU CAN GROW orchids in your own garden easily, quickly, successfully and with a minimum of care. The variety to choose for this type of culture is the cymbidium orchid. Even the cost is nominal.

Cymbidium orchids in Southern California seem to grow as vigorously as a geranium. They do not require either a protective greenhouse or a professional horticulturist. The truth is that if you can grow a rose you can grow a cymbidium; and if you can't, then turn the job over to your 5-year-old child. Chances are, you'll find cymbidium orchids easier to grow than tuberous begonias or gardenias.

Before you start growing orchids there is one distinction to get clear. Orchids can be divided roughly into two main groups: The terrestrials which root in the soil and the epiphytes, which root in other plants or rocks but not in the soil. Although epiphyte orchids often grow on trees they are no parasites. Cymbidium orchids are evergreen terrestrials. This means they are always in foliage with the roots in the soil.

Cymbidium orchids are natives of India and Indochina. In their homeland they are often found growing in decaying masses of vegetation. Familiar sites for them are in dead tree stumps. This situation provides excellent drainage, a factor that is essential for successful culture. It is believed that more cymbidiums die from poor drainage than from any other single factor.

CAREFUL CONSTRUCTION of the growing bed plus proper soil should guarantee good drainage. Heavy soils such as adobe or clay have poor drainage. Sandy soils have excellent drainage. Water penetrates easily and quickly. A soil mixture of equal parts of leaf mold and mountain soil should suffice. Adding gravel will prevent packing.

The beds should be raised, being from eight to twelve inches above the surface of the soil. Water naturally drains to a lower level and this type of raised bed will encourage proper drainage.

The plants require very little water during the winter when they tend to go dormant. During the summer watering about once or twice a month should prove ample. Withholding water at this time seems to encourage flower production in the following season. Make sure the moisture penetrates the soil to a depth of at least four or five inches. Then don't water again until the soil dries out.

Liquid fertilizers may be applied about once a month during summer. In winter once every three months should suffice.

Flower Show

Entries are now being accepted for the Southern California Spring Flower Show which will be held in the Floral Building at the Los Angeles County Fair Grounds in Pomona on April 22, 23, 24. This event, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Pomona, has been endorsed by the Inland Empire Chapter of the California Nurserymen's Association and is being actively supported by garden clubs and flower arrangement groups throughout this area. All proceeds derived from the show will be used for charitable purposes.

Awards will be made for individual arrangements, potted plants, corsages and specimens, as well as for many classes of floral arrangements. Entries are open to all amateurs and entries from children are particularly solicited. Children's entries will be grouped in a special junior showing for which special awards will be made. Anyone desiring an entry blank should write Mrs. Jean Wheeler, in charge of amateur exhibits, at P. O. Box 67, Pomona, or phone LYcoming 9-8058.

While the show will feature amateur florists, it is open for display purposes to nurserymen and professional florists. Professionals, however, will not be competing with amateurs for awards.

Fuchsia Film

Three-D pictures of fuchsias will be shown by Loren Paulsohn of Inglewood, president of the California National Fuchsia Society, at a meeting of the Long Beach branch of the society at 7:30 p. m. Thursday in Machinist Hall, 728 Elm Ave. Visitors are welcome.

Garden Tips

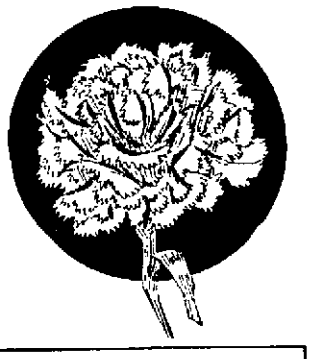

GARDENING TIPS for the week. . . Dichondra seed will be in short supply this spring. So buy your seed at once before all stocks are exhausted. Coated dichondra seed, which facilitates planting, is also available.

As the weather warms up you should plant citrus such as lemons and oranges as well as the more tender subtropicals. Provide plenty of moisture to insure the roots taking hold quickly.

To sustain the customary spring growth of all plants apply plant food at regular intervals. Don't overfeed but give moderate feedings at frequent periods.

Garden Glamour From Brazil

By Murtha Hurley

W. Atlee Burpee Photo

Not all the glamour in Brazil is exported for the Miss Universe contest. Long Beach garden fans may also enjoy the Latin beauty of Gloxinia.

GLOXINIAS, those glamorous plants from Brazil were once comparatively unknown here. Today, through the efforts of hybridizers, any careful gardener can grow them.

If you are a patient gardener, willing to assist the plants' development from tiny seedlings to colorful blooms, you can grow Gloxinias. It takes five months from seedling or bulb to a productive flowering plant.

The Gloxinia is a native of humid, tropical forests. These conditions must be approximated as closely as possible to grow this unusual bulbous plant successfully.

Get the best seed. Specialists who carry varieties of Gloxinia bulbs can supply the seeds. You can choose them in separate shades of blue, purple, pink, several crimson tones and white, or a mixture of all colors.

SINCE THE SEEDS require a warm, sheltered location for germination, sow them indoors or in a heated glass house.

The seeds are very fine so do not sow them too closely. Use shallow clay pots. You must hurry for seed culture this year; planting time is growing late. Use the same soil mix as for tuberous begonias. Place two inches of gravel in the bottom of the pot, then a mixture of fairly coarse compost, about 2/3 leaf mold and ⅓ peat moss, several handsful of sand. Add a thin, finely sieved layer of the same mix on top. Soak the pots from below—then sow the seed.

Do not cover the seeds with any soil, after you sow them in the pot. Cover the pots with glass and keep well shaded during germination, seedling and growing stages. A temperature of 70 degrees to 80 degrees is required.

Water with a fine mist spray.

Just as soon as the seedlings begin to show, gradually remove the covering, giving more light and more air.

As soon as the seedlings are large enough to lift out, trans-

Don't plant lawn seed until you read these facts

"Deep feed" your grass with this 2-way lawn fertilizer

Golf® BRAND LAWNFOOD

feeds your lawn 2 important ways:

1. It contains fast-acting chemical nitrogen to give grass an immediate sparkle and lushness.

2. It also contains organic nitrogen, plus other needed food elements, for the steady slow feeding that means sound and continuing growth.

High in nitrogen . . . Golf Brand Lawnfood goes further! One pound does the work of three pounds of ordinary fertilizers.

25 LBS. . . . $2.95
50 LBS. . . . $5.45

Kill lawn weeds, crabgrass using your garden hose!

Here's the easy way to kill broad-leaved weeds and ugly crabgrass. No complicated equipment, no measuring or mixing. Besides your garden hose, you'll need:

Golf BRAND 2-4,D WEED KILLER
. . . kills dandelions, plantains, other broad-leaved weeds. Single pint covers 2000 square feet! $1.15.

Golf BRAND CRABGRASS KILLER
. . . kills crabgrass, also controls many common lawn diseases. Single pint covers 1200 square feet. $1.75.

FERTL-RAIN SPRAYER
. . . fits on garden hose, connects to Weed Killer bottle. Automatically mixes Killer with water in correct proportions. $3.45.

Golf Brand flourishes anywhere—in sun or shade, on level or grade

Stop worrying over the "difficult" places in your lawn. Golf Brand Lawn Seed gives you a blend of 11 perennial grasses, designed to meet virtually all the various conditions found in every lawn.

You get sun-loving grasses, including famous Merion Bluegrass, to keep the lawn green in hot weather . . . fine-leaved fescues that thrive in deep shade . . . bentgrasses for beauty and exquisite texture . . . still other grasses with root structures that cling to slopes. Wherever you plant Golf Brand, the particular grasses best suited for the conditions take over . . . and flourish!

What's more, some grasses are always at their growing peak, to give you a rich green lawn all season long.

Grow a lawn so thick it crowds out weeds

The sooner you plant Golf Brand, the sooner you can enjoy a thick velvety turf, a carpet-like lawn of lasting beauty! Golf Brand is a blend of 11 perennial grasses fungicide-treated to insure high germination. These are grasses famous for their beauty and long life. Given the initial care it deserves, a Golf Brand lawn will grow ever thicker. By the end of the first year, and particularly during the second year, your Golf Brand lawn grows so thick it actually crowds out weeds!

For a perfect lawn—seed, feed, weed the Golf Brand way

1. SEED. In buying lawn seed, you get exactly what you pay for. Even at their peak of growth, cheap ryegrass mixtures can never give you a permanent, thick luxurious turf. But when you plant Golf Brand, you start a permanent lawn. A lawn that, with proper care, will grow more beautiful each year.

2. FERTILIZER. Regular feeding is a "must" for a perfect lawn. See column at left, for facts about Golf Brand Lawnfood.

3. WEED CONTROL. Kill weeds and crabgrass as easily as watering your lawn. See column at left for details on Golf Brand Weed Control program.

Start Pelargonium Cuttings Now

By Burleigh M. Beakley

PELARGONIUMS are easily multiplied by softwood, off-season cuttings of new growth brought on by pruning the plants The small plants propagate quickly from terminal material and will bloom in later spring to make vigorous pot or garden specimens for landscape planning. The compatible Long Beach area climate encourages pelargoniums to a resplendent growth.

Not only is the pelargonium a fast-growing, vigorous floral decorant, but it offers a multitude of colors and combinations of colors, hues and brilliant flower markings. It has a wide variety of leaf patterns and markings. And there are numerous completely different foliage fragrances, or mock scents of such vegetal items as apples and mint with which is charms the prospective collector.

The process of taking and rooting pelargonium cuttings is simple and almost failure-proof once a few points of procedure are mastered. Use only pest-and-disease-free succulent growth of flowerless terminals with short joints for the strongest plant reproductions.

To get the proper texture of cutting stock, test the material by bending it. If, when sharply bent, it snaps cleanly leaving a shred of cambium uniting the two parts, it is right.

POPULAR VARIETIES range in many colors and are usually separated by names. A few of them are:

White: Mary Bard, pure white with rose throat markings; Duchess of Kent, pure white.

Pink: Mackensen, brilliant rose flowers on a dwarf shrub; Bella Donna, cerise pink with mottled upper petals; Ruth Macafee, quantities of large salmon-pink blooms; Diener's Giant, finest large pink blooms.

Salmon: Sue Jarrett, clear, dependable salmon color, Grandma Fisher, large, ruffled deep-salmon blooms.

Lavender: Lavender Quedlinburg, spreading lavender blooms marked with black and white; Waltztime, pale lavender with dark purple veining on the upper petals.

Red: Easter Greetings, one of the first to show spring color. Fire-truck red; Amanda, red that glows; John Wintermute, lasting deep blood-red blooms; Carmine King, shrubby, early blooming plant with carmine flowers.

Maroon and Magenta: Dutchess of Cornwall, dark maroon with white petal edgings; Marie Rober, darkest purple or black with verdant growth and vigorous vertical foliage.

Multicolored: Neubeit Faiss, heliotrope violet with deep purple blotches; Springtime, brilliant salmon overtones on clear white background.

Let cuttings wilt for day to reduce rotting, dip in root hormone, set in clean sand and keep sand evenly moist.

For pelargonium cuttings, use 4-inch new growth tips. Cut straight across, 1/8 inch below the axil of leaf.

—Photos by the Author

After ½-inch roots form, transfer cutting to pot in equal parts of sand, peat moss, good loam.

Gloxinias

plant them to a larger container or flat, spacing about three inches apart.

When the first leaves are an inch wide, transplant the seedlings into 2½-inch pots, one to a pot. Use a soil mixture of ½ coarse leaf mold, 1/6 peat moss, 1/6 fine loam or silt and ¼ compost and sand.

Remember the warmer the temperature the faster Gloxinias grow and the larger they become. To obtain large plants from seed, it is necessary to shift the plants as they develop to next size larger pots.

Gloxinias can also be grown from bulbs.

Start the bulb in moist peat moss. When the plant shows its first growth, transplant to 3-inch pots. As development continues, shift to a 4-inch pot.

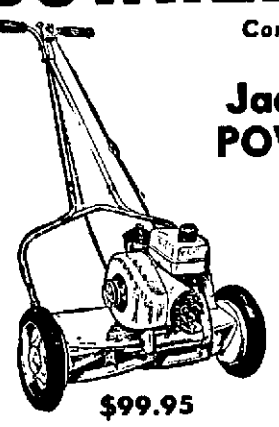

Plants started from bulbs grow faster and larger than from seedlings and when mature will easily fill a 6-or 7-inch pot.

Violet Show

April 29 and 30 are the dates fixed for the annual African Violet Show, to be held at Norway Hall, 7th St. and Redondo Ave., under sponsorship of the African Violet Society. Mrs. L. D. Thalheimer, show chairman, suggests that all amateur growers begin grooming their plants now for exhibit and competition.

Lots of Babies Mean Lots of Business

AMERICANS ARE HAVING babies, buying homes in the suburbs and new automobiles ..and just generally spending a lot of money at what the editors of Fortune Magazine often describe as a "furious" pace.

These editors devoted a considerable part of the talent at their disposal in 1953 and 1954 to studying the buying (and living) habits of the American people.

With ponderous eastern insularity, Fortune reported the great trends toward home-making in this land since 1947. It seems incredible that Fortune should miss analyzing the greatest home-building, baby-creating boom of the country; but since the same trends were apparent around New York City, it probably has no effect on Fortune's conclusions that the area sometimes classified (by Fortune) as "The Far West" was roundly ignored.

(There is, after all, a place called Lakewood . . .)

The editors of Fortune collected the articles they caused to be prepared, and Hanover House has published them under the title, "The Changing American Market" ($4.50).

Projecting the welter of statistics into the future, Fortune's editors see prosperity generally through 1959, then a recession of sorts, and a newer boom in the 1960s. Fortune sees a continuing demand for good and bigger houses; a competitive market for automobiles; a good market for clothiers with imagination, and an active trade for all merchants who aim at families whose incomes range from $4,000 to $7,500 (after taxes).

"The Changing American Market" hedges most of its predictions; buries the readers under a mountain of charts. A preface explains that there wasn't room in Fortune for most of the charts. That seems understandable.—G. C. F.

ANNE M. LINDBERGH

A pattern of living- not a panacea but a goal towards a fuller life — is offered by Anne Morrow Lindbergh in "A Gift From the Sea" (Pantheon, $2.75).

As the author, wife of the famed flier, vacations at the seashore, she gathers sea shells and compares them to life's problems. While she meditates she shares with the reader her answers to everyday frustrations and pressures. She proposes a "balance of physical, intellectual and spiritual life."

The beauty of her philosophy lies in its simplicity and sincerity. She tells us we cannot collect all the beautiful sea shells on the beach, but we must choose and discard, and keep only the perfect specimens. "A Gift From the Sea" will be eagerly read and enjoyed by all seekers of harmonious and graceful living.—F. T. H.

MEN OF AVARICE: Julie and Charles-Hubert Poissonard, able to make the most out of everything, made 47 million francs out of the German occupation of France. Their avarice included larding the butter, watering the milk and shorting the weights, and since they were storekeepers, all of this was mighty, mighty profitable.

"The Best Butter" by Jean Dutourd (Simon and Schuster, 3.50) traces the Poissonards and an assortment of Parisians through defeat, occupation and liberation during World War II. Dutourd scored with a satirical novel, "A Dog's Head," and presumably meant to be satirical all the way here, too. But things get a little grim in spots. An entertaining, often chuckle-funny novel.—G. C. F.

Bushrod Sheridan wanted to be known as a landowner in his own right rather than as the husband of Allegra Saunders Sheridan, whose family had lived on a fine Missouri farm. To attain his dream, he took his wife and daughter on the second run in the Oklahoma Territory, and the story of what happened to the family is ably told by Alberta Wilson Constant in "Oklahoma Run" (Crowell, $3.95). — E. G.

When kindly Bishop Nevin of the Diocese of Seattle dies, his successor, Bishop Blunt, tries to reform his baseball-playing, practical-joking priests. The job is not an easy one, as you'll find when you read "The Bishop Finds a Way," a humorous novel by Michael Cunningham (Farrar, Straus and Young, $3). F. T. H.

LAND OF VIOLENCE: A Grand Canyon guide named Bill Parks combines ranching and romance with smuggling and violence for a corking yarn of the Arizona Territory in the late 1880s. His first novel is called "The Mestizo" (Macmillan, $2.75), and in it a young rancher, a sheriff and his deputies, and the Rangers come to grips with a wild animal of a Yaqui mestizo who has an uncommon lust for blood. The Territorial saloons, Apache renegades, the long, hot Arizona days, the cooling nights with their gallon-size stars and glowing campfires among the cactus, the zing of Indian knives and the ricochet of king-size bullets all combine to make "The Mestizo" top-notch western.—F. T. K.

NEWLYWEDS — and couples contemplating matrimony — will find many a helpful suggestion in the choosing of fine, useful things for their home in "Off to the Right Start" (Bobbs-Merrill, $2.95). Marjorie Binford Woods, who has helped to plan 10,000 weddings, and Justine Feely, the authors, give many a pertinent pointer on how to select such items as china, silver and glassware, linens, things for the kitchen, and then tell how to put these necessities to work to best advantage.—F. T. K.

IMPRESSIONIST: The reader will not have to be a patron of the arts to enjoy and profit by "Noble Savage: The Life of Paul Gauguin," by Lawrence and Elisabeth Hanson (Random House, $5). Here is one of the greatest of the impressionists, one whose paintings were wide of the flattering and photographic likenesses loved by the public. Gauguin was perhaps the product of his own mixed parental backgrounds and he was early impressed by the dark-skinned people who appeared to him as true primitives. At first only a "Sunday painter" (Gauguin was a well-to-do stockbroker with a wife and children when he picked up the brushes) it was not long before the man abandoned his profession, his family and most of his possessions to paint what he wished. His early "Study of a Nude," done without previous experience, still is one of the best of all nudes, but he is most noted for his canvases of Tahiti, where he died. One only regrets that the illustrations in this volume were not printed in the colors that mean Gauguin and no other artist.—G. L.

ONE FOR PSYCHIATRISTS: "Children of the Stone Lions" (Putnam, $3.50), by Paul Hackett, is the ugly story of two warped youngsters who can't make a go of their attempt to be normal human beings. Amateur psychiatrists may like it.—G. C. F.

NEW PAPERBACKS: "Line of Fire," adventure and excitement, by Donald Hamilton; "New Ways to Greater Word Power," by Roger B. Goodman and David Lewin, and "The Only Game in Town," a novel by Charles Einstein (all Dell First Editions, $.25 each); "1001 Valuable Things You Can Get Free," a compilation of give-away items, by Mort Weisinger (Bantam, $.25); "Drop Dead," a mystery, by George Bagby (Bantam, $.25).

Stamp Notes

For the first time, President Dwight D. Eisenhower appears on a postage stamp.

The new stamp, issued by Korea, is significant, since it commemorates the military defense treaty between the Republic of Korea and the United States.

Depicted on each of the three adhesives is President Eisenhower shaking hands with President Syngman Rhee.

The 10 weun is blue, 19 w brown and 71 w green. In the background are the flags of the United States and the Republic of Korea.

The Old Mission Trail

sembled. They were costumed in exact replicas of the garb worn by the soldiers of Portola, as was also the man who characterized Father Crespe, and they headed north from San Diego for the long journey north. Their starting date was July 8, the same as the Portola expedition's, and they followed the diary to the last detail, taking the same 108 days, camping as near as possible to the same spots, and arriving at the point high on the hills back of San Carlos in mid-October. The event received national and international publicity.

Until this time the Coast Route between San Diego and San Francisco had not had much publicity. Travelers generally preferred the inland route via Bakersfield and Fresno as it was a trifle shorter and faster.

It was about this time that the California State Highway Commission began to be aware of the necessity of doing something about the Coast Route, U. S. Highway 101. And since then vast sums have been spent to improve, widen and in many cases, reroute, this highway so that today, while it is still a few miles longer between the Los Angeles area and San Francisco, it takes no longer to drive and it still offers the most scenic and historic route north.

There is certainly no comparison needed of the delights of driving the scenic and cool Coast Route with any other route.

Winding beside great stretches of white, sandy beaches with huge, snow-crested breakers rolling in from the blue Pacific and dipping through mountain passes such as the one north of Santa Barbara, where U. S. troops under Gen. Fremont outmaneuvered the Spanish and proceeded over San Marcos Pass to capture Santa Barbara without a shot.

Santa Ynez Valley and Santa Maria, with its flower-bordered streets; Pismo Beach and San Luis Obispo, with its famous old mission established by the Franciscans in 1772, please visitors. The highway now bypasses San Luis Obispo but a convenient turnoff leads into and through the city. Over La Cuesta grade, once the terror of motorists but now a wide, four-lane, divided, high-gear highway, the road leads northward through the pastoral scenes of the Valley of the Oaks (Paso Robles) and the rich Salinas Valley, often referred to as the "salad bowl of the nation."

FROM SALINAS a side trip leads to historic Monterey and Carmel, and the coast may be followed to Santa Cruz and groves of giant redwoods.

The Santa Clara Valley is still abloom with its vast orchards of prune, cherry and other fruit trees and no lovelier drive can be found in the entire world than the stretch of El Camino Real between Palo Alto and San Francisco. For those in a hurry, Bayshore route is a freeway all the way into San Francisco.

The Mission Trails Association, a non-profit organization devoted to promoting interest in the scenic and historical interest along the Coast Highway, has published a brochure, illustrated in color, which may be obtained free by addressing Ray Hewitt, care of the Independent, Press-Telegram. The association also has a colored, 16-mm film which will be loaned to clubs, schools and other groups without charge.

MORRIS SPIER
When Is a Sandwich Not a Sandwich

PEOPLE LOVE to eat foods which are different than what they're supposed to be. And if that's a slightly ambiguous sentence, here is a possible explanation:

One of the most successful items served at the Village Inn, 2099 Bellflower Blvd., is a sandwich which isn't a sandwich.

On the menu it's listed as a Steak Sandwich. The Inn's patrons know very well that it's much more than a mere sandwich and order it with great and satisfying regularity. Priced at $1.85, the "sandwich" is a whole meal, consisting of a half-pound top sirloin steak served with big slices of garlic bread and a large baked potato with a creamy cheese sauce and chopped chives.

Morris Spier and Jack Laykin, the Inn's neighborly hosts and owners, realize, of course, that some people have even bigger appetites. So for them they serve a splendid Top Sirloin Dinner. This steak weighs a full pound and is prime quality Kansas City beef. Charcoal broiled to perfection, the sirloin is such a handsome beauty that many men prefer its company to that of their wives. (This is a fact that they seldom admit, however.) Tabbed at $3.50, the steak is served with a great big salad, including roquefort or cream French dressing, a baked potato, garlic bread, fresh vegetable and coffee.

The Inn also offers its guests an excellent Lobster Thermidor ($2.75) with each serving including a pound of fresh lobster sauteed in butter and wine and dished up with mushrooms, pimento and a rich cheddar sauce. It is served on the same complete dinner as the sirloin steak.

Incidentally, talented Norman Cowan appears nightly except Sunday at the Inn's piano-bar. He can play any song that was ever written — and some that weren't. —TEDD THOMEY.
